Eight applicants agree to accept candidacy

By Sandra Joy Adkins
Special Correspondent

The eight applicants for president of Marshall University with the highest ratings from the search committee have unofficially accepted candidate status, a spokesperson for the Board of Regents said Monday.

However, it is unclear whether one of the three applicants who have made public their application for the $53,712 per year job is among the final eight candidates.

William J. Walsh, BOR personnel director and executive secretary to the search committee, said he started making calls Tuesday and finished at 3:45 p.m. Friday.

He said the first eight contacted have accepted the conditions of the job but that their candidacy will not be official until they sign a letter of acceptance which was sent to them Monday.

Walsh would not confirm whether the following were still in the running: Dr. Olen E. Jones Jr., Marshall provost, Dr. Bernard Queen, MU director of development and foundations, and Dr. Leon Ginsberg, commissioner of West Virginia Department of Human Services.

"I have pledged confidentiality to the candidates until Nov. 9, when the names and records of the finalists will be made public," he said.

However, a story in the Saturday Herald-Dispatch said the three applicants had not been contacted about the job as of Thursday.

The three commented Monday on their standing in the search with Jones saying any releases concerning the presidential search should come from the executive secretary of the committee. Queen said he had not been contacted concerning whether he was among the final candidates.

Ginsberg said information concerning the search should come from the Board of Regents, but United Press International released a story Monday saying he had not been contacted.

Walsh said the balance of the candidates is from the Midwest and the final list includes one person respectively from West Virginia, Nevada, California, Kentucky and Virginia. Also, one woman is among the final eight.

He said one of the candidates is located within 100 miles of Marshall and was the last to be contacted because of possible scheduling conflicts with those from out of state.

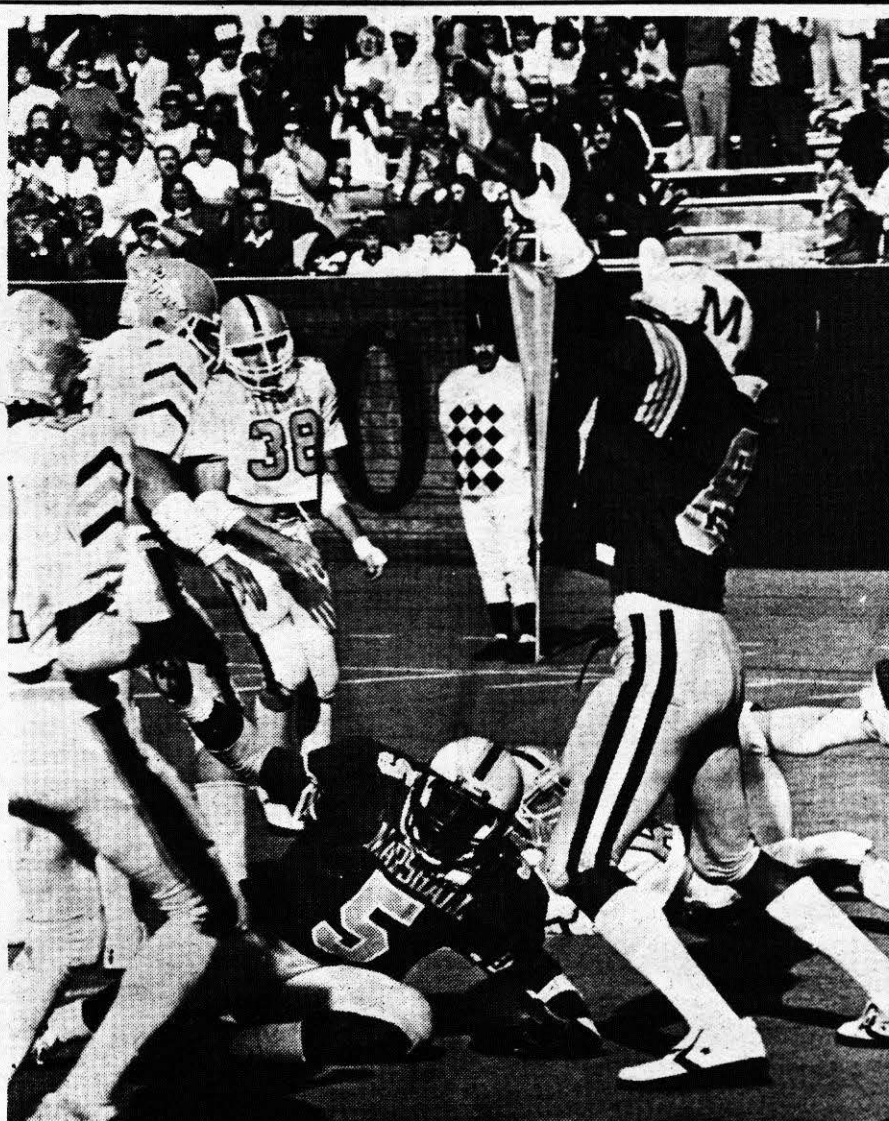

The search committee met Oct. 24 and chose 13 names from the top 25 applicants. From this list, the eight agreeing to the job conditions were identified.

Walsh said he did not have to go beyond the first eight names although one person requested more information on Marshall before accepting the candidacy.

"The person who wanted more information still has to confirm for sure but I feel relatively certain that will happen," he said. "I sent out a packet of information and he or she will call back in adequate time before the Nov. 9 announcement."

Walsh said he made contact with all of the final eight by Thursday but had to finish two conversations on Friday because of time limitations.

The search committee will conduct three interviews on Nov. 18, three on Nov. 21 and two on Nov. 28.

College of Business is making plans to get accreditation

By Janet Ferguson
Staff Writer

Developing a scheme to explore accreditation possibilities is the difference between what is being done now and what was done six years ago, according to Dr. Steve J. Lahoda, assistant professor of management.

The College of Business faculty voted six years ago to pursue accreditation by the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB), Lahoda said. But when Robert P. Alexander assumed his new position as dean September 1, the college actively began reviewing accreditation goals, Lahoda said.

"First, we need to assess where we are at the present. This will involve an examination of college records and a comparison of ourselves with other business colleges," Lahoda said.

Studying enrollment patterns, quality of faculty and the curricula are among the elements of this step, Lahoda said. "We hope to finish this early in the spring term. This assessment will enable us to determine whether the college should seek accreditation."

"The second step would be to do whatever upgrading is required, if the college decides to seek accreditation," Lahoda said.

"This will likely require our convincing the university administration, the Board of Regents and, perhaps, the legislature to commit the required resources."

Making an application and going through the evaluation process would be the final step, Lahoda said.

"This usually takes about two years," he said. "The first year is a self-study period where we write down the details about the college. The second year involves investigation by a visitation team made up of AACSB members."

Nine groups receive HERF funding

By Mary E. Thomas
Staff Writer

About $3,500 of Higher Education Resource Funds was allotted to nine student groups, according to Michael L. Queen, student body president.

The Marshall University Black Mass Choir was awarded $595 out of the $923 requested. The choir will use the money to participate in the National Black Gospel College Choir Workshop in Atlanta.

Disabled Student Services received $160 to finance the printing cost of 2,000 brochures describing services offered by Marshall to disabled students. Alpha Kappa Psi was allotted $140 to send their president to the National Conference in Buffalo, New York.

The Marshall Counseling Center received $625 to purchase Strong Campbell Interest Inventory Test.

Interfraternity and Panhellenic council's were awarded $300 each to hire a consultant to help expand and improve Greek life.

In addition, Omicron Delta Kappa

Honorary Society received $234 out of the $479 proposed. The society said it wants to use these funds to establish a "Group Scoop" newsletter that would inform student organizations of what other groups are doing.

Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA) received $600 of the $900 asked. The money will be used so members can attend the North Atlantic Regional Conference.

Queen said there is about $4,750 remaining in HERF money for the 1983-84 year.

Marshall needs three to end losing spree

By Tom Alulse
Sports Editor

A few weeks before Marshall began its 1983 football season, Brian Swisher said this would be the year the Herd ends 19 years of losing.

The sophomore split end hasn't change his mind.

"We have a very good chance of winning these final three games if we just play to our capabilities and limit the mistakes," Swisher said.

And, if the Herd can pull off victories against William & Mary this week, then Appalachian State and VMI, "It will show that the program has turned the corner and prove to people that the football team is a bunch of winners," Swisher said.

That is something the 5-foot-8, 145-pound speedster said he has always felt.

"But nobody classifies you as a winner unless you have a winning record. Everyone wants to turn this program around. We're tired of being labeled as losers."

The Herd took a step in the winning direction Saturday with its 26-10

Southern Conference triumph over The Citadel. The win was Marshall's second in the league this season and marked the first time an MU team has captured two conference victories in a season since joining the SC in 1977.

The Herd is now 3-5 and, for the first time since Sonny Randle became head coach in 1979, has a chance this late in the season to have a winning record.

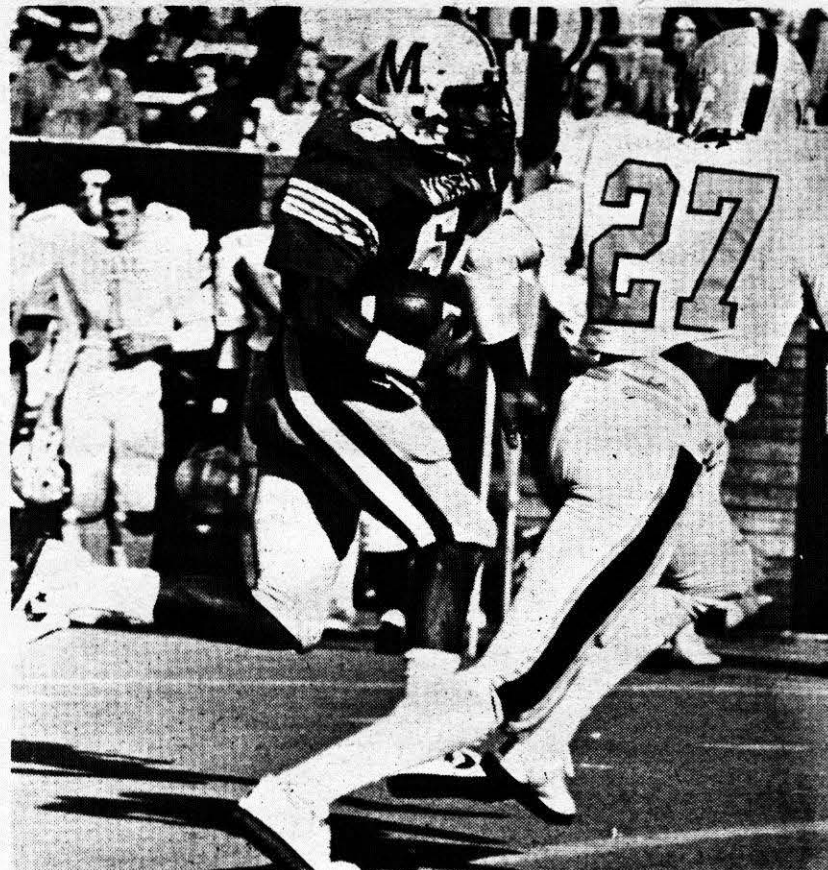

With victories over ASU and VMI, Marshall also can finish 4-3 in the Southern Conference, which would bounce MU out of the SC cellar for the first time.

"We're starting to realize we're a good football team," Randle said. "Instead of looking for ways to lose, we're now going to find ways to win."

The Herd wasn't searching very intensely in the first half Saturday, falling behind The Citadel 10-3, while showing little spark on offense.

"We just didn't fire on offense," Swisher said, "we were all waiting for somebody else to do something. The defense did a great job the whole game

Larry Fourqurean breaks into the clear on one of his 21 carries in Saturday's contest against The Citadel.

Win, not rushing record, paramount for Fourqurean

By Tom Alulse
Sports Editor

Don't get Larry Fourqurean wrong.

The Low Moor, Va., senior was pleased with the career rushing record he set in Saturday's 26-10 victory over The Citadel, but for a win he would have graciously surrendered his yardage or whatever else it might have taken.

"My main goal when I go out on the field is to help the team win," Fourqurean said. "The record wasn't even on my mind. It's nice to have but I just didn't concern myself with it."

Fourqurean entered Saturday's contest needing 49 yards to move into first place, past Jackie Hunt, on Marshall's all-time rushing list. The week before against Tennessee-Chattanooga Fourqurean could have surpassed the mark with a 42-yard performance but instead went backward, finishing the evening with minus-7 yards.

For a time Saturday much of the same happened as The Citadel's defense corralled a slipping and sliding Fourqurean, limiting the tailback to 16 yards in the first half.

Fourqurean rebounded after halftime, gaining 48 yards to end the day with 64 on 21 carries. He broke Hunt's mark of 1,956 yards - set from 1939-41 - on a 27-yard jaunt in the third quarter.

Fourqurean now has 1,972 yards in his four-year career at Marshall, including 639 this season on 142 carries.

He began the year in seventh place on the all-time list.

Fourqurean, who is second in the Southern Conference in rushing behind Furman's Stanford Jennings, gained 125 yards as a freshman, 843 his sophomore season and 365 last year in limited duty.

"I knew I would break the record eventually," Fourqurean said. "I'm just glad I played well enough to do it Saturday."

Marshall gained 240 yards on the ground against the Bulldogs' defense. Junior college transfer Robert Surratt led the way with 69 yards on nine attempts and also scored his fourth touchdown of the season.

Herd quarterback Carl Fodor threw the football 26 times, completing nine for 136 yards.

DST's frantic start ends in MU soccer team yawner

By J. Shep Brown
Staff Writer

Sunday morning Andy Zulauf awoke and found his alarm clock showing he and his roommate Pat Joseph should be at the stadium for that day's soccer game against Morehead State—right then!

After a chaotic rush to the stadium they were surprised to find no one was there. Why?

Probably like millions of others that morning, the overnight daylight savings time switch caused a hectic day's start, and in this case, funny.

The two went to Baskins and Robbins for ice cream and laughed about it.

"It just seemed to set the tone of the day," Zulauf said.

Marshall's soccer team easily breezed past the 2-10 Morehead State team that afternoon 5-0, lifting its record to 8-10 (3-2 in the Southern Conference), in a game that Zulauf and head coach Jack DeFazio agreed was relaxing and enjoyable.

"There was no pressure for once; it was fun," Zulauf, whose first half assist to Joe Biava started the scoring spree, said.

"We just tried to have a good time, maybe taking them a little too lightly," Zulauf said. "But we knew it would be a 'W' in the win column."

"It's a lot different when YOU'RE the ranked team," Joseph said.

Marshall is ranked 10th in the Mid-Atlantic region by Soccer America, a national soccer publication.

The Herd out-shot the Golden Eagles 23 to six, as the Eagles only reached the Marshall side of the field about a dozen times, DeFazio said.

Morehead players made costly mistakes in their own penalty area by committing fouls that resulted in two Marshall penalty kicks—two goals.

Senior Jim Karnes scored his first collegiate goal on the first penalty kick to give MU a 2-0 halftime lead.

Second half goals were scored by Joseph, unassisted; co-captain Scott Jackson, on the second penalty kick; and freshman Scott Laskowitz, assisted by freshman Ward Ingersoll. Joseph and Jackson's goals were the their first of the season and Ingersoll's assist was his first.

"They played lackadaisically," Joseph said.

DeFazio said the team lacked desire, were drained and were out of shape.

Marshall's next game is against Miami (of Ohio) University at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at Fairfield Stadium. North Division leading Davidson College (3-1) plays VMI (0-4) in other Wednesday SC action.

but the offense didn't get going until the second half."

Randle: "I was happy with the win but just a little puzzled. We struggled early on offense but finally got untracked after the defense ignited us."

Defensive end Jim Coupe led the charge on defense, sacking Robert Hill, The Citadel's highly touted quarterback, four times in a six-tackle performance. The senior was also in on three other tackles.

"He (Hill) threw so many times, it was just a matter of time before somebody got in there," Coupe said.

Hill, who entered the game leading the conference in passing, completed 23 of his 46 attempts for 258 yards. Hill also threw two interceptions, one of which was returned for touchdown by Glenn Bates.

Seldom-used fullback Don Johnson and tailback Robert Surratt also scored touchdowns for the Herd, while defensive end Dwayne Thompson recorded a safety.

Mrs. Leila da Cruz, general manager and editor in chief of Illustrated Publications in Lebanon and Middle East business representative for Newsweek, The Washington Post, The Wall Street Journal and The London Times, will be guest speaker.

There will be a brief explanation on the problems in Lebanon given by Cruz. Following the discussion a question and answer session will follow.

Cruz said she "is appalled by how poorly informed people are in Washington of the situation in Lebanon," said Dr. Maurice L. Sill, professor of sociology.

Cruz's work brought her to the states last week. She is visiting her daughter in Washington D.C. and her son, who is attending Annapolis Naval Academy, in Md.

She has lived through eight years of civil wars in Lebanon and "I believe she will appeal to a wide number of people," said Sill.

Dan da Cruz, Cruz's husband, who is also a free lance writer and author, spoke at Marshall in 1980 about Israel's presence in Lebanon.

"I worked with her in Lebanon for five years at the Administration of International Affairs and we have been close friends since 1954," said Nadya Sill, chief of the Equal Opportunities Office of the Corp of Engineers, Huntington district.

Cruz is a member of the Board of Directors of four affiliated companies of Illustrated Publications.
