Vol. 62 HUNTINGTON, W. VA. WEDNESDAY, MARCH 27, 1963 No. 49

Dunfee Is Awarded 3-Year Scholarship To Law School

Tom Dunfee, Huntington senior, has been awarded a three-year scholarship to New York University's Law School, valued at $2,780 a year.

He is among 20 winners nationally for the Elihu Root-Samuel J. Tilden scholarships awarded by NYU. Two scholarships are granted in each of the U.S. Appellate Court circuits in the U.S.

Dunfee, while recently attending the national debate tourney at Carbondale, Ill., received a telegram from his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wylie R. Dunfee, informing him that he was one of the 20 winners.

"I'm overwhelmed," he said, after learning of the award.

Only one other Marshall student has won such an award since the scholarship program was begun in 1954.

To qualify, the Marshall honor student submitted an application and a transcript of grades, a 500-word essay on why he wanted to enter the legal profession, and then went to a regional interview at Baltimore, Md. He also had to pass the Law School Admissions Test.

Although he previously had been considering tuition scholarships to Duke University and the University of Virginia. The New York University scholarship "changed my mind in a hurry."

He hopes to become a trial court lawyer in criminal proceedings.

Besides maintaining a 3.4 average, Tom has been a member of (Continued on Page 6)

Study Group Reports Racial Discrimination

By DONALD WAGNER
Staff Reporter

A report that there are three establishments in Huntington which have discriminated against groups of Marshall's Negro students was recently received by the Human Rights Commission from the Civic Interest Progressives.

According to the report made by Stuart Thomas, Hurricane senior, during the Student Senate meeting last Wednesday night, the businesses which have practiced discrimination are Colonial Bowling Lanes, White Pantry and Thabit's Delicatessen.

According to Thomas, the Negroes, after having reserved an alley and rented shoes, entered Colonial Lanes and prepared to bowl. However, they were unable to bowl because a Colonial Lanes official told them that they could not bowl there, and that he would turn off the alley if they did not leave. Because the Huntington Human Rights Commission has been investigating Colonial Lanes, no study of the problem was made by the university commission.

The report concerning the White Pantry dealt with a group of Negroes' attempt to eat at the establishment. The Negroes entered the establishment and seated themselves at the counter at which time they were told that they could not eat there, but that they might have an order prepared to carry out. The group asked to see the manager who told them that the White Pantry did not serve Negroes. The University Human Rights Commission said that the report was correct and that Negroes are not allowed to eat in the White Pantry.

The third report, which concerned Thabit's Delicatessen, said that a small group of Negroes requested service there, but were told that they could have only a carryout order. The waitress told the group that many Negroes patronize Thabit's Delicatessen by purchasing carry out orders, but that they have never eaten there. The University Human Rights Commission found the report to be true and that Thabit's Delicatessen does not serve Negroes.

Thomas told the Student Senate that the Human Rights Commission recommended that the Student Government request the university administration to express to these establishments the concern of the student body regarding the discrimination against its members.

Next Session Set For Tuesday; Constitution Committee Named

By GARY KEARNS
Staff Reporter

The Student Campus Party held its first organization meeting Sunday evening in the Campus Christian Center. The purpose of the meeting was to organize and decide party policy.

The party was formed recently by Senior Sen. Al Baker of Oak Hill and several associates.

Baker said that the party was formed to provide an outlet for students who are not members of another organization. He pointed out, however, that this does not exclude members of other organizations who might wish to join the Campus Party.

The main reason for starting the party is to involve more students in campus politics and help eliminate student apathy.

At the meeting Sunday, Baker reiterated the party's purposes. He told the approximately 60 persons attending the meeting that the party had around 300 members, but at least 800 were needed for the party to be more effective.

Baker then explained the party's policy concerning its membership cards. For a person to be a registered member of the party, he said, he must pay a dues of 10 cents or more, have his name listed by the party and receive a membership card.

The meeting then was turned over to questions.

The first question that was asked was, "Can any Greek run on the Campus ticket?" Baker answered that they could.

One question kept recurring again and again. This was, "What does the party stand for? I don't want to put my name down on something that I don't know what it means." Baker explained that the party was only in organizational form at this time, but that it would operate on majority rule, as in a democracy.

Who will be the party's candidates? Baker answered that they had not as yet been chosen. It was later decided that the party's nominating committee, made up of Chairman Wendell English, Bluefield sophomore; Shirley Campbell, Clendenin senior; Charles Damron, Lenore sophomore, and Bill Calderwood, Charleston senior senator, would meet at 7 a.m. Tuesday to select party's nominees.

Another student doubted the Campus Party's effectiveness because of its late formation in regard to the date of the student election, April 3.

Baker said that the meeting Sunday was purely an organizational one. He added that there were hopes that the party would become a permanent thing.

Someone else asked, "Is the party being organized to combat another campus group?" Baker said no.

A suggestion was made to appoint a constitution committee. This was done.

The following students were chosen to make up the committee: Kenny Cohen, Wheeling sophomore, chairman; Ron Hite, Huntington freshman; Frances Fabi, Monaca, Pa., sophomore, and Kenny Pierce, Gauley Bridge senior. The constitution committee then made plans to meet at 3 p.m. Tuesday.

The next meeting of the party was scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Campus Christian Center. Someone then asked if membership cards would be necessary to enter the meeting. Baker said yes.

Another person wanted to know where the reported 300 party members were, where did they come from? Baker answered that many of them came from the Cavaliers and other such groups.

Baker added that a membership drive was to be conducted Monday night in the dorms.

Another person wanted to know how much money the party had and where was it. Baker replied that outstanding contributions were being made by several campus organizations, such as the Cavaliers and the followers of Charles Damron.

Baker summed up by saying that the party would be better organized next year, but that it must have a firm beginning this year.

Art Museum Director Speaker For Tomorrow's Convocation

Dr. Richard B. K. McLanathan, Director of the Munson-Williams-Proctor Institute Museum of Art in Utica, N. Y., will speak about "The American Tradition in the Arts", at the Convocation tomorrow at 11 a.m. in Old Main Auditorium.

Richard Barton Kennedy McLanathan was born just outside Boston in Methuen, Mass. He attended The Choate School and Harvard University and, after receiving his A.B. degree, he came to New York City to teach English and History at the Allen-Stevenson School. Five years later, he returned to Harvard to do graduate work and was selected as a member of Harvard's distinguished Society of Fellows to which only 24 young scholars are invited at a time.

Dr. McLanathan later joined the staff of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. While with the museum, he helped to found the famous Boston Arts Festival. In 1957 he was named director of the Museum of Art in Utica, and in 1961, was selected to direct the American Art Exhibition in Russia.

Letters To Editor

Dear Editor:

I am writing in regard to the letter which appeared in your column (Letter to the Editor) Wednesday, March 20. I believe some additional information should be considered in connection with this letter.

First of all, there was a mistake in the figures used concerning the number of Greeks and the number of unaffiliates in Senate. Instead of one as was mentioned, there are three unaffiliates in Senate. Just for the record two of these unaffiliates voted for the abolishment of the semi-proportional system.

All through the letter there was made mention of the number of Greeks in comparison to the unaffiliates in Senate. I asked, "What difference does it make?" We are all Marshall students working for the best interest of our University. Check the records. No place will anyone be able to find one case of Greek discrimination against the unaffiliates in Student Government legislation. As for running for office, the Greeks run on personal qualifications the same as any one else. A vote should never be cast for a Greek because he is a Greek; but on the other hand, a vote should never be cast for an Unaffiliate because he is a Unaffiliate. The individual's qualifications should always be the deciding factor.

The letter mentioned some questions brought to mind by the abolishment of the semi-proportional system. I would like for the readers to consider the results of an election with the semi-proportional system in effect. In past elections under this plan there have been people who have won Senate seats when they did not poll as many votes as another candidate seeking the same office. Is this fair? Is this democracy?

The writer referred to the Student Senate as "my" Student Senate. I am glad that he did recognize that it is "his" Student Senate. Every student should feel the same because this year's Senate has considered many problems affecting our student body. I will cite a few examples. We have pushed for later dorm hours for all the girls' dorms. The Spring Carnival Commission, which has had to fight for its very existence, is arranging a dance for all Marshall students. We are asking the administration for a tardy teacher policy. This affects every student at Marshall. The Senate took action on a motion for bicycle racks for those students riding bicycles to school. This action came at the request of several Marshall students. These are just a few of many examples that could be given. Yes, every student should consider the Student Senate as "his." It has proven over and over again this year that it does belong to the students—all the students. Student representation could not have been better.

Last I should like to say that loaded words often tint the truth of a situation. "Machine" is such a word. Can this word be used without coloration. What is a "machine." Are all "machines" bad? Does one actually exist.

BERTIE ANNE HUMPHREYS
Alt. Junior Senator, Huntington

Dear Editor:

I attended the organizational meeting of the Student Campus Party in the hopes that it would give me, as an Independent, a strong organization through which I could express my political ideas. I found, however, that the organizational meeting of the party was dominated by Greeks who seemed intent on disrupting the meeting. This is clearly a case of Greek partiality.

As the Independents' and nonaffiliates' need to rally to fight oppression grows stronger, the time has come to throw off the yoke of Greek oppression in the Student Government. The time has come to return the control of the Student Government to all the students of Marshall University, rather than having it in the hands of a select few. I hereby challenge the unaffiliated and Independent students to overcome this oppression.

If the Student Government is not returned to the students, there may come a time when the students who are not represented equally will fail to recognize student government as it now exists on the Marshall University campus. Government without equal representation will fall victim to varied and vested groups, as have many others. As this country was founded on the principle of equal representation, is there any reason why this principle should not be carried out on the campus of this institution of higher learning? I strongly believe that if these principles are not carried out here, then Marshall University is a failure as a training ground for the leaders of the future.

Parthenon Lauds MU's 1st Honors Convocation

"An inspiring program!"—"A wonderful speaker!"—"They should do this more often!"

These are but a few of the comments heard following last Thursday's first Honors Convocation—and The Parthenon agrees. The program was inspiring, the speaker was wonderful and they should and will be having more Honors Convocations.

Honor Program Director Dr. Charles Moffat and President Stewart H. Smith have said the convocation will become an annual affair and, if the future programs are as good as the first one, their efforts will not be wasted.

A large number of faculty and students turned out to recognize the honor students and hear Dr. Stanley Idzerda "hold the audience" with an outstanding address. Almost a third of the main floor seats were filled with students having 3.5 academic averages and who had enough interest to attend the program.

Some of the dignitaries in attendance cared enough to travel goodly distances including Dr. Idzerda who flew in from Michigan State University.

One of Dr. Idzerda's statements should make Marshall students proud—"You can measure a university by what it honors"—last Thursday good old MU was right up there with the best of 'em.

1. According to the Department of Labor, you're worth over $350,000 as soon as you get your sheepskin. That's theoretical, of course.

I didn't even know the Department was thinking about me.

2. The way they figure it, that $350,000 is how much the average college graduate will earn by the time he retires.

I'll take it right now in a lump sum. Would I live! Penthouse. Yacht. Homburg. The works.

3. As an Eco major, I feel obliged to tell you what would happen to that bundle. First, Uncle Sam would help himself to about 290 Cs. With the going rate for penthouses, your life's earnings would disappear in one year.

You've ruined my day.

4. Since you'd be only 22, you couldn't qualify for Social Security. You'd have to go back to your dad for an allowance.

I never could handle money.

5. Fortunately, there's a way out for you.

Tell me—tell me.

Well, you won't be getting all that money in one year. You'll be getting some of it each year, at a much lower tax rate. What you should do is put aside a certain amount of it.

6. Put some money into cash-value insurance, the kind they call Living Insurance at Equitable. It gives your wife and kids solid protection and it saves for you automatically—builds a cash fund you can use for retirement or any other purpose.

You Eco guys have all the answers.

Alfred Moroni, South Charleston graduate music major, will present his graduate recital at 8:15 p.m. tonight in Old Main Auditorium, according to Thomas S. O'Connell, associate professor of music.

Moroni will play selections for oboe by Haydn, Handel, and Hindemith. The public is invited to attend this recital.

Large Crowd Witnesses Convocation

A NEAR CAPACITY crowd filled Old Main Auditorium Thursday to witness the first Honors Convocation. As a result of its success, the event will become an annual affair, according to Dr. Charles Moffat, professor of history and Honors Program director.

Honors Event Will Become Annual Affair

As a result of the successful Honors Convocation last Thursday the event will become an annual affair, according to Dr. Charles Moffat, professor of history and Honors Program director. Earlier at the program President Stewart H. Smith expressed hopes that the convocation would be held annually.

A near capacity crowd witnessed the program in Old Main Auditorium and heard Dr. Stanley J. Idzerda, director of the Honors College at Michigan State University, speak on "Goals of a Scholar—Truth or Service." He called for all students to become "preservers, seekers and teachers" of the truth.

Dr. Idzerda, introduced by President Smith, explained that the growth of West Virginia would spring from education. He added that a university could be measured by the things that it honors.

Dignitaries from area colleges and local high schools sat on the stage and also were introduced by Dr. Smith. Dr. Harold E. Walker, vice president of academic affairs, introduced Dr. Moffat and Dr. Ronald Rollins, assistant professor of English and coordinator of the Honors Seminar, and also recognized students enrolled in the two Honors Programs and students who had attained a 3.5 academic average.

DR. STANLEY IDZERDA, director of the Honors College at Michigan State University, spoke at the Convocation. He explained that the growth of West Virginia would spring from education.

Store Is Site Of Art Display

Dr. Arthur Carpenter, professor of art, and Joseph Jablonski, professor of art and chairman of the Art Department, will serve as judges of painting by non-professional artists in this area, which will be on display at the Huntington Department Store, beginning April 15.

The store has set up a special exhibit area for the paintings until April 20.

Three paintings will be selected at this exhibit for qualification in Motorola's Fifth Annual National Exhibition. A third judge for the exhibit is Lucina Keane, professor of art at Morris Harvey College in Charleston.

The brochure for the exhibit, sent to hundreds of area artists, specifies that paintings in the following mediums are eligible for submittal: watercolor, oil, gouache, tempera, pastel, casein or mixed. A variety of painting styles, ranging from representative to abstract, have already been entered.

The Huntington Department Store will give awards to the three artists whose paintings will be selected by the jury at 8 p.m. April 15 at the exhibit. Following the exhibit, an additional award will be given to the artist whose painting receives the most votes by the public attending the exhibit.

MARKING ON THE CURVE—AND WHAT TO DO ABOUT IT

Twonkey Crimscott was a professor. Choate Sigafoos was a sophomore. Twonkey Crimscott was keen, cold, brilliant. Choate Sigafoos was loose, vague, adenoidal. Twonkey Crimscott believed in diligence, discipline, and marking on the curve. Choate Sigafoos believed in elves, Julie London, and thirteen hours of sleep each night.

Yet there came a time when Twonkey Crimscott—mentor, sage, and savant—was thoroughly outthought, outfoxed, outmaneuvered, outplayed, and out-witted by Choate Sigafoos, sophomore.

It happened one day when Choate was at the library studying for one of Mr. Crimscott's exams in sociology. Mr. Crimscott's exams were murder—plain, flat murder. They consisted of one hundred questions, each question having four possible answers—A, B, C, and D. You had to check the correct answer, but the trouble was that the four choices were so subtly shaded, so intricately worded, that students more clever by far than Choate Sigafoos were often set to gibbering.

So on this day Choate sat in the library poring over his sociology text, his tiny brow furrowed with concentration, while all around him sat the other members of the sociology class, every one studying like crazy, every one scared and pasty. Choate looked sadly at their stricken faces. "What a waste!" he thought. "All this youth, this verve, this bounce, chained to musty books in a musty library! We should be out singing and dancing and cutting didoes on the greensward! Instead we are here."

Then, suddenly, an absolute gasser of an idea hit Choate. "Listen!" he shouted to his classmates. "Tomorrow when we take the exam, let's all—every one of us—check Choice 'A' on every question—every one of them."

"Huh?" said his classmates. "Oh, I know that Choice 'A' can't be the right answer to every question," said Choate. "But what's the difference? Mr. Crimscott marks on the curve. If we all check the same answers, then we all get the same score, and everybody in the class gets a 'C.'"

"Hmm," said his classmates. "So why should we knock ourselves out studying?" said Choate. "Let's get out of here and have a ball!"

So they all ran out and lit Marlboro Cigarettes and had a ball, as indeed, you will too when you light a Marlboro, for if there ever was a cigarette to lift the spirit and gladden the heart, to dispel the shades of night, to knot up the ravelled sleeve of care, to put spring in your gait and roses in your cheeks, it is filtered Marlboros—firm and pure and fragrant and filled with rich, natural, golden tobacco. And, what's more, this darlin' smoke comes in soft packs that are actually soft and flip-top boxes that actually flip.

Well sir, the next morning the whole class did what Choate said, and, sure enough, they all got 'C's, and they picked Choate up and carried him on their shoulders and sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" and plied him with sweetmeats and Marlboros and girls and put on buttons which said "I DOTE ON CHOATE."

But they were celebrating too soon. Because the next time shrewd old Mr. Crimscott gave them a test, he did not give them one hundred multiple choice questions. He only gave them one question—to wit: write a 30,000 word essay on "Crime Does Not Pay."

"You and your ideas," they said to Choate and tore off his epaulets and broke his sword and drummed him out of the school. Today, a broken man, he earns a living as a camshaft in Toledo.

Carter, Francis Honored On All MAC

By DANNY BARBER
Sports Writer

Two Big Green athletes, Phil Carter and Bill Francis, have been chosen by Mid-American Conference coaches to berths on the All Mid-American Conference basketball team for the 1962-63 season.

Carter, a 6-6 senior from Clarksburg, was named to the second unit, and Francis, a sophomore backcourt star from Wheeling, was awarded honorable mention.

Leading the Green in conference scoring with a 14.2 mark and rebounding with a 10.9 average, Carter was a mainstay of the team through the early part of the season and later joined in with Coach Jule Rivlin's all-sophomore unit to spark MU in the closing games of the season.

Francis saw little action in the first part of the season but came off the bench to lead Marshall to several key victories. At the same time he racked up the season high individual performance with 29 points in the Tampa game.

Both players said they were "thrilled and honored" with the award. "I really didn't expect to make it," Carter admitted. "It is a real honor." When told that he was chosen along with such talent as All-American Nate Thurmond, Howard Komives and Manny Newsome, Phil added that he thought he was in "real good company."

Francis said the announcement left him "happy and kinda of shocked." "I really want to thank my coach and my team for making this possible." Francis continued to say that he thought that his teammate Carter deserved the first team berth. "He is as good as just about anyone in the conference." This view point was shared by all of Carter's fellow squad members.

Departing head coach Jule Rivlin congratulated the boys on their honor. "They are both fine boys and they deserve the recognition," Rivlin said.

He too echoed the statement that Carter was "good enough for the first team." "This is a deserving reward for Phil and a real good start for Francis," Rivlin added. "Marshall should be proud of them," he concluded.

64 Turn Out For Spring Grid Practice; 25 Are Lettermen

Sixty-four hopefuls turned out for the first session of spring football practice Monday and Coach Charlie Snyder has 30 days to get in 20 days of practice.

The coach has two problems to solve during this period. First of all a quarterback must be found to replace Bob Hamlin, who is graduating; and the center position must be strengthened since Dave Forinash has suffered a leg injury.

"Right now we have five boys trying out for the quarterback position and as it stands now it is a tossup between them," Coach Snyder said.

The five boys out for quarterback are seniors-to-be Charlie Fletcher and John Griffin; junior-to-be Larry Coyer; and sophomores to be Alex Sansosti and Howard Miller.

"Griffin and Fletcher have had some experience and it might tell, but right now it's hard to say what might develop," Snyder commented.

Out of the 64 out for the team, 25 are returning lettermen since only six players are graduating from last year's squad.

Does a man really take unfair advantage of women when he uses Mennen Skin Bracer?

All depends on why he uses it.

Most men simply think Menthol-Iced Skin Bracer is the best after-shave lotion around. Because it cools rather than burns. Because it helps heal shaving nicks and scrapes. Because it helps prevent blemishes.

So who can blame them if Bracer's crisp, long-lasting aroma just happens to affect women so remarkably?

Of course, some men may use Mennen Skin Bracer because of this effect.
How intelligent!

Golfers Will Begin Defense Of Crown

The Big Green begins defending its Mid-American Golf Championship tomorrow afternoon at Spring Valley Country Club against Ohio University as Coach "Buddy" Graham sends his forces into three straight days of action at home.

"Ohio University is probably the toughest team on our schedule and that includes those Big Ten teams that we play in the Indiana Invitational next month," Coach Graham commented.

The golfers that Graham has under him are Harry Hoffer, Chip Woodring, Dave Whipkey, Bill Spensky, Dave Herndon, and George Somich. Hoffer, Woodring, Whipkey, and Spensky are the returnees from last year's championship team.

"At this stage it's hard to say who will be playing in what positions, but right now the battle for the number one spot is between Hoffer and Woodring," Graham said. "Hoffer's operation has slowed him down this year, but he will improve as the season progresses and Woodring has been playing some good golf so far this spring."

Hoffer had an operation to relieve the pain in his back and this held him out of the State Amateur Tournament last year.

"OU has one of the top amateurs in the country in Bob Littler Jr. He went to the quarter finals in the amateur tournament last year," Graham said.

"The boys have been out almost every day getting ready for the season's opener," the coach remarked.

Along with the match tomorrow, the MU golfers will face Kent State on Friday and Morehead on Saturday.

The Big Green faces five Big Ten teams in the Indiana Invitational on April 13. These teams are Ohio State, Indiana, Michigan State, Purdue and Iowa. In addition they also meet OU, University of Kentucky, Notre Dame, Louisville, and University of Tennessee in this same tourney.

The remainder of the schedule is as follows: April 6 and 11, at Ohio University; April 18, at Miami University; April 19, at Cincinnati; April 20, at University of Dayton; April 23, at home against Morris Harvey; April 27, at home against Miami University; May 3, a quadrangular meet at Toledo against Kent State, Toledo, and Bowling Green; May 4, triangular meet against Western Michigan, and Kent State at WMU. Coeds Believe Three Main Problems Can Be Solved To Obtain Golf Team

By MARILYN HALL
Teachers College Journalist

If a group of women on the Marshall University Campus have their way there will be a Marshall University women's golf team.

Dr. Alta Gaynor, chairman of the Physical Education Department, said there are three problems:

1. Locating a golf course where the coeds can play.
2. Finding transportation for the girls.
3. Finding a golf instructor who will work with the team.

There are at least five public golf courses in the Huntington area:—Riviera, Forest Hills, Knob Hill, Glenbrier, and Meadow Links. Sharon Haselip, Huntington senior, believes any of the public golf courses would be glad to let the girls play.

"Transportation is no real problem," according to Kathy Peruzzi, Washington, D. C., freshman. "There are enough school buses, university cars, and privately-owned cars to take care of any transportation problems."

In 1949, at the age of 12, Beridge Long Copen, winner of the fourth flight in the Women's Western Golf Tournament, started a long line of honors in golf. Mrs. Copen, seven time winner of the West Virginia State Amateur Tournament, and Nancy McIntosh Weaver, once winner of the state tournament, are two examples of excellent women golfers in the Huntington area who would be able to help instruct the team in the finer points of golf, according to Bonnie Phillips, Huntington freshman.

"It is possible," said Dr. Gaynor, "that in the near future a course in golf could be added to the physical education curriculum. The class could be offered for a nine-week double period, and students could receive college credit."

As the team progresses, matches would be scheduled with neighboring colleges and universities.

Neal B. "Whitey" Wilson, athletic director, said "A woman's golf team is a wonderfully unique idea for this part of the country." His department will be more than ready to help, he said.

Dr. Stehr Is Co-Author Of Book Just Published

Dr. Ben W. Stehr, associate professor of business education, has written a book, in collaboration with Dr. Harm Harms, College of Guam, just published by South-Western Publishing Co. of Cincinnati.

The title of the 518-page textbook is "Methods in Vocational Business Education."

Dr. Stehr, who came here last fall from the College of Guam, said the book is designed primarily for business education students who are about to do their student teaching in secondary schools.

In the forward to the book, the authors said that "Many colleges and universities offer only one general methods course, covering both the skills and the nonskills, for the teacher of business subjects in the high school. This volume is designed to meet the needs for a basic book in this course."

This is the second edition of the book. The first edition resulted from a thesis by Dr. Harm Harms. In the second edition, Dr. Stehr wrote seven of the 10 chapters

Dr. Stehr graduated from Southwestern State College in Oklahoma in 1951 with a B.S. in education. He received his M.A. from George Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn., in 1952, and his E.D.D. in business education from Colorado State College in 1958. In that latter year he joined the faculty at the College of Guam where he reached the rank of associate professor of business administration. During this period he helped direct the teacher education program.

He is married and has one daughter.

tion on April 8 for the student body and the faculty.

Special staging is being prepared by the class. Dr. Stephen Buell, associate professor of speech, who is the producer, teaches the class. Dr. Eugene Q. Hoak, chairman of the Speech Department, is the director. Head of special effects is Tom Cloer, Welch graduate, and Jerry Ashworth, Huntington graduate, as student coordinator. Mr. and Mrs. Henry McDowell, Directors of Music at the Johnson Memorial Church will provide special musical backgrounds for the drama this Sunday and in the later convocation performance.

He will attend New York University in the fall.

The Root-Tilden Scholarships are designed to aid young men who show promise of becoming outstanding lawyers in the great American tradition of public and community leadership by the bar. The scholarships are named for two distinguished graduates of New York University School of Law whose careers epitomized this tradition—Elihu Root, Class of 1867, and Samuel J. Tilden, Class of 1841. Both Senator Root and Governor Tilden were able advocates, wise counselors, leaders in the organized bar, distinguished public servants and molders of public opinion.

Students Needed For Mission Jobs

Methodist college men, international students and American students representing minority groups, are needed for 1963 Methodist summer mission projects. A sufficient number of women have already applied.

The Board of Missions of the Methodist Church said that seven service projects have been scheduled for this summer by church agencies. Included are: Alaska work camp, Mexico work camp, Hawaii leadership training project, New York inner-city project, Wisconsin lay institute, students-in-industry project in Atlanta, Ga., and students-in-government project in Washington, D.C. Each will last about six weeks.

Methodist students who have completed their sophomore year in college are eligible. Cost of travel to and from the project and certain other fees are paid by the student. Final deadline for applications is May 1. For further information contact the Placement Office.
