Pre-Registration Place Changed To Old Main

Advance registration for the second semester will not be held in the New Health and Physical Education Building as planned, according to Luther Bledsoe, registrar. It is now slated for the second floor of Old Main as in previous years.

"The President notified me Tuesday," he said, "that the building is not ready."

Mr. Bledsoe is revising the advance registration procedure and hopes to release it to the student body early next week.

Students can pre-register for the second semester on Jan. 13 and 14. First time students, students on probation and students applying for readmission will register on Jan. 25 during the regular registration period.

Students indebted to the college for overdue loans, library books or library fines, will not be permitted to register unless their obligations have been cleared.

Full-time students who wish to pre-register can see their advisors now, pay their registration and tuition fees, and pick up their time cards at the Registrar's Office. They will be admitted to the place of registration according to their time cards.

Students must bring a ball point pen, trial schedule, receipts of fees paid, I.D. card and time ticket.

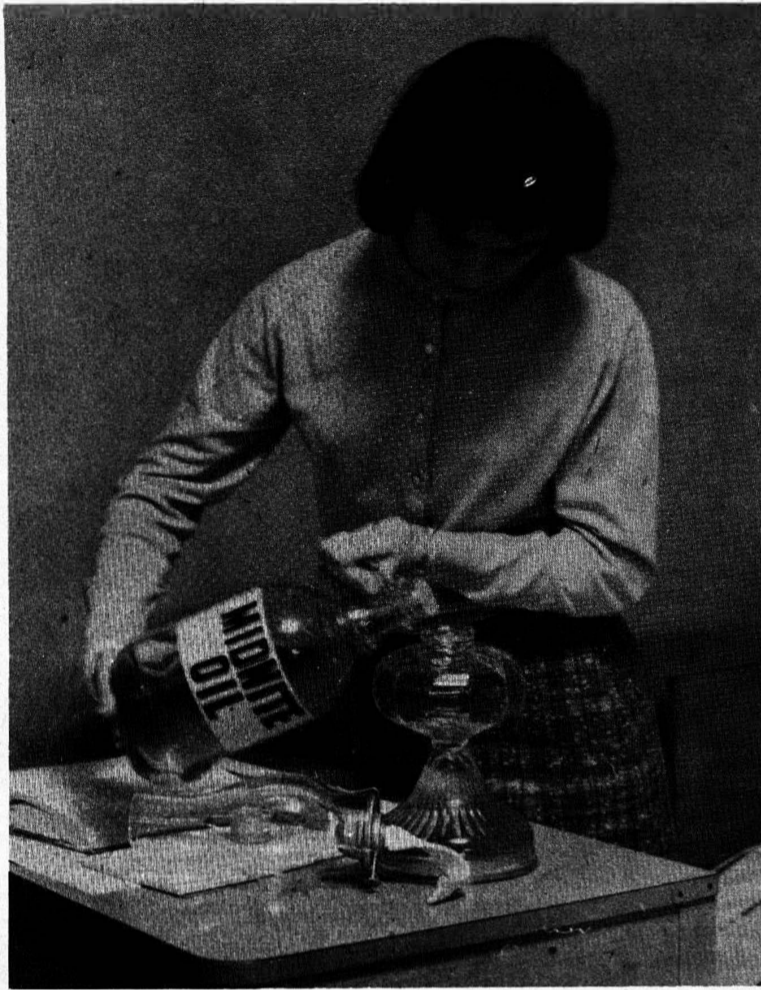

Although the place has been changed, the basic procedure will be the same for registration. There will be seven stations, including library checks, class card section, azograph registration form table, identification card unit, complete azograph registration form, academic dean's checking stations and a check out station.

No registration is complete unless each station is cleared. Failure to clear one or more of these stations will result in the cancellation of the registration and the student will be forced to register again during the regular period.

A class card must be obtained for each course on the trial schedule. The cards should be double checked to make sure that it is for the right section, course, instructor and hour.

Second semester classes will begin on Jan. 26. Students who participate in the advance registration program will be free following their last semester examination until this time.

Midnight Oil Supply Low?

READY TO BURN the midnite oil? This student wants to be sure that she has plenty to tide her over final exam week, as she, along with the rest of the student body, prepares to study into the wee hours.

Ceremonies March 2nd

Dr. Shane McCarthy, President Eisenhower's director of the Council on Youth Fitness, will speak at the dedication of the new Men's Physical Education Building on March 2. A dinner will be held at 6 p.m., followed by the dedication at 7:30 p.m.

Dr. McCarthy was educated at St. Finbar's College in Ireland, and at the Catholic University of America. During his career in teaching, and in government service he has been an administrative official in the Department of the Interior, the Department of Agriculture, State Department, and the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. He also has taught political science at Georgetown University, Southeastern University, and at the Catholic University of America.

Frederick A. "Doc" Fitch, chairman of the physical education, pointed out that the building will not be functioning at full strength when it opens, but that it will meet the basic needs of the students.

Two departments, which will be located on the ground floor of the building, are the Student Health Clinic, which will be called the College Health Service, and the Military Science department.

Inaugural Parade Cadets Are Named

By DOROTHY LOCKE
Staff Reporter

One hundred cadets of the Marshall College ROTC Battle Group will leave for Washington, D. C., Jan. 19 to march in the Presidential inaugural parade as a part of the official West Virginia representation.

Capt. Bliss W. Wilder, assistant professor of military science, will be convoy commander to and from Washington. He will be assisted by Sfc. Samuel Bergin. Capt. R. T. Zargan, assistant professor of military science, and Sfc. Lois Rainey, instructor in military science, will attend advance conferences in Washington beginning Jan. 18.

Lt. Col. Thomas M. Ariail, professor of military science, will accompany the 100-man selected volunteer group.

The following cadets will participate in the parade: R. L. Amick, R. L. Bledsoe, J. E. Dial, W. R. Hale, J. T. Ingersoll, J. R. Keller, D. R. McNew, L. B. Morrison, J. D. Newman, R. J. Simon, J. J. Skaggs, A. R. Turner, H. W. Underwood, A. M. Vaughan, W. M. Vogel.

R. D. Adkins, D. C. Ballard, P. A. Beckett, L. G. Berry, M. C. Blanchard, M. Bobes, B. G. Cohen, R. L. Helvey, J. W. Rodgers, A. C. Smith, S. L. Smith, D. A. Tweel.

Selection of cadets was based on having representative groups from each element of the Battle Group, marching ability of the individuals to insure the best possible appearance, and the cadet's demonstrated interest in and contribution to Battle Group activities in general.

The group will be housed at Fort McNair in Washington. They will leave Huntington by bus or train Thursday evening, Jan. 19, and will arrive in Washington around 8 a.m. the next day.

The parade will begin at 1:30 p.m. Jan. 20. The West Virginia contingent will be the fifth division out of six in the parade. The states will be in the order of their admittance to the Union.

This will be the cadet corps' first appearance in a Presidential Inaugural Parade. Its last appearance in an inaugural parade was in 1957 in Charleston, when it marched in the governor's inaugural parade.

Captain Zargan, in charge of the unit for this parade, marched with the Corps of Cadets of West Point in the first Inaugural parade for President Dwight Eisenhower. Sergeant Rainey marched with the Third Infantry Regiment in the second inaugural parade for President Harry S. Truman.

Full Color Ad Is Feature Of 1961 CJ

A new era in advertising will be created this year in the 1961 Chief Justice. This will be the first yearbook in the area of West Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio, and Pennsylvania to receive a full color page of advertising.

The Twentieth Street National Bank recently bought a full page color ad in the Chief Justice. This will include a picture of the bank and their ad.

The Chief Justice will include color in the yearbook in the various sections. Spot color and full page color will both be used for the first time.

Book Of Semester Plan Suggestions Must Be In Today

Last minute suggestions for the Book of the Semester Plan, which will be initiated at Marshall next semester, must be in by 4 p.m. today. Suggestion boxes are placed in the library, Old Main and the Student Government office.

Dr. Jack R. Brown, professor of English and chairman of the Faculty Book of the Semester Committee, reported that the response to the plan was "very fine." He said that several dozen titles had been submitted but that the faculty group hoped for several more suggestions before they make their final selection of six or seven books.

The list will be referred to the Senate Academic Affairs Committee for the final selection of one book. Tom Ross, Wheeling junior and chairman of the committee, said that the title of the Book of the Semester will probably be announced during the first or second week of next semester.

Time will be allowed for reading of the book before the first discussion meetings are scheduled.

Book titles will not be discarded if not selected. They will be held over to the following semester.

Psychology Clinic Is Psychoanalyzed

Reporter Tested, Finds 'True Self'

By ARCHIE GLASPELL
Staff Reporter

One afternoon when I was sitting in the Parthenon newsroom finishing up a story, the lab instructor said, "Mr. Glaspell, how would you like to take a psychology test?"

With some doubts in my mind, I inquired as to why I should undergo such a test. It was a relief to hear that it would be the basis for a feature—not to find out if I were crazy or not. The lab instructor, explained that the paper needed a reporter to go through the psychology clinic, follow all the normal procedures, take the basic battery of tests, and generally be a normal student seeking aid in the clinic.

That is how I found myself on the threshold of the clinic entering a period of testing that would eventually tell me just what Archie Glaspell was really like.

The first person I met was Mrs. Virginia Lampke, the secretary of the psychology department and secretary to Dr. Alex Darbes, head of the department and director of the clinic. Mrs. Lampke administers the basic battery of personality tests and sets up other specific tests and interviews with Dr. Darbes and Dr. Mary Sutton, a specialist working in the clinic.

Checking over my records, Mrs. Lampke found I had previously taken three of the basic tests, the Kuder vocational preference test, Otis quick mental ability test, and the Nelson-Denny reading and comprehension test.

The Kuder test is designed to seek-out a person's vocational interests. The Otis test is administered to determine one's I. Q. and the Nelson-Denny test checks the subject's reading ability for speed, comprehension and retention.

On each of these I had scored an average grade—that of a normal student. These had just scratched the surface of my exterior but two tests I would undergo at the clinic were designed to find the real me.

Mrs. Lampke arranged the tests to be given on separate days since they were timed. The first of these was the Lee Thorp interest test. On this one, the questions carefully divided my abilities in several fields and tabulated them as to my interest and ability in each of them.

Questions like, "Would you rather work in the outdoors with trees or behind a desk adding up columns of figures?" This one scared me because it brought out things I had never known before.

I finished the testing with the Minnesota Multiphasic Personality Inventory. Just the name of this one can stir up all kinds of thoughts in a person's imagination. This particular inventory is the main point of the test series because it uncovers the individual's personality without a hint to the person taking the tests. The questions were simple and to the point, but the nature of them made me glad that the results would be held confidential. Each one of the little printed questions unlocks a portion of the hidden inner mind. When I finished this one, my old practical self was wondering just what I would be finding out about me. My iron self confidence had been shaken with what I had already learned.

The next day I had my first interview with Dr. Darbes. I went to his office where we chatted for a few minutes about general things.

My impatience concerning the tests must have shown because he began to bring out the results. As he commented on each my awe became greater and greater. When we finally came to the last two, the Lee-Thorp and the MMPI tests I thought that I must be crazy or very abnormal. It's a funny feeling to see one's self on paper. I've always been a great believer in the written word but this was almost too much.

After I had recovered my composure Dr. Darbes and I continued our discussion. It wasn't until then that I learned the prime purpose of the clinic was to make the subject aware of himself completely and to show his weaknesses and the strength within himself to overcome the weak points. When this fact had sunk into my head, I realized just what importance the clinic had in its position on the campus of Marshall College.

I questioned Dr. Darbes about the purpose of the clinic and about its history. I asked how he became a psychologist and about his background.

Dr. Darbes received his Ph.D. from Western Reserve University and taught four years at that school. He came to Marshall three years ago after working five years at Cleveland (Ohio) State Hospital. He is president-elect of the West Virginia Psychological Association and the 1961 editor of the Psychology Newsletter, the association's news organ.

His associate in the clinic is Dr. Sutton, who has been at Marshall for three years. She received her Ph.D. from Minnesota University and has worked as a clinical psychologist in St. Louis, Mo.

Their assistants in the clinic are the graduate students in psychology at Marshall.

As for the clinic itself, it was officially accepted as a campus facility in 1938. The present setup was first introduced in 1947 when a part-time schedule was arranged. Forty students go through the clinic each semester, and each one receives a minimum of three and one half hours of testing and interviewing. The clinic also finds time to take referred cases from the lab school and special cases from the city.

When I asked Dr. Darbes what type of situations were handled at the clinic, he replied with a touch of pride in his voice, "Problems of all kinds are handled here at the clinic."

Concluding this first interview, the doctor arranged for me to take two more tests at my request, a special mathematics test and a Wechsler-Bellevue individual I. Q. test.

The math test was a routine paper and pencil test, but in the other one, I found a new concept in the idea of testing where verbal instant answers are the order of the day. Not only that, but manual dexterity is required. This test was administered by A. B. Dorsey, a graduate student and a psychology worker with the Veterans' Administration. As I look back, I think it was the most interesting of all the tests. No doubt that if I had taken any more of the two hundred tests available at the clinic, there would have been even more that I would have enjoyed.

At the final interview with Dr. Darbes, I felt a little sorry the testing was over. The whole experience was enlightening and a lot of fun.

In my last talk with the doctor, we discussed my abilities and how to make the most of them. The talk covered anything that might present itself as a problem to my studies. At the conclusion, Dr. Darbes extended a personal invitation to me to come to the clinic if I should encounter any problems of a scholastic or personal nature.

This ended my short stay at the clinic. As I sit here looking at the words coming out of the typewriter, I believe that if I do have any degree of success in the field of journalism, a lot of it will be due to the fact that I was fortunate enough to have the opportunity to see inside myself with the help of the Marshall College psychology clinic and its personnel.

APARTMENTS AVAILABLE

Several apartments are now available in Donald Court for married men and their families. There are four efficiencies, two one-bedroom apartments and one two-bedroom apartment. The efficiencies are $28.50, the one-bedroom apartment is $31.00 and the two-bedroom apartment is $33.50. Any student interested should inquire in the Dean of Men's office.

Psi Chi Initiates 4 New Members

Psi Chi, national psychology honorary, recently initiated four new members.

They are: Anne McCaskey, Huntington junior; Nancy Woods, Moundsville junior, and two faculty members of the psychology department, Dr. Elizabeth Wolf, associate professor, and Dr. Bruce Dunn, assistant professor.

Dr. Howard Lyman, professor of psychology at the University of Cincinnati and a regional officer of the American Psychological Association, spoke yesterday to the group on "Some Positive Thoughts on the Dangers of Testing."

FILMS TO BE SHOWN

The Marshall College Battle Group will present two movies at 7 p. m. Tuesday in the Science Hall auditorium.

The films are "The Marianas" and "Battle of New Britian". Admission is ten cents per person. Anyone may attend.

Big Green Again Falls Before Bobcats

By FRANK CHILDERS
Sports Editor

Fresh from winning the Canton Basketball Tournament the Ohio University Bobcats made it a clean sweep over Marshall last night as they defeated the Big Green 88-79.

The first half was played on pretty even terms as the Bobcats lead at half time by four points 43-39. The score was tied 8 times, with Marshall shooting 40 per cent and Ohio shooting 39 per cent, at the half.

The loss dropped Marshall to an 0-3 record in the Mid-American Conference, and a 3-4 over all record.

Approximately 5,000 fans watched a scoring battle between Marshall's Mickey Sydenstricker and Ohio's Bunky Adams. Adams dumped in 25 points and won the battle by one point as Sydenstricker poured in 24.

Other members in the double scoring column for Ohio University were Kruger with 18, Whaley 18 and Katz sank 13 points.

Following Sydenstricker in scoring was Tex Williams with 17 points and Captain Bob Burgess with 16 points. Burgess sat out the last 10 minutes of the first half and part of the second with 4 fouls against him.

The game was burst wide open after the Bobcats had fallen behind 44-43. This is the last lead the Big Green had with approximately 15 minutes left to play. A splurge of baskets by Adams and Whaley spurred Ohio into a 14 point lead which Marshall was never able to overtake.

The Big Green five did not travel to Athens alone for the game, the cheerleaders and approximately 30 fans gave the team all the support they possibly could.

Ohio now holds on to a clean slate in conference play with three wins and no losses. They are riding high with a 7-2 record.

Washington Loses Tilt To Big Green, 78-76

By BILL TOW
Sports Writer

Santa Claus was good to Marshall's basketball squad over the Christmas vacation. The Big Green played against a tough team from George Washington University and won 78-76.

The hoopsters, who were down as much as 12 points, rallied in the last five minutes of the game. The Big Green won the game on a rebound shot by Bob Burgess with three seconds to go.

The game saw the return of two players, Tex Williams, who contributed 18 points, and Jim Gallion, who had sat out the first five games due to a knee injury. Gallion pushed 13 points through the nets.

Williams was put in the game in the latter part of the first period and scored quickly both from the floor and foul line. He also led the squad on the fast break which proved successful.

With Williams and Gallion in the double scoring column were Bob Burgess with 20; Mickey Sydenstricker with 12, and Lew Mott had 10.

Games coming up are three home games in a row—all with MAC squads. The first is tomorrow with the Kent State five; then on Wednesday with Miami, and finally on Jan. 14 with Toledo. All the games will be played at the Field House.

Matmen Score Victory, Gain 2nd Spot, Too

The wrestling team under Coach Prelaz began the season placing second with a quadrangular meet Dec. 10 at Ohio University in Athens.

In this meet Ball State Teachers College tied for first place with Ohio University. Both teams had 53 points. Marshall finished second with 49 points and Denison University came in last with 29 points.

The team had its first dual match with Ohio Wesleyan in Delaware, Ohio, on Dec. 14. The Marshall team came out on top, 21 to 8.

The Marshall line-up consists of 10 members in eight weight classes. Jim Mattern, Parkersburg junior, in the 123-pound class is co-captain of the team and placed third in the conference last year. He placed first in the quadrangular meet at O.U. and won his match at Wesleyan.

Bill Cyrus, South Charleston junior, in the 130-pound class, won second place in the O.U. meet and won in the dual meet at Wesleyan. The 137-pound class is made up of either Ronald Easley, Logan sophomore, or Pete Shaffron, Huntington sophomore, both are participating in their first year of varsity wrestling.

In the 147-pound class Phil Harris, Webster Springs sophomore, won in the Wesleyan match. He was a state champion while wrestling at Webster Springs.

Ralph May, Big Creek junior, is in the 157-pound class and placed second in the quadrangular meet and won in the Wesleyan match.

The 167-pound class is also held by two men, either Gary Zickefoose, Madison sophomore, or Dick Thomas, Huntington junior. Alpha Mayfield, Dellslow senior, holds the position in the 177-pound class and is co-captain of the mat team. He has won in both matches this year.

Burgess Is Among Leaders In MAC

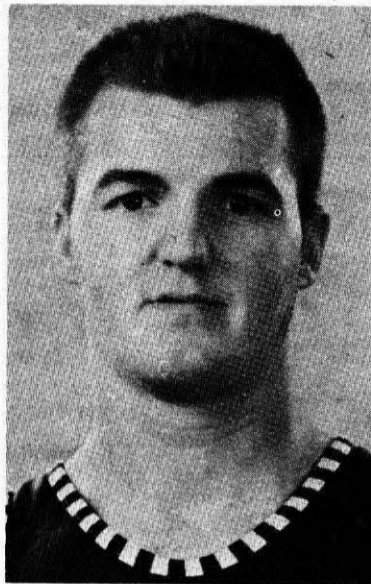

With the basketball season now in 1961, Mid-American Conference statistics are now ineffective as of last Monday.

Leading the conference is Toledo; second place is held by Ohio University; third place slot belongs to Western Michigan, Marshall has fifth place and tied for sixth are Kent State and Bowling Green.

In all games the positions are the same except that Kent State is fourth and Bowling Green and Miami are tied for sixth.

Bob Burgess is the fourth highest scorer in the conference with an average of 18.0 points per game. In rebounds he is second with an average of 13.0 rebounds per game.

sophomore, holds the position in the heavy weight class. He placed second in the quadrangular meet and wound up in a draw at Wesleyan.

Tex Is Back

TEX WILLIAMS, ARTIE junior, was in the Big Green starting lineup against Ohio University Wednesday night. Williams, who quit the squad Dec. 4, made his return appearance against George Washington, last week, scoring 18 points in a substitute role.

Victors Named In Intramurals

In the intramural basketball league Tuesday night the Pussy Cats, Old Timers, Hill Billies, PKA No. 1, and SAE No. 1 posted wins.

Larry Legrand led the Pussy Cats to a victory over Virgil's Song 42-40, with 17 points. The Old Timers romped over SAE No. 5 69-19. E. Vince starred for the winners with 28 points. The Hill Billies squeaked by the ROTC No. 2 40-39. D. French led the scoring for the winners with 17 points and Harry Perfin also tallied 17 for the losers. Fred Conley led PKA No. 1 to a 66-58 win over, TKE No. 1 tallying 15 points. Bud Spencer led the losers with 19 marks. SAE No. 1 edged by LXA No. 1 47-42. H. Brower tallied 18 points for the winners while Mike Ryon got 13 for the losers.

The Intramural Bowling League will be formed at 3 p.m. next Wednesday in "Swede" Gullickson's office in the Physical Education Building.

The league will bowl at Colonial Lanes on West Fifth Street.

1961: YEAR OF DECISION

Well sir, here we are in 1961, which shows every sign of being quite a distinguished year. First off, it is the only year since 1951 which begins and ends with the Figure 1. Of course, when it comes to Figure 1's, 1961, though distinguished, can hardly compare with 1911, which, most people agree, had not just two, but three Figure 1's! This, I'll wager, is a record that will stand for at least two hundred years!

1911 was, incidentally, notable for many other things. It was, for example, the year in which the New York Giants played the Philadelphia Athletics in the World Series. As we all know, the New York Giants have since moved to San Francisco and the Philadelphia Athletics to Kansas City. There is a movement afoot at present to move Chicago to Phoenix—the city, not the baseball team. Phoenix, in turn, would of course move to Chicago. It is felt that the change would be broadening for residents of both cities. Many Chicago folks, for example, have never seen an iguana. Many Phoenix folks, on the other hand, have never seen a frostbite.

There are, of course, certain difficulties attending a municipal shift of this size. For instance, to move Chicago you also have to move Lake Michigan. This, in itself, presents no great problem, what with modern scientific advances like electronics and the French cuff. But if you will look at your map, you will find that Lake Michigan is connected to all the other Great Lakes, which in turn are connected to the St. Lawrence Seaway, which in turn is connected to the Atlantic Ocean. You start dragging Lake Michigan to Phoenix and, willy-nilly, you'll be dragging all that other stuff too. This would make our British allies terribly cross, and I can't say as I blame them. I mean, put yourself in their place. What if, for example, you were a British workingman who had been saving and scrimping all year for a summer holiday at Brighton Beach, and then when you got to Brighton Beach there wasn't any ocean? There you'd be with your inner tube and snorkel and nothing to do all day but dance the Lambeth Walk. This, you may be sure, would not make you NATO-minded!

I appeal most earnestly to the residents of Chicago and Phoenix to reconsider. I know it's no bowl of cherries going through life without ever seeing an iguana or a frostbite, but I ask you—Chicagoans, Phoenicians—is it too big a price to pay for preserving the unity of the free world? I am sure that if you search your hearts you will make the right decision, for all of us—whether we live in frostbitten Chicago, iguana-ridden Phoenix, or narrow-lapelled New Haven—are first and foremost Americans!

But I digress. We were speaking of 1961, our new year. And new it is! There is, for one thing, new pleasure in Marlboro Cigarettes. How can there be new pleasure in Marlboros when that fine, flavorful blend, that clean easy draw filter, have not been altered? The answer is simple: each time you light a Marlboro, it is like the first time. The flavor is such that age cannot wither nor custom stale. Marlboro never palls, never jades, never dwindles into dull routine. Each pack, each cigarette, each puff, makes you glad all over again that you are a Marlboro smoker!

So, Marlboros in hand, let us march confidently into 1961. May good fortune attend our ventures! May happiness reign! May Chicago and Phoenix soon recover from their disappointment and join our bright cavalcade into a brave tomorrow!

Speech Chapter Is Organized

22 Students Join Association

Twenty-two Marshall College students have recently become members of the Speech Association of America.

Membership is usually limited to a professional person actively engaged in speech training, but due to the ever-increasing interest in speech, membership has been extended to speech students in accredited schools, according to Dr. E. Q. Hoak, chairman of the Speech Department.

The Marshall College chapter, one of the largest groups in the Tri-State area, includes 22 students and seven faculty members. Dr. Ben Hope, forensics director, is advisor and information officer for the campus group of SAA members.

Marshall Graduate Remembers Drive For University In 1933

"When I was a student here in the 1930's they were saying that Marshall would soon be a University" said Davis Luck, District Engineer for the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, when asked what he thought of the drive to attain University status.

Mr. Luck was on campus Wednesday to interview students interested in employment with his company. Robert Alexander, Director of Placement, took him on a tour of the campus. Mr. Luck, an alumni of Marshall, was a student here in 1933-35 where he received all the education he could at that date in his major field of Engineering. He then finished his education at Georgia Tech on the cooperative basis.

He has done this same type of work in Georgia, Tennessee, Costa Rica, Washington, D. C., and Ohio. He also was Commander in the Civil Engineering Corp of the U. S. Naval Reserve. He served in World War II and the Korean War.

He said that the campus looked quite different than it did in his college days. During his first year here the Shawkey Student Union was completed and the fence surrounding the school was built. The only buildings that were here then were Old Main, Norcott Hall, the Physical Education Building, the Library, the Music Building and the new student union. There was no dormitories for men and College Hall was the only one for women. In place of the dormitories were old houses.

Mr. Luck said that things had changed a lot since his college days and when he was here in school he never dreamed he would be back many years later interviewing students just like himself.

complete locker facilities, and all athletic offices.

Wrestling and freshman basketball, as well as varsity practice and Laboratory high school games, will be held in the gym.

The third floor includes a dormitory with facilities for 30 boys, which will be used for visiting athletes.

A state Science Fair will be held each spring in the main gym.

Professor Fitch pointed out that the gym is primarily for male students but that women will be able to take advantage of the building at certain times of the day and at free recreation periods which will be available to everyone.

D. Banks Wilburn, Dean of Teachers College, is chairman of the dedication committee. An open house is being planned by the physical education majors' club.

By S. "SNOOPS" SYLVESTER

Well, here it is "61" and a whole new slate for many people the world over. Some of the resolutions made are being kept and others have already been broken.

Here are some resolutions for "61" that I heard the other day. Nikita Khrushchev: I will revisit America, and behave better so that I will be invited to Disneyland . . . Fidel Castro: I will register for the Dale Carnegie course . . . Conrad Hilton: I will invest a million dollars in improvements and added facilities at the Havana-Hilton, for the big tourist season . . . Elvis Presley: I will stop trying to press my luck by signing up for some singing lessons under the GI Bill . . . Jack Paar: I will do something quite dramatic, publicity-wise, before my contract runs out—a good-will tour to Japan, that's it! . . . Dick Clark: I will give poor Charlie Van Doren a job with one of my music or record companies until his bad publicity dies down . . . Dwight Eisenhower: I will do something quite dramatic, publicity-wise, before my contract runs out—a good-will tour to Japan, that's it!

I'm looking forward to the day when Charles Collingwood arrives at the home of a "Person to Person" guest just before air time, and finds nobody home. Something to look forward to on "61" TV.

I also hear that TV networks have notified the United Nations they would like World War III to start on a Sunday afternoon so they can carry it "live" without interfering with prime evening time show schedules.
