Music, comedy featured today

By Julie B. Caldwell
Reporter

Today's Homecoming activities run the gamut from dance music to light opera, beginning this morning on the Memorial Student Center plaza.

Mr. Entertainer will be on the plaza at 11:30 a.m. with his music machine, to set the stage for the New World Comedy Show at noon.

New World performances include political satire about national and state issues, according to Nancy L. Gard, chairwoman of weekday events.

New World theater is dedicated to the idea of making theater accessible to all people, Gard said.

The group has a repertoire of four original shows for any audience, Gard said, and their stories deal with the future.

"They are story tellers of the Space Age," she said.

New World blends the skills of magic, juggling, comedy and fire-eating in their performance, Gard said.

The group of West Virginia natives acquires inspiration from many sources, Gard said, like the circus, cinema, literature, legends and magic.

"Magic plays a major role in the company's work," she said.

The group also holds workshops in mime, movement, juggling and improvisational acting.

The Marshall Artists Series presents at 8 p.m. a musical twist on the old Cinderella story - an English-language opera.

Rossini's "La Cenerentola" is almost, but not quite, the original Cinderella story. In this Italian play performed in English, Cinderella loses a bracelet instead of her glass slipper.

Censors of the early 19th century forbade the showing of a lady's ankle on stage, according to Nancy Hindsley, coordinator of the Artists Series. So at midnight Cinderella leaves her bracelet behind as she scurries home.

"Told in broad, comic strokes, the opera is a prime example of Italian opera buffa," Hindsley said. Buffa is a light comedic opera.

Performed by young, talented artists, the opera flows lyrically with memorable tunes and dazzling vocal ensembles, Hindsley said.

The opera will be performed at the Keith-Albee Theater on Fourth Avenue.

Hindsley said she recommends "La Cenerentola" as a good first opera and compares it to works by Gilbert and Sullivan.

Tickets to the opera are free in Memorial Student Center Room 1W23 to all full-time Marshall students with a validated ID and activity card.

Characters in the light comedic opera "La Cenerentola" rejoice over the news of an impending marriage. The opera, presented as part of the Marshall Artists Series, will be performed at 8 p.m. tonight in the Keith-Albee Theater.

Election rerun: SGA officials stress ballot issue

From Staff Reports

Polls will open at 8 a.m. in the lobbies of the Memorial Student Center and Twin Towers West for today's Student Senate election, which was rescheduled after last week's election was declared invalid by the election commission.

To vote, students must present a validated Marshall ID and activity card. The polls will remain open until 6:30 p.m.

Mistakes on last week's ballot and improper election procedures led the election commission to invalidate the election.

SGA officials said they hope voters will take seriously the constitutional amendment which prohibits students on disciplinary probation from participating in student government.

Officially, no student on disciplinary probation can now hold office in student government, according to Tammy L. Rice, student body vice president. Nevertheless, students on probation can get their names placed on the ballot by appeal to the Student Conduct and Welfare Committee.

However, if voters pass the probation bill in the senate election, no student on disciplinary probation will be allowed to hold office through any channel, Rice said.

The probation bill would undermine the role of Donna Preston, coordinator of student conduct and welfare, according to Mark D. Rhodes, student body president.

Preston, under powers granted by the Board of Regents, can allow a student who has committed an offense to hold office. The probation bill would remove this power, Rhodes said.

According to Rice, denying access of office to students on disciplinary probation would create an "ivory tower effect," in which SGA members set themselves above the students and become an "exclusionary" body.

But Senator David C. Romine, Huntington senior, disagreed.

"When someone breaks a law, the rights of students are infringed upon," Romine said. "The ivory tower effect is allowing students to break laws and get away with it."

Senator James C. Musser, Catlettsburg, Ky., sophomore, agreed. He called the probation issue an "ethic of government," saying that the administration would be more open to the ideas of a student government whose members had a "clean record."

"How can we have influence with the people in power if we appear as being less than the people we represent?" he asked.

UMW construction workers reject pact

CHARLESTON — Coal mine construction workers belonging to the United Mine Workers union have rejected a contract calling for an estimated $100 a week in concessions, a newspaper reported Tuesday.

The Charleston Daily Mail, quoting unidentified officials from the union's largest district, reported that the UMW's construction arm turned down the tentative pact with the Association of Bituminous Contractors 4-1.

Charleston-based District 17 officials said the contract was rejected in their jurisdiction 121-5 in voting Monday. About one-fourth of the UMW's construction workers are in District 17.

Leaders of construction locals have accused union leaders of failing to represent them adequately, both during the current negotiations and in 1981, when the union staged a 72-day strike.

"We've never gotten a fair shake out of the international, ever," Tom Toler, president of UMW Local 1582, said last week. His local represents about 1,700 southern West Virginia coal mine construction workers, most of whom are laid off.

The union says it represents about 8,000 mine construction workers but that three-fourths of them have been laid off, many for lengthy periods.

AIDS contamination feared

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP) — The American Red Cross regional office in Huntington is contacting patients who could have been given a blood-clotting substance now being recalled because a donor had AIDS, officials said Tuesday.

Red Cross officials say it is not known if the recalled material is capable of transmitting AIDS, which destroys the body's immune system.

They announced Monday that two lots of Antihemophilic Factor (AHF), a clotting substance given to hemophiliacs, were being recalled as a precautionary measure.

The Huntington office, which serves most of the southern Tri-State, received an undetermined number of bottles bearing the second lot number, Dr. Mabel Stevenson said.

The blood of 20,000 donors was used to make the batch of AHF, that went into the suspect lots. One of the donors later was diagnosed as having AIDS symptoms.

Fraudulent solicitors jailed

FAIRMONT — Three Ohio men accused of passing themselves off as fund raisers for sickle cell anemia research have been charged with obtaining money by fraud and false pretenses, Fairmont Police Chief Wayne Stutler said Tuesday.

Jameel Muhammad, 36, Abdullah Muhammad, 42, and Harold Freeman, 38, all of Warren, Ohio, are being held in the Marion County Jail in lieu of $15,000 bond each, Stutler said. They were arrested Saturday.

The men had applied for a solicitation permit for the Sickle Cell Anemia Association on Friday, but Stutler said checks with Ohio and Pittsburgh offices, which cover West Virginia, showed that the men were not associated with the organization.

"We seized about $1,000 as evidence in connection with the case," the police chief said.

Shuttle astronauts praise ground control

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Challenger commander Robert Crippen praised specialists on the ground Tuesday for the "wonderful job" they have done in helping to overcome a number of technical problems and enable his crew to carry out its scientific mission.

"We've had a number of problems," Crippen told a news conference, answering questions from Earth as Challenger orbited 145 miles overhead. "Most of it has been stuff the ground has had to deal with, and Mission Control has certainly done a wonderful job."

Crippen referred particularly to antenna problems that temporarily blocked data from being sent to Earth from a radar camera. "We now are getting good data," he said, describing Challenger as "a marvelous ship."

A television picture showed the five men and two women floating happily in the cabin as they fielded questions.

The press conference was international, with questions relayed from reporters in Sydney, Australia, and NASA's Johnson Space Center in Houston.

Earlier today, Crippen repaired the ship's air conditioning, and the crew welcomed a cool blast of air after being subjected to 90-degree temperatures for two days.

Man critically burns wife

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A man doused his wife with gasoline and set her afire, critically burning her, just half an hour after watching a television movie about an abused wife who burned her husband to death, authorities said Tuesday.

"He told us he watched the show and decided to scare his wife with fire," an arresting officer reported in a police complaint.

The 37-year-old victim, whose name was not released, was in critical condition today with third-degree burns over 95 percent of her body, police said.

The man, 39, who was also not identified, was arrested shortly after splashing gasoline on the woman Monday night and using a cigarette lighter to ignite it, police Capt. Dan Koprowski said. No charges were filed against him immediately.

The woman's sons, aged 11 and 13, told a reporter Tuesday that their father had watched the NBC made-for-TV movie "The Burning Bed." The movie depicted the true story of a battered wife in Michigan who killed her husband by setting his bed on fire.

Congress fails to adjourn

WASHINGTON — Like students facing an endless school year, unhappy legislators who would rather be home campaigning returned instead to Capitol Hill Tuesday to continue an election-year session they had hoped would adjourn last week.

"Father in Heaven, we are here under duress, but we imposed this on ourselves," the Rev. Richard C. Halverson, the Senate chaplain, prayed at the opening of the Senate's session today.

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., seconded the sentiments of the prayer, saying the chaplain "has never been more right than he is today."

Baker added, "We're not out today. We're probably not going to be out tomorrow."

Rebels accept talks with Duarte regime

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — El Salvador's leftist guerrilla groups today announced they have accepted a proposal by President Jose Napoleon Duarte for peace talks next week.

"Taking into account the deepening of the war and the worsening of the regional situation, the FMLN and FDR express their intention to attend to discuss the Salvadoran crisis in its globality and present proposals for the same," the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, or FMLN, said in a broadcast over its clandestine Radio Venceremos.

The front is a coalition of five guerrilla groups that have been fighting for power for the past five years. The FDR, or Democratic Revolutionary Front, includes more than a dozen outlawed leftist political parties and movements, and has been in coalition with the National Liberation Front.

In a speech before the United Nations on Monday, Duarte proposed that the talks begin Oct. 15 at La Palma, a small town in guerrilla-controlled territory 51 miles north of San Salvador and six miles from the Honduran border.

Duarte reiterated his offer at a news conference in New York City later in the day, and the government in San Salvador released nine prominent leftist political prisoners as a gesture of goodwill.

The Radio Venceremos broadcast, monitored in San Salvador, said La Palma was an acceptable site for the conference and urged government forces not to initiate any action in the area until further notice.

Arab boycott of Egypt ends

AMMAN, JORDAN — King Hussein greeted President Hosni Mubarak of Egypt with an embrace, a red carpet and a cannon salute on Tuesday, two weeks after Jordan broke ranks with Arab hardliners and restored diplomatic relations with Egypt.

It is the first trip to Jordan by an Egyptian president since the late Anwar Sadat signed a 1979 peace treaty with Israel and Mubarak's first official state visit to an Arab country since he became president three years ago when Sadat was assassinated.

The meeting is an attempt to seal a rapprochement between the desert kingdom of Jordan and the largest Arab state, and perhaps will include discussions on negotiations toward a Middle East peace.

Hard-line Arab countries such as Syria and Libya have assailed Jordan's decision to restore relations with Egypt. Jordan in 1979 followed 17 other Arab nations in breaking ties to Egypt after the Egypt-Israeli peace treaty.

But on Sept. 25 Hussein announced Jordan would resume relations. The action was considered a breakthrough in Egypt's efforts to rejoin the Arab fold, and Egyptian officials hope other countries such as Iraq will follow Jordan's lead.

The last Egyptian leader to visit Jordan was Sadat, who came in 1977 shortly before his historic visit to Jerusalem. Since becoming president after Sadat's assassination Oct. 6, 1981, Mubarak visited Saudi Arabia in 1982 to offer condolences on the death of King Khaled, but it was not regarded as a state visit.

Legislators' visit offers a chance to voice needs

Marshall University has an important chance to make an impression Thursday and Friday when members of the Legislative Subcommittee on Higher Education make their annual visit to campus.

This opportunity is of great significance for the future of the university and should not go unnoticed in the hoopla of Homecoming.

The legislators will meet with administrators, faculty, classified staff and students during their two-day stay at MU. Members of each university group must have a plan to voice their concerns to the lawmakers in a positive, unified manner.

To prevent mixed messages, President Dale F. Nitzschke should make sure that all groups meeting with the legislators have the same goals in mind. He is ultimately responsible for conveying the university's needs and priorities to the legislators.

As an intern in the Office of Public Information during the last legislative session, I learned that constituents who present the best case to the individual lawmakers get the most attention when time comes for the Legislature to deal with the issues. The higher education system as a whole must make a logical, convincing case as to why more funding is needed. Because the Legislature must make laws that govern and fund various entities around the state, its members cannot know everything about every problem. That is the purpose of the Legislative subcommittees: to go directly to the source and report on what is found.

The subcommittee visiting MU has the job of evaluating firsthand the status of the West Virginia higher education system. Marshall is one stop on a trip to all the state-funded colleges and universities.

The committee will undoubtedly present reports to the Education committees of both the Senate and the House of Delegates. For that reason alone, the various Marshall constituencies must be prepared to effectively outline the needs vital to the university's continued growth.

All too often, legislators come to the individual campuses seeking to gain a better understanding of the needs of higher education and end up hearing comments on internal matters over which they have no control. Or they hear people at Marshall whining about how West Virginia University gets everything it wants and Marshall gets the leftovers.

We must not fall into that pattern. Now is the time to organize, present a meaningful message and show the importance of higher education to the subcommittee and the people of West Virginia.

Commissioners clarify invalid election

To the Editor:

We, the election commission, would like to clarify why we declared the Student Government Elections of Oct. 4 invalid.

One reason was that on the ballots the students were instructed to vote for one of the candidates in each of the constituencies. This is in violation of Robert's Rules of Order Revised and the Marshall University Constitution. In the election rules there is no mention as to how election commissioners decide on how to instruct the students to vote. The election rules is the primary piece of information we operate by. Only when a mistake is made do we go to the other pieces of legislation for clarification. The Marshall University Constitution states in Article 1, Section 9, "All matters not covered in this constitution, or Senate Legislation shall be governed by Robert's Rules of Order Revised." Section 44 states that "if more than one person is to be elected to the same type of office the voters can indicate their order of preference among the names in a single list of candidates, just as if only one was to be elected, i.e. students have the right to vote for as many candidates to serve as there are positions open.

The second discrepancy was that the instructions of how to vote for or against the disciplinary probation constitutional amendment were unclear. These instructions were not wrong, they were politically correct but logically confusing.

Therefore, as election commissioners we had two choices. One choice was to let the results stand and hope no one who knew of the discrepancy would file a written notice within 24 hours of the election results being posted. The second choice was to declare the elections invalid and correct the mistakes and redo the election. We chose to go with our second choice. We picked it because we felt that the mistake was made to the disadvantage of the voting students and that the only fair way to correct it was take it back to the students.

At a special session of Senate held Sunday at 6:30 p.m., the Senate proposed and passed that the elections would be held again Wednesday, Oct. 10 from 8 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Students who are off-campus, commuter or University Heights will vote in the Memorial Student Center. Residence hall students will vote in Twin Towers West Lounge.

We hope that everyone who came out to vote will come out again. Those who didn't get out to vote, show up Wednesday.

Sincerely yours,
Cathy Fletcher

Senator angered by election mistakes

To the Editor:

After intently listening to Student Body President Mark Rhodes at Student Senate meetings and reading his comments and letter in The Parthenon about the mishandled SGA election, I've failed to hear him once say those two key words.

The words?

"I'm sorry."

In the voting instructions he personally wrote for the proposed constitutional amendment, Rhodes told students to vote against the amendment if they wanted it to pass.

In the instructions he personally wrote for the off-campus senate voting procedure, he told students to vote for one candidate. There were two seats open in this constituency.

This is the logic of our Student Body President. Can you follow it?

Let's face it. Rhodes' inexcusable mistakes, which were carried out unquestioningly by his election commission, ruined the election and dealt a major blow to the credibility of Student Government and everyone associated with it.

Rhodes says to just forget about it, let it blow over, and let him and his election commission run the election again. Then everything will be hunky dory in Student Government once again.

But I'm angry about this incredible display of ignorance and incompetence. I'm not going to let it blow over and I'm not willing to let the same people run the next election.

Don't Marshall students deserve better than this?

Richard Sullivan,
Student Senator

Homecoming dance switched to Friday

By Julie B. Caldwell
Reporter

This year the Homecoming dance will be held the night before the football team's home game with Appalachian State, according to Wadina F. Daniels, chairwoman of the Homecoming Dance Committee.

Daniels said no facility was available on Saturday night to accommodate the type of dance the committee wanted. Although the situation may be unfair to the football players, Daniels said she hopes the other activities planned for the weekend will make up for it.

Tickets for the Friday Homecoming dance at the Memorial Fieldhouse are on sale at the Ticket Office in the Memorial Student Center and in the residence halls. The dance is scheduled for 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Tickets are $6 per couple and $4 per person.

The Black United Students will give a dance for the team Saturday night, in the W. Don Morris Room of the student center. No band will perform at the dance, however music videos will be used, she said.

"HERD it through the grapevine" will also be used as the theme for Saturday's dance. Tickets will be $5 per couple and $3 per person.

Sororities and fraternities also usually hold separate dances the night of the game, which kept the Greek community from attending the university-wide dance, Daniels said. She said the change in nights should increase the number of students attending the dance by including members of the Greek community.

The singing group "The Maxx" will be performing at the dance. The band performs what they call "Sock Theater" — Soul/Rock Theater — often compared to live video, Daniels said. The group compares their act to the "theater of the absurd."

60-foot sandwich, kegs, highlight Saturday party

By Bill St.Clair
Reporter

Jim Black, owner of Jimbo's Carry Out and Frank's Sandwich Shop, has extended a welcome to all Marshall students and faculty to attend a Homecoming tailgate party he is helping to sponsor Saturday.

Black said Jimbo's has sponsored tailgates for the past three years and has sponsored one at every home game last year. This year, instead of having a smaller one every week, "I saved up to have one major one."

Black rounded up other sponsors and sent out 500

invitations for a special Homecoming event that he estimates will cost between $1,200 and $1,500.

"What I'm attempting to do is co-mingle students and townspeople together," Black said. He said the event has been planned around "things that will bring people together." These include a 60-foot submarine sandwich provided by Papa J's Southside Sandwich Shop, 10 kegs of beer, a Coca-Cola machine, and several free items like green carnations, "koolie kups," can huggers and painter caps.

Black said he expects a good turnout of students and faculty, and asked that students not to be offended if they are asked for their Marshall I.D. cards. He also requested students to "wear as much green as you can." The party will center around a green and white tent in Prindle Field on the west side of Fairfield Stadium. It will officially begin at 10 a.m. and last until game time at 1 p.m. The party will continue during halftime, and the final event will be the post-game victory celebration lasting until 5:30 p.m.

Other sponsors of the tailgate party are Archer's Flowers, A to Z Rental, and WAMX Radio. WAMX will be broadcasting live from the party, Black said.

"I've done this type of thing for three years," Black commented. "Marshall all these years has never had a winning team. Certainly the fact the Herd is winning this year hasn't dampened our spirits any, and in fact might serve as the catalyst for the party."

Cast of 'Camelot': experienced on stage

By James B. Wade, Jr.
Reporter

The Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Lowe musical "Camelot" will be presented Oct. 17-21 by the Marshall University Departments of Music and Theatre.

The musical, which tells the legendary story of King Arthur, features a cast with experience on the MU stage and on professional theatre stages.

King Arthur will be portrayed by Dwayne Johnson, Winfield sophomore. This is Johnson's sixth show at MU.

Johnson said he performed professionally this summer at "Lost Colony" in Nags Head, N.C. However, he said Arthur is "the most into a part I have ever been. Everyone is excited about it (Camelot)."

Guenevere, Camelot's female lead, will be portrayed by two different actresses, according to Elaine A. Novak, professor of the Department of Theatre/Dance.

Novak, who has been directing MU productions since 1956, said the part was double-cast because of past experiences with leads getting sick or hurt. She said double-casting was insurance that if one actress cannot perform, the other could.

"We have been scared in the past by our leads getting sick," she said, "and this was just a precaution."

The female lead will be played by Yvea A. Duncan, Logan senior, and Katherine K. Kirk, Haymarket, Va., senior.

Duncan, who said she has acted or worked in almost every show at MU in the last four years, will portray Guenevere in the Thursday, Saturday and Sunday performances.

Duncan, a first-year music major studying voice, worked professionally the last two summers with Theatre West Virginia. She portrayed Rose-Ann McCoy in "The Hatfields and McCoy's" and Diana Talbot in the company's production of "Honey in the Rock," as well as other professional roles.

Kirk will portray Guenevere in the Wednesday and Friday performances, and is also a music-voice major.

Kirk, who worked in the same Theatre West Virginia productions as Duncan this summer, said she is a soloist with several local choirs including the Johnson Memorial Methodist Church Choir.

"I think it's going to be good," Kirk said about the production of "Camelot." This is her second theatrical performance at MU. Her first was as Sister Margarita in the production of "The Sound Of Music," she said.

"As far as being double-cast," Kirk said, "I think it is good that we both get the chance to play such a good role." She also said being double-cast has made the part more difficult, because the two actresses have to share rehearsal time.

The third lead part, Lancelot, will be portrayed by Joe Chrest, St. Albans junior. He said this is his ninth MU production.

Chrest worked this summer in professional theatre at Jenny Wiley State Park in Kentucky. He said he portrayed Potiphar in the production of "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" and had roles in the productions of "Annie" and "Fiddler on the Roof."

All performances of "Camelot" will be in Old Main Auditorium starting at 8 p.m., excluding the Sunday performance, which will be at 2 p.m.

Tickets for the show are available between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. at the Department of Theatre/Dance Box Office in Old Main Room B-23. Tickets are $4, but MU students, faculty and staff can buy tickets for $3.50 if purchased prior to 4 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 17.

Reservations and additional information may be obtained from Susie Dolan, manager of the Theatre Box Office, at 696-2306.

Birke showing works of artistic 'genius' Fuller

By James B. Wade, Jr.
Reporter

"A Complex of Jitterbugs" is only a part of R. Buckminster Fuller's work being exhibited in the Birke Art Gallery through Oct. 29.

The exhibit, which includes signed prints from his "Inventions: Twelve Around One" portfolio, is on loan from the Carl Solway Gallery in Cincinnati, Ohio. Being a friend of Fuller, Solway assembled the comprehensive exhibit in 1981 before Fuller's death.

Solway will be at the Birke Art Gallery on Thursday, Oct. 25 at 7 p.m. to discuss the exhibit. The talk is free and open to all with a reception following.

Michael I. Cornfeld, director of the Birke Art Gallery, said, "I think this is one of the most important exhibits we've ever had in the gallery. I think Buckminster Fuller is an acknowledged genius of the 20th Century and with the exception of Harry Bertoiane (the artist whose works opened the gallery) is probably the most important person we've shown."

"What I find very exciting about Buckminster Fuller's work is that he combined engineering, math, architecture and art all in one person and in all his works," he said.

Cornfeld said he hoped the diversity of the exhibit would bring more people to see it. He said students in all fields of study will enjoy Fuller's works.

"He saw in the idea of structure," Cornfeld said, "the relationship between the organic structures grown in nature and the inorganic structures he created. His structures are based on the analysis and comparison of the organic and the inorganic."

"He was a man that did not think in one direction. If any person was a 20th Century Renaissance man, he was," Cornfeld said.

The gallery, located on the first floor of Smith Hall, is open weekdays from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m., Saturday from 1 p.m. until 4 p.m. and Mondays 7 p.m. until 9 p.m.

Soccer team hits the road

By Jim Weldemoyer

Off to the quickest start in Marshall University soccer history, Coach Jack DeFazio and his 7-2 squad travel to Marietta (Ohio) College tonight for a contest with a tough Pioneer squad sporting an equally impressive 8-1-1 mark.

"Marietta is very tough. They should be a good challenge," DeFazio said, "This game should check our character, whether we can rebound from a tough loss to Appalachian State.

"We did not play well at Appy in the first half but we came out in the second half determined. We really worked well and dominated them in the final half."

Going into last weekend's action, Marshall was ranked ninth in the Mid Atlantic Region collegiate soccer ratings. However, with the loss to ASU the Herd is virtually eliminated from any conference playoff action since their conference record now stands 1-2.

"The character of this team has it striving to go 16-2 or 15-3. We can show a lot by moving up in the regional rankings," Junior captain Brad Puryear said. "I think everyone will give 100 percent toward that goal."

The Marietta game is the soccer team's only action this week before a tough game Saturday afternoon at home against Radford University. That contest will immediately follow the homecoming football game.

An inch is all he wants, he says

Jim Weldemoyer
Staff Writer

Barely over 5 feet 6 inches tall, he asks that on soccer game programs 5 feet 7 inches be listed as his height.

Joseph

asks for nothing else come game time. Everything else he earns with quickness, hustle, and determination.

Born in London, England, Joseph - a quiet young man with a quick wit - has played soccer since he was old enough to walk.

While studying at an American school in London, he decided to get the total American experience by moving to Delaware where his brother lived.

Recruited as a forward, Joseph was one of eight highly respected freshmen on the young, building Marshall squad his first year.

"I saw a lot of action my first year but then I started slacking off and gained a lot of weight," explained the computer science major. "My game really slowed down."

Thanks to a new program he found just this summer, Joseph now has slimmed down, feels better about himself, and has improved his game.

"Through the Herbalife program, I feel healthier and lighter. Now those runs in Ritter Park are a joy," commented the fullback. "I have regained that incentive and desire to work that I used to have."

Head Coach Jack DeFazio has noticed the change in Joseph's game.

"A lot was expected of Pat as a freshman. As a sophomore, he put on some weight which slowed him down. He played very inconsistently last year,"

Bring on Huck's Herd, break out the ice cream

This is going to be the official logo for the Marshall basketball team this season. It was designed toward the end of last season by Don McCloud of Dan's Sporting Goods.

"The University of Houston has one a little like this," he said. "We talked the idea over and came up with a little from here and a little from there."

If there is a record for tonsillectomies by a basketball team (season), the Herd is off to a good start to break it.

Sam Ervin and Rodney Holden seem set to have their tonsils out some time soon. Holden, a freshman, said his throat is swollen on both sides, while Ervin is battling tonsillitis for the second time in a year.

Ervin is more concerned with his knee injury that he said is "feeling a lot better." It's his right knee that is giving him a pronounced limp and will keep him out of Sunday's Midnight Special.

Don't be confused, the special will actually be 12:01 a.m. Monday, but if you're going, plan on it for Sunday. Better yet, show up at 11 p.m. and catch Coach Judy Southard putting the Lady Herd through its paces.

On the women's side, Kim Mudge will be sporting an injury. The 5-foot-6 guard has a black eye that she received from a recent car accident. She also had a concussion to go with the shiner but says she is back to 100 percent now and ready to practice.

Leskie Pinson

There had been some thought that Tom Curry was going to have surgery on his nose to cure a nasal blockage that hinders his breathing. Now it appears he will wait until the season is over.

The problem with hindered breathing is that it can affect stamina but the 6-foot-9 Curry said he doesn't suffer in this regard.

"Coach said it was my decision and I said I can be in shape without the operation," Curry said. "It has never bothered me before."

Curry, who was a high school All-America selection, can be eligible Dec. 15 and is confident he will be. He passed 14 credit hours last spring and said he is "doing real well" in the 13 hours he has this semester. The magic number for eligibility is 24.

MU bowling team axed due to lack of interest

By Burke Hunt
Reporter

The Marshall bowling team has been consistently ranked among the nations top 20 college teams over the last ten years, but it no longer competes because of a lack of student interest, according to Bernie Elliot, head coach of the team.

The team belonged to the Southern Intercollegiate Bowling Association

(SIBA), the largest collegiate conference in the world.

Graduation losses hurt the bowling team, Elliot said, "and we were unable to get tryout information to students through local newspapers." Roster defections included two players, Zeke Davis and Tony Knight, to the Professional Bowlers Association and one, Casey Robinson, to the Pro-Amateur circuit.

Elliot said in nine of the last ten years Marshall had advanced to the final 60 teams of the national tournament, which begins with over 2800 teams. In 1977, MU went to the finals and placed 12th in the country.

Elliot said the bowling schedule can be tough for students. Members of the team paid their own expenses during the season, including transportation to tournament and conference matches. The schedule included tournaments at West Virginia University, Penn State University, the University of Maryland and the Presidents Cup Tournament in Vincennes, Ind. The conference schedule calls for home and home matches with other SIBA member schools.

Elliot said ten women and ten men made up the roster of the team. Tournament competition is played on a total points format while conference competition is match play.

It's too late for Marshall to enter conference play, which began in September and extends to April. But according to Elliot, a Student Center league could be formed with at least 30-40 bowlers. If a team is formed, it could compete in tournaments and rejoin the conference starting next season.

DeFazio said. "This year he has decided to show everyone what he can do."

At the fullback position, Joseph offers Marshall speed plus the knowledge and experience needed to initiate an attack on the opposing team.

With his mother in Huntington for a brief visit, Joseph has all the incentive one could have. This certainly must be a key factor in his improved performance this season, assisting the Herd to their best start in the program's six year history.

Despite his size, Pat Joseph has made considerable contributions to the squad through his hard work and quiet leadership and by attempting to set a good example.

Speech team emphasizes communication skills

By Kimberly Harbour
Reporter

Wanted: Students who enjoy traveling and making new friends while learning a variety of communication skills. Interested students can gain these experiences by joining the Individual Events Team. No experience is required.

"We're looking for a few good people," Dr. William Denman would say if he placed this as a classified ad. The associate professor of speech is the faculty sponsor of the team.

Denman said the team is open to all full-time undergraduates who can join the team by coming to any of their 3:30 p.m. meetings held every Wednesday in Smith Hall Room 255.

Denman said competitions involving public speaking provide the main activities for the team.

"Categories of competition include prepared speeches to persuade, analyze or inform. Other categories involve unprepared speaking, such as extemporaneous and impromptu," he said. "The final type of speaking involves the delivery of selections from literature; including prose, poetry and dramatic monologues and dialogues."

Denman said students sharpen their communication skills by participating in the speaking events.

"Participation is especially valuable to students studying for career fields which require effective communication skills, such as law," he said. "Students learn how to organize and deliver speeches, but most importantly, they learn to think on their feet."

Denman said the competitions are normally held on weekends at other universities.

Students are limited to eight semesters of competition with the team, he said, adding that students who reach the limit often act as coaches for the new members.

Ed Heaberlin, Huntington senior, said because of this policy he will sit out this semester and coach.

"I have participated in the team for seven semesters and want to participate during the spring semester, my last before I graduate, so I'm sitting out this fall," Heaberlin said.

He said students get evaluations of their speaking in competition which are very helpful in correcting problems.

MU Foundation elects president

By Robert McCarty
Reporter

The 1984-85 president of the Marshall University Foundation, Inc., was elected at a meeting of the Foundation's Board of Directors recently.

William F. Agee, senior vice president and trust officer of the First Huntington National Bank, was elected to the post after the Foundation's annual gathering at the Gateway Holiday Inn.

Elected first vice president was William C. Campbell, Huntington insurance executive. Noel P. Copen, Huntington attorney, was named second vice president.

The MU Foundation solicits funds from private corporations and individuals for use by the university's Office of Development to fund faculty and student programs.

More than $1.9 million has been contributed this year for programs including the Oral History of Appalachia project, National Merit and Honor Day, String Music scholarships and alcohol awareness seminars, according to Dr. Bernard Queen, former director of development.

Re-elected to the Foundation's Board of Directors were Mrs. William D. Birke, Patrick R. McDonald, Robert W. Simmons and William A. Thompson. Marshall T. Reynolds was selected as a new member.
