'Outside' perspective expected from Nitzschke

By Paul Carson
Special Correspondent

Although campus administrators say they have not talked with incoming president Dr. Dale F. Nitzschke enough to know what to expect when he takes office, several said the new president's outside perspective should be beneficial to Marshall University.

Acting President Dr. Sam Clagg said while he has not talked with Nitzschke long enough to know what to expect from him, he is looking forward to his arrival for two reasons.

See articles, Pages 4 and 5

He said a new president taking office is always a time of anticipation for the university, but as acting president he is looking forward to it for another reason.

"I can't hardly wait to get back in the classroom," Clagg said. "When I took the president's position it was only because the Board of Regents felt that it was best for the university. But I've never wanted anything out of higher education except being in the classroom."

Clagg, who is a professor and chairman of the geography department once he returns there, said he does not know what Nitzschke's plans for him will be during the transition, but said he will make himself available to the new president in any capacity Nitzschke deems appropriate.

Clagg said he thought one priority the new president would focus on first would be to continue the reduction of the athletic department's deficit. He said the deficit which was reported at $116,000 in October 1983 should be erased by July 1984.

"When I was appointed president by the BOR my main charge was to begin reducing that deficit," Clagg said. "Since we finally have a handle on it I can see no reason to abandon it now."

Athletic Director Lynn J. Snyder said while he has not talked with Nitzschke at length, what little discussion time he has had with the new president indicated to him that he and Nitzschke have the same goals and objectives in mind for Marshall.

He said he did not expect the new president to encounter the same problem at Marshall that led to his resignation at the University of Nevada-Las Vegas. At UNLV Nitzschke resigned over a dispute involving certain student athlete's academic standing.

Snyder said he did not envision that problem at Marshall because the admission standards for student athletes are the same as they are for all students, and this will not change. Assistant Athletic Director Linda H.

Williams said 40 to 50 percent of all freshman student athletes graduate in four to five years.

"We want our student athletes to realize there is a life after college," she said. "We do not want to be known as a user of student athletes."

Dr. Olen E. Jones, university provost, and Michael F. Thomas, vice president of financial affairs, said they have not yet met or spoken with Nitzschke, but both agreed the time may be right to bring in a new president with an outsider's perspective, thus giving the university new direction.

Jones said since he has not yet spoken with Nitzschke he could not speculate whether the new president would initiate any administrative reorganization.

"I have the utmost confidence in the search committees and BOR," Thomas said. "If they think Dr. Nitzschke is the man for the job, then I'm sure he will be a good one."

SGA applauds new president

By Burgetta Lee Eplin
Staff Writer

The Student Government Association is "certainly pleased" the Board of Regents has appointed Dale F. Nitzschke as Marshall University's new president, according to its president, Michael L. Queen.

The Student Government Search and Planning Committee, whose members were appointed by Queen to garner student input, was the first campus organization to publicly endorse Nitzschke in December.

Queen, as a member of the Marshall University Search and Screening Advisory Committee, cast one of the 17 votes that selected the final four candidates recommended to the BOR.

Five days after The Parthenon reported SGA's presidential recommendations in December, the BOR narrowed the eight candidates, which once numbered 95, down to four, including Nitzschke.

According to Queen, Nitzschke comes from a background of student affairs and "stands on his own record. He knows about counseling, tutoring, and financial aid...and he realizes that it is the students that make the university."

"His priorities are set right," SGA vice president, Michael A. Brison, South Charleston junior, said, and repeating Queen, added "We are certainly pleased."

Positions freed on Student Senate

By Mike Friel
Staff Writer

There are five vacancies on the Student Senate following the resignations of two student senators and the expulsion of a third.

William Bands, Huntington junior, and John J. McOwen, Huntington sophomore, are vacating their seats, according to Christopher L. Swindell, senate president.

Senate Parliamentarian Mark D. Rhodes said Dean Roberts, Chicago senior, is being expelled from his post. But Rhodes, Oak Hill junior, said unsuccessful attempts to contact Roberts indicate he may no longer be a student.

Bands and McOwens said they resigned because of "other commitments," which would not allow them time to devote to Student Government.

The other open seats are the University Heights position, which has been vacant since October, and an off-campus seat vacated by Tammy L. Rice, Radnor junior, in November.

The senate is accepting applications for the posts until Friday, according to Swindell, Logan junior.

The senate will interview candidates and select the new senators by voting for the applicants in each classification, Swindell said.

The openings are two seats for off-campus senators, two seats for commuter senators, and one University Heights seat.

Senate approves discount for poor

CHARLESTON— The state Senate on Monday passed and sent to the House of Delegates a $4 million bill that would establish a 20 percent winter heating discount for the poor and elderly.

Returning from its weekend recess, the Senate voted 31-2 in favor of the utility discount, with one senator absent.

The bill passed with only brief debate, as Sens. James L. Davis, D-Marion, and Odell Huffman, D-Mercer, criticized the bill and cast the only dissenting votes.

Senate Majority Leader Dan Tonkovich said he disliked provisions allowing utilities to take tax credits to make up for the discounts, but he voted yes anyway.

The bill would provide a 20 percent discount for the poor and elderly on natural gas and electricity bills during a five month period beginning in December and ending in April.

Legal action threatened

WEIRTON— The U.S. Labor Department is threatening legal action against Weirton Steel Corp.'s Independent Steelworkers Union over restrictions that keep rank-and-file members from running for the ISU executive committee.

ISU attorney Pete Rich said Monday that current rules allow only union stewards to run for spots on the committee. The union is resisting changes and Rich said the Labor Department has responded by threatening to file suit.

"We were advised on the 11th by phone that the director of Labor Management Service Administration was recommending to the assistant secretary of labor that a lawsuit be filed," Rich said.

Lawsuit charges Nitro plant

WINFIELD— A new multimillion-dollar lawsuit filed in Putnam County Circuit Court accuses Monsanto Co. of keeping employees in the dark about the dangers of chemicals at the company's Nitro plant.

The suit on behalf of 38 Monsanto workers, living and dead, was filed by Nitro lawyer W. Stuart Calwell Jr., who also filed an earlier suit against Monsanto that is now before U.S. District Judge John T. Copenhaver. The judge last November threw out part of the first suit regarding 33 dead workers, saying that the two-year statute of limitations for wrongful death cases had expired.

In the new suit, Calwell charges that Monsanto defrauded the descendants of the dead workers of their right to sue for wrongful death.

Meese nominated attorney general

WASHINGTON— President Reagan on Monday nominated Counsellor Edwin Meese III, the hard-nosed point man for Reagan's conservative philosophy, to succeed William French Smith as attorney general.

Meese, 52, one of the "Big Three" White House aides, said he hadn't sought the post and "was really very happy with the job I had" as a policy-maker and Reagan's closest link with the political right.

"I'm grateful to the president for giving me the opportunity and I will try to do as outstanding a job as Bill Smith did," said Meese, who was in Santa Barbara, Calif., to deliver a speech.

A White House aide who asked for anonymity said Meese "wanted this for a long time — from the first year."

Like Smith, Meese shares a law-and-order approach to the nation's judicial problems, favoring capital punishment, relaxed rules for evidence in trials and less taxation for the wealthy.

U.S. denounces Iran

WASHINGTON— The Reagan administration officially designated Iran as a terrorist nation on Monday, declaring that the Tehran government had "repeatedly provided support for acts of international terrorism."

Iran joins Syria, Cuba, Libya and South Yemen on the list of terrorist countries that are subject to rigid export controls. Iraq was removed from the list earlier in the administration.

State Department spokesman John Hughes said the action wouldn't affect U.S. imports of Iranian oil. Oil imports resumed in 1982 and amounted to about 500 million barrels last year.

Biggest bust ever nets 62

ATLANTA— Sixty-two people have been indicted in the "largest nationwide narcotics investigation ever," 30 of them accused of smuggling five tons of cocaine worth $3.8 billion into the United States, authorities announced Monday.

The 62 were named in indictments unsealed Monday in Atlanta, Los Angeles, Miami and Little Rock, Ark., with some defendants indicted in more than one city.

Associate U.S. Attorney General D. Lowell Jensen said the ring smuggled about five tons of cocaine from Colombia into Georgia, Florida, Tennessee and Pennsylvania in 1982 and 1983. Of that, authorities seized 2,700 pounds worth. $940 million, he said.

Andropov answers Reagan challenge

MOSCOW— Soviet leader Yuri V. Andropov, responding to President Reagan's call for a U.S.-Soviet dialogue, says such talks can be held if they are aimed at achieving "concrete accords," Tass said Tuesday.

Andropov said the Moscow leadership expected moves from the United States aimed at fulfilling Reagan's call for better cooperation, the official news agency said in a report on an interview with Andropov in the Communist Party newspaper Pravda.

It was the first public word from the ailing, 69-year-old leader since Dec. 26, when the text of his written address to the Communist Party Central Committee plenum was published.

60 die in Moroccan riots

RABAT, Morocco— At least 60 people were killed in riots against planned food price hikes in Morocco, diplomatic sources said Monday, prompting King Hassan II to cancel the measures.

The government made no announcement on casualties. But diplomatic sources, who requested anonymity, said the death toll from disorders last week included 20 dead in Tetouan, 20 in Nador, 15 in Al Hoceimas and three in Fez, all northern cities on the Mediterranean coast.

They said two demonstrators were killed during student demonstrations in Marrakesh in central Morocco.

Spanish press reports that as many as 200 were killed on the coast, a former Spanish colony, were "greatly exaggerated," they said.

Couple win prize, retire

TORONTO— A truck driver and his wife from Brantford, Ontario, yesterday collected the largest lottery prize ever in North America, ending a week-long mystery over the winner of the tax-free $11 million prize.

Stuart Kelly, 57, said he and his wife, Lillian, spent last week consulting with a lawyer and making plans for their future as millionaires after learning on Jan. 14 they had won the prize.

"We had the ticket. We didn't know what to do with it," Kelly said. "It was tough keeping the secret." He said they hid it under a pile of sweaters while deciding what to do with the money.

Kelly said he was taking early retirement from his $400-a-week job and his wife said she was not going back to her $150-a-week job at a dry cleaning shop.

Prepare yourself for some change

Last semester several new features designed to help our readers stay well-informed began appearing in The Parthenon.

These included a page which summarized the most important state, national and international news from The Associated Press wire service; cultural and entertainment listings, and a weekly feature on the editorial page called "Students Speak," a short forum in which students could express their opinions about different issues.

Reader response seemed to show that these changes were well-appreciated by students and faculty members in the Marshall community, and these features will continue.

But other things about The Parthenon may change this semester.

A new editor is selected each semester. And with that change comes new ideas and new editorial opinions. The editor makes the final decision on editorial stances, with the advice of a student editorial board. The board consists of the managing editor and news editor as voting members and the wire editor, adviser and special correspondent as non-voting members.

In addition to the editorials, columnists may sometimes express opinions that are not the same as the editor's. Through columns, we attempt to bring you individual students' opinions on various issues related to student life.

We also welcome letters to the editor and comments or suggestions about The Parthenon. You may call me or Managing Editor Greg Friel at 696-6696 or stop by the newsroom, Smith Hall 311.

All of this goes into what we hope is a thought-provoking newspaper—one which will make students stop and think about the issues that concern their lives.

Nitzschke should continue open communication policy

Last semester was spent in a search for a new president, and Marshall University is now awaiting the advent of its new top administrator, Dr. Dale F. Nitzschke.

Nitzschke was named to the Marshall presidency Jan. 16, and is expected to assume his duties March 1.

Although The Parthenon selected Provost Olen E. Jones Jr. as its top choice for the presidency, we are not displeased with Nitzschke's appointment to the post.

Nitzschke was a close second in last semester's editorial-board voting, and he seems to have many qualities that make him a very viable choice for the presidency.

He has impressive experience and credentials. Also, when he visited Marshall in November, he expressed a true emphasis on academic priorities, concern for faculty pay and morale and respect for students' rights. He was extremely personable and charismatic.

Nitzschke also has been extremely cooperative and positive with the press. He obviously has an understanding of First Amendment rights.

If there is one goal Nitzschke should have when he assumes the presidency, it is to continue these attitudes, be open and honest with the Marshall community, and express his opinions.

An understanding of First Amendment rights and respect for student press rights was definitely lacking in the previous administration.

Nitzschke, however, seems to have respect for the student press. He has been very accessible to the student media, when other candidates for the presidency were not. He talked openly with student reporters when other candidates were hostile.

Honest relations with students are essential for Nitzschke to be completely trusted within the Marshall community. From all indications, he is aware of this, and we are encouraged by the fact that he has continued to deal fairly with the student media, before and after his selection as president.

We hope Nitzschke continues to communicate openly and honestly with the university community.

BOR did not choose 'yes' man in selection of new president

After the Board of Regents forced former Marshall President Robert B. Hayes to resign last spring, there was a fear that the regents were seeking an obedient man to succeed Hayes as president—a "yes" man, who would do what the BOR said, no matter what his opinion.

The reason for this speculation was that the BOR refused to publicly disclose the reasons why it wanted Hayes to step down, although the public—particularly the Marshall community—wanted to know. The Rev. Paul J. Gilmer, who was BOR president at the time, said only that Hayes was asked to resign because of varying degrees of insubordination and lack of cooperation with the regents.

The BOR has continued that closed-mouth policy on the Hayes resignation, and the West Virginia state Legislature has failed its citizens miserably by not forcing BOR representatives to testify specifically about the incident and the reasoning behind it. After all, Hayes was president of a public institution funded by state taxpayer money.

However, by selecting Dr. Dale F. Nitzschke as the new Marshall president the Board of Regents is worthy of praise for exonerating itself from the suspicion that it wanted a university president at Marshall who would merely obey its every command.

Nitzschke has proven in the past that blind obedience is not his style, and the BOR is well aware of this. In fact, the secretary of the regents' presidential search and screening committee said the way Nitzschke handled himself in a dispute last year with the Nevada Board of Regents made him attractive to the West Virginia BOR.

Nitzschke resigned as vice president of the University of Nevada-Las Vegas after a dispute with that state's BOR which began over the admission of two athletes with below-average grades and evolved into a dispute over a governance code.

Although the athletes were not admitted, the regents later tried to institute a governance code that would have given them absolute control over UNLV, according to Nitzschke, who said he resigned because the proposed code was threatening the institution's academic freedom.

Nitzschke, then, resigned on a matter of principle, and he was open with the West Virginia Board of Regents concerning the incident.

The episode in Nevada is enough to prove that Nitzschke is not a "yes" man.

And Marshall University should appreciate the fact that the Board of Regents has selected a president who is not afraid to dissent if he feels it is necessary.

Deans eager to work with new president

By Mark Ayersman
Staff Writer

Administrators of Marshall University said they are looking forward to working with the new president, Dr. Dale F. Nitzschke, when he begins his job on March 1.

Dr. Robert Alexander, dean of the College of Business; Dr. Jack Maynard, dean of the College of Education; Dr. Alan B. Gould, dean of the College of Liberal Arts; Dr. Edward S. Hanrahan, dean of the College of Science; and Dr. David Wilkin, dean of the Community College said they were pleased with the Board of Regents approval of the presidential search committee's recommendation of Nitzschke, who recently resigned as vice president for academic affairs at the University of Nevada at Las Vegas.

Maynard said, "I met Nitzschke when the other Marshall academic administrators did and I was impressed with his articulate personality and his human relations skills. He was one of my top two or three choices of the presidential candidates I met during the reviewing process."

Gould, who was the Marshall administration's representative on the search committee, said he recommended Nitzschke as one of the eight finalists for review.

Gould said, "I met him in the formal reviewing process when he went before the search committee during his visit on campus. He is a very impressive man with a good style and presence."

"During the reviewing process I asked Nitzschke how he would run his ship in terms of dealing with Marshall's faculty. He said he believed in participatory academic governance. I was pleased with this, because how he views faculty input in his administration is a major concern of the faculty."

Alexander knew Nitzschke before he became a candidate for Marshall's presidency. Their friendship began while they were studying for doctorate degrees at Ohio University.

Although Marshall's academic deans are pleased with Nitzschke's appointment, most of them said they were surprised Marshall Provost Olen E. Jones was not named as the new president.

Maynard said, "I thought Jones had good support on campus and I have a lot of respect for him. I would not have minded it if the selection committee had appointed him president."

Gould said Jones had worked well in the system but was not chosen during the selection process and no one should have been surprised when he was not selected.

Hanrahan is pleased with the job Acting President Dr. Sam E. Clagg is doing but he is glad a full-time president has been named. He thinks Marshall's administration needs to get down to business.

The deans agree Nitzschke's first priority in his new office should be familiarizing himself with the Marshall community.

Maynard said, "I think Nitzschke has to take Marshall out to the community and he has to work with the key people on campus such as, Jones, Dr. Robert W. Coon, vice president/dean of the School of Medicine, and Michael F. Thomas, vice president for financial affairs."

Gould said, "Nitzschke should be a unifying force that binds Marshall together and carries us forward. We need a winner to get us moving."

Regents to review chancellor applicants in February

By Alisa Minor
Staff Writer

The Board of Regents will begin screening applications for its new chancellor during the February meeting, John W. Saunders, president of the BOR and chairman of the search committee, said.

The position became vacant in November when former chancellor, Robert R. Ramsey, resigned.

Forty-one persons, including at least one woman, applied for the position before the Dec. 15 deadline in the nationally advertised search, William Walsh, personnel secretary for the BOR, said.

Walsh said the BOR is looking for a person who is able to handle higher education problems, work with government, understand the budget and work well with the 15 college presidents who report to the chancellor.

"The new chancellor must understand the unique needs and differences between community colleges, four-year universities and land-grant institutions," Walsh said.

After the final choice has been made, the BOR will talk to associates of the candidate, and will allow the finalist to meet regents members.

The BOR hopes to make its final decision sometime in March, Saunders said.

According to Walsh, the new chancellor will probably assume his duties sometime between April and June. However, depending on the person's current position, it could be as early as April 1 or as late as July.

Dr. William K. Simmons, president of Glenville State College, is serving as acting chancellor until the search is completed.

Senate leader optimistic about Nitzschke

By Mike Friel
Staff Writer

Student Senate is "very pleased" with the Board of Regents' selection of Dale F. Nitzschke to succeed Dr. Robert B. Hayes as president of Marshall University, according to Christopher L. Swindell, senate president.

"He (Nitzschke) was first in the minds of the senators who attended the series of forums to introduce the candidates," said Swindell, Logan junior. "Even though the top three candidates were all qualified, the senators agree with the BOR's choice of Nitzschke."

David Hunt, Johannesburg, South Africa, senior, said he was "extremely happy" about the choice.

"I sat on the student committee that voted on the candidates," Hunt said. "Of the three we chose, he (Nitzschke) was the top man."

Swindell said the senate hopes Nitzschke will be someone "who will strongly represent Marshall at the state Legislature, should the BOR weaken its stand on higher education."

"The senate would like to see a man who is not a 'yes' man," Swindell said. "If he disagrees with the BOR, we want a man who will work through the proper channels for Marshall — one who takes charge."

"We also hope Nitzschke will realize that Student Government is the place to turn to feel the pulse of student opinion. Just as a president would consider or weigh faculty, alumni or public opinion, the senate hopes student input will be considered."

Hunt said that he would like the new president to be a man who is able to persuade the BOR and Legislature that "education is where it is at in terms of economic growth for the state."

"I hope he will stand up to the BOR like President Hayes did," Hunt said. "He (Nitzschke) was very student oriented when we spoke with him."

"He has the qualities of a great salesman. He seems like a person who can get his ideas across."

The selection of a new MU president and the governor's State of the State address were among issues which have affected students since the end of the fall semester.

Jan. 10 — Despite opposition and a suit filed by neighbors, Dan C. Robinson, Cabell County Circuit Judge, ruled that 30 inmates could move into a new state Department of Corrections' work-study release center. The center is located just blocks from Marshall and is in the vicinity of some sorority and fraternity houses.

Jan. 11 — Gov. Jay Rockefeller presented his State of the State address. In his address, Rockefeller proposed a 7.5 percent annual pay raise for public employees and a 9.7 percent increase for full-time college faculty members. Full funding for all three state medical schools and legislation to increase medical student tuition fees was also proposed. In addition, $250,000 has been requested to establish an Autism Training Center at Marshall. A proposal was presented to raise the legal drinking age from 19 to 21 for all alcoholic beverages.

Jan. 17 — Dr. Dale F. Nitzschke was named the new MU president. He was formerly the vice president of academic affairs at the University of Nevada at Las Vegas.

Jan. 19 — The Leonard Davis Institute of Health Economics at the University of Pennsylvania released a two-year study which states that West Virginia may face a "potential surplus" of doctors if it continues its present medical educational system. A week earlier, the Board of Regents recommended to the Legislature to increase tuition at the state's three medical schools and to regionalize the West Virginia School of Osteopathic Medicine at Lewisburg.

—University officials have asked the BOR for $1.5 to $2 million to replace the east stands of Fairfield Stadium which have been declared unsafe following an engineer's study.

—Two Marshall professors died during Christmas break. Dr. John R. Warren, professor of biological sciences, died in Merida, Mexico, and Dr. Warren W. Wooden, professor of English, died Dec. 28, 1983, in Huntington after suffering a heart attack.

—Ernest W. Cole, associate professor of finance and business law, was named the acting chairman of that department. Dr. Beverly Twitchell, assistant professor of art, was named the new head of the University Honors program. Twitchell replaces Dr. Michael J. Galgano, professor and chairman of history.

Milton freshman dies in car wreck

A Marshall student died Thursday of injuries she received in an automobile accident on Jan. 16.

Kelly Renee Bowen, 20, a Milton freshman, was admitted to St. Mary's Hospital in critical condition following a multi-vehicle accident in the 3600 block of U.S. Route 60 East, officials said.

According to police reports, the 9 a.m. accident occurred when Bowen apparently lost control of her car and collided with a van and a school bus. The impact knocked Bowen's car into the path of a truck, police said. Funeral services for Bowen were Sunday.

Broadway play tonight at Keith

The Broadway play "Agnes of God" starring Peggy Cass, Susan Strasberg and featuring Lynn Chausow will be presented at the Keith Albee Theater today at 8 p.m.

The play, written by John Pielmeier, is about a nun who supposedly has a child, which is later found murdered. According to critics it is a drama exploring the mysteries of faith and miracles.

Cass, who portrays the Mother Superior, is a Tony award-winning actress and game show personality.

Strasberg stars as Dr. Martha Livingston, a psychiatrist. She is the daughter of famed acting coach Lee Strasberg.

Tickets for students are $5 with activity card and Marshall ID.

Killer instinct

Huckabay has it, wants to give it to his team

By Leskie Pinson
Sports Editor

The adage of "You can't win 'em all" doesn't set well with Rick Huckabay.

The first-year Marshall coach has a team that is 13-4 but is convinced that the four losses should have been put in the victory category.

"We could have won the Georgetown game and the Morehead game, too," he said. "And we are 25 points better than The Citadel and Appalachian State."

The latter is the most recent of the Herd's losses and was weighing particularly hard on Huckabay Tuesday.

"How can we be such a superior team in the first half and then become the inferior team in the second half?" he said. "Our guys just don't have the killer instinct. They get big leads then let the other team back in it."

Against Appalachian State Monday the Herd had a lead as big as 17 points in the first half before falling 84-83 in overtime. The loss gave the Herd a 5-2 record in Southern Conference play.

"We are just not the type of team that plays well with a lead and that is not characteristic of teams I have had in the past," he said. "I've had teams in the past that win the game in the first five minutes of the game."

"I'm the kind of guy who when you have someone down by 18 points you go on and get them down by 30," he said. "Our guys are really nice people and they don't react that way."

Huckabay said it is his job to instill the killer instinct in his players.

"They will play when I get on them and when I get after them," he said. "Like Don Turney. He can be a great player but he won't play aggressively unless I get all over him."

Turney has put a pair of good games together this week. He hit a career-high 27 points against East Tennessee State and had 21 before fouling out at ASU.

He started both of those games for the injured Sam Ervin, who suffered a mild concussion after taking an elbow against Furman.

Two other starters have missed recent games. Jeff Battle was sidelined against ETSU with food poisoning and David Wade sat out the Appalachian State game with a sore ankle.

Huckabay, too, is still recovering from a double hernia operation of eight days ago. But that is not what is ailing him the most.

"I'm sick and hurt by these losses. I've never lost this many games in the last four years," he said. "I hate to lose."

Marshall had a pair of chances to win the Appalachian State game but had shots bounce off at the buzzers of regulation and the overtime period.

The Herd returns to action this Saturday when Western Carolina visits the Henderson Center.

It will be the first time this season Marshall has played the Catamounts, who were picked to finish ahead of MU in the pre-season coaches poll.

Lisa Pruner (No.44), Tammy Wiggins and the rest of the Herd return to action Thursday against the University of Charleston at Henderson Center. Marshall, 11-6 overall and 2-2 in the Southern Conference is coming off Monday's 82-71 loss to conference foe Tennessee-Chattanooga.

Parrish gathers assistant coaches

Marshall's new head football coach Stan Parrish, who is busy assembling his first recruiting class here, named four of his assistants earlier this month and is expected to name two more soon.

Three of the four assistants - two of whom are brothers - were associated with Parrish when he served as a coach at Wabash College. They are Mark and Mike Deal and Ken Bowman. Joe Redmond, who will coach the running backs and specialty teams and serve as an academic adviser, was the fourth assistant named.

Mark Deal, 26, will coach wide receivers and tight ends, while being the strength coach. He will also be Marshall's chief recruiter in Virginia and southern West Virginia.

He was a member of the Indiana University football team from 1975 until 1978, and was an assistant to Parrish at Wabash for two seasons (1980-82). He was the offensive line coach and recruiting coordinator before taking the MU position.

Mark's older brother Mike, will be Marshall's defensive coordinator and in charge of the defensive secondary. The elder Deal, 35, coached the defensive secondary at Davidson College last year, following his stint as an assistant to Parrish at Wabash.

Mike Deal, also a former Indiana University football player, will be MU's recruiter in northern West Virginia and the Pittsburgh area. He compiled a 23-17 record as a high school head coach.

Bowman, 53, will be the Herd's offensive line coach and offensive coordinator. He will recruit in the Ohio River Valley.

Bowman coached the quarterbacks, wide receivers and running backs of the Edmonton Eskimos of the Canadian Football League before coming to Marshall.

Under his direction, Edmonton topped the CFL in total offense and set a league mark for passing yardage.

Bowman, a native of Palmyra, Pa., was a Wabash assistant for four seasons before accepting a position at Princeton of the Ivy League. Princeton led the league in total offense under Bowman's guidance.

Redmond, who will recruit in Louisville, Lexington and eastern Kentucky, has been a head coach at three schools, most recently Texas Southern University. Redmond, 38, was also a head coach at Central State (Ohio) and Maryland-Eastern Shore as well as an assistant for six seasons at Northern Illinois.

Parrish also announced that Jim Turner, who served under former coach Sonny Randle as a graduate assistant, will retain the position. Al Bass, a high school coach and athletic director in Louisiana, will join Marshall's staff in the fall as a part-time assistant, Parrish said.

Jim Grobe, who spent five seasons as Randle's defensive coordinator and was the first assistant named to Parrish's staff, recently accepted a position at the Air Force Academy. Grobe, the only full-time assistant of Randle retained by Parrish, would have been the Herd's linebacker coach and recruiting coordinator.

Air Force, a Division I-A program, finished 1983 with a 10-2 record, including a 9-3 victory over Mississippi in the Independence Bowl.

Bowlers 'in a bind'

Academic difficulties and other problems have hit the Marshall bowling team, leaving the squad with "nowhere near the caliber team we had last semester," Coach Bernie Elliot said.

The team has a return match 5 p.m. today at Morehead State University, who defeated the Herd Jan. 15 at the Memorial Student Center.

Elliot said the team is "in a bind" by the departure of five of nine men from the men's team, leaving him unsure who will start for the team.

"I had one player who did not get his grades up enough and another who simply flunked out," he said. "Then we had a couple of others leave because of money problems."

The bowling team has a 2.0 grade point standard for its members. "The conference we bowl in will begin enforcing that same standard this season," Elliot said.
