Senate Rejects Discrimination Plea

By GARY KEARNS
News Editor

A dramatic and emotion-packed speech, which rang with sounds of the Declaration of Independence and the American ideals of the American Way, failed to move the emotions of the Student Senate enough Wednesday night to pass a racial discrimination resolution.

The speech, delivered by Danie Stewart, Barboursville sophomore and sophomore class president, was the highlight of the most crisp senate session this year.

Stewart's much praised speech even drew accludes from some of the senators who voted against the proposed anti-discrimination measure. The speech was termed numerous times as "the best oratory I have ever heard delivered in the Student Senate."

And the fever-pitched discussion which followed came quite close to the edge of the ledge in tagging the session a name-calling one.

The major portion of the opposition to the resolution, which recommended that Marshall students not frequent Huntington public establishments which refuses to serve certain customers because of their race, came from Sally Montgomery of Huntington, the graduate senator.

Miss Montgomery argued that the proposed resolution in reality was foolish for "talking down" to Marshall students, and to the Student Senate, itself.

Senator Stewart retaliated by firmly stating that this was the first time in eight years of student government work that he had been called a fool for upholding American principles.

Frank Varacalli, Logan senior senator, who was in conjunction with Stewart in the formation of the resolution, took only a small role in Wednesday night's activities, just by reading the proposed legislation in its formal presentation.

26 Students Are Honored By Who's Who

Twenty-seven Marshall students have been chosen for the 1963-64 "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges".

Selection was based on the number of points each student accumulated for scholarship and extra-curricular activities during his or her college career. A C-plus average is the minimum qualification.

The Student Government Who's Who Commission led by Sue Ellen McElhinny, Elkview senior, made the final selections. Other members are Joe Kessler, Richwood senior, Vicki Wender, Beckley sophomore; Becky Barkhurst, Mt. Pleasant, Ohio, senior; Roger Adkins, Salt Rock, sophomore; and ex-officio members Dean Stanley A. Shaw and Lillian H. Buskirk.

Each student will have a short biography in the book and will receive a certificate in an awards assembly next spring.

Students selected were James Ivan Ash and Sara Lipscomb, seniors, Barboursville; Teddy Joseph Booth, Carolyn Christian, John Samuel Cash, Bertie Ann Humphreys, Virgil Waldo Jones Jr. and David Gudger Todd, seniors, Huntington.

Shirley Rae Campbell, senior, Corton; Mary Lacy Copenhaver, Judy Kent Cunningham, Kenneth Lee Gainer, Sally Lynn Jewell, seniors, and Cheryl Jean Skidmore, junior, Charleston.

KENTUCKY WINS, 85-73
Down 25 points at halftime, MU battled back to within six points but finally bowed 85-73 to Eastern Kentucky at Richmond, Ky. Forward Tom Langfitt was high scorer for the Big Green with 19 points.

'Swede' Views Otto Gullickson Hall

BESIDES THE newly - named Gullickson Hall is Otto "Swede" Gullickson, retired professor of physical education, for whom the building was named. Containing facilities for physical education, ROTC, and health services, the building was completed in 1961.

Indonesian Students Visit; Learn American Business, Management

By ROBERT ONEY
Staff Reporter

Is tuition too high for you? If it is you can attend a year of college in Indonesia for five dollars.

This is one interesting fact noted in an interview with four Indonesian students who visited the campus Wednesday to study American methods of education and management. They are also visiting nearby industrial plants and cultural centers in the state. Sponsored by USAID, United States Agency for International Development, the students are trained by the International Management Development Department of Syracuse University, which is directed by Dr. Allen B. Dickerman.

The representatives are Boestaman Isa, an industrial relations representative; Roesdi Saleh, a public administrator; Soegiharto Reksohadiprodjo, a social scientist, and Mustafa Bakro Nawawi, a mechanical engineer.

In comparing the Indonesian school system with the American,

Reksohadiprodjo explained that in Indonesia about 70% of high school graduates attend college. This compares approximately 50% for the U.S. Indonesia has technical schools there, also.

Their colleges are subsidized by their government which accounts for their very small tuition rate. He also stated that almost 250,000 students attend 50 colleges and universities throughout Indonesia, which has a population of over 100,000,000.

The greatest academic teaching method difference is in the theological background required of all Indonesian students in college. They were required to take one year of theology.

Nawawi stated that there is a great philosophical difference in the teaching methods of business. In the United States, the profit motive and other marketing functions are taught in more or less utility situations. In Indonesia the theories of business are taught. In other words, the Indonesian schools teach theories and the U. S. teaches the actual methods of function of business administration.

The four representatives are enrolled in a comparative study at Syracuse University where they are taking various business administration courses.

The men said that there are many social and fraternal organizations on their campuses just as there are on ours.

All the representatives seemed to agree that Marshall had a much more severe parking problem than they do in Indonesia.

From here the group will travel to Charleston and other parts of the state.

REPRESENTS AAUW

Mrs. Louise T. Kirby, instructor in English, was area representative for education at the workshop sessions of the West Virginia Branch of American Association of University Women at Concord College, Athens, W. Va., last month. The theme was "Expectations For Education."

Building Bears Swede's Name

"I can't believe it." These were the words of Otto "Swede" Gullickson, retired professor of physical education, when he learned that the men's health and physical education building had been named for him.

"It makes me feel very humble and so unworthy of such a high honor," he added. "I heard the news at a filling station this morning. The attendant told me and I couldn't believe it."

The State Board of Education accepted a recommendation to name the building Otto Gullickson Hall at a meeting in Charleston Tuesday.

After finding out, Swede said, "My first great desire was to call my wife and tell her of the wonderful honor paid me."

Swede went on to say that "Few people have ever had the privilege I have had to work with the youth of West Virginia and I feel very humble and greatly thrilled to see what wonderful work graduates are doing in the field of service to mankind."

Before his retirement last August, Professor Gullickson served as a teacher and director of intramurals for 31 years. At Marshall, he developed one of the largest collegiate intramural programs in America. Last year's program included 140 different activities with a total of 5,172 contestants.

About Marshall Swede said, "Whenever I walk on the Marshall campus I feel as though I'm on hallowed ground, where academic achievement is held on such a high level."

In his recommendation to the board, President Stewart H. Smith noted that the naming proposal had the approval of an administrative - faculty committee, students, and alumni.

President Smith added that because of his warm personality and approachability, he has influenced the lives of thousands of students. "He has been one of our most enthusiastic and loyal faculty members and his contributed much to the spirit, tradition, and progress of our institution," the president added.

In addition to many honors paid him, he was designated "Centennial Sports Great" by the West Virginia Centennial Commission.

Swede summed up his feelings by saying, "Somebody had better hold me down because I'm walking 10 feet in the air."

Letters To Editor

Dear Editor:

I was pleasantly surprised to read about the five Marshall graduates in Saigon, South Vietnam, forming an alumni chapter and immediately embarking upon a worthwhile Christmas project. This event brings to mind a number of comments and questions about Marshall graduates.

I was completely unaware that alumni took upon themselves such projects as helping underprivileged children at Christmas time. Is this typical of alumni activities or an exception due to the circumstances in that part of the world?

I suppose there must be Marshall alumni all across the U.S. I wonder, how many chapters there are and what are some of their activities.

At Homecoming, and again at the OU game this year, I met several old grads. Some of them were highly successful people, it seems, and Marshall is fortunate to have their interest and support. After the successful gridiron season, I suppose that alumni interest is pretty high and enthusiastic.

I would be interested in The Parthenon printing more frequent articles about alumni and activities of alumni chapters. Information could probably be obtained from the Alumni Affairs Office. Congratulations, editors, and how about more of the same.

ROGER ADKINS,
Barboursville sophomore

(Editor's Note: A reporter is assigned to cover the alumni office and The Parthenon is certainly willing to report any news concerning alumni activities, as it has done in the past.)

Dear Editor:

As a former student, I'm really not entitled to attempt to influence the current student body, but as a former student, I am keenly interested in its activities.

I have noted with interest the recent flare-up of the perennial independent-Greek controversy. Your recent editorial suggested that if Greeks control the student government, it is because they have an active political machine. I have observed on the campus where I am now studying that there are two political parties, neither of which is identified as either Greek or non-Greek. These parties are formally organized, and they nominate candidates and announce platforms just as our local, state, and national political organizations do. The system seems to work very well. The parties provide an outlet for interested students to express their opinions without the necessity of belonging to a Greek or anti-Greek group.

May I suggest that students interested in such a system attempt to find a faculty adviser to sponsor the formation of such a group? Mere passive criticism of the present system is obviously ineffective.

WAA PARTY MONDAY

The Women's Athletic Association (WAA) will have its annual Christmas party Monday at 7:30 p. m. in the Women's Gym. Each member has contributed 50 cents for presents and a food basket that will go to a needy family. The party will be casual. Refreshments will be served.

MU Cadet Visits Military Academy

CADET MAJ. CHARLES JORDAN (right), Huntington senior, recently got a first hand look at the famed U. S. Military Academy at West Point. He was one of 90 senior ROTC students from First and Second Army areas who visited the academy. While there he participated in classes and took part in other cadet activities. Major Jordan is company commander of Pershing Rifles.

President's 2.5 Grade Requirement Is Voided

The Student Court, in a decision announced Wednesday night at the Senate meeting, declared null and void a constitutional amendment requiring candidates for Student Body president to have an academic average of 2.5 or better.

Chief Justice Paul L. Wetherall, Huntington senior, announced the court's decision and said it was unanimous.

Following the Homecoming Queen election last October, a student, Virgil W. Jones Jr., Huntington senior, challenged the constitutionality of the voter-approved amendment. He charged four violations: 1). Undue influence by students in the voting area; 2). Lack of supervision over the distribution of ballots to students; 3). Non-secret ballots, and 4). Failure to inform the Student Body of this amendment prior to the election.

Student Prosecutor Tom Young, St. Marys junior, subsequently stipulated that the violations had occurred.

"The constitutional procedures were violated," he said, "as were attested to in the bill presented by the plaintiff."

Young then asked the court to declare the amendment unconstitutional. He also sought a new time for another election so that it could be voted upon before the Spring election.

In declaring the amendment unconstitutional, the court recommended: 1). The results of the previous investigation (by the prosecutor), in addition to further investigation of the election commission, procedures, and personnel be made available to the Senate; 2). A new election be held, with proper procedures maintained to the fullest extent, at a date before the upcoming Spring election, and 3). The Senate be more discreet in further and similar actions.

QUESTION: Many colleges send mid-term D and F letters only to freshmen. Is Marshall's policy of sending them to upperclassmen, as well as to freshmen, a good one?

Linda Spoon, South Charleston freshman:

"The college should send letters to all students who have them, not just to freshmen. It's true freshmen are new on campus, but upperclassmen can get behind in a class just as easily."

Jack Kendell, Huntington sophomore:

"I think letters should be sent to freshmen only. The rest of us have been here long enough to know what we're doing in our classes. We don't need to be pampered."

Ben Ross, Huntington freshman:

"Everyone should be sent a letter if they have one in a class. Lots of times you don't know where you stand in a class and it's important to know. The best idea would be to get a complete grade average at mid-semester."

Dr. Donald C. Martin, professor of physics:

"I think D and F letters should be sent to upperclassmen and freshmen. It's good for a student to know how he is doing in a subject and whether he is making satisfactory progress."

Students Activate Geography Group

Club Calendar

The partying spirit of the holiday season is the order of service for many campus clubs next week.

An informal Christmas party will be combined with the regular meeting of the Veterans Club Tuesday at 9 p. m. in the Science Hall Auditorium. Officers for the second semester will be nominated according to Fred Reeder, Huntington junior and president.

The Naval Reserve Center will be the scene of the Engineering Society's Christmas party Saturday, Dec. 21. The party is scheduled from 7 p. m. to midnight.

Pledges of Kappa Omicron Phi, home economics honorary, will host the Christmas party for the actives Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. in Northcott 114.

The French Club will celebrate the season Wednesday from 3:30 p. m. until 6 p. m. in University Hall parlor. A program of discussion of French Christmas customs and traditional carol singing will highlight the party.

Mr. Fred Coldren, director of the National Young Americans for Freedom organization, will visit the campus Monday. He will discuss YAF's activities with State Chairman John Jones, Follansbee senior, and MU YAF Chairman Richard Diehl, Huntington junior.

The Campus Christian Ministry worship service will be at 7 p. m. Thursday in the Campus Christian Center.

Brubeck Looks At World Of Music

By JERRY BOWLES
Managing Editor

Dave Brubeck stood smiling in the back stage semi-darkness last Monday night at the Keith-Albee Theatre. He was pleased. He said so.

The first half of the Artists Series' concert had gone quite well. The audience had been at least mildly enthusiastic and besides that the theater reminded him of some he had encountered on a very successful English tour last winter.

A few fans had managed to get through during the intermission and were talking with members of the Quartet. Gene Wright, the genial bass player, was demonstrating the proper technique of hand-slapping rhythm making, much to the delight and amusement of his small audience.

Joe Morello, the drummer with the best left-hand technique in jazz, stood puffing on a cigarette talking amiably with a few fans.

Paul Desmond sat alone in the small lounge just off stage. He looked unhappy. The audience had not been particularly responsive to his intricate saxophone technique during the first half of the concert. He ran through a few practice scales displaying the delicate, almost liquid phrasing for which he is noted.

Two reporters had managed to get permission to talk with Brubeck and were standing with him just behind the curtain on the dimly-lit stage.

"We started doing these college concerts—gee, it must have been in 1946 or 1947. In fact, it was earlier than that. I had my own big band at the College of the Pacific when I was an undergraduate," Brubeck said.

Brubeck just play concerts, places like Carnegie Hall and its equivalent in other cities. We probably only average two weeks a year in a night club.

"This is, for me, a better way to live. For one thing, I don't like to play before an audience that's been drinking and this eliminates that," he said.

It was jokingly suggested at this point that with a college crowd one could never really know for sure.

"I don't think so," he countered. "Once in a while we get involved in a Homecoming where you know they're drinking. But that really isn't a concert. It's something else."

Brubeck was asked if he would prefer to give up traveling altogether and devote all his time to composing:

"Yes, well that's not exactly true. I would like to compose more than I am. In fact, we're recording my first piece for orchestra this week in New York. I'm working on other things now and staying home three months out of the year. I cut down our number of one-nighters from 250 to 100. As you can see, we used to get around."

Someone brought up the subject of the experimental blending of jazz and classical music espoused by John Lewis and Gunther Schuller commonly referred to as "Third Stream."

"It's always been there," Brubeck said. "Jazz has always been at least part European and part African. It always will be that and more. Different people coming in from different cultures invariably bring new developments in form."

The most frequent question Brubeck is asked concerns the persistent rumor that Paul Desmond is leaving the Quartet:

"Oh, yes," he replied seriously. "He's leaving tonight."

"For good?" both reporters asked.

"No," he laughed, "that's what everybody's been waiting to hear for 12 years."

The final question involved the position of the artist to society.

Brubeck looked thoughtful for a moment and said:

"The more influence the artist has in any culture, the better the culture. What we need is a balanced society where the artist has a lot more to say than he has now in America or has ever had to say. We're strong (America) but we're not cultured. We're set up to be and we're heading in that direction. We need tremendous teaching and drive to become cultured. There have been a lot of things happen in the last few years that help. The Kennedy administration helped just by asking people to come to the White House like Bernstein and Copland. You know, just letting the people know that we are as important as baseball players and generals—and we are. We do determine how the nation thinks, when the nation is thinking right."

Morello had already returned to the stage for the second half of the performance so the reporters thanked Brubeck and turned to leave.

Desmond still sat silently in the small lounge. His saxophone had not been out of his hands during the whole intermission. One of the reporters turned to the other and said: "Say, Joe, why don't we shake hands with the best saxophone player alive?"

Desmond looked up, grinned, and extended his hand.

"Thank you," he said. "Thank you."

Committee Spent $1,500 On Cavalcade Costumes

If a lady had been on an all-day shopping spree suddenly came to her husband with the news of a $1,500 clothing purchase, the result could be disastrous.

But a similar incident occurred when the Centennial Cavalcade Planning Committee went on a shopping spree to rent $1,500 worth of costumes for its production of "Sounds of the Century," tonight at 8:30 p.m. in Gullickson Hall.

The $1,500 spent accounts for the major part of the dress which came from Hooker-Howe Costume company in Haverhill, Mass. In addition to the costumes rented, some were obtained locally. Added to this is the shipping charges of nine hampers of costumes from Massachusetts. According to Dr. Elaine Novak, assistant professor of speech and stage director for the Cavalcade, the grand total for costumes will near $1,800.

The total number of rented costumes is 180. Dr. Novak added that this means each costume costs about $6.50 rental. Minor props such as wigs, canes, parasols and tambourines also had to be rented.

Dr. Novak said the costumes are quite authentic and fit very well considering that they are rented. One minor difficulty developed when some of the men's hats kept falling down over the eyes of the actors. The situation was easily rectified by stuffing paper inside the hats until they fit perfectly.

Tickets for tonight's performance will be available at the door. Student tickets are $1.50.

Alums Plan Party For Vietnam Kids

Donations for the Christmas party for orphans being given in Saigon, Vietnam by Marshall alums are needed now. The new chapter formed in Vietnam by five servicemen, formerly from our campus is planning a Christmas party and needs your help. Each alum is contributing $10, a per cent of which will be used for the children. For each dollar they can provide a dinner and a toy for one child.

The members are requesting contributions from alumni chapters and from any campus organization which feels can participate. The money is to be turned over to a local chaplain's fund which is handling the project in Saigon.

The contributions should be in the office of John Sayre, director of alumni affairs, late this afternoon in order to get them to Vietnam in time for Christmas. The chapter will personally deliver the toys and dinners to the orphans.

NEW CHEVELLE!

BY CHEVROLET

The kind of go—6 or V8—you'd expect from one of Chevy's great highway performers. Come on down and drive it.

The kind of comfort you'd expect in a large interior. Come on down and sit in it.

The kind of fresh styling—inside and out—that makes it the year's smartest surprise. Come down and stare at it.

New Chevelle Malibu Sport Coupe

Now—Chevy spirit in a new kind of car!

We built this one to do more than just stand around looking beautiful. Held its weight down in the 3,000-pound range. Then built four lusty engines—two sixes and two V8's—with output all the way up to 220 horses*!

And if that makes you think this is one frisky car, you've got the right idea.

You've also got a roomy car here. Yet its 115-inch wheelbase keeps it highly maneuverable in traffic and very easy to park.

With its Full Coil suspension, it's got a ride that reminds you of the Jet-smooth kind the way it muffles noise and cushions bumps.

And the fine hand of Body by Fisher craftsmen shows up beneath this one's suave good looks, too.

Sound good? There's more. Like the fact that Chevelle comes in three series with eleven models—convertibles, sport coupes, sedans, wagons, even Super Sport models with front bucket seats. Like the fact that (and see if this isn't one of the nicest surprises of all) the new Chevelle comes at an easy-to-take price!

Like to hear more? The listening's wonderful at your Chevrolet dealer's—and so's the driving.

Addition Made To Alpha Xi's House

By BETTE BURNETT
Society Editor

Pale blues, walnut furnishings of Early American tradition and chatter of female voices comprise the new addition to the Alpha Xi Delta sorority house at 1645 Fifth Ave.

The $50,000 addition was completed and ready for occupancy this past fall. The new addition consists of three levels. The first level is a basement garage with the capacity of around 10-12 cars. The garage is locked at 6 p. m. every evening and is used mostly for deliveries during the day.

The second level consists of a dining room, kitchen, recreation room, and a three-room apartment for their housemother. The recreation room is partially walnut paneled with a large wood-burning fireplace along the east wall.

The kitchen is completely modern with built-in stoves and cabinets.

The dining room is furnished in Early American. The capacity is 30 or more with each table seating six to seven people.

Added to the second level was an enlarged apartment for the housemother consisting of a living room, bedroom and bath.

The third level consists of a large dormitory room for 18 women. There are seven large closets on this floor with two of them being walk-in types. One of the girls has even put her dresser in her closet.

Also on this floor are 20 six-drawer dressers equipped with oval antique white portable mirrors.

The new addition now has that lived-in look with pictures, magazines, souvenirs laid in appropriate girl-type places.

The atmosphere is informal and relaxing and the third floor of the house has been turned into a study hall.

Red, white and blue spreads cover the beds and white ruffled curtains add that certain feminine touch to the windows.

The baths and powder room make good use of mirrors with ample space in each of the rooms devoted to this.

Future plans for the house will consist of finishing the floors and the ceilings will be covered with accoustical tile.

The dorm addition was built by the H. G. Wells Construction Co.

THE NEW ELM STREET entrance to the Alpha Xi Delta sorority house dormitory which was completed this summer and is occupied by some 20 members of the sorority. This new addition cost approximately $50,000.

THIS IS THE underground parking lot which is used by the sorority members, guests and for deliveries to the house. Future plans for the garage include parties in the spring. It is used by the girls for any art work they have to do.

THE "REC ROOM," as the girls call their new recreation room, features a large wood-burning fireplace and ample space for just plain relaxing and studying. The ceiling will be finished in accoustical tile with floor also in tile.

DORM ROOM of the new addition shows the tasteful decorum and the large spacious closets in the background, the large dressers with mirrors, and the striped bedspreads. The beds are of Hollywood style.

DINING ROOM is furnished in Early American with a side wall cabinet along one entire wall. The dining room has a capacity of around 30 people. There are five tables in the dining hall with more tables available in case of large crowds.

Nighttime Intruders Invade Greek Houses

Never a dull moment around Greek row!

The Tau Kappa Epsilon House was invaded Wednesday at 3 a. m. by five masked men. Four had paper bags with holes cut out for their eyes, and one carried a rifle.

Paul Milam, South Charleston senior, was studying alone in the living room when a young man entered the house and asked to use the phone.

After supposedly calling a friend to help repair his car, the stranger walked to the front door and appeared to be leaving.

However, when he reached the door, four other accomplices entered. One of them pointed a gun in Paul's back and said, "Don't move and you won't get hurt."

While Paul stood at gunpoint, the other men took two eight-foot paddles, a large trophy, and a large scrapbook. They returned to their car and left.

Police are investigating.

Earlier, at the Alpha Xi Delta sorority house on Tuesday night, several coeds were sitting in the recreation room studying. They looked up to find an unknown man in their midst. The girls fled upstairs.

One coed, talking with her pinmate on the telephone, told him what had happened. He, and other members of Lambda Chi Alpha, ran to the Alpha Xi house to check on the intruder.

The students found the man sitting in a chair in the dining room. The man was about six feet-four inches tall and heavy set, so the students encircled him and waited for police to arrive. The police escorted the intruder downtown.

Soccer And Cageball Champions Shown

The Miracle of Christmas, a half-hour show, being produced by two speech classes will be presented on WSAZ television Dec. 25 at 1:30 p.m.

The show is being done as a class project of Speech 431 and 531. The script was written by the committee which includes:

Larry Rollins, Huntington graduate student and chairman; Mike Bell, Grantsville junior; Jack Viehman, Birmingham, Ala. senior; Brenda Keys, Kopperston graduate student; John Ketchum, Huntington senior, and Clayton Waldo, Proctorville senior. The student producers are Pat McDonald, Huntington senior, and Jim Johnson, South Charleston junior. Jim Rafter, Westernport, Md. graduate student, and Mary Ann Stone, Huntington senior, are in charge of the props. Janet Trumbo, Charleston junior, and Mary Ann Stone are taking care of the costumes. Joseph Shields, photographic lab technician, and Mike Bell will be doing photography. Adrian Gobell, Fairlawn, N. J. junior, will produce the music and sound effect.

Meeting Tuesday For Independents

Danie Stewart, Barboursville sophomore and president of the sophomore class, has announced an organizational meeting of the Independents Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Science Hall Auditorium.

Stewart said that this first meeting of the organization will deal with the election of officers, an appointing of a constitution committee and a forum for presentation of views by interested unaffiliated students.

"The purpose of the organization," Stewart said, "shall be to present a slate of qualified and interested candidates with a platform in next spring's school election." Stewart also said that another aim of the organization is to cultivate a spirit of pride and loyalty in Marshall.

Stewart said that he was "conservatively optimistic" about the movement to this point. "A turnout of five or six dozen interested students would be a reasonably successful inaugural meeting," he said.

A similar movement of unaffiliates failed in its attempts to gain power in the Student Government last year. The organization was started only a few weeks before the spring election. Stewart said that this organization would be broader in scope and purpose. He went on to say that there were two major problems that arose in the organization of last year.

"One of the problems," Stewart said, "was the lack of time. This is being rectified by meeting early in the year."

Stewart did not specifically name the other problem, but he said that he had hopes that the constitution of the group would take care of it.

French Club Plans Christmas Party

The French Club will hold its annual Christmas party Wednesday, Dec. 18, from 3:30 to 6 p.m. in the University Hall parlor. A program of two talks and Christmas carols will be featured between the hours of 4 and 5:30 p.m.

Mrs. Paul Ketter, a native of France, will discuss "The Celebration of Christmas in France." "The Celebration of Christmas in Canada" will be discussed by Christine Enczi, a former resident of Canada.

"The Doll," a dialogue, will be presented in French by Gordon Lynch, Beckley junior, and Nancy Cadick, Charleston sophomore. French poems will be recited by Diann Whitney, Clarksburg sophomore and Nancy Stump, Charleston sophomore.

Piano solos will be offered by Patricia Frye, Bluefield freshman, and Susan Noyes, Dunbar freshman. Kay Collins, Huntington senior, and Sylvia Brennan, Charleston sophomore, accompanied on guitar by Gary Hamrick, Volleyhead sophomore, will sing Christmas carols in French. Larry Jordan will render a vocal solo. Members of the club will sing Christmas carols in French, as well as English.

Cast Is Selected For 'Hamlet' Play Scheduled On Jan. 16-18

The cast has been named for the University Theatre's second production of the season, which will be an adaptation of Shakespeare's famed tragedy, "Hamlet" and which will be performed on Jan. 16, 17, and 18.

Date Now Feb. 28 For Turtle Racing

Fred Reeder, president of the Marshall Veterans' Club, has announced that the Turtle International Race, which was to have been held last Friday in Washington, D. C., has been postponed to Feb. 28.

The reason for the postponement is due to the death of President Kennedy. Since the race was to be held in the national capital, the Turtle International Committee decided to postpone it in observance of the 30-day mourning period set up by President Johnson.

Henry, Marshall's winning turtle in the Turtle International Preliminary, remained at home with his owner, Sue Ellen McEihinny, a senior from St. Albans. But, he will be sent to Washington, D. C. soon.

Dealing with other club matters, the Veterans' Club will have a meeting Tuesday at 9 p.m. in the Science Hall Auditorium. There will be an informal party. Nominations will be made for officers for the second semester.

It will include John Burke in the leading role; Ralph Hensley as the King; Karen Dille as Ophelia; Al Ross as Polonius, and Tom Wilcot as Horatio.

Mike Leckie will portray Laertes; Robert Edmunds will play Rosecrantz; Larry Covey is cast as Guidenstern; Larry Walton portrays Marcellus; John Sargent is set for Bernardo, and Vince Gonzalez will play Francisco.

Cast as an attendant is Barbara May. Stanley Witofsky will be a ghost and Mike Taylor will be Osric.

The play will be directed by William G. Kearns, assistant professor of speech. The assistant director will be Sandra Lilly and the stage manager will be Mory Peoples.

The play is familiar to most students and, indeed, the general public because it is, perhaps the most famous of all the Shakespearean tragedies.

The plot involves the efforts of Hamlet to gain vengeance for the killing of the father and the emotional difficulties which beset him.

The play will mark a local commemoration of the 400th Shakespearean centennial.

YAF AID DUE

Fred Coldren, director of the National Young Americans for Freedom organization will visit the campus Monday. He will discuss YAF's activities with State Chairman John Jones, Follansbee senior, and MU YAF Chairman Richard Diehl, Huntington junior.

Mr. Coldren is an undergraduate at Ottawa University, where he is editor of "Young Americans," a statewide conservative news magazine. A 1963 National Discussion winner, he has given 400 speeches in the past 18 months, appearing before civic groups, including the Chamber of Commerce, Kiwanis, Elks and Lions. He was president of Pi Kappa Delta and Forensics Honorary, and is state chairman of the Kansas YAF.

DEBATE SET TODAY

Four debaters from the Marshall novice squad will debate at Institute against West Virginia State teams today. Steve Edington, St. Albans freshman, and Linda Sanford, Bluefield freshman, will debate on the affirmative, and Gary Sims, Huntington freshman, and Jerry Shields, Huntington sophomore, on the negative, of the national intercollegiate debate proposition: Resolved, that the Federal government should guarantee an opportunity for higher education to all qualified high school students. This is the first of two meetings between the two schools.

The Sports Corner

By JERRY REED
Sports Editor

Many comments have been made about the fouling of Tom Langfitt by Morris Harvey's Tom Kinder in last Saturday's game which resulted in the ejection of Kinder from the game.

Some say that Kinder should not have been thrown out of the game and others are of the opposite opinion. What should be made clear is how this might affect the Big Green.

What many might not know is that Langfitt was a question mark going into the Eastern Kentucky game Wednesday concerning whether or not he would be able to play. He suffered a knee injury in the MH contest and whether or not it was a deliberate foul on the part of Kinder, the Big Green's chances in further games may be jeopardized because of the loss of the talented sophomore.

Coach Sonny Moran of Morris Harvey commented after the game that Kinder should not have been ejected and then brought out the fact that in last year's opener between the two schools guard Jerry Moore was shaken up following a hard fall to the floor and no one was kicked out of the game for that.

What Moran didn't mention was the fact that in last year's game, Moore was called for a charging foul when he took his tumble and if anyone would have been asked to leave the floor it would have been the Eagle standout.

Another thing is concerning whether the foul was deliberate or not and this would certainly be left up to the referee. The foul was obviously committed and about the deliberate aspects, the referee did decide it was deliberate.

Any way you look at it, Langfitt played at a disadvantage in the second half and it remains to be seen how much damage has been done.

As for any excuses to whether or not Kinder's dismissal from the game hurt MH's chances, MU Coach Ellis Johnson says he "doesn't think so."

Coach Moran feels that it did make a difference because he had to make certain changes that he didn't want to. But as the situation stood when Kinder was lost to his team, the MU squad was taking charge of the ball game and at that time nothing would have stopped the rally.

With the exception of this incident, this game was one of the best disciplined games that has probably taken place between the two schools in a long, long time.

'Come-From-Behind' Spirit

In the MH tilt the Big Green showed something that hasn't been seen here for a while and that is the ability to come from behind, not only once but twice, when the pressure was really applied.

In Monday's Charleston Gazette, A. L. Hardman, sports editor, revealed that fortunately for the Big Green, it has a qualified, hard-working basketball coach and a lot of spirit to back up the team.

This is certainly true because Coach Johnson's coolness under pressure seemed to be contagious and never once did the MU players lose their composure.

What we don't agree with Hardman is that he stated that MU has no outstanding shooters and that MH's Moore was about "the best hunk of basketball player to display his wares in Huntington, in a long, long time."

First of all MU does have some outstanding shooters in Langfitt, Walt Smittle and Bruce Belcher. The reason that the shooting was off in this first game was because it was the opener and everyone, even the highly-touted Moore, is off in the first game. It must be remembered that MH had a three game advantage over MU and this would rattle any team.

As for Moore being the best hunk of ball player to be seen in these parts for a long time remains to be seen.

Mr. Hardman doesn't get the opportunity to visit these parts very often, what with him covering the West Virginia University team and the West Virginia Conference games, but we've seen quite a few top notch players, including outstanding guards, in Huntington in the last few years.

Not taking away anything from Moore because he is a talented ball player, and one that always does his best against the Big Green, but there are some players in our own Mid-American Conference that are just as good if not better and they have displayed their wares here.

Just a few of these players are: Howie Komives, Bowling Green; Manny Newsome, Western Michigan, Jerry Harkness, All-American from Loyola of Chicago, two years ago; Granville Williams, Morehead, two years ago, and even MU's Mickey Sydenstricker, although he didn't live up to his expectations.

HANDBALL CHAMP

Peggy Kirk, Huntington senior, has won the handball tournament for the fall season. Basketball practices and tryouts were held last Wednesday and Thursday for the Basketball Clinic scheduled for Jan. 11. The 18 women chosen to participate in the clinic have not been announced.

Big Green Will Open MAC Race Against OU's Bobcats Tomorrow

The Mid-American Conference race begins for the Big Green tomorrow at 8:15 p. m. when the Ohio University Bobcats invade.

This will be the second visit by an OU team this year and Coach Ellis Johnson certainly has definite plans to reverse the outcome even though it will be in a different sport — basketball.

"We've scouted OU," the MU coach said, "and all I can say is that they're big, fast and experienced."

Another thing that the coach mentioned, and it is an important one, is that the Bobcats are undefeated. Their main wins came over Morehead and Wisconsin along with wins over Denison College and Southern Illinois.

The OU squad has practically the same squad as last season when they posted a 13-11 record including two wins over the Big Green. The one big loss to the OU team is 6-10 center Stacey Bunton, but his loss is not expected to affect the Bobcats' chances.

Langfitt To Play?

The Big Green will probably go with the same starting lineup as in the two previous games unless Tom Langfitt's knee gives him a lot of trouble. The lineup will show Bill Francis leading the break joined by Langfitt and Walt Smittle at the corner slots. Bruce Belcher will handle the high post position while George Hicks will be at the low post position.

Experience and height will both be on the side of Ohio because two seniors and three juniors will don the green and white Bobcats colors.

Jerry Jackson, 6-4 senior, and Mike Haley, 6-4 junior, will be at the forward posts. Don Hilt, 6-4 junior, and Paul Storey, 6-5 senior, will handle the outside chores, and to replace the 6-10 Bunton the Bobcats will come up with 6-8 Lloyd Buck, junior center.

Johnson Praises OU

OU's Coach Jim Snyder was unavailable for comment but Coach Johnson has done a good job of scouting tomorrow's opponents and he filled in the fac.s.

"They have a pretty fair country ball club," he said, "and they have the same height as Eastern Kentucky but even more experience."

Before the season started the Bobcats were rated as a dark horse to win the conference title, but after their four straight wins against non-conference foes they have shed the cloak of dark horse and take a top spot with the favorites.

"They could be rated as favorites to win the conference and they are certainly experienced enough to get the job done," the coach noted.

"It's going to take three or four games for me to see what our boys can do," Johnson added.

Last season the Bobcats came to MU last year and were hard pressed to eke out a 72-71 win over the Big Green. With three of the juniors back that played in that game the contest should be more interesting.

The series between the two schools stands now at 24-19 in favor of OU.

Frosh, Bobkittens Meet Tomorrow

MU's Little Green cage squad will go against a tough OU freshman team tomorrow at 6:30 p. m. at Memorial Field House.

Coach Sonny Allen, freshman basketball mentor, said that the starting team will probably consist of Bill Whetsel, Bill Pheilsticker, Keith Blankenship, Richie Simmons, and Dave Kiger.

The OU frosh team has had an excellent season so far, beating both the West Virginia University and the Morris Harvey freshman teams.

On the other hand, the Little Green was defeated by the Little Golden Eagles of Morris Harvey in a game last Saturday.

Must Show ID Cards At Basketball Games

All MU students who wish to gain admission to any athletic event must show their activity and ID cards at the door.

Word has come from the Athletic Department that some students have left these cards behind and that the students have had to pay for their tickets.

Also, if any student wishes to take someone that it not a student at MU to the games, he can purchase guest ducats for $1 each at the ticket office in the Athletic Department. There are always 50 of these tickets printed and they are on a first come-first serve basis.

MU Has A Reputation To Regain As National Power In Basketball

By SAM STANLEY
Feature Writer

Despite the fact that the Big Green hasn't had a winning basketball team in over five years, great basketball teams are a tradition at Marshall University.

The Green has been playing basketball since 1906 and had its only unbeaten season in 1907-08 with a 4-0 record. However, in those early years, the Marshall cagers struggled along with just average seasons.

It wasn't until the "Old Man," crafty Cam Henderson, began his long coaching career at Marshall in 1936, that the Big Green cagers became kings of the hardwood. In his 20 years at the helm, Henderson's teams won 356 games and lost but 158 for a tremendous .692 percentage.

Included with these 356 victories were three Buckeye Conference titles in 1937-38, 1938-39 and 1939-40 and two small college national championships in 1946-47 and 1947-48.

When Henderson retired after the 1954-55 season, Jule Rivlin took over and immediately guided the Big Green to the Mid-American Conference championship. Rivlin had two more victorious years with Marshall before the nosedive began in the 1958-59 season with a mediocre 12-12 record.

Marshall hasn't played .500 basketball since.

Riv Great Player

The irony of the story is that Rivlin himself helped usher in the great days of Marshall basketball. With Henderson the coach and Rivlin—then a freshman—the Big Green won the first of its three Buckeye Conference championships in 1937 with a 20-8 record.

In his sophomore year, Rivlin led the Big Green to its finest season, percentage-wise, as Marshall won 29 of 31 games for an average of .932 and another Buckeye championship. Rivlin finished second in the national scoring race to the great Hank Luisetti that season.

For the next two years, Rivlin kept up his tremendous pace and was twice named on the Little All-America team and twice named captain of the All-Buckeye Conference squad.

Henderson, inventor of the fast break and zone offense, continued to wave his magic wand over the opposition. Immediately after World War II Henderson unveiled his greatest team.

This was during the 1946-47 season when the Big Green won 32 games, lost five and took the National Small College championship (then called the NAIB) in Kansas City. The following year the Big Green won the small college crown in Los Angeles and finished up with a 22-11 season.

Playing on these great teams were Andy Tonkovich (another Little All-American), Bill Toothman, Bill Hall and Gene James. Each of these men scored more than a thousand points during his career, a figure almost unheard of for a player in those days let alone four from one team.

Cam Leaves Legacy

When Henderson left in 1950, after a good 18-5 season, he left Rivlin, his successor, talent that wrote its own chapter in MU cage history. This was as recent as the mid-fifties.

With such performers as Charlie Slack, Cebe Price and Hal Greer available, Rivlin captured the MAC title in 1956 with an 18-5 season. The next year Slack departed, but Leo Byrd appeared on the scene and the Big Green won 15 of 24 games.

Greer and Byrd teamed up to give Marshall its last winning season in 1957-58 with 17 victories and just seven losses, finishing second in the MAC.

Between Marshall's NAIB champions just after the war and the Slack-Price-Greer-Byrd heydays, a fellow named Walt Walowac became the greatest name in Marshall basketball.

The shooting wizard from Logan played four years for the Big Green and became the school's highest scorer with a career total of 1,982 points. Byrd, second team All-American his senior year when he averaged 29.33 points a game, tallied 1,701 points in his career, but played only three seasons.

Tonkovich is the third highest scorer with 1,578 points and Slack—by far the best rebounder not only at Marshall but in the nation during his tenure—is the fourth leading scorer with 1,551 points.

Other Marshall greats down through the years such as Bob Koontz, Paul Underwood, Bob Wright, John Milhorne and Bob Burgess all did their share to make basketball a winning tradition at MU.

MU Gymnastic Clinic Attracts 24 Schools

By CAROL FOX
Staff Reporter

The Gymnastic Clinic last Friday and Saturday, conducted by E. F. Beyer of Nissen-Medart of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and Mrs. Marian Barone, graduate assistant in physical education, had 30 physical education instructors and 70 physical education majors from West Virginia and Ohio participating.

In the elementary and secondary divisions the following 13 schools were represented: Meadows Elementary, Central Junior High at Xenia, Ohio; Elkview Junior High, Enslow Junior High, Oley Junior High, Mann, Nitro, Charleston, St. Albans, Huntington, Lakota, Buffalo and Fairland senior high schools.

A total of 11 colleges and universities were represented. They were: Alderson - Broaddus, Concord, Fairmont, Glenville, Morris Harvey, West Liberty, West Virginia Wesleyan, West Virginia State, West Virginia Institute of Technology, Capital University at Columbus, Ohio, and Marshall.

Physical education instructors representing MU were Dr. Alta Gaynor, Miss Charlotte Berryman, Miss Louise McDonough,

Also Ruby Varney and Mike Chambers, Williamson juniors; and Paula Whitten, Linda Penrose and Lee Parsons, Huntington seniors.

Tomorrow's Volleyball Clinic Will Be Attended By 20 Coeds

Twenty women will participate in the Volleyball Clinic at 9 a. m. tomorrow in the Women's Gym.

Billiard Tournery Slated On Monday

The annual Student Union billiard tournament, which has been going on for two weeks, will produce a champion this weekend. From approximately 20 entries only four are still in the running. They are Eddie Seiler, Paul Lauter, Dickie Riffit and Jim Marnell, last year's champion. Jim defeated Jim Burgess for the 1962-63 championship and is hoping to make it two in a row.

According to Ben Rowe, director of the tournament, Marshall has one of the largest intramural billiard programs in the United States.

Mr. Rowe also has announced that he will judge the qualifications for the three-rail billiard tournament next Monday in the Student Union.

The pocket billiard tournament will be held after Christmas.

They are: Ruby Varney, Williamson junior; Toni DeFranco, Weirton senior; Helen Houdyshell, White Sulphur Spring junior; Virginia Politino, Chattaroy senior; Nina Hatfield, Charleston senior; Ruth Ware, South Charleston senior; Martha Buckley, White Sulphur Springs senior; Rosella Hanners, Logan sophomore; Barbara Green and Margie Holley, Milton seniors.

Also Connie Barker, Kathryn Dilworth and Mary Adkins, Huntington freshmen; Peggy Kirk, Paula Whitten, Carolyn Keller, Barbara Leftwich, Joanne Thomas, Linda Penrose, and Bertie Ann Humphreys, Huntington seniors.

Those women who will also take the written examination in volleyball should report to the Women's Gym at 8:30 a. m.

Stanley AND Sage Steamer Sayings

By KAY SAGE and SAM STANLEY

It seems that the ire of some organizations was raised last week when it was suggested that fraternities and sororities shouldn't schedule social events on the same nights of home basketball games.

This suggestion wasn't directed at any one particular group (such as some thought and quickly let us know) but to every organization on campus.

We are aware that the social calendar was set up before the basketball schedule was officially released. We know that many organizations scheduled dances, contracted bands and dance floors before the basketball listing was released and, therefore, could not change the dates of these affairs.

We made this suggestion with high hopes that maybe next year some of our Greek organizations would first look before leaping for Saturday night dances.

These organizations should remember that first they are Marshall students and then they are fraternity men or sorority women. If they would remember that if there were no school, there would be no fraternities and sororities.

Basketball season begins in early December and lasts until early March. And, you can bet your bottom dollar that Athletic Director Neal B. (Whitey) Wilson will try to schedule a home basketball game every Saturday night of the season. Of the 10 Saturday nights (excluding vacation time) available this season, Marshall plays home games on nine of them.

So, that leaves 10 Friday nights and one Saturday night open for Greek dances. Surely there's room for all.

One argument we had hurled at us from those who had dances scheduled on the same night of a basketball game was, "I'm going to both the game and the dance."

This is not too difficult for the men. He can wear his tuxedo or dark suit to the game and possibly leave a little early, pick up his date and be at the dance shortly after 10 p.m. But the gals are out of luck if they're basketball fans. They just don't wear a formal gown to sit on wooden bleachers, packed in like sardines.

Another thing to consider is the new dorm hours that have been proposed. If they pass, dances will be scheduled from 8 p.m. until midnight as there will be no more 2 a.m. lates. In this case, not even Superman could take in both a dance and a basketball game. And, even if he could, there are no (despite some claims) Supermen at Marshall.

Here and There:

A Civil Service Commission is in the planning stage of the Student Senate. If this new commission is formed it would remove the politics involved in committee selection and committees would be chosen on a basis of merit. There's no doubt in our minds that such a commission would benefit Marshall.

The cheerleaders still haven't received any contributions for jackets. Even if enough funds aren't available by the end of the basketball season, it sure would be nice to look forward to warm jackets for next year's cold football weather.

Although a good crowd did turn out to see the Dave Brubeck Quartet, many students left during the performance. We feel that this was very discourteous on the part of MU. This group is accustomed to larger crowds, larger places, and certainly a larger response.

Major Changes For Catalogue

There are several major changes scheduled for the new issue of the Marshall University Catalogue to be released about March 1, 1964.

The new catalogue will be tentatively published on a yearly basis. The main problems of publication on an annual basis are cost of publication, meeting of publication deadlines and handling.

The alphabetizing of the faculty is another major change to be included. "We're not trying to discredit any of the faculty members," said David Dodrill, director of information. "We're just trying to publish a more functional catalogue."

Other changes include a listing of retired faculty members. The cover of the issue will include a full page color picture of some Marshall campus scene.

The present catalogue has a section inside the front cover that is devoted to pictures. This section will be eliminated. Instead of grouping the pictures, they will be placed throughout the book at convenient places.

Some typographical changes will be made in the headings. The headings are to be made more uniform.

Although the new issue, with all of its changes, should be just a few pages longer than our present catalogue, it should be a lot more functional, Mr. Dodrill said.

ET CETERA

Final deadline for submission of material for Et Cetera, the campus literary magazine is next Friday.

Categories include: short story, essay, art and poetry.

Entries may be submitted at the Et Cetera Office in the Honors House.
