Ninety-Five Invited For Counseling

By STEVE SPOTTE
Staff Reporter

Seventy-one freshmen, six sophomores, six juniors, and twelve seniors have been invited to attend a meeting concerning guidance counseling, in the Science Hall auditorium at 11 a. m. Monday. The students were selected on the basis of their outstanding academic work both in high school and in college.

The program, recently established by the College of Arts and Science, is designed to counsel students on the possibility of graduate work in their respective fields of study.

The purpose of the program is to inform the students on financial aid and scholarships, different fields of study, qualifications for admission, and the advantages of attaining an advanced degree.

The program is designed so that each student is assigned a faculty advisor. He is to confer with his advisor once or twice a semester.

The committee in charge of the program is made up of Dana Ray Cartwright, assistant professor of chemistry, Elizabeth Cometti, professor of history, O. Norman Simpkins, associate professor of sociology, Mary Lou Sutton, associate professor of psychology, and A. Mervin Tyson, professor of English, and chairman of the group.

Letters will be sent to the people involved, although Dr. Tyson has made it clear that any one interested is invited.

DR. CHARLES MOFFATT
... May Appear On TV

Moffat Choice For TV Show

Dr. Charles Moffatt, professor of history, has been nominated by the college to appear on the national television program, "Meet The Professor".

This program is co-sponsored by the National Education Association and the Association of Higher Education. Colleges and universities throughout the country were asked to nominate a member of their faculty and from these nominations the associations choose the guests for the 13 week program.

The show is aired at noon on Sunday over the ABC national network. The first program was televised last Sunday. Dr. Harold Taylor is the host.

This Was Worth Waiting For...

IT WAS WORTH waiting for . . . That's what Donald Cartmill (left), Huntington junior, said when he received wrestling medal from Dr. Sam Clagg, associate professor of geography, after a six-year delay.

Student Given Medal After 6-Year Delay!

It took six years, but Donald Cartmill, Huntington junior, finally received his medal.

The story goes back to 1955 when Cartmill competed in the Mid-American Conference wrestling meet at Bowling Green. He won fourth place in the 137-pound class.

But the medals had to be engraved, so they were mailed to each school. By the time they arrived at Marshall, Cartmill had entered the Navy.

Dr. Sam Clagg, associate professor of geography, was the wrestling coach at that time and received the medal. He "filed" it away for safekeeping. The years went by.

Don, now a 170-pounder, returned to Marshall in September, 1959, but Dr. Clagg had misplaced the medal.

"I never gave up hope that he'd find it," Don says.

Sure enough Dr. Clagg uncovered it during the Christmas holidays. So on Monday the two met in Dr. Clagg's office.

More than five years had elapsed, but there was a ceremony nonetheless.

After congratulations had been extended, Don got his first look at it.

"It was worth waiting for," he said.

Debate Squad Gains Victory In Tournament

Marshall's debate team of Douglas Green and Pat Lordeon on the affirmative, and Sharon Woods and Tom Ross on the negative, won first place in the Marietta Debate Tournament last Friday.

The team compiled a record of five wins against one loss while defeating teams from Ohio State, Ohio University, Marietta, and Morris Harvey.

Marshall's lone defeat came at the hands of the Marietta team while Marshall debaters pinned a double defeat on the Ohio University squad.

In a radio announcing contest held in conjunction with the debate tournament, Pat Joyce and Sharon Lambert placed second and third respectively.

It's A Beauty!

...THIS IS THE medal awarded to Cartmill Monday — for placing fourth in an MAC wrestling tournament at Bowling Green six years ago.

Andrews Will Fill Senate Vacancy

Myers Jarrell Is Student Chairman For This Year's March Of Dimes

By DOROTHY LOCKE
Staff Reporter

John Andrews, Clendenin junior, was appointed junior senator recently by the Student Senate. Andrews takes the place of Rule Johnson, Ironton, O., junior, who recently resigned.

Working with him, distributing plastic containers to fraternity and sorority houses, dormitories, the book store, and the student union, are Jean Battlo, Kimbel senior, and Carolyn Pierce, Charleston junior.

According to Jarrell, the money needed for the development of Salk and Sabin vaccines came mostly from the March of Dimes. Now researchers are working on arthritis, rheumatism, birth defects and related diseases. The slogan for this year's drive is "Linda Says, 'Please Say Yes to the March of Dimes.'"

In other action the Senate approved the selection of Patricia Ellen Knott, Logan freshman, and Jerry Warren Smith, Welch freshman, as recipients of freshman scholarships for the second semester.

Bill Wortham, student body president, reported that approximately 4,000 booklets, "Why Not Start Now?", concerning college preparation for high school students were sent to high schools over the state by the State Awareness Commission.

The Senate accepted the petitions of Alpha Lambda Delta, freshman women's honorary, and Phi Eta Sigma, freshman men's honorary, for a tutoring service; Alpha Xi Delta, for a sale of wool athletic socks; Sigma Kappa, for a bake sale; and Fagus, for a rummage sale.

Three Leave, One Joins Staff

The appointment of Myers Jarrell, Whitesville senior, as student chairman of the March of Dimes drive, was also approved.

Three professors left at the end of the first semester on leaves and one professor is continuing a sabbatical leave. There was one addition to the faculty for the second semester.

Wayne Warren Warncke, assistant professor of English, is on leave of absence and is working towards a Ph.D. degree at the University of Michigan. On sabbatical leave is Irene Clark Evans, assistant professor of business administration, who is doing graduate work at the University of Kentucky, and Mary Alice Goins, associate professor of mathematics, who is studying at the University of London. Wilbur Pursley, assistant professor of music, is continuing his sabbatical leave and is studying at the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N. Y.

The new faculty member is John V. Wilson, former head of applied engineering at the United States Naval General Line and Naval Science School at Monterey, Calif., who was named associate professor of physics.

Spring Fashions To Be Modeled Next Monday

By EDIE ALEXANDER
Staff Reporter

Miss Helen Wright of Simplicity Pattern Co., Inc. will present the Spring Panorama Style Show in Old Main auditorium on February 13 at 7:00 p. m.

Home Economics majors will model the latest spring pattern styles for campus and weekend wear. A collection of 13 outfits, emphasizing color and fabric, will be shown.

Construction techniques, proper accessories, and wardrobe coordination will be part of the presentation, along with information on "home economics careers in business."

Monday at 1:00 p. m., Miss Wright will speak to juniors and seniors on "Effective Use of Visual Aids." This talk is designed for future teachers in training in the Home Economics department.

Miss Wright received her BS degree in costume economics from Carnegie Institute of Technology, and her MA degree in clothing and textiles from Columbia University Teacher's College. She taught clothing and textiles in college before entering the business field as stylist and fabric consultant.

Patterns and suitable fabrics will be displayed at Bradshaw-Diehl Department Store, according to Frank J. Spear, director of Information Office.

The public will be admitted to the style show free of charge.

Class Discussion Becomes 'Heated'

Miss Virginia Lee, associate professor of journalism, had her journalism class "all fired up" recently.

But in the midst of some last minute instructions, she was interrupted by scuffling and confusion. She asked for quiet.

The "confusion" spoke up. "But a coat is on fire," the voice exclaimed.

The coat belonged to William R. Smith, War freshman.

It wasn't extensively damaged — but the fire did interrupt one thing: a burning desire for knowledge.

What Accounts For Their Looks?

WHAT IS THE REASON behind the contented looks on the faces of these men? It must be because they have just been able to move into their new offices in the recently completed Men's Health and Physical Education Building. The Building was opened last week. The men are (left to right): Lt. Col. Thomas M. Ariail, professor of military science; Dr. Charles H. Hagan, college physician; and Dr. Frederick A. Fitch, Jr., professor of physical education.

Pre-Game Activities Are Plentiful; Managers, Trainers Do Double Duty

By ARCHIE GLASPELL
Staff Reporter

What happens to a basketball team on the day of a game? To answer this question, interviews were conducted with assistant coach, Dr. Mike Josephs, and athletic trainer, Ed Prelaz.

The trainer takes charge of keeping the players in condition. This job may consist of getting an injured player back into action or setting up training programs.

In the case of putting injured men back into activity, a good example to illustrate would be the event two years ago when Leo Byrd developed a crippling charley-horse a week before an important game. The trainer worked on the injury with exercises and heat treatments constantly for a week. The result of his efforts were visible when Byrd scored thirty points in the game.

Managers Work, Too

Before the game two other individuals also show much activity in the department. David Whipkey and Robert Spencer, the team's student managers, are unsung heroes of the squad.

To these men fall the tasks of laundering the uniforms, that is delivering and picking up the equipment at the laundry, keeping all equipment in good shape, administering first aid, and running errands for the coaches.

Very few times have the managers made mistakes, but another incident occurred 2 years ago that could have been disastrous. The team was at the airport waiting for the plane to take them to Buffalo for a game. Thirty minutes before take off time, someone happened to raise the question of where the equipment and manager was. A quick check failed to disclose his whereabouts. Finally he was located at his fraternity house where he had overslept. This little accident could have been disastrous, but in the end everything turned out all right.

Dr. Mike Josephs outlined the routine for the team prior to a game. The first point he made is that players are advised to get nine hours sleep every night and eat well balanced meals. This is normal procedure for most sports and also includes taboos against smoking, drinking, and late hours.

Routine At Home

On the day before a game, the team eats a light meal at noon. This meal does not include highly seasoned foods such as chili or pizza, because of the fact that they might upset the stomach thereby knocking one man out of the team.

After the lunch, players generally go to their rooms and take a siesta or nap lasting in duration for two hours approximately. At 4 p. m. the players meet and eat their evening meal at Martin's Restaurant. For this meal the menu is usually lean meat, toast and butter, baked potato, a green vegetable or salad, and hot tea. No coffee or milk is allowed.

At the conclusion of the meal the team takes a walk to aid the digestion. Then they separate until going to the site of the game.

For games played at the field-house the team generally present themselves at 7 p. m. to prepare for the game at 8:15 p. m. Before the game they warm up and receive instructions from the coaches.

Prayer Before Game

One last ritual that occurs before each game and is little known is the prayer. It is the custom for Harry Roberts to lead the group's prayer in every contest.

At halftime in the dressing room, the five men who were on the floor at the time the half was called lie down for five minutes with cold towels on their heads. These treatments cool them down. After five minutes of rest, they receive cold cokes to sip for the remainder of the rest period. The cokes relieve the thirst and provide sugar for extra energy. Group and individual instructions follow. Then back on the floor goes the team.

For overall procedure of the team, they are given salt tablets to make up for the salt lost by perspiring. These tablets are given before practice sessions and games.

Cadets Will 'Rifle' Phys. Ed. Building

When the Army has a logistics problem, the solution is simple—it has the manpower and the time, so what else is necessary?

Sometime this week the ROTC will shift its headquarters from the Main Annex to the new Men's Health and Physical Education building. While the boys are out on the drill field, moving men from the Department of Buildings and Grounds will transport the rifle racks to the new supply room. The ROTC will then march their own rifles to the gym and personally place them in the racks. A cheap and efficient method of army transportation, huh?

Marshall Tames Broncos By Lopsided Score, 93-68

By ROGER HUTCHISON
Sports Editor

The Marshall Big Green corralled the Western Michigan Broncos and defeated them 93-68 at Memorial Field House last Saturday night.

Marshall's Tex Williams paced the attack and picked up 28 points to top the scoring column for the evening.

Lou Mott was close behind Williams with 21 points and Bruce Moody had 16. Moody also pulled 11 rebounds down for Marshall and was second in this department as Western's Ron Emerick got 12. Marshall came out ahead in rebounds with 43 to Western's 42.

Western led in the game only briefly . . . in the first quarter. After two minutes of play the Big Green went ahead and, except for an occasional tie, stayed ahead for the remainder of the game. Marshall led at half time 47 to 40.

After the half, the Big Green went into a 16-point lead and then watched the Broncos pick up six straight. Then Coach Jule Rivlin's boys rallied and tossed in 19 points in the last six minutes. The Broncos could not keep up with the fast breaks and their defense was literally broken by the high riding Big Green. Marshall's fast breaks, ball stealing and fancy passes were a mainstay in breaking the Broncos' spirit.

The Big Green also saw six other men in the scoring column with Burgess getting 6; Gallion 5; Gordon, 8; Wildt, 5; and Moore and Sydenstricker 2 each. The Broncos closest contender for top scorer was Robinson with 19. He was followed by Woodruff with 15 and Bolton with 14.

Marshall's winning streak in the last three games—over Bowling Green, Morris Harvey and Western Michigan—gives them an eight and seven record in all games for the season and the victory over the Broncos leaves them with a four and five record in the conference.

The next Big Green game is against St. Francis at hte Memorial Field House next Saturday.

Standing Ovation

LOU MOTT and Bruce Moody received a standing ovation at Saturday's game as the Big Green whipped Western Michigan 93-68 in an MAC tilt.

Findlay Drops Marshall Mat Squad, 17-11

The Marshall mat squad fell victim to their host, Findlay College, last Saturday night by a score of 17 to 11. The Big Green had only three men in the scoring column.

Marshall's Dan Evans, in the 123-pound class, picked up the initial five points of the match through a forfeit. Findlay failed to have a man in the 123-pound class and dual match rules allow five points in this case.

Alpha Mayfield, in the 177-pound class, and Roger Jefferson, in the heavyweight class, picked up three points each to round out Marshall's score at 11. These victories were both by decisions — Mayfield over Buel Messer and Jefferson over Chuck Bunce.

Findlay's Rich Macaluse picked up five points in the only pin in the match. He pinned Marshall's Bill Sowers who had not suffered a defeat in a dual match this season.

Marshall's other four men lost by decisions. Jim Mattern lost to Frank Sedlak in the 130-pound class; Phil Harris to Ron Delphania in the 147-pound class; Ralph May to Bill Hughes in the 157-pound class, and Richard Thomas to Ted Dudeck in the 167-pound class.

Big Green Is Swamped By Hilltoppers, 100-77

By JIM DUFFIELD
Assistant Sports Editor

Coach Jule Rivlin and his Big Green went down to a defeat Monday night at the hands of the Western Kentucky Hilltoppers, 100-77.

Western took the tip and Bruce Moody had a personal foul charged against him as the Toppers went to the free throw line to break the ice. For the first 7 minutes the game was nip and tuck but the Green lost their shooting eye and did not score for the next seven minutes. They had difficulties not only in hitting from the floor but also from the foul line. In the first half they shot only 21 per cent from the floor while Western made 47 per cent of their shots.

Western's greater height advantage combined with their sharp shooting eye proved the downfall of the Big Green. The Hilltoppers pulled down 74 rebounds while the Green got only 37.

At the end of the half Western led by 21 at 48-27. In the second half the Big Green came back and scored a total of 50 points but the "Toppers" got 52 to increase their lead by two over the halftime score.

Tex Williams was high scorer for the quintet with 13 followed by Lou Mott and Mickey Sydenstricker with 10 each. Phil Carter, who has been on the injured list, came into the game in the second half and dumped in eight points. He was injured in the Western Michigan and was re-injured again Monday night.

"A GUIDE FOR THE DATELESS"

With the cost of dating rising higher and higher it is no wonder that so many of us men are turning to discus throwing. Naturally, we would prefer nuzzling warm coeds to flinging cold discs, but who's got that kind of money? Prices being what they are, the average man today has a simple choice: dating or eating.

Unless the average man happens to be Finster Sigafoos.

Finster came to college with the normal ambition of any average man: he wanted to find the prettiest coed on campus and make her his. He looked long and carefully, and at last he found her—a tall job named Kretchma Inskip, with hair like beaten gold.

He asked her for a date. She accepted. He appeared at her sorority house that night, smiling, eager, and carrying a bouquet of modestly priced flowers.

"Now then," said Kretchma, tossing the sleazy flora to a pledge, "where are we going tonight?"

Finster was a man short on cash, but long on ideas. He had prepared an attractive plan for this evening. "How would you like to go out to the Ag campus and see the milking machine?" he asked.

"Ick," she replied.

"Well, what would you like to do?" he asked.

"Come," said she, "to a funny little place I know just outside of town."

And away they went.

The place was Millionaires Roost, a simple country inn made of solid ivory. It was filled with beautiful ladies in backless gowns, handsome men in dickeys. Original Rembrandts adorned the walls. Marlboro trays adorned the cigarette girls. Chained to each table was a gypsy violinist.

Finster and Kretchma were seated. "I," said Kretchma to the waiter, "will start with shrimps remoulade. Then I will have lobster and capon in maderia sauce with asparagus spears. For dessert I will have melon stuffed with money."

"And you, Sir?" said the waiter to Finster.

"Just bring me a pack of Marlboros," replied Finster, "for if ever a man needed to settle back and enjoy the mild beneficence of choice tobacco and easy-drawing filtration, it is the shattered hulk you see before you now."

So, smoking the best of all possible cigarettes, Finster watched Kretchma ingest her meal and calculated that every time her fetching young Adam's apple rose and fell, he was out another 97¢. Then he took her home.

It was while saying goodnight that Finster got his brilliant idea. "Listen!" he cried excitedly. "I just had a wonderful notion. Next time we go out, let's go Dutch treat!"

By way of reply, Kretchma slashed him across the face with her housemother and stormed into the house.

"Well, the heck with her," said Finster to himself. "She is just a gold digger and I am well rid of her. I am sure there are many girls just as beautiful as Kretchma who will understand the justice of my position. For after all, girls get as much money from home as men, so what could be more fair than sharing expenses on a date?"

With good heart and high hopes, Finster began a search for a girl who would appreciate the equity of Dutch treat, and you will be pleased to hear that he soon found one—Mary Alice Hematoma, a lovely three-legged girl with sideburns.

PAUL DRAPER
... High Flying Dancer Due Tomorrow

Dancer Set To Appear Tomorrow

By LARRY ASCOUGH
Staff Reporter

Paul Draper, the world's foremost tap dancer, will appear at the convocation tomorrow at eleven o'clock. Draper, who presents numbers exclusively choreographed by himself, will be assisted by Ellen Martin, young American dancer.

The dancer, who has performed throughout the United States, comes from a distinguished family of varied talents. His father was the Lieder singer, Paul Draper; his mother is Muriel Draper, the writer; has aunt, the one and only Ruth Draper.

Draper is quite a distinguished entertainer himself. Since the moment he decided to combine fancy footwork with classical ballet, he has pirouetted, bounded, and skipped his way across the stages of most of the important theatres and halls of two continents, to the sound of cracking applause from audiences who appreciate a master stylist of the dance when they see one.

As "Dance Magazine" reported after his recital last year at Kaufman Auditorium of the 92nd Street YMHA (one of New York's major dance centers): "For two years, American tap-dancing slugged along with hunched shoulders, dangling arms, and clattering feet. Then Bill Robinson gave it serenity and Fred Astaire gave it a dramatic context.

But it took Paul Draper to confer upon it the laurel of art. And because he started with this premise, dance-expression has deepened and matured as years have gone by."

Draper, who usually appears regularly on the important YMHA Dance Series in New York, is currently on a forty-five city tour of the United States.
