Lonely nights

This scene of a lone student is a familiar one from times past and will continue to be so as long as students attend Marshall, but the background is part of another building scheduled for demolition. Old Main is to be partially demolished and renovated within the next year. It will be one of the last buildings to undergo the procedure and bring Marshall's campus up to modern standards. --Photo by Magaly Vega

Senate reviews newsletter, students to be surveyed

Publication of the Student Government newsletter, The Sentinel, will be cut from 5,000 copies to 3,500 copies.

Student Government plans to do a survey to see if the students are interested in the publication. The results of the survey will determine whether or not Student Government will continue to put out the newsletter, according to Student Body President Brian Angle, Huntington senior.

The Student Senate passed on second reading the amended election rules.

In other business, the Senate discussed a possible resolution supporting the move of the Southern Conference Basketball playoffs to Charleston. Also presented to the senate was a suggestion that Student Government get involved with a project to raise money to aid the task force searching for the killer of 22 black children in Atlanta.

Meanwhile, Student Senate passed resolution 32 recognizing Sen. James Dodrill, Huntington junior, and Sen. Marc Williams, Huntington junior, for their accomplishments during their internship with the legislature.

Government slots open filing deadline Thursday

Filing for the April 2 Student Government elections is taking place today and tomorrow in room 2W29 of the Memorial Student Center.

Students filing for Student Body President and Vice-President must run on the same ticket. In addition, they must be at least a second semester sophomore and have begun full-time students for two semesters prior to and at the time of filing. They are also required to have a cumulative grade point average of 2.0.

Ten of nineteen senate seats are open. Two seats are open in the off-campus constituency, while both the commuter and the residence hall constituencies have four seats open.

Candidates for senate may be undergraduates or graduates with a cumulative grade point average of 2.0. They must have completed at least one semester as full-time students at Marshall at the time of filing.

Those filing for either Student Body President, Vice-President, or Senate must not be on social or academic probation.

Landlord-tenant relations grounds for legal assistance

Landlord-tenant relations for off campus students are frequently the grounds for legal assistance.

As Marshall's student attorney, David Lockwood offers free advice to students concerning legal matters.

Giving advice on landlord-tenant relation questions consumes much of Lockwood's time, he said. "Students take the terms of the contract lightly. Once a student signs a contract, that's it. They must know what they're agreeing to do."

Lockwood said there have been fewer landlord-tenant cases lately. He believes that could have resulted from brochures that have been distributed on landlord-tenant relations.

Other problems in landlord-tenant relations are landlords withholding damage deposits and trying to enforce certain terms that the students think are unfair.

Other cases Lockwood frequently deals with are university policy and rights plus criminal and domestic relations.

Lockwood said this service is limited to university related cases.

If a student believes that he or she is in need of legal assistance, Lockwood said it is best to talk to him and see if it is something the student can handle by himself. If it is beyond the student's control, Lockwood said he has a good relationship with the bar and can refer people to someone who can help.

The legal aid service has been offered at Marshall since 1974, when David Lockwood was hired. He is employed part-time by the university and also receives a fee from the university.

Lockwood's office hours are: Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings from 6-8, Wednesday mornings from 9-12 and Thursday afternoons from 3-5. He can also be reached at his downtown office.

Visiting professors to conduct lectures on six-month residency in Chinese city

By Tami A. Jones

Dr. Jack R. McMichael and his wife Dorothy will speak of their experiences in China to sociology and anthropology classes Wednesday and Thursday. Dr. Richard O. Comfort, professor of sociology, said.

McMichael, a professor of philosophy at Concord College, and his wife spent seven months of an eight month sabbatical in China last year. They spent six months on the campus of Fujian Teachers University in Fuzhou, Fujian province, and one month traveling about the country.

Fuzhou, a city of 900,000 is the capital of the coastal province of Fujian, which is opposite Taiwan.

"It had been generally closed to foreigners for the past 30 years and this is the first time foreigners like us had been permitted to come and stay there for so long," McMichael said.

The McMichaels were in Fuzhou from Jan. 10 to July 2 of last year. Both taught English at the university and lived on campus. They also lectured on Western Philosophy for philosophy teachers and others interested biweekly. Mrs. McMichael taught social work.

"From July 2 to Aug. 6 my wife and I traveled widely and freely in China on our own, just the two of us without an interpreter or guide," McMichael said.

The McMichaels' lectures will feature a large collection of color slides, highlighting their trip through China.

McMichael's Wednesday lectures will be at 9 a.m. and 11 a.m. in Smith Hall 531, and 1 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. in Smith Hall 530. Mrs. McMichael will lecture Wednesday at 10 a.m. and noon in Smith Hall 530.

McMichael will lecture at 9:30 a.m.

Thursday in Smith Hall 531. Mrs. McMichael will lecture at 8 a.m. in Smith Hall 530 and 9:30 a.m. in Smith Hall 523.

Both will lecture at 11 a.m. Thursday in Northcott 209 and there will be a brown bag lunch on the 8th floor of Smith Hall following the Thursday lectures.

Any interested student or faculty member may attend the lectures.

Pennsylvania Ballet to offer student sessions

Registration is under way for master classes that are to be taught by the Pennsylvania Ballet during its two-day residency at Marshall University on March 25-26. Students may sign up for the classes in the Memorial Student Center Room 2W38.

The program is sponsored by the Marshall Artist Series and the MU Institute for the Arts with a grant from the Arts and Humanities Division of the West Virginia Department of Culture and History and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Classes will be offered in intermediate and advanced ballet both days and students enrolled in the program will have the privilege of watching company classes and the open rehearsal, Nancy P. Hindsley, MU cultural events coordinator, said. To enroll in the intermediate class, students have to have been en pointe for one year and students wishing to enroll in the advanced class should have been en pointe for two years.

Enrollment in each of the classes is limited to 20 students and the registration fee is $5 per class. Students involved in the classes can purchase tickets to the ballet company's performances at half price.

The Pennsylvania Ballet will present two public performances during its stay. Ticket details will be announced later.

Plans set for Spring

Residence Hall Government Association has made a variety of plans for Spring Week, Debra F. Chandler, Charleston sophomore, and RHGA president said.

The association has chosen April 24 as the day to begin its activities, Chandler said.

Among the activities planned are an "Anything Goes" competition that will begin at noon; a "Gong Show" that will begin at 8 p.m.; and a movie, "The Fog," which will be shown at 11 p.m. An outdoor concert is also planned but no band has been decided upon.

The "Anything Goes" competition will include water balloon tossing, car cram-a-thons, and relay races; while the "Gong Show" will be similar to the television show of the same name.

RHGA is also sponsoring a 10 kilometer "Fun Run" the following day. The race's course has not yet been chosen, but the run will end before the Spring Concert at Ritter Park begins, Joseph Sassler, Ashtabula, Ohio, junior and committee chairman, said.

Prizes will be given to all winners in the various activities.

Play explores women's lives

"For Colored Girls Who Have Considered Suicide When The Rainbow Is Enuf," a play which deals with the many facets of black women's experiences and explores their sexuality, will be presented at 7 p.m. Saturday in Smith Recital Hall.

The play, presented by the Huntington Theatrical Ensemble, will be followed by a panel discussion and a reception by the Kappa Sweethearts.

The event is sponsored by the Marshall Women's Center and the Campus Christian Center and is free to the public.

IRS plans crackdown

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Internal Revenue Service ordered on Tuesday an employer-aided crackdown on income tax withholding in an attempt to head off what it says is a spreading scheme to borrow - if not steal - from the government.

News rules, requiring employer compliance, would bar workers from claiming an extraordinary number of $1,000 exemptions on their W-4 withholding forms when they are eligible for only a handful for themselves and their families.

The practice has been most noted in the Flint, Mich., area where, according to the IRS, thousands of autoworkers have used it to avoid having any federal tax withheld from their paychecks.

That, of course, does not in any way reduce a worker's tax liability, but at the least it postpones payment until the employe files his tax return - in effect, an interest-free method of borrowing.

Construction workers at a nuclear powerplant site in Washington state also have been reported using the scheme this year, but IRS officials declined to offer specific figures which would indicate how pervasive the practice has become.

"I guess the one in Flint was enough," said public affairs officer

Tony Bombadere. "We're trying to prevent it from becoming widespread."

The new temporary regulation, to be published in the Federal Register on Thursday, says that whenever there is a dispute over withholding exemptions, an employer must withhold according to the number the IRS approves rather than the number a worker claims.

In the past, Bombadere said, a worker might claim 99 exemptions, assuring that no federal income taxes would be withheld. His or her employer would file the withholding form with the IRS, which then could notify the employer that the number was obviously incorrect. But the worker could then claim 98 exemptions "so the process is repeated" over and over, the spokesman said.

Such an employee might be forced to pay his proper tax eventually and could be prosecuted for filing a fraudulent form. But widespread use of such tactics would make it impossible for the government to keep track of thousands or even hundreds of thousand of cases.

Deputy Treasury Secretary R.T. McNamar said in a written statement that the new regulation "is designed to ensure fairness for the millions of Americans who honor the tax laws of this nation."

Efforts made to prevent strike

WASHINGTON (AP) - Last-ditch efforts to avert a March 27 strike by the nation's 160,000 union coal miners hit a critical snag Tuesday over work schedules, and the United Mine Workers charged the industry wants a walkout.

Neither side would say when bargainers might return to the talks UMW President Sam Church Jr. first said his team was in "telephone contact" with industry bargainers, but a union spokesman later conceded the two sides had not talked since they ended their last meeting shortly after 4 a.m. EST.

Barring a breakthrough within hours, a strike seemed virtually certain.

Church refused to comment on differences between the two sides as he headed into a meeting with union bargainers. But he left little doubt the miners and the industry remained far apart.

"From the very start the union has not wanted a strike, but at this time it appears the operators do," he said.

FOR THE RECORD

Television: Crime school?

The television media has been accused in court more than once by parents of school age children of adversely affecting the childrens' behavior. The parents claim that some television crime and detective shows stimulate negative behavior in their television addicted children.

A primary example of this accusation originated in a Florida courtroom over a child who shot another individual and then claimed the show, "Kojak," initiated his behavior. According to the newspaper media, the child said he had been watching "Kojak" and decided to try some of Kojak's detective tactics.

Another recent incident of a parent who said he felt his child was influenced to commit a crime because of the various crime and detective shows on television. The young 9-year-old, 91-pound boy stuck a gun in the face of a cashier at the Manhattan Bank in New York City and asked for all the money. The father said the child was play-acting a television show.

It makes you wonder if society is not almost entirely responsible for the actions of its individuals. After all, television shows seem to be the projection of societal problems, except these shows are usually not realistically portrayed. However, the possibility of societal problems, such as the number of crimes committed by children, cannot be ruled out as being caused by the media.

Student doubts quality of university teachers

I am writing concerning the lack of competent personel (teachers) at Marshall University. I have attended other universities and this by far is the poorest group of teachers I have ever see. What is the reason? Lack of qualified personnel, maybe if that be the reason then there should be fewer classe, because students are not getting anything out of the teachers. I have 18 hours this semester (6 classes) and three of my teachers are no more than someone who outlines the book, there are no lectures, one for example goes straight by the book with no additional input, even her outline is not reworded. Two instructor if he be allowed such a glamorous title gives no explanation. He says "it's in the book" yes that is true, it is in the book, but what about explaining the different methods or whatever. Three, is a part-time instructor who works and expects students to already know or understand the material; if that be why do we take classes and show up. I feel Marshall University needs to take a better look at their instructors. A instructor is suppose to instruct not read the material for you. This is very discouraging when you work hard and pay thousands of dollars to have someone read for you. I pay out-of-state tuition and this is even more discouraging. What qualifications does a instructor need. I am in now way reflectioning upon the competant instructors. There are a few, if you are fortunate enough to get in one of their classes. Please help those so-called instructors by kindly dismissing them. After all the students are the ones paying for their time, with their own money and taxpayer dollars who hopefully through education, students may someday offer new ideas and help the illiteracy of the world. This world could be a better world with more intelligent people wandering around, but how can it be with the lack of qualified, competant instructors.

Student Sentinel gets support

Is there a need for a student government newsletter? This question has been hashed and rehashed for the past few months and I feel the answer is quite clear. Clear as mud, that is. The answer lies somewhere among the answers to "is there a need for a school yearbook?" and "is there a need for a school newspaper?"

In my opinion, the newsletter is a worthwhile publication. The first edition was a little rusty, yes, but the students putting out the newsletter, for the most part, are not journalism majors. I feel the newsletter is an honest attempt to inform the students of what student government is all about. I, for one learned quite a bit about it and I know of others that feel the same way.

As for money? I agree that the price for the Student Sentinel should not be included in the Activity Fee. If everyone who wanted funding through the Activity Fee would be able to do so, the fee would cost more than tuition, dorm, and books together.

An alternative to the money problem could be advertising or some form of sponsorship.

In opposition to most beliefs, however, the first issue of the Student Sentinel cost each student 6 cents, according to Brian Angle, student body president. This could become more expensive, however, when the student government has to build boxes in which to put the Student Sentinel. The Parthenon has refused its boxes to them, according to Angle.

Now, I realize that it is a tradition for journalists to dig up dirt about the government. This helps keep the politicians in tow, and we all applaud the "muckrackers" Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein for their part in uncovering Watergate.

But seriously folks. Marshall University? I really think the student government deserves a break. It, like the staff of the Parthenon, etc., is only students trying to do the best job possible.

I suppose anything worth having is worth working for; if there is any satisfaction in achieving something after a long hard struggle and fighting all the odds, the student government of this past year should be more than satisfied. I can't help but feel, however, that a lot more would be accomplished if a little more support were given.

Amburgey steps into new coaching position

By Linda Lively

When Karla Amburgey took her first step, she took that first step with a ball in her hand. After she became one year old, her Dad began to introduce her to the wide world of sports.

And now, after being an active participant in sports while growing up, Karla Amburgey is taking another step. This time it is stepping into the world of coaching softball for the Marshall women's team.

Amburgey, originally from Mann, graduated from Marshall with a bachelor's degree and later a master's degree in counseling.

"When I was in my senior year at Marshall, I started playing softball, which was the first year for the team," Amburgey said. "Then, I became an assistant coach for Linda Holmes last year and this year I was able to step into the coach position after Debbie Zoss resigned." (Zoss, who was the assistant women's basketball coach, was to also coach the softball team until she resigned at the end of January for personal and financial reasons.)

The first thing Amburgey wants to add to the team is enthusiasm.

"It is the number one point in which I live by," she said. "If you don't have enthusiasm, you don't have a team. Last year, enthusiasm was the one thing the team was down on. When someone got up to bat and they would strike out, everyone would get down. That is the one thing the team does not need, and that is to get down during a game.

But before the team can be enthusiastic, they must be a team that can win as well as lose, Amburgey said.

"A team is a group of (girls) that come together and unify," she said. "They must be able to take disappointment in stride and help everyone get up and have confidence. That is a team."

Along with the fact that Amburgey is coaching softball, she likes other sports as well. Amburgey likes basketball, running, volleyball, walking, riding bikes and meeting people.

Meeting people is a part of the coach's job and the coach has to make judgements on them — whether they can throw the ball, hit a ball, think quick and take criticism. And within each team, inside each coach, there is one thing that they want to get across to the team other than the skills of a sport. Amburgey is no different.

"I want to or hope to show the girls the good qualities they each have," she said. "I want to have a good and winning season, of course. But I don't want the girls going around and acting like male jocks. They should play to have fun with no role taking over."

"I want the team to remember that they are ladies before a softball team and with that, they can learn sportmanship," Amburgey said. "Femininity needs to be brought back into sports."

Priorities set for completion of Henderson

By Brice Wallace

A priority schedule for the remainder of Henderson Center construction has been adopted, according to Karl J. Egnatoff, vice president for administrator. Egnatoff said his office personnel and the main construction firm, Mellon-Stuart Company of Fairmont, agreed to the schedule Friday.

The first priority on the schedule is the main arena and seating followed, in order, by restrooms, concessions stands, visiting team's locker rooms, officials' locker rooms, ticket offices and accessibility to all these areas.

Also, construction needs to be completed within safety codes, such as those enforced by the fire marshal, he said.

Egnatoff said main concern was that the arena be completed first, since its use will affect the most people.

Egnatoff said there was difference of opinion on what the completion date is for these priorities. He said the construction company feels it will be about Oct. 1, while he feels it will be about Aug. 23.

The first use of the main arena would be the Green-White basketball game scheduled for Nov. 15, but use of the main arena would not necessarily mean the entire building is complete, he said.

Women's softball team oppose W.Va. Tech in last pre-season game

By Linda Lively

Going into its last stage of pre-season preparation, the women's softball team plans to swing into action against West Virginia Technical Institute March 27 in the home lot at St. Clouds Commons.

The pre-season preparation has been going on since the end of January and during this time the 17-women team was selected, according to women's softball coach, Karla Amburgey.

Amburgey, who was an assistant softball coach for Linda Holmes last season, stepped into the coach position this season after the assistant basketball coach, Debbie Zoss resigned in the end of January from her position of assistant basketball coach and softball coach.

The final decision for the team's roster was made at the end of February by Amburgey. That decision was based on many things, including the basic knowledge and skills of the game.

"I looked at how the ball was hit and who had a good feel for the ball," Amburgey said. "Plus, I watch the girls and see how fast they can use their head in making decisions, how well they get along with each other and how well they take criticism."

This season's schedule will start with competition against West Virginia Tech, then follow through against the University of Akron March 28 at 1 p.m. and more action on March 29 against Kent State at 11 a.m. The first three games will be doubleheaders and they will be played at St. Clouds Commons field.

This season's schedule will also include action against Ohio University and West Virginia University. The team will travel to a tournament in Lynchburg, Va., April 9-11 and they will also be participating in a state tournament later on in the season.

Gals track open season March 21

By Kim Madlom

The women's track team, which has been practicing since Jan. 22, is preparing for its first meet on March 21 against 12 other schools in the McDonald's Early Bird Relay, according to Coach Arlene Stooke.

"We have been practicing from 3-5 each day," Coach Stooke said. "To speed conditioning we use the Nautilus two or three times a week and circuit training. From there we work on individual needs; such as form, speed and endurance."

This year the women's track team has moved into a Division II rank in the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW) as opposed to last year's rank of Division I.

"This means we will be competing against schools more our size which will make qualifying for National much more reasonable," Coach Stooke said. "I expect to see several people qualify."

Although the team has a rank of Division II, she said that the schedule remains similar to last year's schedule.

"We will still compete against large schools throughout the season," Coach Stooke said. "The only way to get better is to go against stronger teams." Nine freshmen have been recruited, and Stooke said that she expects the new girls to "give depth to the team. We like to have at least three girls in every event and we haven't always been able to do that in the past."

The new recruits include Janet Keith, Oak Hill, who won the 200 meter run in the spring of 1980 in West Virginia and is outstanding in the 100 meter run; Candy Patterson, St. Albans, will compete in the 200 and 400 meter runs and will high jump; Jenine White, Parkersburg South, is a hurdler specialist; Celeste Bires, Hedgesville, will compete in the 800 and 1,500 meter runs; Nanette Davidson, Guyan Valley, is a sprinter and long jumper; Sandy Cork, Bridgeport, is a sprinter along with Kathy Perry of Hurricane; and Gail Jackson of Freehold Township, N.J., is a shot putter and discus thrower.

There are also six returning seniors on the team including Susan Toulouse, Glenville; Robin Silman, Nelson County, Va.; Karen Sprague, Gallia Academy, Ohio; Nancy Gainer, Woodrow Wilson, and Jean Silbaugh of Hurricane.

Marshall will host the West Virginia Intercollegiate Athletic Association (WVIAA) meet on May 2. In 1979, Marshall's women's track team won that championship. Marshall did not compete in 1980 because the teams were of Division II rank. However, Marshall won the West Virginia Intercollegiate Women's Track and Field Championships.

The team will run 10 times during the season, opening at home and then returning home on April 11 for the Women's Track Invitational and again for the WVIAA.

"Each meet has something unique to offer," Stooke said. "The meet with the most schools competing is the Becky Boone Relay at Eastern Kentucky University with 30 schools running."

Kentucky all-state performer third signee to play MU soccer

HUNTINGTON — Andy Zulauf, an all-state performer in Kentucky, has become the third signee of an institutional letter-of-intent to play soccer at Marshall, soccer coach Sam Hood announced today.

Zulauf led Lexington's Tates Creek High School to its second consecutive Kentucky AAAA championship while scoring 29 goals and collecting 17 assists (the latter a school record). Serving as his squad's top striker, he doubled as the team's captain and was named Tates Creek's "Most Valuable Player." The state champs were 19-1-1 this season.

"Andy will be a valuable asset to our growing program," Hood said. "He gives us depth on the line, an area where we lacked numbers a year ago. Right now, I plan to use him on the wing where his skills should enable us to get the ball in scoring position to strikers such as Hossein Afzalirad and Spiros Barouxis."

The all-state pick tallied 26 goals and 12 assists his junior year, when Tates also captured Kentucky's championship. Hood's trio of signees now includes Zulauf, Scott Jackson of Nitro, W.Va., and goaltender Eric Clark of Greensboro, N.C.

Henderson Center will benefit more than sports program

By Alan Williams

Not only will playing basketball in the Cam Henderson Center have a major financial impact on the basketball program, but students will also benefit from the additional seating allotment for the student section.

"It's hard to predict what the total revenues will be, but we will save money," Dr. Lynn J. Snyder, athletic director, said. Marshall pays $15,000 a season for use of the Cabell County Memorial Field House and received no money from concessions sold in the Field House. The Field House has a 6,500 seating capacity and the Henderson Center will seat over 10,000.

By playing in a university owned facility, with the ability to sell concessions, all revenue combined, Henderson Center could generate $50,000 to $75,000 a game, Snyder said. With more seats, a better facility, and no live TV coverage of games from Henderson Center, the athletic department hopes to fill each game. "We can have the type of program that will sell Henderson out," Snyder said.

With 3,500 additional seats available, there will be no live TV coverage from Henderson.

Spring of tennis team approaching

By April Parsons

The first signs of spring have already appeared, heralding the fact that spring is just around the corner. For Bill Carroll, that also means that the tennis season is just around the corner.

On March 20, the first day of spring, Coach Carroll will take the Marshall men's tennis team to Charleston for the season opener. There they will face the University of Charleston, Denison University and West Virginia University in a two-day meet.

The seeding of the players is still tentative.

Alan Greenstein, Parlin, N.J., senior, has held the No. 1 position for the past three years and will probably hold that position again this year, Carroll said.

Pat Clay, Milton senior, has been in the No. 2 spot for the past two years and Carroll said he, too, will probably keep his rank.

A newcomer on the team, Mike Pavorac, a sophomore from Cleveland, Ohio, is likely to take the No. 3 spot on the team.

The No. 4, 5 and 6 spots are up for grabs among the remaining players. They are Mark Elliott, Parkersburg sophomore and Mark Maher, Ceredo junior, both returning players.

Other team members competing for those spots are newcomers Greg Olagbegi, Nigerian freshman, and Steve Vinson, Logan freshman.

For the doubles teams Greenstein and Clay will pair up for the No. 1 position. Pavorac and Olagbegi will team up as the No. 2 duo.

The No. 3 pairing has not been made yet.

The team will play seven matches before facing a Southern Conference team. Carroll said this would help determine the seedings.

"The schedule is always difficult in the Southern Conference. We will have a little bit more time to prepare this year," Carroll said.

Additional student seating will be available in Henderson. The student allotment is 34.5 percent at each facility. At the Field House 2,238 seats are available for students and Henderson will have 3,502 student seats.

Not only will men's basketball benefit from Henderson, but other sports programs as well, Snyder said. "We're looking into other events to tie with basketball games," Snyder said. "People will come early and watch a swim meet in the new natatorium and then go to the main arena for a basketball game."

Henderson Center will have a positive affect for all of the university, Snyder said. The intramurals program will benefit from the new space and equipment. Henderson will attract new students to Marshall, not only in the athletic department, but other departments as well, Snyder said.

"It's important for a university basketball program to have a facility in the 10,000 seat range and be able to fill it," Snyder said. It will man more revenue, better recruitment, and teams that would not play in the field house will play in Henderson.

"Henderson Center will be the best facility in the southern conference when it is finished," Snyder said.

Henderson Center will operate with no direct conflict to either the Huntington Civic Center or the Field House, Snyder said.

Advisory board gap filled

A long-time labor and civic leader in Huntington has accepted an appointment to serve on the Marshall University Advisory Board, MU President Robert B. Hayes announced Friday.

James S. Williams succeeds Charles C. Lanham of Point Pleasant, whose second term as an Advisory Board member has expired. Lanham has been a member of the board since it was organized in 1970.

"Mr. Lanham has served Marshall well for many years and we are sorry to lose him as a member of the Advisory Board," Hayes said. "At the same time, we are pleased that a man with Jim Williams' qualifications and record of service has agreed to work with us."

Williams, a former employee of Huntington Alloys and a former president of Local 40, United Steelworkers of America, is field coordinator for the AFL-CIO Appalachian Council's "Operation Manpower," a work experience program for disadvantaged youth.

The Huntington native is also president of the Tri-State Transit Authority, serves as education chairman of the Huntington District Labor Council, and is a member of the Huntington Police Community Relations Committee. Williams was graduated from Huntington High School in 1939 and attended Marshall before enlisting in the U.S. Marine Corps during World War II. He is a member of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Disabled American Veterans.
