Recommends approval of the listed UNDERGRADUATE COURSE DELETIONS in the following colleges and/or schools/program: COLLEGE OF SCIENCE

- COLLEGE OF SCIENCE:

Course Title: Teaching & Training in CJ

Alpha Designator/Number: CJ 401

Rationale: The rationale for deleting this course is namely that it was developed during a time when there was a greater need to train law enforcement and corrections professionals. However, the content is reinforced in other criminal justice courses that require oral presentations as well as courses that have an administrative focus.

Notification requirements: No other department/division requires this class as a prerequisite or co-requisite. No other department/division advises students to enroll in this elective. No other department/division requires this course as part of their curriculum.

Course Title: Examination of SV in US

Alpha Designator/Number: CJ 408

Rationale: This course no longer aligns with our program mission and learning outcomes, it was developed by a faculty member who no longer teaches at Marshall, and it was specific to his research. It was last offered in Spring 2015.

Notification requirements: No other department/division requires this class as a prerequisite or co-requisite. No other department/division advises students to enroll in this elective. No other department/division requires this course as part of their curriculum.

Course Title: Corrections and the Law

Alpha Designator/Number: CJ 421

Rationale: The rationale for deleting this course is three-fold. First, the US Supreme Court put a lot of discussion about which test to use for prisoners' rights cases to rest in 1987. Not much has happened since then that is worthy of coverage. Second, we are winding down on the death penalty. The Court has reversed itself on several issues regarding imposition of the death penalty in recent years, suggesting that the demise of the death penalty is likely in the foreseeable future. Plus, attention will be given to the death penalty in a new course that is being proposed (e.g., miscarriages of justice). Last, to some extent, attention is given to this subject in our introduction to corrections class and correctional administration class.
