Greeks Nominate Fabi As President

MARSHALL UNIVERSITY STUDENT NEWSPAPER

Will Pick Vice-President At Caucus On Tuesday

By GARY KEARNS
News Editor

Francis Fabi, Monaca, Pa., junior senator, was picked Tuesday night as the Greek candidate for president of the student body in the upcoming general election April 8.

Fabi carried 10 of the 15 Greek social organizations on campus in the second political caucus at the Alpha Xi Delta sorority house. Each of the fraternities and sororities were allotted one vote.

The remaining five votes were cast in favor of Dick Cottrill, Huntington junior and secretary of Student Government Affairs, a position in the cabinet of the present administration.

But the Greeks were unable to select a candidate for student body vice president. Therefore, a third caucus is scheduled Tuesday at 9:15 p.m., also at the Alpha Xi house, for the purpose of selecting one. There are three nominees contending for this position. They are: Mike Carroll, Nitro junior senator; Hobert Raikes, Logan junior senator, and Art Fornari, Wellsburg junior and chairman of the special caucus committee which organized this year's Greek caucuses.

Fabi, Cottrill, and Larry Dezio, Wheeling junior senator, were all nominated for candidates to the top Student Government post in the first caucus last Sunday afternoon at the Alpha Xi house. Dezio, however, dropped out of contention the following day.

"I will just wait until next year," he said, explaining that he intended to run for the student body presidency at that time.

Also at this first caucus, two people were chosen as nominees for the vice presidency. They were: Brenda Hubbard, Williamson junior senator, and Mike Carroll, Nitro junior senator.

Miss Hubbard, however, dropped out of that race last Sunday evening, sending Carroll a note informing him of her decision.

And in the second caucus Tuesday night, the nominations for the vice presidency were reopened.

The Tuesday caucus lasted about three hours, beginning at 9:15 p.m. and adjourning close to midnight.

But after the first caucus, the delegates to the meeting returned to their respective organizations the following evening and met in separate active meetings. Each group then decided which candidate it would officially endorse among the nominees at the second caucus on Tuesday night.

The three hopefuls for the vice presidential nomination are expected to visit all of the fraternities and sororities sometime Monday to speak and to be questioned. The two presidential nominees and Carroll visited some of the sororities and fraternities last Monday.

Sally Jewell West Virginia College Queen

Sally Lynn Jewell, South Charleston senior, has been recently named West Virginia College Queen for 1963-64.

The contest is a national contest to select the most typical college girl. Girls entering the contest were judged on four points: academic accomplishment, attractiveness, charm and personality. Also, the contestant must answer 35 questions plus an essay question on the topic, "The Importance of a College Education."

Sally's name was entered in the contest without her knowledge. She received applications from New York and discarded them as a joke. Later, she received a telephone call from the same authorities in New York telling her to enter the contest as soon as possible. She did and won the West Virginia title.

At present, Sally plans to enter the same contest again for 1964-65. "The contest is growing and this year there will be such prizes as $5,000 and a trip to Europe."

World-Traveling Coed Has Versatile Wardrobe

Hey girls, how would you like to have a complete wardrobe of exclusive imported knits? Christine Enczi, Canadian freshman, has a varied wardrobe of knit fabrics which are gaining popularity as a fashion trend this spring.

Chris, a native of Hungary, has traveled extensively throughout Europe and North America, attending schools in Hungary, Canada and France before coming to Marshall. Knits are always in style everywhere and practical for college girls to care for, especially in the case of Chris, who, in her traveling must take her clothes from one place to another. By wearing knits, she has very little laundering and pressing to do, and she can use that spare time to do extra studying and sleeping.

According to Chris, who spent last summer studying in France, "European college girls have very little spending money during the time when they're in college. With a budgeted expense account, the girls would rather spend $40 for a knit suit that could be worn with different accessories, such as colored scarves, simple jewelry, various blouses, and sweaters, than, like American girls who want to get more for their money, by spending that $40 buying wool or cotton suits and dresses that can be worn for only a year or two, and will either be worn out or out of style. Besides, the European clothes wear better and the workmanship is of finer quality."

While discussing fads and crazes in style, such as the sack dress, the shirtwaist dress, madras, and the shift, Chris commented that everyone needs a change. "College kids live a fast life and fads break the monotony, but," she added, "people always go back to the standard style of simplicity."

For the most part, Chris' clothes are of simple line and solid colors, predominantly navy blue, green and grey, with beige and red accessories, all of which accent her dark brown hair and olive complexion. Thus you might say, her wardrobe is international, since she has traveled through Europe, Canada and the United States wearing the same suits while keeping perfectly in style in each place.

However varied the fashions may be in different countries, in general, the fashions in the United States are "much more liberal than in France, where you have to conform," Chris added.

Chris' mother is a doctor of Internal Medicine, doing research in Montreal, Canada, and presently working in New York. Her father, a European writer, is now in France doing research for his latest book and writing for a newspaper.

Marriage Group Is Being Formed

A married student group is being formed on campus, according to Rev. Elmer E. Dierks, Baptist campus pastor.

Thirty-four interested students met for a dinner at the Campus Christian Center recently. At this meeting, Mrs. Colonel "Buddy" Scott was chosen chairman of a temporary committee to organize the group.

Rev. Dierks said that a meeting of the committee will be held at Marshall Heights at 7 p. m. Sunday evening. At this time temporary plans will be discussed further.

Rev. Dierks is sponsoring the group and he said that the time for the next group meeting would be discussed later.

Men's Dorm Gives Own TGIF Party

The New Men's Residence Hall has a dance band!

The new group will play at a TGIF party today in the lounge of the men's dorm beginning at 4 p.m. Everybody is invited to attend.

Members of the group are all residents of the dorm. They are: Thomas Sowards, St. Albans freshman, playing the lead guitar; Paul Messersmith, also playing the guitar; and John Poore, Williamson freshman, on the drums.

According to Sowards, "this first dance will be on sort of a trial basis, and depending upon its success, these dances may or may not become a regular Friday night attraction in the dorm."

Furniture in the lounge area will be moved aside in order to make room for dancing couples.

Sowards added that "these dances have been approved by both the Student Government and the dorm officials."

There has been no definite time set for the end of the dance but it is expected to last until the majority of the students leave. No other parts of the dorm will be open to visitors other than the lounge area.

Magazine Prints Freshman's Article

"Seventy Six Years of Roanoke Steam" is the name of a 4000-word article written by Lloyd D. Lewis, Princeton freshman which is to be published in the August issue of "Railroad Magazine."

The second feature Lewis has done for this magazine, the article is written in a relatively non-technical style, but goes into some detail concerning the building, operation and maintenance of each class of the 449 steam locomotives turned out by the Norfolk and Western Railway at Roanoke, Virginia in the years 1884 to 1960.

During the five month period the author spent in preparing this article, he heard several humorous anecdotes about these engines and some are included in the story as background material. Sadness is expressed at the passing of the steam locomotive from the American scene, since the Norfolk and Western was the last major railroad in the country to use steam exclusively for hauling its trains. Many of the incidents described take place in southern West Virginia.

Lewis did his first feature for Railroad Magazine in the summer of 1962 while he was still a senior in high school. "Before The Wires Came Down" was the title of the dramatic story telling of the closing of the former Virginian Railway electrification between Roanoke, Virginia and Mullens, West Virginia.

A freshman majoring in journalism and minoring in history, Lewis is the youngest person ever to write features for this national magazine. Much of his information was obtained through the works he has collected from his father who has been with the Chicago and Northwestern Railway for 39 years.

U. S. Adds $22,000 For Student Loans

Marshall has received $22,445 in federal funds for student loans, in addition to the allotment made last August, according to Stanley A. Shaw, dean of men.

This money will not be immediately available, but will be put aside to be used for the coming fall semester students so that they will know in advance how much money they will get. Last fall, the loan fund was very low, and although all commitments for first semester were met, the second semester funds for each student were cut by 20 per cent.

Students may get applications in Dean Shaw's office for monetary assistance and each application will be considered by the Student Aid Executive Board. The deadline is April 1. If a loan is granted, the student is not required to pay any of it back until after graduation. A total of 15 students were awarded loans during the first semester under the National Defense Loan Program.

'Don't Fence Me In' Says Laidley Hall

Laidley Hall has taken on a more dormitory-like appearance.

The bars enclosing the office, which is located in the lounge area, have been replaced by a metal fixture which extends over the entire window of the office in an arc formation. The new addition has a floral design that gives both the office and the lounge area a more pleasing look.

Funds for the purchase of the item were supplied through the fees collected in the dormitory. The fixture was presented as a gift to the dorm by the residents.

Mrs. Margaret Warth, Laidley Hall hostess, said that the new addition was a "welcome replacement for the bars that formerly enclosed the office."

Registration Dates For Election Noted

Students wishing to run for student government offices in the upcoming election may register between 8 a.m. March 23 and noon March 26 in the student government office, Ken Gainer, student body president, said.

Lectures on parliamentary procedure and the operation of student government will be held April 2-3 at 4 p.m. All candidates must attend the first meeting and those who are running for office for the first time must attend both. The student government test will be given following the second meeting for those who have not yet taken it.

Posters may be put up starting Sunday April 5 at 2 p.m. and must be down by 8 a.m. April 9.

The election will be held on April 8.

Plans Set To Bone Up For GE College Bowl

By BRENDA FAULKNER
Society Editor

"Marshall competes athletically in the Mid-American Conference, but our coming College Bowl appearance is the first opportunity for a national audience to view our resources," Dr. Harold E. Walker, vice president of academic affairs, said today.

"This popular Sunday afternoon TV program will provide Marshall University a splendid chance for national recognition. Our university status is still not known in the far corners of the earth, and I don't know of a better way for it to be made known," he added.

Dr. Walker and his committees are on the search for the cream of campus talent. "We want to be at our best for this occasion," he told faculty members in a memo released Wednesday and urged them to nominate likely team members.

Any Marshall student, including 1964 graduates, is eligible to compete for a place on the four-member team. Dr. Walker stressed that the success of an entrant does not depend wholly on his mentality, but on his alertness and quick responses with his knowledge.

Nominations are being sought from students and faculty members for potential participants. Anyone who knows a student whom he feels is of suitable caliber for the team is urged to nominate him or her in Dr. Walker's office in Old Main 110.

In a memo sent out to all faculty members, Dr. Walker outlined the areas from which the College Bowl questions will be taken. They include American and European History; American, English, and European Literature; Philosophy; Sciences; Current Events; Music; Art; Mythology and the Bible. Students do not have to be equally capable in all these areas. A student who excels in one area is the most desirable according to Dr. Walker.

Faculty members are being asked to help the bowl committee by nominating several students, who, in their judgment are potential candidates for such a program on the basis of their knowledge, ability, and mental alertness.

In like manner, a coach for the team is being sought. Students and faculty members are also urged to nominate a faculty member to coach the team and accompany them to New York.

Dr. Walker has received some thirty nominations of students to this date, but he says that many more are needed. There are plans to conduct two Marshall University Bowls in preparation for the final selection of the team to be sent to New York. The screening of the nominees will be in this manner. He said that the committees are hoping to be able to have one Bowl on campus, then go to a local television studio for the second and final bowl.

"This should give an interesting slant to the actual screening of the candidates and also generate quite a bit of community interest in the project," he commented. "The campus Bowls will be set up exactly like the actual thing, with lights, buzzer and all. From these competitions, we will be able to establish a varsity team to represent us," he added.

The deadline for nominations to be taken in Dr. Walker's office is next Tuesday.

The competition on the national scale has been narrowed to a possibility of four schools, Whittier, Drew, Lewis and Clark, and LaSalle Colleges.

Dr. Walker suggested that in order to make the campus competition keener, each sorority and fraternity, and each campus organization nominate one of its members for the team. These nominations, plus all the individual nominations would give the Bowl committee their desired number of applicants.

Two committees have been set up to take care of the nom-

JOSEPH SHIELDS SET FOR HARVARD
... Readies Exhibits For Competition

Campus Photographer Set For Harvard Convention

Marshall will be represented at the annual University Photographers Association convention at Harvard University by Joseph Shields, photographic technician and staff photographer for The Parthenon.

Shields will arrive in Cambridge, Mass., the home of Harvard, on April 2 for conferences and meetings. The purpose of the three day convention is to exhibit work which reflects the varied application of photography in higher education, according to Shields.

Most of the conferences will be in Harvard's Carpenter Center for the Visual Arts. However, Shields said the delegates will probably go to Boston and Brandeis Universities for additional meetings.

Two of the prints he will enter in the competition are 16 by 20 inch color prints processed in the University photographic laboratory. Shields is quite proud of these prints since they are in vivid color, a very critical process. In order to reduce the chance of error in reproduction, by making sure his temperature and power units would have the necessary power supply without interruption, Shields explained that he worked on the prints after the Science Hall, where the lab is located, was closed for the night. The excellent reproduction shown on these two prints has proven, he said, that Marshall does have the facilities and the abilities for such advanced processes, which were previously thought to be too difficult to handle.

Shields spent 10 rather full years in the field of photography before he was called to the campus last summer. He first worked as a photographer-reporter on his hometown newspaper, the Corry Journal, in Corry, Pa. He had a job in an aerial photography studio in Cleveland, Ohio where his duties included such matters as mapping courses for highways.

Shields is married and is the father of a two month old son, Joseph Jr., known as "Jay".

Some members of the Big Green golf team were sitting around the table talking about the chances of a championship this season.

"I really feel that we'll have a good chance to take the title this year," Harry Hoffer, senior golfer, commented.

The title talk comes to mind after a less than glamorous season last year following the Mid-American Conference championship the previous year.

Other golfers that were discussing the possibilities were Chip Woodring, Bill Spensky and Dave Herndon.

These four players, along with Dave Whipkey, were on the championship team three years ago.

"Chip, Bill, Dave and myself were on that championship team when we were sophomores. That was a good way to get started and we are hoping to go out in the same way," Hoffer added.

Last season the team was plagued with rain, and also the players had to live up to the fact that they were expected to do no less than bring back a second golfing crown.

"We all had a bad year in spots and this hurt us a lot," Woodring remarked, while contemplating the hopes of the upcoming season.

The MU golfers are scheduled to get under way on the courses, if the schedule is approved, on March 21.

"If we get the 23-game schedule that we have to have," Hoffer noted, "we should do no worse than win 17 and lose five."

In the MAC, the golfers explained that they don't think that they can do any worse than third place and that's only if Toledo and Ohio University don't live up to expectations.

The MU golfers have an advantage, it seems, in that they play the MAC tournament on the Miami University links. This is a course where they have usually fared well in the past and, according to Coach Buddy Duncan, this could be a good sign.

"We always seem to do well on the Miami course," Duncan said.

The thing that makes this golf team different from those in the past is the depth factor. This season there are more players out for the team and it seems that play-offs will have to be held in order to pick the top six performers.

The top three are almost sewed up with Hoffer, Woodring and Whipkey expected to be the standouts. The other three positions have five boys in competition for them.

From the talk that was generated from the players, it doesn't appear that they will be hurting from lack of practice.

Most of the golfers have had a chance to get out on the course during the past months and they should have their shots well under control.

Hoffer pointed out that he hasn't missed a day of practice for around two weeks now and that he and the others are ready to go.

Yes, it certainly is a change from last year and on the surface it appears that the team could go far on its confidence alone. Keep your eyes on this team and don't be surprised if the MAC crown does come back to rest in the Marshall nest.

Komives One Of Best

It may have not been realized, with all the booing and jeering at the Bowling Green game last Saturday night, but the fans at MU were treated to seeing one of the best cagers ever to come out of the Mid-American Conference — Howie Komives.

This guy had a lot of pressure riding on him going into the game with the Big Green and you sure could tell it there in the first half when he came up with clenched fists a couple of times.

But you'll have to admit, it takes quite a basketball player to go into the second half of play, with three fouls on him, and score 29 points without committing another foul.

It was commented after the game that Komives is the best to come out of the MAC, even better than Marshall's Leo Byrd. Komives plays the game from board to board, whereas Byrd was a great offensive star only.

Komives was third team selection on the All-American squad this season and was the first Bowling Green star to ever capture the MAC scoring title. He also iced the national scoring championship against the Big Green.

Along with becoming the third highest scorer in U. S. basketball history with a nation-leading 36.7 average, Komives established a consecutive free throw record of 50 covering five games without a miss.

He eclipsed most of the BeeGee school records set by Jim Darrow in 1958-60 and set MAC records for a total point and average in a season.

The night that the flash from Bowling Green played here should be a night remembered.

Notes And Quotes . . .

Just a note to MU students that the Area Four, Class A basketball tournament, will be held in Gullickson Hall tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. Kermit plays Buffalo and the winner will go to the state tournament in Morgantown. Students will be admitted to this contest with the presentation of their ID cards and 50 cents.

Varsity Cagers Take Look At Past Season, Eye Future

The Big Green basketball squad went down to its worst defeat in history this year. Why? And what hopes are there for the future? The Parthenon asked the members of the team for their comments. Here's what they said:

Bill Francis, junior guard:
"There's no question about it. Rebounding was the big fault this season. A 6-9 boy would have helped tremendously. If we get a big boy next season we should be better. I feel our record will definitely improve next year, with or without a big man."

George Hicks, sophomore forward:
"The lack of experience might have hurt us, but really I can't say because I don't know what actually was the reason. I know we can play better ball. We're just bound to do better."

Willie Tucker, senior forward:
"We didn't hustle as much as we thought we hustled. Height hurt a little, just a little, but the hustle could have been better."

"If Coach Johnson gets one or two real tall boys, then he could have a good season."

Walt Smittle, junior forward:
"I was displeased with the season. So was everyone else. We needed the big boys to help out under the boards. But we have some fine boys coming up to help us out."

Jim Odum, sophomore forward:

"We lacked ability and personnel. Height is about the biggest thing we needed. A good big man is about all we need. We should be able to improve because we know more about what Coach Johnson wants now."

Bruce Belcher, junior center:
"We didn't have the rebounding strength and we lacked confidence. I think that if we can get some big boys we should build up our desire and then we should improve tremendously."

Levi Lauvray, junior forward:
"I felt we just didn't have big enough boys. There wasn't enough rebounding strength. It was the first year under Coach Johnson and his system was new to everybody. It was more or less an adjustment period."

As for the future, there's only one way to go — up — I hope."

"We lacked a strong rebounder along with being inconsistent during the games. If Coach Johnson gets the material he expects to get, he should win. You can't win without the material."

Tom Langfitt, sophomore forward:

"We lacked confidence and we lacked a team leader. We didn't have anyone to take charge when the going got rough. I think, just like everyone else says, that if we get a good big man we should have a good ball club. Also, we need a team leader."

Butch Clark, senior guard:
"It's evident that we lacked height. We'd have won a lot more ball games with a good big man. I think if Coach Johnson can get a couple of big men, the team will do all right."

Larry Williams, senior center:
"It's hard on the boys and the coach to start out a new system like we had to do. It's not anyone's fault actually, although some of us didn't produce like we should have."

Bill Treacy, junior guard:
"We didn't rebound as we should have. Guards did a good job, but it was just a matter of being outclassed and outmaned. We should improve with a year of Coach Johnson's system under our belts."

MU May Start Track Season With Only 22 Varsity Members

The MU track team will start the season with a lack of personnel, according to coach Charlie Kautz of the thinclads.

Though the schedule of track meets has not been approved by the athletic board as yet, Ray Cumberland, assistant athletic director, said that the season will start on March 26 or 27.

"We have 22 varsity members and 14 freshmen on the track team," Kautz said, "and this is small. Most of the teams that we will meet have a 30 man varsity squad, at least." He went on to say that in track, every event should have a depth of at least three. Since there are 15 separate events that MU participates in, the lack of an adequate number of team members becomes evident.

One of the major problems on the team at present is the lack of a qualified discus thrower. Kautz said that he will consider anyone who can throw the discus.

With all these trials and tribulations, Kautz said that there were strong points in the MU line up.

"We should do fair in the high jump, the broad jump, and the hurdles," Kautz commented.

Of the 22 varsity track men, 13 are returnees from last year. Five saw action with the MU grid squad last semester. George Hicks will be high jumping, while Richard Turner and Everett Vance will be throwing the shot put. Jack "The Flash" Mahone will run in sprinting competition.

Other returnees will be John Bently, pole vaulter; Bob Bloom, broad jump, hurdles, relays; Larry Butcher and Howard Cunningham, discus; Phil Farthing, half-miler; Art Miller, hurdles; Willie Tucker, mile relay; and John Fisher.

Kautz said that the 22nd member of the varsity squad is in doubt. He said that it was not decided yet whether Butch Clark would participate in track this season.

Kautz said that some of the frosh team will run in varsity competition. "They won't run to compete," Kautz said, "but we'll put a different color jersey on them and let them run in the varsity meet. This will give them experience in competing in the events."

The coach picked out two frosh as good distance runners. "Both Ellis Wiley and Gary Prater are real good distance runners in the mile and two mile races," Kautz said. Wiley is from Michigan while Prater comes from Huntington High.

Company 'B' Wins ROTC Competition

The intra-company basketball competition was recently held by the ROTC Battalion. The championship was won by Bravo Company who defeated Alfa Company in a double elimination playoff. Points were given to the companies for the best unit standings.

An all-star squad was chosen which includes the following players: Ted Haddox, Parkersburg senior, Headquarters Company; Jim Madison, Huntington freshman, Headquarters Company; Charles Walker, Bluefield, A Company; Mike Chambers, Ravenswood sophomore, B Company; Paul Turman, Barboursville junior, B Company; Larry Dransfield, Union junior, E Company; and Nat Smith, Huntington freshman, A Company.

The Cadre, which consists of army officers and enlisted men, will play Bravo Company at a later date.

SAGE SAYINGS

Well, we'll have to hand it to the Robe—it sure did set a precedent. Our spirited-minded men's leadership organization not only gave an MU award to an opposing athlete for the first time, but this is probably the only time this has happened in the Mid-American Conference.

Now the Robe had a good idea, but it didn't go over very well, did it? Howard Komives, the truly great all-around basketball player, is deserving of many rewards. But Saturday night he did not deserve a sportsmanship award, unless his occasional displays of quick temper were a figment of our imagination.

Of course it would have taken a mighty fine sport to stand up under the physical punishment that was dished out by our side. However, wasn't the award supposed to go to a man who displayed an enormous amount of sportsmanship?

Anyway, we looked at the presentation as being as valid as the spelling on the inscription—something of a mistake. One last bit of advice to the Robe, don't enter the spelling bee.

John Beaver, the assistant manager at the Student Union, has a problem. It's how to keep the hoopies (that's high school delinquents to the uninitiated) from going to the Wednesday night mixes. The union staff is not large enough to provide checkers of I.D. cards and is asking for volunteers. So if you want to be a Wednesday night mix monitor, your help will be gladly accepted.

Of course, we'll never be able to keep all the hoopies away, especially if some of our underclassmen continue to encourage their attendance. Anyway, the mixes will continue and next Wednesday night the Vistas will provide the music. Maybe we ought to hang a big banner in front of the Union saying, "Hoopies, Go Home."

Union manager Don Morris explained the handwriting on the booths to us the other day. When students write their names or the names of their organization on these booths with ball point pins, it cannot be washed off by any substance. All Mr. Morris can do is to re-cover them. And this costs money. Still, if you'll notice, most of the booths have been re-covered recently and this re-covering process is a never-ending cycle.

At one time we advocated that student art and even photography be displayed in the Student Union. We have been informed that art and photography will not be displayed because students somehow get the urge to swipe pictures.

Here and There:

Filing dates for students interested in Senate positions in student government are March 23 through 26. If you want a senate position, don't forget these dates. . . .

Greek Week has been set for April 2 through 5. Exchange dinners, fireside chats, a dance, olympics, church and a picnic are in the making. It sounds like a lot of fun.

It's really hard for students to get in and out of the Union with people standing in the doorways and in the aisles. Hey, why don't we sit in the booths.

The Detroit Symphony is at the Artists' Series tonight. You're in for a treat, so don't be rude and leave in the middle of a performance the way Marshall students have reputation of doing. . . .

St. Patrick's Day is Tuesday. Some schools wear green on that day and go so far as to eat and drink only green things. Why don't we do something too? Maybe Sydney Sylvester could hang his laundry out again.

Speech Conclave Being Held Today

The annual Region VIII high school speech contest is being held today from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Science Hall Auditorium.

Nine high schools are participating in the contest: Milton, Barboursville, Ceredo-Kenova, Duval, Logan, Point Pleasant, St. Josephs, Marshall, and Huntington High.

Each team must be prepared to debate both the affirmative and the negative side of the proposition: "Resolved, that Social Security benefits should be extended to include complete medical care."

First and second place winners will go to the state-wide contest to be held in Morgantown April 1st. Judges for the contest will include Bos Johnson, news director of WSAZ, and three local attorneys; John Jenkins, Jr., William Beckett, and Kemp Morton, along with 14 members of the Marshall faculty.

Student Chapel Adds Sunday Hours Through Work Of Interested Coed

Sunday afternoon study hours have been started in the Student Christian Center by Barbara Steele, Cowen, junior, who arranged to be in the Christian Center office every Sunday afternoon from 1:30 to 6:00.

The Student Christian Center had not been available for afternoon study until Miss Steele opened it three weeks ago.

Since the library is closed on Sunday, she obtained permission from Reverend Lander Beale, campus minister to keep the center open for students and visitors.

Miss Steele said she had several reasons for asking to open the center. One Sunday as she was returning from church, she saw several people going up to the ter should be open on Sunday. The center is open during the week for students to use.

Students finding the dormitories and library too noisy to study discover that the chapel has a quiet atmosphere. They may study in the lounge, activity room, or library. Reference works are available and students may bring their typewriters if they wish.

Some students come in groups to study for tests or practice panel discussions, but others study individually.

Last Sunday several students used the center for studying. Others using the center were two organizations students practicing organ. Miss Steele said also that some alumni and parents come to tour the chapel.

She feels that more students will come to study when they find that it is open on Sundays.

Miss Steele stated that she has had no discipline problems. She said, "All students have been very mannerly and orderly."

Debaters Will Host 7-School Play-Offs

The Tri-State Intercollegiate Novice Debate Tournament, represented by seven area colleges, will be held tomorrow in the Science auditorium hosted by Marshall's Speech Department.

The Marshall Debate Squad will compete against Morehead and Pikeville Colleges in Kentucky; Ohio University and Rio Grande in Ohio; and West Virginia's Morris Harvey College and West Virginia State College.

The subject for debate will be the national intercollegiate proposition: "Resolved, that the Federal Government should guarantee an opportunity for higher education to all qualified high school graduates."

The coaches of the colleges entered in the debate will be the judges of the tournament. A trophy will be awarded to the first place school.

Representing Marshall for the debate on the affirmative side will be Linda Sanford from Bluefield, and Stephen Edington from St. Albans, both freshmen. On the negative side are Carl Keener, Huntington junior, and Ranald Jarrell, Point Pleasant freshman. Paul Smith, Huntington freshman, Fred Tallman, Vienna sophomore, and Jerry Shields, Huntington sophomore will act as alternates.
