MARSHALL COLLEGE STUDENT NEWSPAPER

Vol. 60

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 2, 1960 HUNTINGTON, W. VA.

No. 29

Here's Proof - Blood Is Thicker Than Water

THIS COUPLE, giving blood in the Student Union last Wednesday, seem to be going through a blood-brother ceremony or else demonstrating togetherness.

TAKING THE NAMES of blood donors who are waiting their turn in line, is Mrs. Stewart H. Smith, volunteer Red Cross worker and wife of the college president.

Pint Bottles Abound At Union As 216 Students Donate Blood

By ARCHIE GLASPELL
Staff Reporter

The Student Union was crowded last Wednesday with students carrying pint bottles. There were doctors and nurses there, too.

The reason for the crowds, doctors, nurses, and Red Cross volunteers was that this was the first blood drive of the year.

From 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. the registration desk received the names of those persons wishing to donate blood. At 3 p.m. when the desk closed 296 students had signed up for donations. Of these, 250 were ROTC cadets. By 3 p.m. 216 pints had been donated. Volunteers from Alpha Xi Delta and the pledge class of Sigma Alpha Epsilon assisted in the donor room and in the canteen passing out refreshments.

Sandwiches, cookies, coffee, and milk were served to those who gave blood. One of the assistant canteen workers, Suzanne Tamplin, Madison junior, said, "Most of the people who gave blood seemed serious about the drive and the chance to do something worthwhile."

Within the ROTC group participating in the drive, three officers and one company sponsor from Company N, the Pershing Rifles, were present to make their donations.

Three doctors, six staff nurses, two custodians, plus the volunteers from the Red Cross and the Student Body conducted the donor program.

Although several wild tales circulated in the waiting area, no serious incidents marred the day's activities. Frowns and serious minds made up the facial picture in the waiting section, but at the other end smiles and quotes of "It was nothing," were the order of the day.

Journalism Offers Graduate Courses

New Program Is First Of Its Kind In 30-Year History Of Department

For the first time in the 30-year history of the Journalism Department, graduate courses will be offered next semester on a year-around basis.

Prof. W. Page Pitt, department chairman, announced that the two courses are Journalism 428-528—High School Newspapers; and Journalism 427-527—Journalistic English. Each course of study offers three hours credit and is designed primarily for high school teachers working for their master's degree, and for Marshall Teachers College students majoring in English.

English majors previously had the option of taking these courses when they were designated as Journalism 327 and 328.

The redesignated courses will be offered at the start of the second semester, beginning Jan. 26, and will be a part of the summer school curriculum at Marshall.

In addition, the Journalism Department is preparing to offer a summer workshop in pictorial journalism, designed to help advisers of high school newspapers and yearbooks.

"Plans for the workshop now are being worked out," Professor Pitt said. "The reason for expanding our program is to meet the needs of those working in mass communications in many areas of West Virginia. Since Marshall journalism graduates predominate in the state, we are constantly made aware of these new demands. Also Marshall is the only college under the jurisdiction of the State Board of Education which can offer a major in journalism."

Journalistic English has been added to the curriculum on a graduate level primarily to aid teachers of high school journalism, or for those who are planning to teach it. It will include a detailed study of the use of the English language, both in the presentation of the news colloquially and in the printed word.

The High School Newspapers course will consist of both lecture and laboratory sessions. Students will study the mechanics of publishing high school newspapers, organization of staff, and carry out research projects.

If these courses are taken on an undergraduate level, Professor Pitt pointed out, "they cannot be repeated for graduate credit."

Christmas Oratorio Set For Tuesday Program

By MARGIE WILLIAMS
Society Editor

A special Christmas season attraction, the Hector Berlioz oratorio, "L'Enfance du Christ" will be an Artist Series presentation at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The three-part musical work, based on familiar New Testament scenes, will be performed by a company of 85, which includes the Little Orchestra, under the direction of Thomas Scherman, and the Choral Art Society, trained by William Jonson.

The oratorio opens with King Herod's dream premonition of the birth of an infant destined to dethrone him and his decision to murder all newborn male children. It describes the subsequent flight of the Holy family into Egypt where they are taken in by an Israelite family.

It concludes with an epilogue in which the narrator and chorus foretell the eventual sacrifice of the Savior.

In the leading soprano role as the Virgin Mother, Sainte Marie, is Irene Jordon, dramatic coloratura of the Metropolitan Opera Company. She was recipient of a Ford Foundation grant in 1959.

Hugh Thompson, leading baritone of the Metropolitan Opera for eight seasons, will double as Saint Joseph and Herod.

Other featured soloists are John McCollum, tenor, and Ara Berberian, bass.

The Little Orchestra, composed of 45 members, gave its first concert under Scherman's baton at New York's Town Hall Oct. 20, 1947. It currently performs more than 90 programs a year in the United States.

In 1959 the group was chosen for an eight-week tour of 20 cities in eight Far Eastern countries under President Eisenhower's Special International Program for Cultural Presentations. Upon its return, New York Mayor Wagner presented Scherman with the city's "Honor Scroll" for "exceptional and distinguished service."

Since 1951 "L'Enfance du Christ" has been an annual production at New York's Carnegie Hall.

The New York Times describes the performance as "a memorable musical experience," adding that "The Little Orchestra Society has done many enterprising things for music, but none perhaps of greater value to concert goers than this revival."

The New York Herald Tribune said, "The piece continues to unfold further glories with each new hearing."

A comment of the San Francisco Chronicle was, "A superb performance! Thomas Scherman has a rare and subtle command of this rare and subtle score."

Dr. Janssen's Rocky Vacation Brings Results

By LARRY ASCOUGH
Staff Reporter

How would you like to go on your vacation and return with 500 pounds of rocks and minerals? Dr. Raymond E. Janssen, head of the geology department, did just that last summer.

Dr. Janssen and his family traveled more than 10,000 miles collecting different rocks and minerals to be used in the geology museum and geology lab work.

The vacation, which took the family across the northern United States, down the west coast, and back through the southwestern states, gave them the opportunity to visit many national parks where various rocks and minerals can be found.

With the specimens he collects on his trip, Dr. Janssen is filling four new cases in the geology museum. He is expanding the exhibit on igneous rocks, expanding the gemstone exhibit, and has completed an exhibit on petrified wood which he collected at Petrified Forest, Colo.

Dr. Janssen, who has written many articles for scientific magazines, is also writing his annual article for "The American Peoples Encyclopedia."

Radio And TV News Writing Class Will Take Final At WHTN-TV Station

By LINDSAY SMITH
Staff Reporter

Eight members of the Journalism Department's Radio and TV News Writing class will be taking their final exam tonight. But, unlike other exams, this one will be aired on WHTN-TV's two news shows at 6:00 and 11:00 p.m.

With a semester of classroom experience behind them, these journalists of tomorrow are turning from student to pro to put their knowledge to work. The students will be working throughout the day in co-operation with WHTN-TV's news staff to gather and prepare the material for today's two news shows.

The class was assigned specific beats to cover in their quest for news, including the police station, county and state offices, the Federal Building, and other areas of importance. Other students will be making telephone checks to state police headquarters, and rewriting copy from the TV station's two wire machines.

After gathering the news, the student journalists will return to the newsroom to write the copy in the accepted TV style. Then they'll go to the control room to see their efforts presented on the air.

In addition to testing their skills and abilities in television news writing, the work will serve as a final examination for the course.

This is the second year that Marshall College has worked in cooperation with Channel 13. Last year, the class prepared the majority of the copy on both news shows.

Spotlight Focuses On Two Guards

By BILL TOW
Sports Writer

Two varsity basketball guards are in today's spotlight. They are Corky Layman and Charlie Moore.

Layman is a sophomore who plays both basketball and baseball. He is a physical education major and a social studies minor.

At Huntington High, Layman played baseball and basketball and was captain of both teams in his senior year. The 19-year-old, 5-11 athlete played catcher and guard respectively. In 1959, he made All-State for both sports.

On the court, Layman likes the fast break and man-to-man defense. When shooting, he favors a one-handed jump shot from the outside. When asked the difference between varsity and freshman ball, he replied, "We face better competition and the whole style is different."

Layman played high school ball with two of his teammates, Ron Lambert and Charlie Moore. He hopes to go into coaching or play professional baseball.

On last year's freshman team, he played in all 20 games and made 76 field goals out of 165 attempts for a .460 average. From the free-throw line, he sank 60 of 67 for a .896 average. He brought down 54 rebounds and ended the frosh season with a total of 212 points for a game average of 10.6—the third highest scorer on the Little Green.

With his speed and general all-around court ability, he will be a welcome addition to the netters this year.

Charlie Moore is a 6-3, 190-pound, 20-year-old junior from Huntington High.

In 1958 Moore was named to the All-State Honorable Mention Team and was captain of his High School team.

Moore plays at the guard position both on offense and defense. He is a proponent of the fast break and likes both the zone and man-to-man defense.

He played freshman ball and finds a great difference between it and the varsity. "In varsity ball, there is a lot more competition and every game is a must," he said.

The most outstanding game of last year, he said, was the 100-97 overtime victory by Marshall over Western Kentucky. Moore favors a one-handed jump shot and likes to guard closely.

He wants to go into his family's business. His major is business management and his minor economics.

Three Varsity Players Receive Awards

THREE VARSITY GRIDDERS were accorded honors by their teammates Monday night at a dinner given the Big Green by the Stag Club at the Owens-Illinois Onlzed club. They are: quarterback Ralph May, left, Chapmanville junior, guard Wilson Lathan, center, Charleston senior and tackle Norman Mullins, Man junior. Lathan and Mullins were voted best linemen and both received the same amount of votes.

Big Green Cage Team Begins 24-Game Schedule Tomorrow

The 1960-61 Big Green basketball team begins its 24-game schedule tomorrow with a home game against Marietta at the Field House.

Although no starting line-up has been released, two players definitely will start. They are 6-8 Bob Burgess and 6-3 Mickey Sydenstricker. Phil Carter (6-7) will probably start, too.

The team, which won 10 and lost 13 last year, is looking forward to a better season. They will play 13 home games.

The netters have been practicing at St. Josephs High School for the last 18 days. They were forced out of the Fieldhouse when the Ice Show came to town and when repairs closed the arena down.

WAA Tournaments Ended In 2 Sports

The Womens Athletic Association has completed intramurals in tennis and horseshoes and is now sponsoring tournaments in volleyball and ping pong singles.

Beth Hutchinson, South Charleston sophomore, beat Pat Joyce, Parkersburg senior, in the tennis final. In horseshoes, Bonnie Cary, Huntington senior, eked out a 51-49 victory over Ruth Ware, South Charleston freshman.

The WAA will meet Monday at 4 p.m. Plans will be discussed concerning the Christmas Party and caroling.

Five games are carded for the cagers prior to Christmas vacation. Three will be at home and one of them will be a Mid-American Conference game with Ohio University. Other games slated are Eastern Kentucky, Dec. 5, away; Clemson, Dec. 8, at home; Miami of Ohio (MAC game) Dec. 10, away, and Ohio University, Dec. 14, at home.

The Little Green also will open its season on Friday against Marietta's JV. Starting time for the frosh game is 6:15 and the tip-off time for the varsity is 8:15. Admission to the games is by ID and Student Activity card.

Welcome back after that brief vacation at Turkey Time—I wonder how the student gross poundage increased over the weekend? I guess everyone will be on a diet and, of course, you know the daffinition of diet: Triumph of mind over platter.

Overheard in the Student Union: "I'm going on a diet to keep my wallet fat . . ."

Anyway we're all back at college: the fountain of knowledge where we go to drink.

By the way, the Doc says to be the PICTURE of health, keep in a good FRAME of mind. Good advice and free besides. By the way, Doctor, if you ever build an estate, I've thought of the perfect name—BEDSIDE MANOR.

Say, I hear someone on campus got a new watch last weekend that's anti-magnetic, shockproof, waterproof, earthquake and termite proof.

During WW II a youthful Army doctor at a lonely outpost in the South Pacific, diagnosed the illness of a staff sergeant, but pondered what treatment could be given with his limited facilities. So he wired the nearest base hospital, "Have a case of beriberi. What shall I do?" Someone at the hospital radioed back, "Give it to the Marines, they'll drink anything."

"Bailey, don't worry. You're trapped behind several tons of sand and rock, but we'll get you out. Are you all right?"—"Mxezzie hmeiz vvvvz."—"You'll have to speak more plainly, Bailey. What did you say?"

Professor George Corrie, speaking to his 9 a.m. economics class about excessive absences remarked, "I've got the only class on campus that uses the two platoon system".

Until next week—play it kool kiddies!

Thayer Soule Scheduled For Forum Appearance

Thayer Soule, travel film producer and narrator, will present his film, "Venice and the Italian Lakes," at tonight's 8 p.m. forum in Old Main Auditorium.

The showing will include a history of Venice, a trip along the Grand Canal, the market place in Venice, and a look at glass-making, fishing, and old and new church mosaics.

The second part of the program, devoted to the Italian Lakes, will highlight the cathedral and La Scala Opera House at Milan, the funicular railway (mountain cable railway) and the city of Como and Isola Bella.

Mr. Soule became chief narrator for Burton Holmes Travelogues in 1946 and, for the next 12 years, appeared annually in Carnegie Hall and other auditoriums across the country, presenting more than 1,000 programs.

His filming trips have taken him through more than 70 countries and over one million miles.

During World War II, Mr. Soule organized and directed a school of combat cinematography and headed the Third Marine Division photographic section at Iwo Jima, where he won the Bronze Star.

Counseling For Next Semester Will Continue Until January 12

By JOHNNY HINES
Managing Editor

Counseling for the second semester registration began Monday and will continue until Jan. 12, according to Luther E. Bledsoe, registrar.

During this period, all students who plan to attend school second semester should see their advisers.

Mr. Bledsoe pointed out that students should pay careful attention to the schedules because the courses for the second semester are in the third column. All course numbers should be listed because class cards are sorted by number.

Mr. Bledsoe said that students should make an appointment with their adviser, have trial schedule and comptroller's card approved and signed in duplicate with two alternate courses and schedule plotted on the reverse side to avoid conflict. The adviser will enter all fees including lab breakage on comptroller's card and sign it.

The student should keep one copy, and the other will go to the academic dean's office. Trial schedules and comptroller's cards should be taken to the comptroller's office and fees must be paid before Jan. 12. Students must take treasurer's receipt, trial schedule and ID card to the registrar's office and pick up a time ticket.

The advanced registration will be held in the new Men's Health and Physical Education Building Jan. 13 and 14. Mr. Bledsoe said that all students should take advantage of the period to avoid a rush during regular registration.

Student Teaching Association Continues Campus Conference

The Association for Student Teaching, Southeastern Regional Conference, will be held today and tomorrow in the Science Hall auditorium.

Dr. Paul Musgrave, professor of education, will preside.

"New Horizons in Teacher Education and Professional Standards," is the theme of the annual meeting which started here yesterday.

The West Virginia Unit of the association opened up the conference yesterday with two sessions. Easton K. Feaster, president of

Fairmont State College and chairman of the committee for West Virginia Study of Teacher Education, spoke about "A Forward Look in Teacher Education."

Fred S. Coffindaffer, president of the West Virginia unit of the association, presided at opening sessions.

Speakers at the three-day affair include Dr. Lyman V. Ginger, dean of the College of Education, University of Kentucky and Dr. Donald Sharpe, Indiana State Teachers College.

CAR WASH TOMORROW

The pledge class of Sigma Alpha Epsilon will conduct a car wash from 8 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. tomorrow.

The pledge class will be divided into crews and will be washing cars at various service stations in town.
