Improvement Seen

Dormitory Council Stiffens Discipline

By JOHNNY HINES
Editor-In-Chief

Stern action by the dormitory council in the new Men's Residence Hall has resulted in a 50 per cent improvement in the attitude of the men living there, Mike Carroll, Nitro freshman and council president, said.

Dr. Smith Puts Curb On Funds

President Stewart H. Smith has ordered an immediate curtailment of all spending at the University in order to restore $30,000 for the six-week summer term that's scheduled to begin June 4.

In a statement Monday to all administrative officers and department chairman, President Smith said:

"Following conversations with several state officials earlier this week, I find it necessary to curtail all university budget expenditures for the remainder of this fiscal year except those that are of an emergency nature.

"If we are to have a summer program in June, we will have to earmark $30,000 which has been allocated to the administrative offices and departments for other purposes. Conferences with department chairmen and administrative officers will be scheduled during the week of Dec. 11 to determine how much money can be found for the June summer school."

Earlier this year, the state ordered all institutions to set aside a three per cent reserve fund because of a drop in collection of state taxes. This means that the university had to put aside $70,000. Of this, $30,000 was taken from the six-week summer term budget.

President Smith cited three methods by which the money for the summer session could be obtained. The first is the hope that an increase in state tax revenues would allow the $70,000 reserve to be restored to the budget.

The second method would be for the legislature to recognize the deficiency in Marshall's budget and grant a deficiency appropriation.

The third and last resort, listed by Dr. Smith, would be a curtailment of current expenditures by the university.

COEDS' HANDBALL SET

Women interested in participating in handball doubles competition may sign up in the Women's Gymnasium. Play will be from 3 to 5 p.m. on Jan. 3-4, and 8-11. Players should sign up with a partner.

At a recent meeting of the entire dormitory, Carroll told the residents that from this point on any person found creating a disturbance or defacing property would be severely disciplined.

Carroll said that two men have been put on dormitory probation for one month after they had battled with shaving cream. He pointed out that this means that they cannot visit other rooms or have visitors after 9 p.m. He stated that the men still have lounge and television privileges.

Carroll concluded by saying that the quiet hours are now observed by the residents and that the dormitory organization is more evident now than ever before.

Mrs. Henrietta Spence, dormitory director, said that the co-operation of the men has been splendid and "Mike Carroll deserves a world of credit for the improvement."

David Kirk, dean of men, said that two men have been removed from the dorm but declined to comment on the reasons for the action. Since being removed from the dormitory, one of the men has left the university.

Marshall Debaters Tie For 5th Place

The Marshall debate team tied for fifth place in the Otterbein College Debate Tournament Saturday at Westerville, Ohio. Each team won two debates and lost one.

Marshall affirmative team members were Stuart Thomas, Hurricane senior, and Tom Dunfee, Huntington junior. The negative team members were Pat Lordeon, Huntington senior, and Aubrey King, Iaeger junior.

Representatives from 22 colleges and universities in Ohio, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Kentucky and West Virginia, were present.

Governor Wished A Happy Birthday

Seven students from three social organization visited Gov. W. W. Barron at his office last Friday and sang Happy Birthday for him in recognition of his 50th birthday.

Making the trip were: John Walls, Huntington senior of Pi Kappa Alpha; John Bennett, Washington, Pa., junior; Jim Vann, Welch sophomore; Bill

DR. ALLEN W. SCHOLL
... Resigns Chairmanship

Scholl Will Quit As Department Head In June

Dr. Allen W. Scholl, chairman of the Chemistry Department since 1948, has resigned the chairmanship effective June 1.

He declined to comment on the reason.

Dr. Scholl, who came to Marshall from Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. where he was senior research chemist, said he plans to continue on the chemistry faculty.

The department, he said, "has grown from a first class high school department to a first class college department" since 1948.

"In 1948," Dr. Scholl said, "the Marshall Chemistry Department was practically non-existent."

There are now about 150 chemistry majors—far more than there were when he took over the department. Nearly 60 students have gone on to obtain their M.S. degrees and 22 are now working toward their doctorates.

Prior to joining the Firestone company, Dr. Scholl had been senior research physicist for the Rubber Reserve Corp., a federal government project set up during World War II.

A successor will be named by President Stewart H. Smith and must be approved by the State Board of Education.

Pierce, Middlebourne senior, all of Lambda Chi Alpha; Bonnie Grass, Huntington freshman; Jennifer Robinson, Newburgh, N.Y., freshman, and Kay Hudkins, Point Pleasant freshman, all Alpha Xi Delta pledges.

Congressman Ken Hechler and his secretary, Dick Pauley, were present at the event in Governor Barron's office in the capitol.

Student Body President Will Appoint Committee

By ED BENNETT
Feature Writer

Marshall University's Band and its future is to be studied by a special committee to be appointed tonight by Nancy Wood, Student Body president and Moundsville senior. President Wood feels that something should be done to benefit the band.

In a conference with President Stewart H. Smith, he said many things would be possible if the band had some source of revenue, and he felt the initiative for this money should come from the students and the Student Senate. Dr. Smith also said that there is presently in the Music Department a committee working on scholarships for music students. The committee is headed by Dr. Miriam P. Gelvin, professor of music.

When the present band uniforms were purchased in 1947, much of the money came from the Student Union and from passing a cup at all of Marshall's home games. Money from the Union is not feasible now because they are paying off the present loan.

According to Dr. Smith one of the ways for raising money might be to have a student activity fee tacked on to the present fee, and this money be used only by the band for music and uniforms.

Another thing that would help would be for Thomas O'Connell, associate professor of music, to have more faculty or student help, said Dr. C. Lawrence Kingsbury, chairman of the Music Department. Dr. Kingsbury said the budget might allow for more faculty help next year, and this would give more time for Professor O'Connell to work with the band and to interview high school students.

Miss Wood said the Student Senate will help in every way they feel is feasible for them. Some of her ideas of raising money are: for the band to sponsor a campus-wide dance, and let some of the band members form a dance band and play for the affair. She suggested that maybe the money raised from the Spring Carnival or Greek Week could go to the band.

She also made the suggestion that maybe some of the service organizations could sponsor dances and have projects for making money for the band, as well as the band having money-making projects itself.

Miss Wood said she would set up this committee tonight for the purpose of studying what the Senate could do for the band.

As to the matter of substitution of band for physical education, Dr. D. Banks Wilburn, dean of Teachers College, said this is not quite possible at the present.

He said this would have to go through the state Board of Education and would be almost impossible to draft and get adopted. He said that there might be a curriculum change this year by the Board and at this time he said he would check to see what the possibilities are.

The most likely thing possible for the near future would be tuition and fees scholarships. This also would have to go through the State Board of Education and would offer the fees for students in their third and fourth years in the band. If a student plays in the band for two years and drops out, then he would not receive the funds, but if he stays in the third and fourth years, he would.

This has been done at West Virginia University in the past and has been proven very successful, Dr. Kingsbury said.

Before this can be done, Dean Wilburn said a scholarship fund for the band would have to be set up on campus, so that there would be convincing evidence to show the Board of Education.

Dr. Kingsbury said, "The band is a school wide function and is open to anyone on the campus." In talking to a few students on campus, they thought that the band was for music majors only.

If the Student Body itself could get behind the band and students with musical talents would join the band, it would make it that much easier to get these things done that have been mentioned.

Want To Work On Parthenon? Then You're Invited To Party

Are you interested in working on the Parthenon staff or would you like to know more about a career in journalism? If (See Photo, Page 2)

so, perhaps some of your questions will be answered at the annual Journalism Christmas party scheduled for 11 a.m. tomorrow in the Journalism Department.

Margie Williams, Sharples senior and president of Fourth Estate, the sponsoring organization, said that for the first time the party will be open to non-journalism students who might be interested in working on the campus newspaper staff but who are not enrolled in a journalism class.

Fourth Estate is the women's journalism honorary. One of their annual projects is to sponsor the Christmas party.

Anyone who might be interested in joining the staff which publishes the bi-weekly newspaper is invited to attend the party. At this time they will have the opportunity of meeting other staff members and the Journalism Department faculty. They will also have their questions answered concerning the process employed in the Parthenon publication.

4 To Urge No Tieup With NSA

By JIM CASTO
Staff Reporter

Four delegates will report tonight to Student Senate on their trip last weekend to a conference on "Civil Liberties" sponsored by the U.S. National Student Association (USNSA).

In addition to reporting on the conference activities, the delegation will recommend that Marshall not affiliate at the present time with USNSA.

Reporting to the Senate will be Becky Goodwin, St. Albans senior; Dick Cottrill, Huntington freshman; Walt Cosby, White Sulphur Springs junior; and Jim Casto, Huntington junior.

The conference, held on the campus of the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia, was sponsored by both the Pennsylvania-West Virginia District and the national office of USNSA.

authorizes the trip the Senate stipulated that the delegation visit, if possible, the USNSA offices in Philadelphia and try to interview the national officers of the organization.

None of the national officers were present at the conference and the delegation was unable to visit the group's national offices because of a lack of time.

However, the delegates did interview Scott Keech, the public relations director for USNSA. When asked what specific benefits USNSA gave member schools, Mr. Keech pointed to the organization's program to help student governments and to some measures USNSA is working on for the future such as student insurance programs and uniform travel discounts.

One of the major criticisms of USNSA is that it isn't representative of its members. Critics of the group charge that too many of its measures are enacted by a National Executive Committee (NEC) of 32 members rather than by the National Student Congress (NSC).

Mr. Keech admitted that too few measures were acted on by the Congress but pointed out that every measure came out of a Congress committee and that a resolution passed by the National Executive Committee must be ratified by the next National Student Congress if it is to stay in effect.

One of the delegation's primary reasons for recommending that Marshall not affiliate with USNSA is that the group is not properly organized or run. In his interview Mr. Keech admitted that "USNSA is too bureaucratic."

In its observations the Marshall delegation found no evidence to back up charges that the group is "leftist". The delegates will emphasize this point in their report tonight.

The Senate action to send delegates to this conference marked the end of a controversy that stemmed from charges of leftist leanings hurled at USNSA. A previous bill, authorizing the sending of delegates to a USNSA regional conference, was defeated 21-0.

Christmas Decorations Go Up

FOURTH ESTATE members prepare for the annual Christmas party at 11 a.m. tomorrow in the Journalism Department. Margie Williams, Sharples senior and president of the women's journalism honorary, (left) said that the party is open to any student who might be interested in working on the Parthenon staff or interested in a career in journalism. Helping her decorate the Christmas tree is Dolly Locke, St. Albans senior.

French Club To Meet; Drama Is Scheduled At Social Hour

The French Club will meet at 4 p.m. today in the large parlor of University Hall.

There will be a social hour from 3-4 p.m. For those who cannot attend at this time, another social period will be held after the meeting, from 5-5:30.

Cheryl Skidmore will read the Christmas story from the French Bible.

A play, "La Poupee," will be presented by Robert Bauer, Huntington junior, who will act as a bookkeeper and Patricia Barbour, Huntington junior, who will play a toy merchant.

"Cantique de Noel" will be sung by Raymond Seaver Jr., Ashland, Ky. senior. The members will sing "Christmastide," which was written and composed by Seaver.

Ishihara Hiroko, a Japanese student will demonstrate the art of paper folding. Mrs. Edgar Corum, teacher of French at Huntington High School, will read "Les Coutumes de Noel, du Jour de l'An et du six janvier en France."

WVU Severs Its Tie With USNSA

The Student Legislature at West Virginia University has voted unanimously to sever ties with the U.S. National Student Association.

The action came at the Legislature's meeting last Thursday. After the meeting Speaker Thomas Freeman commented "I would like to emphasize that the withdrawal from USNSA does not have to be approved by the student body in referendum form."

Ugly American Does Exist, Fulbright Student Believes

By DOROTHY LOCKE
Society Editor

Living and talking with the people of another country is a good way to change the image of the ugly American, according to Gloria Brothers, a 1960 Marshall graduate who spent last year studying in France on a Fulbright scholarship.

Miss Brothers says that this image of Americans does exist, and that one may see Americans like this in Europe. It shouldn't be our aim to change Europeans, but to understand them, she feels.

Miss Brothers arrived in France Sept. 24, 1960, and spent a month in Paris in an orientation program with about 150 other Fulbright scholars who were to study in France.

From there she went to Rennes, a city of 135,000 people in Brittany, in the northwest part of France. She was the only American student at the University of Rennes, which has an enrollment of 10,000. She studied contemporary French literature.

Miss Brothers says the university has no campus, as we know it. Its four schools—those of Law, Medicine, Sciences, and Humanities—are in four different places within the city. There is no student government, no intercollegiate sports and no clubs. Perhaps twice a year a school will give a dance.

Social life, said Miss Brothers, is on a higher cultural plane than here. Students watch foreign films at the cinema club, attend the theater, which has a cultural program similar to that of the Artist Series.

Miss Brothers carried a 16-hour load the first semester, which means she had 16 different courses, each course meeting once a week. Nothing was obligatory, she said. Students could go to class, take notes, or give reports as they wished. She reports that the students were such avid note-takers that one professor said all he ever saw of them were the tops of their heads.

Students dress much more formally there, according to Miss Brothers. Coeds wear heels everyday to class. Men generally wear suits and ties, sometimes sweaters but never sweatshirts or jeans.

Telling about prices in Brittany, Miss Brothers said students paid a $10 registration fee, 22 cents for a meal, and four dollars for a permanent wave.

She described the people of Brittany as not as materially wealthy as Americans. "They have no luxuries. But they know how to take time to live and they enjoy living," she said. "They won't walk up and introduce themselves; they feel they are intruding on your privacy. But once you let them know you're sincerely interested in knowing them, they make some of the most wonderful friends you'll ever have."

Miss Brothers says that the townspeople and the families where she stayed were very much concerned that she like France and get to know it. All were proud to have a relative in the United States or be anyway connected with America.

Some of the most common questions she was asked were about segregation problems, Caryl Chessman, and what she thought of Elizabeth Taylor and Marilyn Monroe. About segregation Miss Brothers says, "I explained that we didn't have segregation all over the U.S., as they pictured it everywhere, but that our problems arose and were more prevalent in the South; that it's not the fault of everyone in the South, but the fault of a certain few who cause these clashes to occur. I don't think it can be justified, just explained as it exists." She says she tried to fit in with the French, knowing that they were watching everything.

Brittany keeps its ancient traditions, Miss Brothers said, with lots of festival days when the people come out in their old costumes. The old people still speak the Breton language. At one celebration, "Galette des Rois" (cake of kings), which comes annually after Christmas, Miss Brothers was selected queen. She and the king, who was from the Congo, sat on thrones and were entertained.

Several times during the year she prepared typical American foods for her hosts, such as hamburgers with pickle relish, cheeseburgers and friend chicken, which they had never eaten. Once, when she roasted marshmallows for a family, they called in all the neighbors because it was so unusual!

During holidays Miss Brothers traveled all over Europe and parts of North Africa with four other American Fulbright students. She spent about a month at the homes of two French families. One of these families owned oyster beds and she took her turn sitting up one night to see that the oysters were not stolen.

Back-home now after 11 months abroad, Miss Brothers hopes to return, the sooner, the better. She is now working in Charleston in the Marketing division of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. as an administrative assistant.

"This age of specialization opens special opportunities for the well-rounded man!"

Robert Saudek, President
Robert Saudek Associates, Inc.

"The more specialists society creates to cope with its complexities, the easier it can be for a non-specialist to achieve success.

If that seems paradoxical, look at it this way: the more men who go out for specific positions on the ball club, the more chance you have to wind up as manager!

Today's world — in government, business, the arts, even science — needs the well-rounded man. He's the man who can see the entire picture...the man who can draw on a broad background of knowledge, evaluate the problem, then assign the details to specialists.

The world of entertainment may seem somewhat special, but it's a case in point. These days, it demands more of its people than ever before. Today's musical comedy score is often as sophisticated as grand opera. Drama draws heavily on psychology and history. Television productions are concerned with nuclear science and political science. If you've ever watched 'Omnibus' you may have seen how our productions have run the gamut of a wide range of man's interests.

So I suggest to you that even though you may concentrate on one special field of interest, keep your viewpoint broad. Keep your college curriculum as diversified as possible. Attend lectures and concerts, the theatres and museums. Above all, read and read, and listen and listen! But pay scant heed to the oracle who says there's no route to the top but that of specialization. I don't believe it!"

Military Service Offers Opportunities To Coeds

By FRANK CHILDERS
Campus Editor

Girls today are growing up in a world quite different than the one their mothers grew up in. Speed of communications and travel, modern apartment living, the miracles predicted as a result of atomic power — these are some of the outward aspects of today's world.

But there is something deeper that is more fundamental and significant. Young people today are growing up in a period of critical world tension which threatens to continue.

Virtually all young women today prepare to earn their own living. They know that whether or not they marry there will be times in their lives when they will probably need or want to work.

Military service offers the girls of today's world many answers to many questions. Let us review the facts.

How will a girl be supervised by the military service? At her living quarters the enlisted woman is supervised by capable women officers specially selected because of their training and background. It is their duty to know the whereabouts of all enlisted women in their group, and to see that everything possible is done to make their physical living conditions as healthful and pleasant as possible.

At work, every woman in the services is under the supervision of a superior officer, in charge of the particular branch or military job to which she is assigned. Officers will give a woman the best of training for her job and recognize and utilize any special abilities which she exhibits.

Under what conditions will a woman live?

Whether she lives in a barracks, private or semi-private rooms, the woman's living quarters will greatly resemble college dormitory life. Standards of neatness and cleanliness of beds, lockers, bathrooms, dayrooms, and lounges will equal anything the woman has experienced before.

When a woman first enters a military service, classification experts will interview her and give full consideration to placing her in the type of work which interests her most, and will assign her to duties for which aptitude tests show she has ability. She will have every opportunity to perform any job she is qualified to do, or can become qualified to perform with a reasonable amount of special training in keeping with the needs of the service branch. It's up to her; there are only two limitations.

She will not perform a combat task. She will not be permitted to fill a job requiring more strength than her physical limitations allow.

What are the chances of promotion? They are excellent because women in the services are assigned to fields in which many advancement opportunities exist. All of the services need leaders and people who can take responsibility. If she has a college degree, leadership ability, and can pass an officer qualification test she may be accepted for officers training. This training would prepare her to assume the responsibilities of an officer in the military service she has selected.

As an officer, she can continue to receive promotions, with corresponding pay and living allowance increases.

Can she continue her education? She certainly can, for every opportunity is provided for women to take advance and special courses while in the services. She may obtain recognized credits toward a college degree (or degrees). She may learn some specialized skill during her off-duty time by taking courses, on the post, base or station where she is assigned; at a nearby university or college; or by correspondence study courses through U. S. Armed Forces Institute (USAFI), known as the biggest university in the world. The decision is up to the woman.

Service in the Armed Forces of our Nation offers a young woman today specific opportunities and satisfactions.

Marshall Matmen Win Third Place

The Marshall grapplers finished third in a meet with Ohio University, Denison University, and the Columbus Y.M.C.A. at Athens, Ohio, last Saturday.
