Students May Attend Security Seminar

Transportation Is Available To Auditorium

By RON HITE
Feature Writer

Plans are being made for students to attend the National Security Seminar in Huntington next Monday through Oct. 9 at City Hall Auditorium.

Paul H. Collins, director of admissions, said in a meeting this week of department chairmen that instructors may have entire classes attend the various seminar lectures when the subject pertains to classroom work.

Transportation to the seminar lectures will be provided. Buses will leave from the Science Hall parking lot 15 minutes before each session begins.

Besides entire classes attending the seminar sessions, students may attend lectures by presenting I.D. cards at the door.

Mr. Collins pointed out that Huntington is fortunate to have the National Security Seminar because only 14 cities in the United States will host it.

Each lecture will be 50 minutes in length, preceded by a warning bell to indicate a lecture is about to begin. Due to the length of the lectures, President Stewart H. Smith has suggested that if a student has a class immediately following a lecture, the student should notify his professor in advance that he may be a few minutes late for that class and receive permission to be excused.

The purpose of the seminar is to acquaint citizens with important facts they should know concerning national security. The curriculum is prepared by civilian instructors.

Some of the lecture subjects for the first week will be "Perspectives of National Security," "Geopolitics," "Agriculture," "Public Opinion," and "Techniques of Communism."

During the second week some of the topics to be discussed are "International Relations," "Capitulative Europe," "Free Europe," and "Exploration of Space."

Deadline Set Next Week For Oct. 7 Election

By DAVID PEYTON
Staff Reporter

The Student Government is now taking applications from freshmen who wish to run for senate positions in the freshman election Oct. 7.

According to the report presented to the senate by Mike Mittleman, Miami, Fla., junior and chairman of the Election Commission, the process of filing for the election began yesterday and will continue through Wednesday of next week.

Orientation for the prospective freshman senators will begin next Thursday, with Vice President Fred Reeder, Huntington senior, as lecturer.

The commissioner of student government affairs, Danie Stewart, Barboursville junior, says the rules of the election, which will be given to candidates, will be strictly enforced. Stewart is the commissioner in the cabinet under which the Election Commission operates.

Eight posters per candidate will be allowed on campus, none of them exceeding ten feet by five feet.

"One of the problems that the Election Commission has encountered in the past," Stewart said, "is the campaigning of candidates within bounds of the polling place. The polling place is defined as the Student Union building. This means that there shall be no campaigning within 30 feet of the structure."

Stewart said that a motion was introduced last Spring and passed by the Student Senate defining the polling place.

According to Stewart, if it is impossible for a candidate to attend one or both of the lectures Thursday or Friday, a candidate may be represented by someone else who will answer for that candidate when the roll is taken and take notes for the candidate.

"A complete list of the election rules will be available to all candidates," Stewart said.

MRS. FRANCE INJURED

Mrs. Sharon Lee France, a veteran employee of Marshall University, was seriously injured recently in a traffic accident east of Huntington. Mrs. France's car apparently went out of control and crashed into a traffic island. She was hospitalized with a broken pelvis, a broken arm, and other injuries. Mrs. France is currently employed as secretary to the assistant registrar, Ray Cumberledge.

BUSES AVAILABLE

Members of "Rally Around Marshall" are sponsoring buses to the Marshall-Miami game Saturday night. Students should be at the Student Union by 7 p.m.

Shakers will be given to coeds at the stadium free of charge, compliments of Zeta Beta Tau fraternity. Look for their display at the entrance gate. Special fare for each student is 15 cents.

She's Queen Of The Waterways

THE NEW Miss Tri-State Boating, Jeanie Talbert, Chapmanville junior, is enough to make any land-locked sailor want to "go down to the sea in ships." Miss Talbert won the title last week and her official duty will be to reign over the Tri-State boating enthusiasts. Area boat owners selected Miss Talbert to reign over the "good ships" of the Ohio River, and to supply boating news to the Herald-Advertiser's sports pages.

TWL, Planned Again Next Summer, Began With German Consul's Visit

By GARY KEARNS
Managing Editor

The visit to Marshall University of Dr. Werner Arndt, then junior German consul in Cleveland, Ohio, in the spring of 1963 resulted, indirectly, in the establishment of Marshall's first experiment in international understanding.

And the experiment, conducted this past summer, can be termed a success.

The idea for the program, which came to be known as Travel, Work and Learn, or TWL, was first conceived at a luncheon given for Dr. Arndt, who had come to the Marshall campus to speak on the Berlin situation.

Over the luncheon table, Arndt was discussing the labor situation in Germany with Dr. Walter H. Perl, professor of German, but the topic of conversation got around to other things — college students, and where and how they spend their summers.

The two men agreed that most students seem to enjoy working at resorts and beaches during the summer months. They also like to travel, but limited funds curtail extensive trips. Arndt and Perl also agreed that Europe presented an excellent opportunity for students to both travel and learn. Why not attempt a program which would give young people the chance to work for themselves while traveling and studying?

Thus, the concept of TWL was born; but it was to be a long, and sometimes hectic and disheartening, climb to take the concept from its embryonic stages to a working reality.

After numerous meetings and much studying of airline charter schedules, active preparation was begun. But, there were problems — lots of them.

For instance, as a result of the long waiting list of prospective student interns into the program, it was discovered that the airplane would be overloaded. This proved to be one of the setbacks.

The list, containing the names of approximately 160 students, was cut down to 80, even though Lufthansa, the airline owned by the West German government, came through with a plane which would have been able to carry 143 passengers.

Finally, all contracts were completed, including the bus schedule from Huntington to New York's John F. Kennedy International Airport. And the Lufthansa airline was sanctioned to carry the students across the Atlantic and back. Also, the German Central Employment Agency and Lufthansa collaborated in the successful outcome of Marshall University's first venture into international understanding and goodwill.

On June 3, 1964, TWL actually got off the ground as the giant, sleek Lufthansa jetliner became airborne over New York's Jamaica Bay and headed across the Atlantic. Its destination was Frankfurt, Germany, a bare six and one-half hours away. On board were 87 Marshall students and 12 university faculty members and personnel.

After arriving in Frankfurt, the first thing on the agenda was getting established. Headquarters were in Frankfurt, and Dr. Perl informed the students that he could be reached there at any time if they should need him for anything at all. And finding adequate housing for everyone proved to be far more difficult than finding work for everyone.

"No one who wanted to work was unemployed," Dr. Perl said last week.

A total of 33 students lived and made their livings in Switzerland. Their occupations consisted of being waiters, assistant doormen at hotels, and handymen.

Four of the students were placed in Austria, and 50 in Germany. Dr. Perl said that the most noticeable barrier was the one concerned with the differing languages, but he added that this problem was overcome by the students themselves.

The Lufthansa airline employed 10 of the students. Short and frequent trips enabled Perl to visit approximately 60 of the young people during the summer. He checked in to see how they were progressing with their jobs, and he also talked with their employers.

Approximately two and a half months were devoted to work, but Perl said that the last three to four weeks of the summer were left open so that the students could travel.

"Nobody starved or got lost," Perl said, "although one boy fell off his motorcycle and had to have two stitches in his leg.

And the professor gleefully went on to say that four of the students were married to one another during the summer. Linda Gill and David Messinger, both juniors from Huntington, were married. Their parents and grandparents flew to Europe for the ceremony. And Frances Swartz, Huntington senior, became the bride of Virgil Jones, a June graduate of Marshall.

"All of the workers were collected towards the end of August," Dr. Perl said. "Some had trimmed down—and all needed haircuts."

Almost all of the students got to Rome, Paris, and Berlin, Dr. Perl added, but no one ventured across the Iron Curtain. "One boy did say he was going to go," Dr. Perl said, "but we finally talked him out of it."

Several of the students took conducted tours past the Wall into East Berlin.

Finally, the group boarded a Boeing 720B jetliner at Frankfurt for the eight and a half-hour flight back across the Atlantic for New York City. They arrived back in the States on Aug. 30, bringing to an end a summer which they should not soon forget.

Dr. Perl mentioned the cultural value of the program. "Seeing another part of the world, and meeting and working with young Europeans was invaluable to them," Dr. Perl added.

He said that interest in foreign languages became keen among the students.

"I know, however," Dr. Perl said, "that the project can be improved upon. For example, better advanced screening of the travelers is needed. We need to know more of their goals and intentions."

Work is already in progress for the preparation of a similar trip for Marshall students next summer. The German Club again will be the sponsor. The tentative dates for next summer are June 6-Aug. 29. Arrangements for an airline and other bookings are being made.

Several students who made the trip were interviewed.

Carol Hubbard, a sophomore from Williamson who worked as a hotel waitress in Leukerbad, Switzerland, said "Goodness, yes!" when she was asked if she thought that TWL was a beneficial project. "It was educational, exciting—and quite an experience."

Stephen Dare, a sophomore from Melbourne, Fla., who worked as a day and night porter in a hotel in Gstaad, Switzerland, said: "Yes, I really do think it was beneficial. It was certainly an education. I'm glad I went."

And Dr. Perl added: "I never really realized that I could ever do anything like this. I just smoothed into it . . . but it all came about by talking with Dr. Arndt on that spring day in 1963."

Language Credit Urged For Trips

Students who participate in trips similar to the recent TWL trip to Europe should receive educational credit, according to Dr. Dortha Dauer, chairman of the newly-formed Modern Language Department.

The three departments of German, Spanish and French have now been combined with Dr. Dauer as chairman.

In stressing the importance of learning a foreign language, she said that students have no better opportunity to know the people of a foreign country and to learn their language than by living among them and by working with them.

Dorm Boasts New Conveniences

By SHERRY SAGE
Staff Reporter

The New Residence Hall for Women has several added conveniences that the dorms already in use do not have. A few of these advantages include such devices as elevators, hairdryers, and intercom systems.

The new dorm is six stories high, but due to the installation of two elevators, walking is not a problem to the residents of this dorm. There are 44 girls living on each floor except the first, which houses 30 girls. Two counselors reside on each floor, one in the south wing and one in the north wing.

The formal lounge, located on first floor, is elaborately furnished, and is considered by the residents of this dorm to be quite a showplace. Adjoining the lounge is a kitchen that is used when the dorm is entertaining.

On each remaining floor, a student lounge is available equipped with a kitchenette. Another student lounge is located in the basement. In this lounge are the various machines containing such items as candy, crackers, milk, and cigarettes. A television is also in this lounge.

Each floor has two baths, each containing two hairdryers. A janitor's closet has been installed on each floor containing cleaning articles needed for the up-keep of the rooms.

The rooms are double and each is the same size. The rooms are available in five colors: blue, green, yellow, pink or oyster white. The floors are covered with matching tile.

Another advantage of the dorm is its laundry. A washer and dryer is located on every floor.

All rooms are installed with an intercom system that makes it possible to converse with the main desk.

IT'S A heck of a way to spend Labor Day, but Mrs. Froud C. Burns, mother of Cheryl Burns (center), St. Albans freshman, spent the day helping her daughter paint a room in Laidley Hall. Also on hand was Defilah Cyrus, St. Albans sophomore (right). In another instance, a father of one of the residents of Laidley spent Labor Day in the artful pursuit of painting.

AFRESHLY painted wall deserves a new picture and Linda Sanford, Bluefield sophomore, hangs a picture on the wall of her room. The repainting of the rooms still continues, according to Laidley Hall hostess Mrs. Margaret Warth. She said that painting will probably continue until the latter part of October. Students were given the option of painting their own rooms—if approved by the dean of women.

EVEN IF only one roller is available, it takes two to paint sometimes. In this case, Jeannie Caywood, Union sophomore, does the painting while Jane Sterne, Point Pleasant sophomore, gives "moral" support. Mrs. Warth said that green, blue and yellow were the most popular colors for the rooms.

Painting Is Not Art At Laidley Hall

IT MAY BE messy and it may be time consuming, but the end result is a freshly painted room. From left to right, Judy Clark and Sally Adkins, Yawkey sophomores, and Vickie Vicker, Alkol sophomore, paint one of the dozen or more rooms that have been repainted at Laidley Hall.

English Department Expands

By KATHLEEN SIX
Staff Reporter

The English Department is forging ahead this year with its expansion of several programs and the addition of two new courses.

An outstanding part of the instructional equipment is the department's Shakespearean collection. The department has been building this record collection of poetry, prose and complete plays for years. It presently encompasses almost all of Shakespeare's plays.

Other than available to classes and individual students, the recordings may still be heard over WMUL in connection with Shakespeare's 400th anniversary. These will be broadcast each Tuesday at 7:00 p.m. for the first semester.

Expansion is becoming a common word in the English department. Along with the extending record library comes an expansion in the program for graduate assistants. Formerly only two or three graduate students a semester have been teaching part time while earning their master's degrees. However, six assistants are now on the job. They are Miss Mary T. Kelley, Wheeling College; Mrs. Judy F. Pullen, Marshall; Miss Penelope S. Hammon, Fairmont State; Mr. Sammy Lee Martin, West Virginia Tech; Mrs. Barbara B. Stickman, Marshall, and Miss Rebecca S. Brown, Randolph-Macon College.

Another program that has been attracting more interest is the reading for honors program. This is a two semester course with eight hours credit available to those students with a 3.5 average in their major field as well as overall average. Reading with Dr.

Mitchell in world literature are Mrs. Roberta Henderson and Mrs. Diane Hinkel while Miss Sharon Estep is reading Russian novels under the supervision of Dr. Eric Thorn. At commencement these students will be credited with honors in English.

Besides the expansion of other programs, the English Department has added two new courses to its calendar. "Introduction to Linguistics" 475-575, taught by Dr. A. Mervin Tyson, professor of English, has an enrollment of 30 for this semester. The 475 course is open to undergraduates, while the 575 course is for graduates.

The other course is "Irish Literature Since 1890" 489-589 also opened respectively to undergraduates and graduates. Forty-three students have enrolled this semester for this class taught by Dr. Ronald G. Rollins, assistant professor of English.

PAINTING COULD be fun, if it wasn't for the necessary moving of furniture to make way for the paint, and who knows this better than Cheryl Seymour, Dunbar junior. The paint for the rooms was furnished by Buildings and Grounds.

STUDENT AT PARLEY

Steiner is a zoology major in pre-medical training and has a 3.72 overall quality point average. He is a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon social fraternity and Phi Eta Sigma, men's scholastic honorary.

Working at the Cancer Research Laboratory, West Virginia University Medical Center, Steiner recently completed a project entitled, "The Absorption of Vitamin B-12—Co-57 in Female Albino Rats bearing Walker Carcinoma No. 256 following Oral Administration." He is presently conducting research concerning the antimetabolites of the Vitamin B complex.

Dr. Louise Hoy, chairman of the Classical Language Department, announced that the Marshall Classical Association and the Honorary Eta Sigma Sigma Phi will hold their first of a series of 11 meetings at 3 p.m. Monday in Old Main, Room 210.

The play chosen for the first meeting will be "Medea," by Euripedes.

All students interested in Greek tragedies are invited.

Additional information can be secured from Carla Vaughan, president of the Classical Association, or from Charles Lloyd, president of Eta Sigma Phi.

No Parking Space Biggest Headache

One of the biggest problems facing the Building and Grounds Department is campus parking. Due to the limited parking facilities and the increase in the number of faculty members, more permits for parking spaces in lot "C" have been issued. Late arrivals overflow into lot "D" or lot "F" where "C" stickers are honored. All cars displaying stickers must obey the parking regulations. Cars parked in prohibited spaces or on the grass, as those which block walks and driveways, will be towed away without further notice. The owners must pay the charges. However, students will receive one warning.

The patrolmen-watchmen this year are John Priddy, Leo Blake and Roy Kearns. Approximately 16 tickets are given per day. This number seems to be dropping. Also, around five or six cars have been towed away. The parking problem will remain until facilities can be expanded.

HUMPHREY DUE

Vice Presidential nominee Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., will appear at the Tri-State Airport tomorrow at 1:10 p.m. for a short talk and a news conference. He will be there approximately one and one-half hours. The young Democrats will be there with signs they are making, according to Joe Platania, Huntington senior and president of the Young Democrats.

Renovation Of Old Main Auditorium May Be Completed In November

By LLOYD LEWIS
Replacement of wooden trusses in the ceiling of Old Main Auditorium with I-shaped steel beams is evidence of the progress now occurring in the renovation program there.
The entire project, estimated at $90,000, entails reconstruction of the ceiling and balcony, roof repairs, new lighting, refinishing the inside of the auditorium, new seating, carpeting the aisles, and air conditioning.
The area was ordered closed early in March when a separation in a balcony supporting truss was discovered.
After the crack was inspected Joseph S. Soto, vice president of by President Stewart H. Smith, business and finance, Dr. A. E. McCaskey, dean of the College of Applied Science, and C. S. Szekely, superintendent of buildings and grounds, it was decided that the balcony would no longer be used. The lower level would be used only at the discretion of those in charge of the program.

Two weeks later several other cracks were found in the roof. After a thorough examination by university officials and architect Walter S. Donot and structural engineer Charles Stewart, both of Huntington, it was determined that only repairs were needed instead of a new roof. This meant a saving of approximately $8,000 from the original contract.

Paul McClure, foreman for the contractor, Neighborgall Construction Company of Huntington, estimates that the work will be completed in November. Work began approximately four weeks ago.
The old wooden trusses have been cut into sections, lowered to the auditorium floor, and hauled away. After they were removed Jim Turner, crane operator for Bridges-Sperry, Inc., moves steel beams with his large "Moto-Crane" into either the balcony or main auditorium door. After rolling across the floor on a "dolly" the beam is raised to the rafters for assembly by a special roof-mounted hoist.

These will provide the support necessary so that the cast iron pipes beneath the balcony may be removed. Several six-inch pipes now are temporarily holding up the ceiling.
Air conditioning equipment, including a filter and two circulator units, will be installed after the steel is in place. Completion of this is expected in about a month. The filter and one circulator are to be placed on the roof of the auditorium while the other unit goes into the framework of one of the steel trusses. The larger circulator, which was shipped from Lexington, Ky., weighs more than 3,000 pounds.
"The seating capacity will remain the same, about 800," said Mr. Szekely. Replacement seats are of the type used in theaters—"nice and upholstered."

Dr. Ralph Hron Dies; Oklahoma Rites Today

Dr. Ralph P. Hron, 78, retired chairman of the Marshall Physics Department, died Monday in a Huntington hospital.
After coming to Huntington in September, 1920, Dr. Hron was the first chairman of the Physics Department, which had been combined with the Chemistry Department until that time. He organized the Engineering Department in 1921 as part of the Physics Department, where it remained until it became a separate department in 1928.
During World War II he taught in his regular position from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and for the federal government from 7 to 11 p.m. He taught several thousand students before his retirement in 1951 and was affectionately known to many of them as "Pop" Hron.
Active in many educational and scientific societies, Dr. Hron helped found the Marshall chapter of Chi Beta Phi, science fraternity, in 1925. He also helped organize the local student and graduate chapters of Lambda Chi Alpha. He was listed in Who's Who in American Education and "American Men of Science."

Dr. Hron graduated from Oklahoma City University with a B.S. degree in 1911 and from the University of Oklahoma with an M.A. degree in pharmaceutical chemistry in 1914.
After doing graduate work at Columbia University and the University of Kansas, he was awarded an honorary doctor of science degree by Morris Harvey College in 1949.
He was employed as an engineer by the Cosden Refining Co. in Tulsa, Okla., prior to coming to Marshall.
While employed earlier as an engineer by the Empire Gas & Fuel Co. at its oil recovery plant in Kansas, he assisted in developing methods for recovering petroleum from the settlings in the bottom of oil wells.
The body arrived in Guthrie, Okla., for funeral services and burial early this morning.
Survivors include the widow, Mrs. Florence Miller Hron, who organized the Faculty Wives Club at Marshall in the late 1920's, and a brother, Fred Hron of Guthrie, Okla.

MU Faces Improved Redskins

By TIM MASSEY
Co-Sports Editor

"Year in and year out they're tougher than Morehead."

This is how Marshall University Coach Charlie Snyder summed up Mid-American Conference rival Miami University and his statement sheds some light on the formidable task ahead of the Big Green Saturday night when they host the Redskins at Fairfield Stadium. Game time is 8 p.m.

"They have more depth than Morehead and their offense is more versatile," coach Snyder pointed out. "They tied Xavier 7-7 last week and should have won by two or three touchdowns," he added.

The Big Green, still brooding over their opening 6-0 loss to Morehead Saturday night, will be faced with the task of stopping another topflight quarterback in All-MAC signal-caller Ernie Kellerman. "He is a better runner than (Fred) Gottfried and nearly as good a passer," Snyder said of Kellerman. The Redskin quarterback had a tough time against Xavier last week, fumbling three times and suffering a shoulder bruise. He did, however, complete six of 11 passes for 71 yards and is expected to be ready to go Saturday night at top speed.

Another player expected to give the MU defense a real workout will be Joe Kozar, a big, fast and rugged fullback. Kozar, after the first week of the MAC season is the conference's leading ground-gainer, picking up 98 yards in 19 carries for an average of 5.2 yards per carry.

The visitors will have approximately the same team that tied Marshall 14-14 last season, but Coach Snyder thinks they are better. "They are better than last year all around, especially in the line," he said.

In the line the Ohioans are about the same size as the Big Green, but they are deeper at every position. "They'll probably platoon us as much as possible," Snyder surmised, "and this could give them a little edge."

Meanwhile, Miami coach Bo Schembechler isn't taking Marshall lightly. "I have maintained right along Marshall is a team to be reckoned with in this league," said Schembechler, "and I've no reason to change my mind. Their defense is bolstered by two of the finest linebackers in the league in (Tom) Good and (Bill) Winter, and their offense, with (Howard Lee) Miller throwing, (Jim) Cure catching and (Jack) Mahone running is a dangerous thing."

It was Miller as a sophomore last year who calmly led the Big Green to two touchdowns against the Redskins and then sparked Marshall to one of its best seasons in recent seasons.

Miller had a disappointing start against Morehead, completing only four of 12 pass attempts—but his performance wasn't the only sub-par showing for the Green.

"Our offensive errors were the most glaring," Snyder pointed out. "Our blocking was poor and our pass protection was terrible. They were in on Miller nearly every time he went back to pass," he commented. Snyder, however, didn't lay all the blame on the offense. "We made a lot of mistakes on defense, too. I just hope we can iron them all out before Saturday night. We have a long way to go," he concluded.

Snyder indicated that he might try a few lineup changes with fullback Dave Boston and tackles Dennis Miller and Pat Woody expected to see a lot more action. Cure should be ready to go full speed this week, recovering from a sprained ankle that slowed him considerably against Morehead.

Miami is expected to start Jack Himebauc and Jim Goodfellow at ends, Ray Young and Bill Williams at tackles, Jim Schierloh and Howie MacKay at guards, Tom Stillwagon at center, Ernie Bremer and Don Peddie at halfbacks, Kozar at fullback and Kellerman calling the signals.

This is the first conference game for both teams and pits the two leading rushers in the conference in Mahone and Kozar. Mahone is right behind the Redskin bruiser, gaining 77 yards in 21 carries against Morehead for a 3.7 yard average per carry.

Muskingum Is Foe In Frosh Opener

Fans will get a good idea of what to expect from future Big Green football teams Monday night at Fairfield Stadium when the freshman gridders take on Muskingum College at 8 p.m.

"We don't know exactly what we have right now, since none of the boys have been tested under actual game conditions," Coach Charlie Kautz said Wednesday. "We'll know more after Monday and there will be a lot of switching of positions then," he added.

Of the 32 players on the freshman roster, 24 are natives of West Virginia. The out-of-staters on the team include four from Ohio, three from Kentucky, and one from Illinois.

"There are a lot of talented boys on the team," Kautz added, "but you can never tell how freshmen will do until you see them in action."

However, much is expected from Huntington High's AAA All-State quarterback Bob Hale. Hale, a 6-2, 187-pounder was one of the top passers in the state last season. As a pitcher, he also paced Huntington to the state baseball championship. Heading a group of talented receivers will be Jim "Jet" Harris, an All-State end from Herbert Hoover High School in Charleston and Lewis Bowman of Huntington, who was one of Hale's favorite targets last season.

One of the speediest backs on the squad is Parris Coleman, AA All-Stater halfback from Lookout. Tom McLaughlin, who was named to the All-Coalfield and All-Raleigh County teams last season at Shady Springs High School, carries his 6-1, 200-pound frame well enough to run the 100-yard dash in 10.5 seconds.

Topping one of the biggest freshmen lines in recent years are Sissonville All-Stater Tom Wilkinson, who tips the scales at 230 pounds; Woody Seagraves, a 220-pound All-Stater from Gauley Bridge; and 225-pound Kentuckian James Preston.

Little is known of the Muskingum team, but Kautz pointed out that this Ohio school usually puts out fine teams and that he is expecting a rough time.

Swimming Tryouts Set For Women

Any girl interested in trying out for the varsity swimming team should report to the Women's Gymnasium between 4 p.m. and 5 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 29, and Wednesday, Sept. 30.

Marion Barone, swimming coach, will direct the practice sessions which will be held in the Women's Gymnasium pool. She would like to begin practice as soon as possible.

SWIM SCHEDULE

The Marshall University pool, located in Gullickson Hall, is now open for recreational activities. The fall schedule is as follows: student swim from 3 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 7 to 9 p.m. on Wednesday and Thursday. Faculty swim will be 4 to 5 p.m. Tuesday afternoon and 7 to 9 p.m. on Wednesday.

FROSH TO REPORT

Freshmen who intend to play freshman basketball for Marshall this season are to report to freshman Coach Sonny Allen in Room 114 in Gullickson Hall. Practice does not begin until October 15, but it is necessary to take a physical examination before practice starts.

'Now Here's What It Looks Like'

Delay Of Game Penalty Confusing

By RICK EDWARDS
Co-Sports Editor

It's fourth down and five yards to go, the offensive team breaks the huddle and comes to the line of scrimmage but there is no play run, instead the official calls a delay of game penalty.

To most fans the situation just described would appear to be a mistake on the part of the quarterback, or the coaching staff, while actually the penalty was exactly what the team wants.

The reason the team wants the penalty is to stop the clock. "To stop the clock!", the average fan would scream, "Why don't they just call time-out?"

An answer to this question, from the MU coaching staff, is, "Those time-outs become pretty important to a team late in each half, and if you've used all of yours on fourth down and punting situations, so you can get your defensive unit in, you are going to be in trouble, if you are behind and you need to stop the clock in order to have enough time to call plays," commented MU head coach Charlie Snyder.

The reason for all this concern for getting units on the field is caused by the "new" substitution rule introduced this season by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

"The substitution ruling last season said that a team could send in an entire unit on second and third downs only, if the clock was stopped, and that one player could be sent in at any time during the game. This year the rule reads: 'Two players may enter the game at any time; a new unit may be admitted any time during the game if the clock is stopped.'"

"We use separate units on defense and offense, so naturally we want to stop the clock on punting situations in order to get our defensive unit in the game, that's why we take the five yard penalty for delay of game. The penalty stops the clock and we can send in a new unit," said Snyder.

In the last four football seasons there have been four new substitution rulings by the NCAA. The reason for so many changes in the regulations have been to encourage the coaching staffs of each team to develop their teams so that they could use the one-platoon system, and not a group of units for special situations — as the professional teams do.

The rule makers found that in 1961 the unlimited substitution regulations would not promote the one-platoon system, but they could not completely do away with substitution. So in 1962 the rules allowed one player to enter the game on either the first or fourth downs and a new unit could come in when the clock was stopped, according to the NCAA rulebook.

Last season the rule was changed again, and there is a new ruling again this season.

"I believe this rule will last awhile. It seems to be pretty good and it is not as hard to follow as the ones in recent years. I prefer it to all the others, excluding free substitution, and this rule is as close to free substitution as any we've had," stated the MU mentor.

The rule states that a new unit can come in whenever the clock is stopped. So this season the fans can expect to see a lot of intentional grounding of passes and out-of-bounds plays on third down and long yardage situations. There will also be a number of delay-of-game penalties on fourth down and punting positions, according to coach Snyder.

"These methods of stopping the clock are not illegal and a team must use them if they want to use their best and not a group of offensive specialists to cover a punt. Some games are decided on one play or one punt," ended Snyder.

KEARNS ON CAMPUS

GARY KEARNS
Managing Editor

HI, YA, 'STRANGER! . . . Peggy Tucker of Bluefield, and Miss Marshall of 1963, is back on campus this semester as a graduate student. And who's complaining? Peggy made such a beautiful and gracious Homecoming queen last year that many students wished that somehow a monarchy could be established. She's a member of Alpha Xi Delta social sorority, and, by the way, today's her birthday . . . And, speaking of birthdays, a belated greeting is due President Stewart H. Smith, who celebrated HIS day last Saturday.

The Chief Justices are finally being made available in the CJ office on the second floor of the Student Union from 1-3 p.m. Mondays through Fridays. Some students had just about given up any hope that the office would ever open. It's true, of course, that the annual's staff was only chosen last week, but some sort of an arrangement should have been made during the summer, or at the end of last term, which would have seen to it that returning upperclassmen could have obtained their CJ's immediately. And, believe it or not, there were SOME upperclassmen who did not see fit to pay to have the Chief Justice mailed to them this summer when they could acquire it free upon returning to school.

KENNY COHEN, Wheeling senior, and coordinator of this year's Freshmen Activities Committee in the Student Government, has many words of kind praise for the Class of 1968. He says that over 1,000 beanies were gobbled up by the frosh. Only about 500 are usually sold. Kenny adds that the supply of freshman name tags and handbooks was also "taken care of" by the new and numerous freshmen . . . You'll never guess who the lucky "person" is that, unofficially, was chosen as the mascot of Zeta Beta Tau social fraternity. It's a girl, naturally, and her name is Annie. She's a four-month-old chocolate brown Chihuahua. Cohen, president of the ZBT's last year, is the proud owner.

Tip to the frosh: College is like a washing machine — you get out of it just what you put in, but you'd never recognize it . . . Tip to everybody: Why not drop in on one of the weekly sessions of the Student Senate, which meets each Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. on the second floor of the union. It's the best political science class on campus. (And may the Political Science Department be forgiving.) . . . If you've walked into the University Dining Hall or the cafeteria in the Men's Residence Hall since school began, took one look, and immediately exited, it wasn't because of the food. According to Bill Spotts, director of food services, there is an evident increase of approximately 150 students between the two dining halls as compared to the same period a year ago.

THIS, MAYBE, will satisfy some of the critics of the program which has existed for several years, that of having our Big Green journey down to Ashland, Ky., every two years to play Morehead State College. These critics consist mostly of Marshall students, who should be permitted entrance to any University-sponsored event on their activity cards only, but who, in this case, had to pitch in an extra buck for admittance. And, then, many did not get a seat. According to Whitey Wilson, MU athletic director, the game was considered Morehead's home tilt, and it is up to Morehead to decide where this particular game is to be played every other year — at Morehead or in Ashland or in Malaysia. Wilson said that the Kentucky school picked Ashland, since it is thought that the site is mutually convenient in mileage to both schools.

This may be true, but the "conveniences" in Ashland weren't exactly designed for college football, to say the least. And the fans were not the only ones who smarted from the affair's management last week. The press box in Ashland was only built to hold so many — and just so many got in. Not only was one of The Parthenon's sports editors barred, but so were reporters from newspapers in Charleston.

The game is Ashland's annual Shrine Bowl Game, and it is apparently Ashland's game all the way. The two college teams are evidently only used as attractions — including the Big Green Band, which participated in a parade prior to the game. Whatever may be wrong with having the game in Morehead, it couldn't be half as wrong as having the game in Ashland, where both schools — winner and loser — come off second best. If Morehead can come to Huntington for a Marshall home game, then why can't Marshall go to Morehead the next year. But, according to Wilson, THAT is all up to Morehead.

THE FRESHMAN election, itself, isn't even here yet, but names of prospective candidates who are expected to vie against one another in the campus general election in March for the positions of president and vice president of the student body are already being heard. And, from what some Greeks say, they will pick their slate of candidates at a secret caucus.

Vacancies Remain In Men's Dorms

The Dean of Men's office has announced that housing is still available. Due to cancellations there are eight vacancies in men's residence halls.

Six spaces remain unfilled on the third and fourth floors of the Residence Hall for Men, and two spaces are available on the third floor of Hodges Hall.

Applications for room and board should be made immediately at the Dean of Men's office. Fees may be paid at the time of application or after the applicant has taken residence.

Dr. Rollins, O'Casey Corresponded Prior To Irish Playwright's Death

"It is a difficult struggle to survive. I'm sorry I don't have more time to write to you. I'm taken with my own work until the coffin comes."

This excerpt is from a letter, sent to Dr. Ronald G. Rollins, assistant professor of English. It was written to him in May and is the last letter sent to him by Sean O'Casey, Irish playwright.

Late last week, "the coffin" came for Sean O'Casey, who was considered by many as the greatest living Irish playwright.

Dr. Rollins has had a special interest in the life and work of O'Casey for many years. In 1957, Dr. Rollins began correspondence with the writer and, until last June, he had received about 20 letters from O'Casey.

This summer, Dr. Rollins traveled to the British Isles to see O'Casey.

As Dr. Rollins wrote for The Parthenon this summer, "O'Casey had ceased granting interviews months ago; however, he had consented to see me for a short while. Unfortunately, he became very ill the night before the interview, requiring the aid of a doctor. The interview was, of course, cancelled, a tremendous disappointment to this wandering scholar."

Very feeble and blind in June, O'Casey's health continued to decline until his death last week.

When Dr. Rollins was in Torque, the English town where O'Casey lived, the playwright's wife, Eileen, granted an interview to Dr. Rollins and they talked for two hours.

"She told me," Dr. Rollins said, "that at that time in June her husband was 'old and very feeble.' She commented that O'Casey was very fond of Shakespearean sonnets and that this caused her husband much mental anguish since he loved to read and couldn't."

Dr. Rollins described Eileen O'Casey, a retired actress, as "very beautiful and witty."

He said also that in their discussion on the life and works of Sean O'Casey, he learned many new and interesting things about the author.

"She told me that she felt her husband had a very idealistic view of women, due primarily to his mother who saved him from starvation and disease as a child. "Dr. Rollins said, pointing out that O'Casey had suffered from an ulcerated eye condition from a very early age.

Dr. Rollins also told of another experience which Mrs. O'Casey related. The O'Caseys were good friends of the late George Bernard Shaw, the famed Irish playwright. Mrs. O'Casey was called to Shaw's bedside just before he died in 1950 at the age of 94. "At that time," Dr. Rollins said, "Shaw told Eileen to 'tell Sean that he is the last of the great Irish writers and must carry on the fight alone.' Both Shaw and O'Casey considered themselves Communists, but I would rather classify O'Casey as a Christian socialist."

As to the letters received from O'Casey, they became "shorter and shorter as the years progressed." Dr. Rollins said. This was due to his failing eyesight and his general decline in health. He used the touch system when he typed, and because he could not proofread the letters, they are full of typographical mistakes. He wrote of living constantly with pain in his eyes. He wrote also of the unspeakable misery and poverty of his childhood which probably had something to do with his health."

Dr. Rollins has written many short articles on the life and works of O'Casey, and Tuesday, Dr. Rollins revealed plans for a much longer work on the play-

Dr. Rollins summed up O'Casey's life by saying, "While he lived, after the death of Shaw, the responsibility for being spokesman for Ireland fell on his shoulders, and he carried on well as the greatest living Irish playwright."
