Nitzschke looks forward to learning experience

By Paul Carson
Special Correspondent

Marshall's new president says his first priority when he arrives on campus will be to learn as much as he can about the university and the Huntington community.

Incoming President Dr. Dale F. Nitzschke, in a telephone interview from his Las Vegas home, said that he has no predetermined ideas concerning Marshall because he believes he needs the input of the community and campus constituencies before making any decisions affecting the university.

"I doubt that I'll be spending very much time in my office the first couple of months," Nitzschke said. "As I've said before, I expect to hit the ground running, and I imagine this will mean attending dozens upon dozens of meetings with faculty, classified staff, and student groups as well as groups from throughout the community."

Nitzschke said it would be premature for him to say what, if any, administrative reorganization would be needed at Marshall.

However, he did say it was unusual for a presidential change not to cause a certain amount of disruption at any institution.

He said he thought it would be at least three months before he would have the necessary background to address the complex issue of reorganization.

Nitzschke said one plan he does have, is to work as closely as possible with Acting President Sam E. Clagg during the transition.

"Just this week I received a most kind letter from Dr. Clagg offering his assistance in any way possible during the transition," Nitzschke said. "Considering his many years of service and experience at the university, any assistance Dr. Clagg offers will certainly be welcome as well as invaluable. From all I've been able to gather, he has done a magnificent job as president of Marshall."

Nitzschke said he agreed with Clagg that one priority should be the continued reduction of the Athletic Department budget deficit, but said he is not overly concerned about the deficit at this time.

He said he had talked with Athletic Director Lynn J. Snyder when the Herd visited Las Vegas last month.

"In my discussions with Dr. Snyder there was nothing that indicated to me the deficit would not be erased by this summer," Nitzschke said.

Nitzschke's wife, formerly Linda Hutchinson, was born in Parkersburg. They are the parents of five children, but only eight-year-old David will be the only child to accompany them to Huntington.

He said his other children are 22-year-old Mary Beth, a communications studies major at the University of Nevada at Las Vegas; 21-year-old Steven, an aeronautical engineering student at the University of Washington; 19-year-old Lori, a criminal justice major at Kirkwood Community College in Iowa City, Iowa; and 18-year-old Eric, is a high school senior in Iowa City.

Home games to go on as scheduled -- Snyder

By Paul Carson
Special Correspondent

The Thundering Herd basketball season will not be affected by a $10 million lawsuit filed by the state attorney general Wednesday charging three companies involved in the construction of the Henderson Center with shoddy workmanship, according to Dr. Lynn J. Snyder, athletic director.

The suit seeks damages concerning cracks in the arena floor, wiring not up to contract standards, and retractable bleachers that will not move.

Snyder emphasized that the basketball season will not be affected, saying the cracks in the floor do not pose a safety hazard.

He said one section of the retractable seats has not been functioning properly and he is afraid if the seats were moved they could not be retracted, and the university would lose a substantial number of seats for the remainder of the basketball season.

Gene G. Kuhn, university special project coordinator, said he understands the electrical wiring problems involved conduits used in the floor. He said he this should not pose a safety hazard.

Kuhn said he could not comment any further on the situation since it is in litigation. He emphasized that Marshall is not involved in the suit because Henderson Center is a state-owned building. He said this is why the state attorney general was responsible for filing the suit against the firms involved.

However, Kuhn did outline the procedures followed in awarding construction contracts. He said the first step is for the Board of Regents to hire an architect. After the design is completed the construction contracts are advertised for 30 days after which the project is awarded to the lowest bidder.

He said any contractor licensed by the state or any contractor who has applied to the state for a license can bid. He said any background search on the contractors awarded the project would be up to the BOR.

Financial, academic aid deadlines draw near

By Angela Clark
Staff Writer

Deadlines for the various financial aid programs available to aid in the cost of a college education are getting closer, and the most pressing of these deadlines are for academic scholarships, Ed Miller, director of financial aid, said.

Academic scholarships are available to presently enrolled full-time students who maintain a 3.5 grade point average. The deadline for these scholarships is Feb. 1 and anyone who is eligible should turn in applications on or before that date.

Students interested in a Pell Grant, College Work-Study, Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant, National Direct Student Loan, Guaranteed Student Loan or West Virginia Higher Education Grant need to fill out and mail a Financial Aid Form (FAF) to be received by Marshall University from Princeton, N.J. before March 1.

Students applying only for the West Virginia Higher Education Grant must mail this form to the College Scholarship Service (CSS) in Princeton by March 1.

Application for federal student aid is available for students interested only in the Pell Grant.

To be eligible for most of these programs, the student must be enrolled at least half time, pursuing a degree or certificate in an eligible program and be a citizen of the United States or an eligible non-citizen.

Financial assistance available to graduate students through the financial aid office include College Work Study, National Student Loans or Direct Student Loans. Graduate tuition waivers are now being handled through the graduate school.

Committee calls for education pay hike

CHARLESTON— The Senate Education Committee on Thursday gave a favorable recommendation to a bill granting $1,100-per-year pay raises and tightening employment terms for school service personnel.

The bill set off a debate among Education Committee members, some of whom opposed provisions calling for time and a half pay for school employees whose jobs require them to work weekends.

Another provision of the bill would require school boards to pay employees an additional one-eighth of their monthly salary as compensation for working split shifts.

A new classification of "Aide IV" was included in the bill, a provision that state Board of Education officials estimated would cost $500,000 per year.

Ken Legg, a spokesman for the school service personnel, estimated the cost of the new classification at about $400,000.

Treatment plant approved

COLUMBUS, Ohio— A hazardous waste disposal and treatment plant that has concerned West Virginia officials because of its potential effects on the Ohio River is one step closer to being built at East Liverpool.

The Hazardous Waste Facility Approval Board on Wednesday asked the board staff to draft a resolution that would allow the 21.5-acre facility.

Waste Technologies Industries of East Liverpool is building the plant, to use rotary kiln incinerators and other advanced technologies to treat hazardous wastes.

The board made it clear that the permit would contain conditions, including requirements for taller smokestacks, restrictions on emissions of heavy metals and a contingency plan to close the plant during rare water conditions on the Ohio River.

Columbia may be fined

CHARLESTON— Columbia Gas of West Virginia Inc. could face a fine of $200,000 in connection with an October 1983 explosion that leveled a Davis Creek supermarket.

The $200,000 fine, the maximum allowed by law, would be the largest ever sought by the state Public Service Commission.

Darrell McKown, chief of the PSC's gas pipeline safety section, said an investigation shows that Columbia Gas committed 27 "probable violations" of federal and state safety regulations.

The explosion occurred Oct. 17 after a highway construction crew working across the street from the Davis Creek Foodland hit a pipeline that, according to a Columbia Gas map, had been abandoned. More than a dozen people were injured in the blast.

U.S.

Budget to be cut according to Regan

WASHINGTON—Treasury Secretary Donald Regan said today that he envisioned cuts of $10 billion-$20 billion in fiscal 1985 and $50 billion-$60 billion in the following year.

Regan restated his opposition to chopping defense spending or cutting deficits with tax increases, but said some savings could be achieved through closing tax loopholes and simplifying the U.S. tax code.

Regan, asked on the NBC-TV "Today" show whether defense spending would be a subject for discussion, said, "Everything is negotiable. ... Nothing is non-negotiable."

But, in an interview broadcast today on the "CBS Morning News" program, Speaker of the House Thomas O'Neill noting that Reagan restated his opposition to defense spending cuts and to tax increases, asked "what's left?" for a bipartisan commission to compromise on.

Boycott of Nestle ended

WASHINGTON (AP) — A boycott of Nestle products in the United States was suspended today when the Swiss-based multinational corporation agreed to alter its infant formula sales practices in Third World nations.

To symbolize the end of the seven-year-old boycott, Douglas Johnson, national chairman of the Infant Formula Action Coalition, ate a miniature Nestle crunch bar presented to him by a Nestle official. The chocolate candy is one of the most familiar products made by the giant food products conglomerate.

Johnson said at a news conference held jointly with the company that he expects the boycott of Nestle products in Canada to be called off today as well. But he predicted the boycott committees in eight other nations would wait until an international conference is held in Mexico City next week before deciding how to proceed.

Cuba gets Soviet planes

WASHINGTON (AP) — New shipments from Soviet Union, the first in several years, have boosted the size of Cuba's navy and MiG-23 fighter force, U.S. intelligence sources said today.

The sources, who asked to remain anonymous, said a 2,300-ton Soviet-built frigate and a 2,100-ton diesel-powered submarine were delivered in recent days in Havana.

In addition, the sources said crates believed to contain fuselages of three new MiG-23 Flogger jet fighters were seen early this month at an airfield southwest of Havana.

These planes are the first of their type sent by the Soviets to Cuba since 1982 and will bring to about 35 the number of these modern fighters in the Cuban air force, the sources said.

The Koni-class frigate is the second such warship provided by the Soviet Union for Cuba's growing navy.

World

East-West talks accepted by NATO

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — A Western spokesman today informed the Austrian government that the North Atlantic alliance has decided to accept a Soviet bloc proposal to resume the central European troop reduction talks in Vienna on March 16.

The decade-old negotiations, the last remaining East-West arms forum after the collapse of two sets of missile talks in Geneva, Switzerland, were interrupted Dec. 15 by a Warsaw Pact refusal to agree on a 1984 resumption date.

In a televised interview last Sunday, U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz said the United States was agreeable to a Soviet suggestion that the Vienna talks resume March 16.

The Mutual and Balanced Force Reduction Talks, which began in Vienna more than 10 years ago, are aimed at cutting conventional forces and armaments in Central Europe.

Chad civil war rekindled

PARIS (AP) — The downing of a French jet in Chad and an attack on a government post have reopened the civil war that has been stalemated since the French intervention last summer.

France blamed Libya for the loss of the plane and pilot in Wednesday's attack. But Libya, which supports the rebels of former Chad President Goukouni Oueddei, said the attack was carried out by Goukouni's forces and warned against any intervention by "foreign parties."

An armored column from northern rebel-held territory crossed into government-held territory Wednesday, shot down a French Jaguar fighter-jet and its pilot, and hit a Mirage F1 fighter, the French government says. The pilot was the first French fatality since French forces entered on the government side Aug. 9.

In N'Djamena, Chad's Information Minister Mahamat Soumalia said the attack on the government garrison at Ziguaye was carried out by a "large Libyan column."

Gemayel pardons soldiers

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — President Amin Gemayel's administration on Thursday bowed to demands by Druse leader Walid Jumblatt that the army reinstate Druse soldiers who refused to fight in civil warfare in September.

The reinstatement is designed to help revive a Saudi-sponsored security plan stalled by demands from Jumblatt, said Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan.

An estimated 500 to 800 Druse servicemen had refused to fight in the three weeks of fierce battling that pitted the army and Christian rightist militias against leftist Druse militiamen. The Druse sect's creed is based on Islam.

The Druse soldiers were relieved from active duty with the army, but will be reinstated by the army high command within 48 hours, Wazzan announced.

Resignations irresponsible

The attrition rate of Marshall University's Student Senate seems to contradict the idea that college students are old enough to accept responsibility.

Each year, the senate seems to be advertising open seats in non-election times, usually because senators have resigned their positions.

The resigning senators' behavior is usually irresponsible.

The senators often say they are resigning because of "other commitments." But the senators should realize that the question is not one of "commitment" but one of "priority."

Students who run for public office should accept the possibility they will win. When voters cast their ballots they are usually confident the candidate they are voting for will serve if he or she wins.

Running for office has a certain responsibility attached. And students should not frivolously compete. If a candidate is asking voters to put their confidence in him or her, he or she should really be committed to doing the job in office.

The constant turnover of student senators is bound to make the senate less effective. It certainly does not help the senate's reputation.

Anyone running for student senate in future elections should take that responsibility seriously. Students who win office and then resign are only a detriment to those who work diligently in office. The working students must advertise the position, wait for a replacement to be selected and work with an inadequate number of members in the meantime.

It is unfair to voters and it is unfair to fellow senators for students to run for office if they do not intend to make that office a top commitment. Holding office is a responsibility, and it should be a priority.

Students Speak

Today's topic: What do you think of the choice of Dale F. Nitzschke as the next president of Marshall?

Jill Burdette,
Culloden freshman

"I haven't been here long enough - this is my first semester. I haven't formed an opinion yet."

Donna Cooper,
Hamlin freshman

"I don't know him. I don't know any of the other candidates either. It's hard to be for someone if you don't know him."

Mike Perry,
South Point, Ohio,
graduate student

"I really don't know much about him. I'm just a part-time student and don't know much about the issues. I liked (former President) Hayes personally. I don't know much about Nitzschke."

Janice Whitt,
Huntington sophomore

"I haven't even thought about him. That's a good one, isn't it?"

Drinking age should be raised to 21

By Dr. Allan Stern
Assistant Professor of Education

Many students at Marshall University approve having West Virginia's legal minimum drinking age increased to 21 for all alcoholic beverages, because they feel the law is a good idea from a safety standpoint.

Guest commentary

In the past 75 years, life expectancy in this country has increased for every age group except for those between 15 and 24 years of age. The major cause of death for this group is traffic fatalities, with many of those deaths attributed to drinking and driving. Studies show that at least 60 percent of fatally injured teenage drivers had alcohol in their blood. A more recent study indicated that alcohol may be responsible in over 90 percent of all fatal accidents.

The student who says, "I can drive just as well after drinking as when I'm sober" is kidding himself or herself and indicating his or her judgment already has been affected. No one can drive as skillfully and safely when handicapped by alcohol or other drugs.

The usual perception is that it is only the falling-down drunk who is a menace behind the wheel. But, the driver with any amount of alcohol in the blood is impaired to some degree, and the degree increases with the amount of alcohol blood content. Judgment is impaired, reaction time is slowed and coordination is reduced.

That dollar cost of teenage drinking is enormous. Just considering the traffic death and injury toll involving teenagers, the cost to the nation could be about $1 billion. With the addition of 20-year-olds to the group, the cost of accidental deaths and injuries increases.

For more information on the problems of drinking and driving and information on why the drinking age should be increased to 21, interested individuals can contact me at my office in Harris Hall or call 696-2380.

Mission report

Scheduled for delivery next week

By Alisa Minor
Staff Writer

The final draft of the Marshall University Institutional Mission Statement for the period 1985-1990 will be distributed next week to the appropriate departments and persons, Lynne Mayer, Administrative Assistant to the Provost's Office, said.

The proposal was submitted to the Board of Regents Jan. 15 for revision, she said.

The proposed document cites the history and development of the institution, mission of the institution, prospective program development to 1990, and projections of headcount and full-time equivalent enrollment.

An institutional goals survey distributed to 1,000 faculty, students, staff, alumni and individual citizens by a Planning Advisory Committee served as a reference for the mission statement proposal.

Although the draft has not changed radically since published last, in 1979, a new aspect of the proposal includes 42 programs to be implemented or expanded by the fall of 1989, if the BOR approves.

Other areas mentioned in the draft were the College of Fine Arts, completion of current construction projects and other renovations, cooperative doctoral programs with West Virginia University, and stand-alone doctoral programs.

After revision in February and March by the BOR, a final mission statement will be approved for Marshall by July, Mayer said.

The report will be included in the BOR's master plan for higher education, Mayer said.

Plans for MU movie theater nonexistent -- Silberstein

By Robin Ratliff
Staff Writer

No plans have been made for a new movie theater in the Memorial Student Center even though the present theater site will not be available next spring, Phil Silberstein, director of student activities, said.

After this fall the Science Building auditorium will no longer be available as a theater due to scheduled construction on the building.

Due to projects now being developed by student activities the earliest that plans could begin for a new theater would be this summer and no cost estimates can be projected until the architectural plans are completed and approved by the appropriate committees.

The Cinema Arts Committee plans to begin next year by presenting newly released films that will not be shown on cable systems until later in the year, Randy Meredith, Canonsburg, Pa. graduate student, said.

Anyone interested in the committee's activities may attend its regular meetings on Tuesdays at 3:45 p.m. in the Memorial Student Center.

Bookstore shoplifting costs $5,000 annually

By Debbi Johnson
Staff Writer

Marshall University Bookstore estimates $5,000 worth of merchandise is missing each year because of theft, inventory and unidentified pilferage, according to Joe Vance, bookstore manager.

On the national level, $2.13 billion in merchandise was missing in 1983, according to statistics compiled by the National Mass Retailing Institute in a January 1984 periodical, the College Store Executive.

The NMPI conducted the study from 180 college bookstores operating at 36,000 locations. They reported that shoplifting has raised from $1.7 billion in 1981, to $2.3 billion in 1983.

The typical shoplifter, according to the NMPI, is between the ages of 18 and 35 and employed. According to the research, they are more likely to be men than women.

Small items, such as cosmetics, jewelry, and health-beauty aids, are among the most frequently taken items from MUB.

"We can't generalize what people will take because we have had disappearances from every department," Vance said. "If the opportunity is there, most students will not hesitate to shoplift, no matter what the consequences."

A person caught shoplifting is turned over to campus security and then to the Residence Life Office. Perpetrators can be punished by both the university and through the court system.

For the first offense, if the item is less than $100, the fine may be between $1 and $250. If the item is more than $100, then the fine may be between $100 and $500 plus a possible six months in jail. For the second offense, a person, if convicted, may serve between six months and a year in jail.

Both apprehension and conviction rates have been on the rise in 1983. Apprehension rates rose 23 percent and the conviction rate went up to 87 percent compared with 1981.

Efforts to prevent shoplifting in the bookstore include continued employee awareness, larger packaging, improved price tagging, and encasing more items under glass.

$3,000 in HERF funds available this semester

By Robin Ratliff
Staff Writer

Approximately $3,000 in Higher Education Resources Fees (HERF) will be awarded to student organizations this semester, however funds may run out before the end of the fiscal year, Dr. Nell C. Bailey, dean of student affairs, said.

This may force many organizations to search elsewhere for alternative funding, she said.

This week's award recipients include the Women's Center, the Science Fiction Convention and Hall Advisory Councils, Bailey said.

The Women's Center has requested $700 for activities during Women and Violence Week, April 9-13. The Science Fiction Convention has requested $300 for consultants' travel expenses during the convention. The residence halls had previously requested $400 to place a computer in each residence hall, but because of an increase in equipment costs, the residence halls have reapplied for an additional $800, she said.

HERF applications must be in by the 15th of every month with the awards announced the following week, Bailey said. Last year, the Office of Student Affairs awarded $14,000 in HERF funds to various student organizations, Bailey said.

In-state students enrolled full-time pay $125 into the HERF fund while out-of-state students pay $375 to go full-time, she said. This procedure is established for all West Virginia colleges and universities and the total funds are then collected in Charleston, Bailey said.

Student organizations then apply for the funds at their respective colleges and awards are granted based upon the priority system established by each college. The funds are then distributed to the student affairs offices which pay for the organizations' requests, she said.

Interviewing for job placement offered to seniors

By Dawn Johnson
Staff Writer

Representatives from business, government and public schools will arrive on campus Wednesday to begin a recruiting program for those students seeking employment after graduation.

These on-campus interviews are organized by the Career Planning and Placement Center each fall and spring semester.

Students wishing to participate in these interviews should have a credential file. The center assists students in establishing their credential files which includes the student's record of classes, several resumes and a page of general information. The forms for filling out a credential file are available in the Career Planning and Placement Center.

Because of special arrangements, appointments are now being taken for Lever Brothers interview scheduled for February 23. All other students wishing to sign up for interviews should begin to do so two weeks in advance of the date of the interview, according to Barbara A. Cyrus, secretary II, Career Service and Placement Center.

Herd to be without Ervin for 'pivitol game'

By Leskie Pinson
Sports Editor

Marshall's Thundering Herd may have as few as 11 players when it goes against Western Carolina at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at Henderson Center.

It's certain the Herd will be without forward Sam Ervin, who is in St. Marys Hospital suffering from the effects of an elbow he took to the head against Furman, Jan. 16.

"He's in bad shape," assistant coach Johnny Lyles said. "We don't know when he will be able to be back."

Initially it was believed that the 6-foot-5 Ervin had suffered only a mild concussion but his condition has gotten worse.

"Sam is having an inner-ear problem," Lyles said. "He has had trouble keeping his balance."

"He's in bad shape. We don't know when he will be able to be back."

Marshall assistant Johnny Lyles on Sam Ervin.

Two other inside players may be sidelined for coach Rick Huckabay's squad. David Wade sat out the Appalachian State game Monday with a sore ankle that is still giving him problems and Michael Dobson has been struck with the same injury.

"David has not been able to practice this week," Lyles said. "Dobson injured his ankle in practice this week so it is questionable whether he will be able to play."

Don Turney has started for Ervin the past two games and has responded with 48 points, including a career-high 27 last Saturday against East Tennessee State.

Lyles said it is uncertain who would start at the guard position with LaVerne Evans. Sam Henry has seen an increase in his playing time in the past two games as Jeff Battle has fought off the effect of a case of food poisoning.

"We won't know until after practice who will start," Lyles said.

Marshall is coming off an 84-83 loss to Appalachian State that has created an intense situation in practice.

"We have had some real tough, bitterly intense practices," Lyles said. "The practices have been even more rough than any we have had this season."

Lyles scouted Western Carolina in its victory over Appalachian State and was impressed by several of the Catamounts.

"They have some good inside players in Pat Sharp and (Cedric) Cokley," he said. "We will have to work hard to stop them."

Sharp, a 6-8 senior, is averaging 11.1 points per game. The 6-7 Cokley is scoring at a 11.1 ppg average.

The center is 6-8 senior Mike MacFarlane. He is averaging 6.8 points and 3.5 rebounds a game.

The backcourt features 6-2 Quinton Lytle, who is averaging 18.9 ppg, and has been among the leaders in the conference all season. He is joined by Quentin Moore, a 5-10 senior, who is the primary ballhandler and adds six points an outing.

Moore was the star of the Catamounts' recent upset of Tennessee-Chattanooga. He hit a pair of free throws in overtime to hand the Mocs their second conference defeat.

"That game shows what Western can do," Lyles said. "They have the ability to come in here and beat us on any given night even though we have the better team."

Lyles said this game is crucial for the Herd. "This is a pivitol game for us," he said. "We need to win this one very badly and I think the team knows this."

Junior Don Turney, who has scored 48 points in Marshall's last two games, puts the Herd at the century mark just in time, with a free throw against East Tennessee State. Marshall won the game 100-82.

Contributions to Big Green Foundation increasing

By Juan Forero
Staff Writer

Because of increased interest in the basketball and football programs, and a revived system in raising money, the Big Green fund-raising campaign has experienced a good deal of success this year, Joe Feaganes, Big Green Scholarship Foundation director, said.

Contributions are up this fiscal year with a total $362,000 received compared to $265,000 of last year. Feaganes sites the personal contact system, which generates interest in the Big Green Foundation, as one reason for the increase.

This system, which has not been used in several years, involves encouraging people to renew their contributions, Feaganes said. Volunteer workers contact people who have not made contributions this year, he said.

"There is a constant drive throughout the year," Feaganes said. The number of pledges is up from 660 last year to 870 this year since the "clean-up" campaign was reactivated, Feaganes said.

"We went back to personal contact with contributors," he said.

This spring the foundation is attempting to raise money with numerous activities, Feaganes said. The jog-a-thon, which will probably be scheduled in conjunction with spring football, has a possibility of bringing in between $15,000 to $20,000, Feaganes said.

Last year the jog-a-thon raised $4,000. Other activities include scholarship fund-raising dinners paired with golf outings, Feaganes said.

Although the fiscal year is only half over, the foundation has raised almost $100,000 more than the last fiscal year.

Hicks strives for accuracy as Marshall's announcer

By Jim Weidemoyer
Staff Writer

With all of the changes that have taken place in Marshall athletics, there is one that has been virtually unknown but not unheard. This modification is Charles Hicks, the new public address announcer for the Thundering Herd football and basketball games.

Hicks has been the the general manager of WKEE radio since July 1980 when he began his residence in Huntington.

In replacing former announcer Mike Chapman, Hicks said he realizes the fans come to the game to watch the team, not listen to him. But he does feel he plays a significant role.

He said accuracy is important in carrying out this role. He said he keeps his own scoresheet in order to be as accurate as possible.

Hicks admitted he is not a hot dog in his job although he does try to express a little enthusiasm and is not hesitant to be partial to the hometown Herd.

By meeting and associating with head coach Rick Huckabay for radio engagements, Hicks got a favorable nomination for the job last fall after a call from Mac Yates, MU sports information director.

This is not the first time Hicks has experienced Southern Conference basketball. Being born and raised in North Carolina, he has seen SC teams such as Furman and Appalachian State. He has nothing but optimism about the MU basketball season and said he expect to see the Herd make it to the NCAA tournament this season.

Charles Hicks, public address announcer for the Herd, realizes the fans come to see the game and not to be entertained by him.

Soccer team stays in practice indoors

By J. Shep Brown
Staff Writer

The harsh, seemingly endless synthetic turf has been replaced by the softwood floor. The often slippery leather ball has been replaced by a fuzzy, florescent yellow ball. The consistent uniforms have been replaced by a spectrum of leisure wear. But one aspect of Marshall's soccer team has not changed - practice.

Marshall will play in West Virginia Wesleyan's indoor soccer tournament Feb. 3-4 along with national powers

Davis and Elkins, Alderson-Broadus. The expectations will not be to "win it all," but to improve the Herd's level of play from a Southern Conference second-place team to one of championship caliber.

In outdoor it's mostly a zone defense, except at crucial times, Biava said.

Marshall has played the "bridesmaid" in the last two seasons under head coach Jack DeFazio.

Forward wing Joe Biava, Hinton senior, said the indoor experience is beneficial. "Indoor is great for defense (practice) - it's constant man-on-man."

"But the biggest reason for the (spring) practices is to keep our touch (with the ball)," Biava said.

Indoor soccer resembles hockey in that the ball stays close to the floor because of different rules, the goal is shorter, the ball can be played off walls and there are penalty minutes for flagrant fouls.

Other indoor tournaments include Wheeling College's, Feb. 18-19; Marshall's, Feb. 25-26, and University of Connecticut's, March 25-27.

Women's track to meet Monday

Any female students interested in participating in the women's track program should come to Gullickson Hall Room 210 Monday at 2:30 p.m.

Arlene Stooke, who is entering her nine-year as coach of the squad, said the team will probably be short on distance runners and high jumpers this season but that any interested woman is encouraged to attend, regardless of her speciality.
