Plan approved; Nitzschke releases names

By Burgetta Eplin
Special Correspondent

Ending weeks of speculation about who is involved in the president's administrative reorganization, C.T. Mitchell, director of university relations, Wednesday released the names of those involved after the Board of Regents unanimously approved the plan.

Nitzschke said last week he "hoped the board would approve my plan" at its October meeting in Charleston, but until it did, the names of those included would not be released.

The plan, which becomes effective Nov. 1, includes the following changes:

- Restores three former vice presidential positions: Academic Affairs, Student Affairs, and Support Services (formerly vice president for administration).

- Adds a vice president for institutional advancement.

- Adds the positions of director of campus technology and capitol officer in the support services area.

- Adds an executive assistant to the president and transfers the director of planning position to the president's office, adding the title of assistant to the president.

- Separates the positions of director of personnel and affirmative action officer, which are now held by one person.

The following people have been named to these positions:

- Dr. Olen E. Jones, currently the provost, has been named vice president for support services. This position entails taking the responsibility for facilities planning and development, plant operations, campus technology, public safety, and the personnel office.

- Dr. Nell Bailey, dean of students, has accepted the vice president for student affairs position.

- David Gillmore, general manager of instructional television at Marshall, will be the president's executive assistant.

- Lynn Mayer, director of planning, will retain that title and also be assigned as assistant to the president.

- University Relations Director C.T. Mitchell will report directly to the president but also be assigned to the institutional advancement area.

- Marvin E. Billups, currently director of personnel and affirmative action officer, will remain in the personnel position while Robert L. Lawson, of the Community College, will assume the affirmative action position.

Nitzschke said national searches will be conducted to fill the vice presidential positions of academic affairs and institutional advancement.

Meanwhile, Dr. Alan B. Gould, College of Liberal Arts dean, will serve as acting vice president for academic affairs, while Dr. Emory W. Carr, professor of modern languages will fill Gould's vacancy as acting dean.

Dr. Robert F. Maddox, now associate provost and dean of the Graduate School, will retain his positions but be assigned the new title of associate vice president of academic affairs.

Director of campus technology will be Dr. William S. Deel, who is currently associate provost, and the position of capitol officer will be filled later, according to Mitchell's release.

Committee won't confirm choice of close-to-campus stadium site

By Mike Friel
Special Correspondent

Members of the Marshall Stadium Committee would neither confirm nor deny Wednesday that they have endorsed a site between 20th and 23rd streets and 3rd Ave. and 4½ Alley for construction of a new football stadium.

Wednesday's edition of the Herald-Dispatch quoted "a source familiar to the situation" as saying the committee had approved the close-to-campus site after an architectural firm recommended it.

According to the article, the joint firm appointed by the West Virginia Board of Regents to study the feasibility of a new stadium or the possible renovation of Fairfield, examined five sites before recommending the site opposite Marshall's maintenance building on 20th Street.

See related stories, Page 5

The article also said that "other sites considered included an area south of the city near the interchange of Interstate 64 and Hal Greer Boulevard, a University Heights site on property owned by the university east of the city, and an on-campus site adjacent to the Henderson Center and around the present track."

Athletic Director Lynn J. Snyder, a member of the committee, said he could not comment about the accuracy of the Herald-Dispatch story because the committee's report had not been released.

Another member of the committee, Director of University Relations C.T. Mitchell, also would not comment on the validity of the Dispatch article.

"I won't confirm whether the article is accurate or not," he said, "but I am not going to put out a press release saying it is wrong. We do have a committee working with the architects."

Dr. Kenneth E. Blue, associate dean of student development, said that as a member of the committee he could not comment but that "obviously someone had."

Although he would not comment on whether or not the committee had made an endorsement, Blue did confirm that the joint firm of Gates/Heery-Fabrap is conducting the study.

Once a recommendation is made, Blue said it will be submitted to the president and then to the BOR for approval.

Other members of the stadium committee are Provost Olen E. Jones; Harry E. Long, director of plant and administrative operations; Dr. Steven Hatfield, professor of mathematics; and Dr. Kenneth P. Ambrose, associate professor of sociology and anthropology.

Concerning how the stadium would be financed, the Dispatch story quoted an unidentified source as saying "... they (architects) are working on that question."

BOR endorses budget, including 7½ percent raise

By Peter Van Horn
Reporter

CHARLESTON - In addition to approving President Dale F. Nitzschke's administrative changes, the Board of Regents Wednesday approved the 1985-86 fiscal year operating budget for higher education.

Included in the budget are funds to provide a minimum salary increase of seven and one-half percent or $1,000, whichever is greater, to all full-time employees. Also included are funds to implement a minimum salary schedule for all full-time faculty.

The budget also provides funds to ensure annual salary experience increments of $36 per year to all non-faculty employees with three to 20 years of state service and to implement the salary minimums contained in the Classified Employee Salary Scale recently approved by the Advisory Council of Classified Staff.

Funds also will be available for a limited number of new full-time and part-time faculty positions in the fields of engineering, computer science, and business.

There will also be a special line-item appropriation of $7 million to purchase computer equipment and communications networks.

Full funding of the West Virginia Higher Education Grant Program is also specified in the budget. In addition, money will be provided for coal and energy research, as well as for doctoral and post-doctoral research.

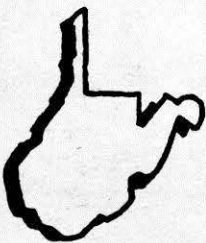

In other BOR action, schematic design plans for the WVU Mountaineer Stadium and facilities building addition were reviewed and approved by the board. The additions will add a total of 4,668 seats to the stadium and expand athletic department offices at an estimated cost of $5.6 million.

The BOR also responded to the controversial hiring of Lewis McManus as an assistant to WVU President Gordon Gee by reviewing McManus' job description and title. The Board gave McManus the job title "special assistant to the president for university relations," and specified that he would aid in the "development, administration, and communication of university policy responding to state and federal legislation affecting higher education and this institution (WVU), and to the policies and regulations of the State BOR."

Manchin joins in a suit to change rule

CHARLESTON — Secretary of State A. James Manchin said Wednesday that he is joining in a federal-court suit to overturn a policy that bars voter registration activities in state unemployment offices.

Announcing the suit at a news conference, Manchin said he could not "stand idly by while bureaucratic red tape and reluctance inhibit the constitutional right of citizens to register to vote."

"On several occasions, persons seeking to conduct voters' registration drives in the public waiting areas of unemployment offices have been turned away, ostensibly because of some policy decision either in Charleston or Washington," he said.

Manchin said his suit against the state Employment Security Department and the U.S. Labor Department will be filed jointly with Taunya Jenkins, West Virginia coordinator of a Columbia University voter registration project.

He said the suit would be presented before Judge Dennis Knapp in the U.S. District Court for Southern West Virginia.

More layoffs in coal mines

SOUTHERN WEST VIRGINIA — The southern West Virginia coalfields were hit with another 1,000 layoffs Wednesday as more coal companies cut production in the face of declining orders.

More than 5,000 West Virginia miners have now been laid off since last week when the United Mine Workers union ratified a new contract, its first strike-free agreement in 20 years. Since then major coal users have cut back orders to deplete stockpiles they had accumulated in anticipation of a national strike by the union.

Eastern Associated Coal Corp. on Wednesday joined the growing list of operators trimming operations by idling five southern West Virginia mines, three preparation plants and 999 hourly workers.

In addition, Norfolk & Western Railway confirmed 53 layoffs at its Williamson rail yard.

Officials seek more funds to educate needy children

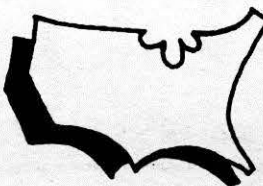

CHARLESTON — State officials have agreed to push for $2.1 million in next fiscal year's budget to educate mentally retarded children in state institutions.

The money would be used to hire more employees, purchase special instructional supplies, establish certification for special education teachers and evaluate youngsters in state facilities.

The agreement came this week in a federal court hearing on a 6-year-old lawsuit over special education for the retarded.

Two assistant attorneys general, Richard Earles and Brentz Thompson, represented the Health Department and Education Department in the suit.

The attorneys said the state agencies will push for the necessary budget increase, but that the state Finance Department will prepare the final budget document presented to the governor for submission to lawmakers. They said the agency budgets, with the special education-training funding included, will be presented to finance officials Thursday.

Nevada judge gets two years in prison

RENO, Nev. — Federal Judge Harry Claiborne, who claims the government was out to get him because of his criticism of federal agents, was sentenced Wednesday to two years in prison for income tax evasion.

Presiding Judge Walter E. Hoffman handed Claiborne a two-year term on each of two counts of tax evasion, which he said would be served concurrently. He also fined Claiborne $10,000.

Claiborne, who could have faced up to six years in prison, addressed the U.S. District courtroom before his sentencing.

"My life has been virtually destroyed, not because of illegal and wrongful acts," he said. "I'm sorry I can't say I'm remorseful for these acts. I'm guilty, not of the charges made in this indictment. I'm guilty of being reckless with my own personal affairs."

Hoffman ordered Claiborne to serve his sentence at a federal institution at Maxwell Air Force Base at Montgomery, Ala.

Defense attorneys filed an immediate notice of appeal.

Claiborne is the first federal judge to be ordered to prison for crimes committed while serving on the bench.

World's Fair is a disaster

NEW ORLEANS — The World's Fair has become a "disaster" and had it been a public undertaking "there would have been a number of people sent to the penitentiary," Gov. Edwin Edwards said Tuesday.

Edwards also said the fair must cut expenses and dispense with unnecessary high-level employees, including the president of the Louisiana World Exposition Inc., Peter Spurney, and the director of marketing, George Williams.

Bolstered by the city's agreement not to demand payment of $3.5 million owed in taxes, the exposition, which has had to lay off hundreds of employees, is expected to continue until its scheduled Nov. 11 closing.

In another development, a New Orleans television station reported that Spurney has been called to appear before a New Orleans federal grand jury Thursday to answer questions about the fair.

Reagan leads in south

WASHINGTON — Pollster Louis Harris said Tuesday the Moral Majority is transforming the politics of the South, making it President Reagan's strongest region, but he warned of a possible political backlash, particularly among Roman Catholics.

For Democrat Walter F. Mondale "the South is by and large gone," Harris told a breakfast meeting with reporters. "The white Moral Majority is increasing the Reagan margin there."

Mondale aides have disputed that view and the Democratic nominee has tried to campaign at least one day in the South every week since Labor Day.

The pollster said a survey of 3,762 likely voters taken between Aug. 24 and Sept. 25 showed Reagan's margin over Mondale in the South was 60 percent to 38 percent, the widest gap of any region in the country. Among Moral Majority voters, said Harris, Reagan's margin over Mondale was 70-28.

Labor Party votes to scrap weapons

BLACKPOOL, England — The opposition Labor Party voted overwhelmingly Wednesday to unilaterally scrap Britain's nuclear weapons, expel U.S. cruise missiles and close U.S. nuclear bases if the party wins power.

The vote came on the third day of the socialists' annual conference in this northwest England resort and marked the party's most radical commitment yet to unilateral nuclear disarmament.

The conference rejected a resolution that would have committed Labor to closing all U.S. bases in Britain, where 25,000 U.S. troops and scores of planes, ships and submarines are based.

Former Prime Minister James Callaghan and other moderates had called for rejection of a policy plank they said would rupture the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Callaghan's 1976-79 administration lost power to Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Conservatives.

Labor suffered its worst defeat in 50 years in June 1983, when it ran on a platform of scrapping Britain's Polaris nuclear missiles, canceling Mrs. Thatcher's order to update them with the U.S. Trident system, and banning U.S. nuclear weapons.

Nazi leader may be in U.S.

JERUSALEM — An Israeli Nazi hunter said Tuesday he believes Josef Mengele, the most wanted Nazi war criminal, is living in the United States.

Tuvia Friedman, head of the privately financed Haifa center for the Investigation of Nazi Criminals, told The Associated Press he had asked Prime Minister Shimon Peres to seek President Reagan's intervention for Mengele's arrest.

A spokesman for Peres confirmed the prime minister received the request but had not decided whether to raise the issue in his Oct. 9 White House meeting with Reagan. The spokesman, Baruch Askarov, said Peres might discuss the Mengele question with other administration or congressional officials.

Friedman said he had been told by a source whom he would not name that the 73-year-old Mengele, the notorious "Butcher of Auschwitz," had been living in Florida for the past five years.

Syria Identifys kidnappers

BEIRUT — Syria's secret service was reported Tuesday to have identified and located the kidnappers of a U.S. diplomat, an American television journalist and a Saudi diplomat.

A Beirut newspaper close to the Syrian government said efforts were under way to free the abducted men, and that Syrian President Hafez Assad was personally involved in the effort.

The daily Al-Sharq said Syrian investigators have established the identity of the group holding U.S. Embassy political officer William Buckley; Jerry Levin, the Beirut bureau chief of Cable News Network; and Saudi Consul General Hussein Farrash.

Al-Sharq did not give the name of the group. There was no official confirmation of the report in Syria or by the Lebanese government. The U.S. Embassy press officer in Beirut, John Stewart, said he had nothing to say about the report.

Appointees not certain about new duties

By Burgetta Eplin
Special Correspondent

Although none of the three claim to know much about their new positions, Dr. Nell Bailey, David Gillmore, and Lynn Mayer said they are "excited" about their roles in Marshall President Dale F. Nitzschke's newly approved reorganization plan.

Bailey, dean of students, will become the first woman in Marshall's history to take a top-level administrative position when she assumes the duty of vice president of student affairs Nov. 1.; Gillmore, general manager of instructional television, will become executive assistant to the president and retain his current position; and Lynn Mayer, director of planning, will keep her current title but also will become assistant to the president.

Dr. Olen E. Jones, provost and newly-appointed vice president of support services, was not available for comment on his new position.

Bailey said that although she and Nitzschke "haven't talked about it much," she expects to be called upon to represent the university in the community while she retains most of her current responsibilities as dean of students.

"I think it is safe to say," Bailey said, "that the president wanted to work out his organization plan and get it into place before he talked specifics."

As dean of students for the past four years, Bailey said she has developed some valuable relationships with the academic deans that she hopes will not change when she takes the new post.

"Student affairs is somewhat academic," she said. "All curricula, including the extracurricular activities, are essential to the development of students."

Gillmore said he is pleased to "be offered the opportunity to work with this administration" as executive assistant to the president.

The position will be part-time, Gillmore said, to forestall the economic impact of implementing the total plan. Since Gillmore is already employed at Marshall, he can keep his current salary while filling the other job.

Gillmore said it "remains to be seen" whether the executive assistant will remain a part-time job after the plan has financial support.

"This president made it very clear he wants to run an open office," Gillmore said. "He goes out and makes speeches all the time and I'm comfortable with that style. Someone has to be there to handle less-than-major things on his behalf when he's gone and help people who come into the office looking for something."

Gillmore said nothing has been confirmed by Nitzschke about the executive assistant's job, except that it is his job.

Director of Planning Lynn Mayer said she is "looking forward to my expanded responsibilities and working even more closely with members of the president's cabinet."

Mayer said until she has had an opportunity to discuss the details of her new title of assistant to the president with Nitzschke, she "wouldn't be able to explain it."

All three said Nitzschke had discussed salaries with them only in general terms.

Thomas retains position under new organization

By Myra Chico
Reporter

Michael Thomas is being retained as vice president of financial affairs.

Although he was not named in President Dale F. Nitzschke's new administrative plan, he will take on additional responsibilities during a transitional period.

Thomas assumed on Oct. 1 the duties of acting fiscal officer for the Marshall University Foundation and the office of development, after the resignation of Dr. Bernard Queen, director of development.

The directors of purchasing, finance, accounting and payrolls will answer to Thomas under the new plan.

As fiscal officer, he will oversee the care of grants, payment of bills, deposit of funds and accounting for both offices.

"I'll probably have these fiscal responsibilities until July 1, 1985 or until the new vice president for institutional advancement is selected," Thomas said.

Thomas, as vice president of financial affairs, has been treasurer for the MU Foundation, office of development and the Big Green Foundation, but Nitzschke wanted Thomas to have "signature authority" for the MU Foundation and the office of development until the appointment of a new vice president for institutional advancement, one of the new positions in Nitzschke's revised administration.

Under the new administrative plan, public safety and auxiliary services are being transferred from Thomas' office to a vice president for support services, a position very similar to the former vice president for administration, Thomas said.

In the past, these offices reported to Thomas and basically "ran themselves," he said.

College of Liberal Arts loses one, promotes one

By Kimberly Harbour
Reporter

Dr. Alan B. Gould, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, has been named acting vice president of academic affairs as part of President Dale F. Nitzschke's reorganizational plan.

Dr. Emory Carr, associate professor of modern languages, has been named to fill Gould's place as dean.

Gould

"I am delighted President Nitzschke had the confidence in me to appoint me. I will do my best," Dr. Alan Gould said.

Gould's appointment is temporary. However, he said a permanent vice president will be named after a search committee conducts a national search.

"I haven't made up my mind as to whether I will apply for the permanent position, but I have spoken to Dr. Nitzschke about it. It will be hard for me to leave the College of Liberal Arts, because I am vitally interested in it and want to work for improvements in it. I will know more about my plans in the future, after I become active in the new position."

Gould said he thinks Nitzschke's reorganizational plan is an effort to become more efficient.

"Every president has a style or a process with which he or she feels most confident. Nitzschke said he thinks his plan will provide direct communication with him and the university," Gould said.

Gould said he was primarily responsible for Carr's nomination.

"I made a list of potential replacements and discussed it with my advisory committee and President Nitzschke. After I reduced the list to Carr's name, I asked him if he would accept the position. He said 'yes' and Dr. Nitzschke approved the nomination.

"I believe Dr. Carr is the best choice," Gould said.

In response to his selection as acting dean, Carr said, "I'm not surprised, but am very pleased Dr. Gould nominated me to fill the position.

"As far as I know, my responsibilities as dean will be the same as Dr. Gould's," Carr said.

Carr joined the faculty in 1966.

Site puzzles Big Green member

By Paul Carson
Sports Editor

The endorsement of the stadium committee to use land between Third Avenue and 4 1/2 Alley and 20th and 23rd streets for a new football stadium is only a proposal and does not mean a new stadium at that location is certain, according to Bart Andrews, former president and an active member of the Big Green Foundation.

But Andrews did say it was possible the Thundering Herd would be playing in a new stadium by the 1987 season.

"I'm not saying it will happen," he said. "I'm just saying it's possible."

Andrews, who is the owner of Danco Inc., which borders the proposed stadium boundaries, said if the story which appeared in the Herald-Dispatch Wednesday morning is accurate, he has several questions.

"I don't know what they are talking about when they say 23rd Street," he said. "There is no 23rd Street. If there was it would run on the east side of the C&O tracks. So if we're talking about the stadium extending to 23rd Street that would mean relocating Danco and the C&O tracks, too.

"What they might be talking about are plans filed with the city many years ago that detailed university expansion into this area. Those plans called for expansion to stop at the B&O tracks. But the B&O tracks were removed when the two railroads merged and where those tracks were is now the boundary between Danco and the state road commission office."

Last February, Andrews and several other Big Green members were actively promoting a new stadium around the all-purpose track between 20th Street and Twin Towers.

However, that plan received strong opposition from the faculty. Andrews said while he still would be agreeable to that plan, the new proposal is more attractive.

Stadium proposal doesn't disturb area businessmen

By Deborah B. Smith
Reporter

Business managers of an area reportedly being considered as a site for a new Marshall football stadium reacted mildly to the news Wednesday.

It was reported in a front-page story of Wednesday's Herald-Dispatch that the area between 20th and 23rd streets, and Third Avenue the alley between Fourth and Fifth Avenues was the site favored by a MU Stadium Committee.

Reactions of business managers contacted Wednesday morning about the possibilities of having to relocate, could be summed up by Endicott's TV's manager Pauline Endicott's statement, "Well, I guess we would have to move."

"If they need the room for Marshall, then we will have to go," Endicott said. "We have only been at this location for two years, anyway."

Pete Goodall, of Goodall's Printing, said, "It caught me cold turkey... I didn't know they were even discussing this as a stadium site. It is big news (to me), but I think it is a little early to get worried—it is just a proposal. They are not ready to break ground or anything."

None of the managers said they had been formally contacted about the proposal, but most indicated that they had heard about the possibility of the site being considered.

Rubella Muth, of the Army-Navy Store, said, "I think it would be great for Marshall and the community... We'll just have to pack up and go if they decide to build a stadium here. I think it will be a long time before that happens though."

Third Avenue and 20th Street are composed mainly of businesses while the rest of the area is residential.

Professors criticize stadium proposal

By Edgar Simpson
Staff writer

Several faculty members showed little interest in a committee's endorsement of a new stadium site on property adjacent to Marshall, saying the stadium should not be built at all.

Dr. Elinore Taylor, associate professor of English, was one of several faculty members who engineered a teacher revolt against the concept of a new stadium last year.

But the final vote, taken during a March faculty meeting, showed little more than that the issue is as controversial among the faculty members as it is among students, administrators and area residents. The faculty passed the resolution, which came out against a new stadium, by a vote of 122-98.

When contacted at her home Wednesday, Taylor continued her strong stand against the stadium. Taylor, who is currently on leave from the university, said the stadium issue should go through the proper university channels.

"As far as spending money on something like this in times like these, my views are well-known," she said.

Dr. Alan Stern, assistant professor of English, who also was vocal in his opposition to a new stadium last year, scoffed at idea of the committee recommending a site.

"I wouldn't care if they put it in the Ohio River," he said. "No, I have no qualms with where they put it."

He did, however, have qualms about building a stadium. "It shows where the priorities are for some people in the university," Stern said.

Both Stern and Taylor said the stadium should be placed on the university's priority list — behind already planned projects like the Fine Arts facility.

Dr. Donald Williams, professor of health, physical education and recreation and member of the Athletic Committee, said he originally proposed the site between 21st and 23rd streets during an Athletic Committee meeting last year. Although pleased with the stadium committee's recommendation, Williams said he does not necessarily support a new stadium.

"I made the motion to do the study," he said. "We decided to ask the (Board of Regents) for money to do a study to determine whether it would cheaper to renovate Fairfield or to build a new stadium."

Football players have varying views on stadium

The push for a new stadium triggers strong pro and con arguments for almost everyone. The football team is no different.

Linebacker John Logan, Lexington, Ky., senior, said whatever is decided will have little effect on him. "I'm a senior," he said "so I'll never get to play in a new stadium."

In fact, he said if he were a high school senior being recruited by a college, a new stadium would still have little influence in his decision-making process.

"This is just a personal opinion," he said. "But I think what the recruit would be interested in, is whether he's going to a winning or losing program and the contributions he can make."

Tight end Tim Lewis, Clarksburg junior, disagreed. "I think a new stadium would help recruiting a lot," he said. "That sort of thing plays big on the mind of high school seniors, plus it would renew interest in the community."

"Look at West Virginia University. They could have never sold 60,000 seats when they were at Old Mountaineer Field, even if they had them to sell. Now 60,000 seats aren't enough."

Senate elections

Candidates elaborate on campaign goals

By Bobble Gafford
Reporter

Fall senate elections will be today from 9 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. in the lobbies of the Memorial Student Center and Twin Towers West. Eight senate positions are open and 12 candidates are running for office. The candidates and some of their positions on the issues are profiled below.

Rhonda Lynn Rittenhouse, Fairmont sophomore and candidate for residence hall senator.

If elected to the student senate, some of Rittenhouse's goals will include having a pay phone on every floor of the residence halls and helping to enforce the 24-hour visitation policies on weekends.

"I want to become a senator so that I can help change some things in the residence halls," Rittenhouse said. She said she would try to get more participation from the students and take their suggestions back to the student senate.

Claude E. Allen, White Sulfer Springs junior and candidate for residence hall senator.

Allen has experienced three years of dorm life, and because of that he said he can represent the people better since he knows what people living in the dorms want.

Allen said that by "focusing on the better aspects" of dorm living, residence hall life can be improved. "We also need to focus on the negative aspects and try to improve them."

Allen said he also favors the change of the 24-hour visitation weekend to every weekend.

John E. Salomon, Summersville junior and candidate for residence hall senator.

Some of the plans of John E. Salomon are to attend the Hall Advisory Council and Inner Hall Government Advisory Council meetings to find out more about what is happening in the dorms, and keeping office hours for students so they can take their suggestions to him.

"I like being involved with different organizations on campus, and I like to see that a student is getting the best that he can get, especially in the residence halls," Salomon said. "We're all living here and we should be able to say what we want and don't want."

Salomon supports a change in the beer policy on campus so that activities such as Spring Fest could be held on campus. He also supports a change of the 24-hour visitation policy in the dorms to every weekend.

Lucinda Lee Fluhardy, Middlebourne junior and candidate for residence hall senator.

If elected, Fluhardy believes she can be an effective senator by reaching out to the students. "We're there to serve the students," Fluhardy said. "We need to get the students' views and feelings."

Fluhardy said she wants to be a senator since she relates well with others, and she would use student views in the senate. "It makes me feel very worthwhile if I can help people," she said.

Mike E. Hutchinson, Charleston junior and candidate for residence hall senator.

Hutchinson said he decided to run for a senate position because he had been complaining for three years about problems such as inadequate lighting on campus, and he decided to do something about it. "I'd rather be in a leadership position instead of a following position, and I think this is the easiest way to accomplish goals and get the students' goals met," Hutchinson said.

Some of Hutchinson's goals include getting the Laidley students' meal tickets changed so they can use their ten meal plan any time and not only during the week. He would also like to see the residence halls more liberalized and the campus beer policy more lenient.

James H. Fankhenel, Huntington sophomore and candidate for commuter senator.

Fankhenel believes he can best help his constituency by listening to their problems and keeping in touch with the commuters. He finds that many commuters do not know how issues are coming along in student government.

If elected to the senate, Fankhenel said he will better inform commuters of the issues and the problems facing them and how they can best be solved.

"I wanted to get involved in student government to see how it worked and to see where student government stood on certain issues and problems that students encounter," Fankhenel said.

Fankhenel also plans on dealing with the issue of parking problems, and to change planned activities that are inconvenient for commuters to dates convenient for everyone.

James A. Jarrall, Ceredo sophomore and candidate for commuter senator.

Jarrall feels that he can aid his constituents by getting student government to work more closely with the commuters. "I think we should go out of our way to see how the students feel and what they want done," Jarrall said.

Jarrall wants a senate position because he did not feel he was active enough and felt obligated to be more active.

If Jarrall is elected to the senate, his goals are to upgrade the Coffee House to make it more appealing for students. "I want to see the student center become the hub of everything that happens at Marshall," Jarrall said.

David C. Romine, Huntington senior and candidate for commuter senator.

If Romine is elected, he would like to see specific student oriented-goals met by the student government. Romine said he would like to see his constituency informed of the senate's goals so students can put their own input into the issues.

Romine said he wanted to retain his senate seat because he believes the present senate has good possibilities to provide effective leadership for Marshall. "I believe that I have been a strong, effective senator for the university and for the commuter because I am a commuter," Romine said.

"I can best help them because I know the specific needs that faces a commuter, and I know several organizations outside the university that can benefit the university," Romine said.

Ronald D. Miller, Greenup, Ky. junior and candidate for off-campus senator.

Miller wants to become a senator to help solve various problems such as reciprocal tuition and other problems facing his constituency. "I feel I have the necessary qualifications to best help the kids from my constituency, and I will do everything in my power to ensure that the interests of the kids is met," Miller said.

"I feel that there are issues that my constituency need to address and I plan on carrying out the procedure to have those addressed," Miller said.

Bennett, currently the student senate president, said that if he is re-elected, one of his priorities will be working on the goals that the senate is now working on. Bennett has been on the senate for two years and he said he believes he has the ability to be an effective senator.

"I can help my constituents through my knowledge of university structure and how things work and can be changed," Bennett said. "I can also help through my dedication to the students."

Kimberly D. Adkins, Huntington junior and candidate for off-campus senator.

Adkins believes she should be a senator because she represents different realms of people. She realizes the lack of communication between the students and the senate and hopes to do something about it. "I think student government needs to reach out to more people," Adkins said. "I feel I can do that because I am involved with different people."

Webb could not be contacted for candidate information.

MU—bound student dies in car crash

A 19-year-old Marshall University sophomore was killed in an automobile accident Tuesday on her way to night class.

Annette Louise Hanes of Point Pleasant was involved in a two-car accident at 5:47 p.m. on Route 2 near Glenwood, according to a spokesperson for the Mason County Sheriff's office.

Two passengers in the Hanes car, who are also Marshall students, were injured.

Walter Fluharty, 28, and his wife Mary Fluharty, 26, were listed in stable condition in Pleasant Valley Hospital. Both are being treated for multiple injuries.

The driver of the other vehicle was treated and released from the hospital, the spokesperson said.

Hanes, daughter of Josephine Hanes of Point Pleasant, was a full-time student taking four night classes a week.

How will Cooley compare to other cagers?

Comparison time. Today's subject: Derrick Cooley, the latest to verbally commit to play basketball at MU. "DePaul was recruiting him as another Mark Aguirre," Coach Rick Huckabay said. "He is like Aguirre in that he can put the ball on the floor, through his legs and all, and then hit the jumper. Or he can take it to the hole and jam it on you."

Craig Miller, Cooley's coach at Hayes High School in Birmingham, Ala., likened him to Charles Barkley, formerly of Auburn.

"He has the explosive jumping ability like Barkley," Miller said. "Both are real strong around the basket, too. I think Derrick is a better shooter than Charles, though."

Huckabay also put into perspective Cooley's jumping ability — said to be 40-inches in vertical measurement.

"Darrell Griffith (of Louisville) had a jump of something like 42 inches and you know what kind of leaper he was," he said. "That shows you how well Derrick can leap."

One faculty member and longtime Herd follower could recall only one possible Marshall player with similar ability, Frank Steele. Steele last lettered in 1978.

Cooley will spend most of his senior year in high school around the basket, Miller said.

"I'll have him inside most of the time," he said. "I'll move him out some but if he's around the glass and a shot is missed, he'll get most of the rebounds."

Miller stops just short of saying this year's Hayes team is stacked. Along with Cooley, two other players have been recruited on the Division I level. He also says this team may be better than the state championship squad Cooley played on as a freshman.

The rap on Cooley has been that he lacks intensity. Miller acknowledged this.

"There used to be time that Derrick would play hard for a few minutes then let up a little," Miller said. "But in college he will have to play hard all the time and I think he realizes that. I don't have any misgivings about what his intensity will be on the college level."

On the homefront there is some bad news. Sam Ervin, who was to switch from forward to guard, is hobbled with a knee injury that will keep him inactive for "up to six weeks," Huckabay said.

Huckabay said he doesn't think the injury will hinder the anticipated position change, though.

"Sam has the offensive skills to be a guard, the thing we were concerned about was whether he could pick up an opposing guard full-court on defense," he said. "But Sam has lost about 15 pounds since last season so I don't think defense will be a problem."

Of course Huckabay said the injury is unfortunate. "Sam has been so injury prone, we were hoping he had all of them out of his system."

Leskie Pinson

The word is that Sam might have to wear a knee brace like the one Charles Jones used to wear.

The recruiting road for Jerry Lee Pryor has become a great deal more difficult.

"His high school coach, who schedules all his visits, lost his job recently," Huckabay said. "When that happened he cancelled all of Jerry Lee's visits and is making new ones. It's going to hard for us to get one now."

Huckabay said the coach, who might be looking for a job along the way, is having his head turned by schools like Clemson and Georgia.

Huckabay has said the 6-foot-9 Pryor is in the Tom Curry mode. And Curry is compared to almost everyone, most recently Wayman Tidsdale of Oklahoma.

No. 8 Kriek faces 18-year-old opponent

Pro tennis stars to play for local charity

By David Miller
Reporter

A charity tennis tournament to help support local organizations will be played at the Henderson Center this weekend.

The tournament is being sponsored by the Barboursville Rotary Club, tournament chairman Sam Musa said.

Two singles matches and, if time permits, a doubles match will be played Saturday. Johann Kriek, ranked #8 in the world, will play 18 year-old David Jensen, ranked #1 on the Junior Tennis circuit, in the first match. The second match will put Scott Davis, ranked #20 against Mel Percell, ranked #59.

On Sunday, the finals and a consolation match between the losers of the previous matches will be played.

The money earned by the Rotary Club from the tournament will go to charities which are primarily youth oriented, Musa said.

The Huntington Tennis Youths Organization, the Huntington Galleries, and the Ronald McDonald House were charities named. The Sheriff's Drug Hotline, which will help young people who are having problems with drug abuse and do not want to be identified, will also benefit from the tournament.

The goal is set at $10,000. The cost to attend the tournament is $15 for both days with main seating, $10 for only one day and main seating, $5 for general admission, and $3 for Marshall students.

Any fraternity or sorority that wants to attend as a group can contact him before Saturday and receive a special discount, Musa said. Any information about the tournament can be obtained by calling Musa at 522-9672.

STADIUM

The on-campus site around the existing track (favored by the Big Green Foundation) was struck down by the committee, according to the Dispatch article.

"This location was found to be too small for a satisfactory stadium, not suitable for future expansion, and would eliminate the possibility of expanding Henderson Center to provide additional seats for basketball," the article reported.

The architects' preliminary study reportedly shows cost estimates of $18,645,000 for a 25,000-seat stadium located across 20th Street from campus. This figure includes funds for land acquisition.

The architectural firm conducting the feasibility study is expected to submit its final report to the BOR Nov. 26.

The 1984 Homecoming queen and her court will be selected in conjunction with Student Government Senate elections today, according to Randy C. Vance, Canvas junior and chairman of the Homecoming queen committee.

The polls will be set up in the lobby of Twin Towers West and the Memorial Student Center. Students may cast their votes from 9 a.m. until 6:30 p.m.

Two ballots will be given to students, so the votes for Homecoming queen and her court can be counted separately from the Senate votes, said Vance.

The winners will be announced Monday at noon on the plaza of the Memorial Student Center.

This year's Homecoming queen will be crowned by President Dale F. Nitzschke. Stan P. Parrish, head football coach, will be master of ceremonies.

The 13 Homecoming finalists may campaign for the elections. Finalists may spend an unlimited amount of money on campaigning, said Vance, because there are no rules to comply with.

The senior finalists are: Sandra F. Darlington, Martinsburg; Robin R. Hill, Winfield; Diana K. Null, Huntington; and Denise M. Schrimsher, Brandon, Fla.

The junior finalists are: Anne D. Harman, New Martinsville; India J. Smith, Dupont; and Lorie A. Wyant, Ironton, Ohio.

The sophomore finalists are: Sherri L. Dunn, Washington, W.Va.; Bonnie J. Sidler, Apple Grove, W.Va.; and Tracey L. Utt, Parkersburg.

The freshman finalists are: Andrea J. Meland, Marlinton, N.J.; Lisa M. Queen, Clarksburg; and Kristina C. White, Nitro.
