■ CONVOCATION

Scholars discuss globalizing education

By Neil Stratton
Reporter

An address by a noted historian and a convocation of prominent scholars highlighted a day of higher learning at Joan C. Edwards Playhouse Thursday.

The address and convocation were part of the first Drinko Symposium, which started at 11 a.m. The symposium is in honor of John Deaver and Elizabeth G. Drinko, sponsors of an endowment program to bring outstanding scholars to Marshall University.

Dr. Trevor Wilson, history professor emeritus at Adelaide University in Australia, delivered the address that served as a prelude to the convocation. In his speech, titled "Typecasting Modern Wars: Some Thoughts about the Civil War, World War I, and World War II," he tried to dispel myths about the three major conflicts.

Wilson said that the attitude that the Civil War was unjust is unfounded.

"Did not the states of the South in 1860 have the same right to secede from the Union as did the Union when it seceded from Great Britain in the American Revolutionary War?" Wilson asked. "Although one side was of a view that might be considered less than honorable, for the most part the Civil War was one of right against right."

The convocation, titled "The Globalization of Higher Education," began at 2 p.m.

Dr. George McGovern, former U.S. senator from South Dakota and the Democratic presidential nominee in 1972, was among the six former Drinko professors present at the convocation. He said he advocated making exchange programs a more viable economic proposition for stu-

McGovern lightens the mood

Dr. George McGovern lightened the mood Thursday when he alluded to a comment by Dr. Anthony Broh, 1987 Drinko Professor.

Broh remarked he had a dubious ability to predict the outcome of higher education globalization, given the fact that he had predicted Gov. Michael Dukakis' victory, 1988 Democratic presidential nominee, during his tenure at Marshall.

McGovern said he was little more clairvoyant than Broh.

"I once thought George McGovern would ascend to the presidency," he said. "Like you, I was wrong."

Broh then pulled out a 1972 "McGovern for President" campaign button from his breast pocket and pinned it on his own lapel.

"I missed that one, too," Broh said.

Gilley: Student fee increases will not be used for raises

By Katherine Lawson
Reporter

Full-time students may have to pay $50 to $100 more per semester next fall.

A three percent increase for non-residents and a five percent increase for residents may be implemented for the 1994 fall semester. The proposed raises to help pay bills will cost residents $20 and non-residents $40.

Also, there are plans to increase the activities fee $10 to pay for prescription drugs for students and to add a new fee of $20 for residents and $40 for non-residents to pay for library and computer improvements.

Full time residents now pay $941 a semester and non-residents pay $2,573.

President J. Wade Gilley said the fee increases will not go to faculty and staff pay raises, though there is approximately a $300,000 shortfall between what the legislature appropriated and what is needed.

"We will not pass the salary increases mandated by the legislature on to the students through fees."

J. Wade Gilley
MU President

"We will not pass the salary increases mandated by the legislature on to the students through fees," Gilley said.

The legislature appropriated $5.4 million for across-the-board faculty and staff raises at all state-supported colleges and universities. This is only 70 percent of what is needed to provide the $1,000 pay increase for all faculty and the $750 increase for staff employees.

Gilley said the University and College Systems of West Virginia needs another $2 million.

"We will have to find some extra money," he said.

Gilley said the university administrators plan to leave several unfilled positions open in order to have enough to cover the raises, which will amount to about $1 million at Marshall.

"We're going to have a staff reduction to pay for the salary increase," Gilley said.

Gilley said fee increases are not unique to Marshall. He said fees at Marshall are not as high as at other state colleges and universities.

"Marshall is sixth in the state in student fees," Gilley said.

He said that other state colleges and universities also plan to increase fees four or five percent.

"I anticipate that we will still be sixth after the increase is implemented. Marshall is still a bargain," Gilley said.

Wounding charges dropped because of lack of evidence

By Brian Bailey
Reporter

Malicious wounding charges against two Marshall football players were dropped Wednesday after a Cabell County magistrate determined there was not enough probable cause to send the case to the grand jury.

"It was just a fist fight—not enough to call it malicious," Magistrate Johnnie Ray Rice said.

John H. Duncan, 19, Middle-town, Ohio sophomore, and Thomas V. Moore, 23, Beckley senior, were accused of beating Brandon Paxton, 20, Huntington sophomore, last month.

Six witnesses spoke at a hearing Wednesday, four on behalf of Duncan and Moore, and two for Paxton.

The case stems from an altercation March 13 in the 1000 block of 4 1/2 Alley between the Bank One parking lot and Daddy's Money. Paxton told police that he and two friends had been driving down 4 1/2 Alley when his car was bumped from behind by another vehicle. Paxton was confronted by two individuals who struck him in the head and knocked him to the ground after he pulled into the parking lot, according to a story in the March 21 Herald-Dispatch. Paxton was treated at Cabell Huntington Hospital for cuts on his face, head and right ear.

Prosecutor's office officials said the case is being reviewed.

Roger Smith, assistant prosecuting attorney, said the prosecutor's office was "taking another look at the facts surrounding the case and a decision will be made in the future regarding the case."

Paxton, the son of Delegate Brady Paxton, D-Putnam, had no comment Thursday.

Duncan was unavailable for comment.

Annual Greek Week begins Sunday

By David K. Sowards
Reporter

Fraternity and sorority members are gearing up for a week of unity, competition and community service as the annual Greek Week celebration begins Sunday with Greek Sing.

Greek Sing will feature 13 fraternities and sororities competing for the most creative and original presentation of songs.

Greek Sing begins at 1 p.m. in the Don Morris Room at the Memorial Student Center. A donation will be taken at the door with proceeds going to the March of Dimes.

Greek Week, with the theme "No Matter the Letter, We're all Greek Together" begins Sunday.

The American Red Cross bloodmobile will visit the Campus Christian Center Tuesday and Wednesday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. as part of Greek Week. There will be a drawing each day for an MU T-shirt or sweat shirt and a competition throughout the residence hall floors for the largest number of donors. The blood drive goal is 90 donors a day.

"We need every healthy individual to participate in the blood program to meet patients' needs in the 32 hospitals and 31 counties we serve," said Joy Curry, director of public relations for Tri-State Region Blood Services.

Members of the Greek community will donate their labor at the Fairland East Elementary School to help build a playground.

A T-shirt design will go to benefit Branches Domestic Violence Shelter. Each chapter will create a design. Students can vote for the design they like by donating pennies to a particular chapter.

Andy Hermansdorfer, coordinator of Greek Affairs, said the purpose of Greek Week is to promote unity among Greeks and combine their community service efforts.

Alpha Chi Omega member Valicia Hill said the theme "No Matter the Letter, We're All Greek Together," captures the meaning of the week.

"In the past years Greek Week has focused more on the competition, on winning and losing," Hill said. "This year we want to promote unity among Greeks and project to the community and to the university the positive side of the Greek system that is sometimes ignored."

Library officials call Fine Free Day a success

By Annette J. Ditzler
Reporter

Library patrons saved as little as 10 cents to as much as $200.45 when they turned in books on Fine Free Day March 15.

Library staff released the statistics on Fine Free Day this week. In all, 305 items were returned by 145 people.

Most fines were $1-$2, but the second largest category was in the more than $10.01 range.

Library officials called the day a success, but say students, faculty and staff say it should not be counted on every semester or even once a year.

Timothy A. Balch, head of public services, said he would like to put a notice in The Herald-Dispatch for the next fine free day to get overdue items from former students.

"Right now it's only advertised on campus," Balch said.

"We put up signs in the library, but if people don't come into the library that often and don't read The Parthenon, they don't find out about it.

"The whole purpose is to get books back. We're not looking to get money. We just want the books back so other people can use them. The money just serves as an incentive."

Balch said the library does not get the money from the fines. It goes into a general university account.

Balch said the library has tried different formats and different dates for the fine free day, but not all have been so successful.

"Once, the books had to be at least two months overdue," Balch said.

"Another time, we connected the day with the blood drive. We said if you brought in a receipt from the blood drive, you got to hand in your books fine free. That was not a success. We didn't get many books back."

The trucks stop here, say Teamsters

Despite walkout by 75,000 drivers, consumers feel little impact

NEW YORK (AP) — Scattered violence broke out on picket lines as Teamsters on strike against some of the nation's biggest trucking companies sought to cripple delivery of everything from toilet paper to auto parts.

As the walkout by up to 75,000 drivers, dock workers, and mechanics entered its second day Thursday, its biggest effect had been to create more business for non-union trucking companies.

Consumers saw little impact because many of the 22 companies haul raw materials and parts rather than finished products, and most supermarkets and food producers have their own fleets and aren't part of the dispute.

It is the Teamsters' first nationwide strike since 1979.

The union walked out over a plan by the companies to give more work to low-paid, part-time workers and use more trains.

The Teamsters' contract expired last week. No talks are scheduled.

In their first national strike since 1979, the Teamsters walked out of some of the nation's biggest trucking companies over a plan to give more work to low-paid, part-time workers and the use of more trains.

Near Philadelphia, about 40 strikers stood in the rain Wednesday outside the closed gate of a Yellow Freight terminal in Bensalem.

"They want to fill their pockets and empty ours," driver Joseph Wiles said.

The trucking companies said using part-timers is vital to reducing costs.

In Portland, Ore., scores of loaded trucks were parked at a Consolidated Freightways terminal as a dozen pickets stood in the cold rain, crowding around a fire in a barrel to keep warm.

Teamster Bob Jett said there was only one way for the trucks to get on the road — through the picket line.

"I wouldn't put myself in that danger," he said. "Would you?"

No serious violence was reported on the picket lines.

In Richfield, Ohio, strikers blocked a truck entering a Yellow Freight yard and cut its brake lines. No arrests were reported.

Six people, including a local Teamster president, were charged with idle and disorderly conduct in Woburn, Mass., accused of blocking the entrance to a terminal.

Eight parked trucks were vandalized at East Providence, R.I.

Some businesses said inventories are big enough to prevent the strike from becoming an immediate problem. But others reported stranded merchandise.

Businesses stymied by the strike scrambled to find other ways of delivering goods.

General Motors Corp. said it switched to another trucking company to deliver parts. GM and other Big Three automakers said the strike would have little immediate effect on their operations.

At Estes Express Lines, a non-union trucking company based in Richmond, Va., the mood was "chaos, organized chaos," said Billy Hupp.

Part-time drivers were working full-time; trucks that normally carry partial loads were full.

Overnite Transportation Co., the biggest non-union company in the business, said demand increased so much that it refused some business.

Some shippers turned to United Parcel Service, where the Teamsters are covered by a different contract.

The Teamsters estimated the strike would cost the 22 companies $25 million per day in revenue and said the $300 million worth of goods delivered each day by the companies would cause shortages throughout the economy.

Deaths spark rampage

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Rampaging troops reportedly killed Rwanda's acting premier and three U.N. soldiers Thursday during fighting touched off by the deaths of the presidents of Rwanda and Burundi in a suspicious plane crash.

Reports from Rwanda's capital, Kigali, were sketchy and it was not clear who was involved in the fighting. The capital in neighboring Burundi was reported quiet.

The violence in Rwanda broke out after President Juvenal Habyarimana of Rwanda and President Cyprien Ntaryamira of Burundi died late Wednesday when their plane crashed while landing at Kigali's airport. The Rwandan government said the plane was shot down, but U.N. monitors said they could not confirm that.

A missionary reached by telephone in Burundi's capital, Bujumbura, said that city was quiet and that the president's death was being reported as an accident. There has been widespread ethnic fighting in Burundi since the nation's first Hutu president was killed during a failed coup last fall.

Bitter rivalries between the majority Hutu and minority Tutsi groups have made both central African nations into ethnic battlegrounds for decades. Rwanda also has been torn by divisions among Hutus over a peace accord that Habyarimana's government signed with Tutsi rebels last year.

In Washington, President Clinton said Rwanda's acting prime minister, Agathe Uwilingiyimana, "was sought out and murdered" by Rwandan security forces.

U.N. spokesman Joe Sills said in New York that three Belgian U.N. soldiers were reported slain in Kigali. They were apparently abducted by members of Rwanda's presidential guard along with three Cabinet ministers. There were unconfirmed reports of other U.N. personnel missing, Sills said.

The whereabouts of the ministers remained unknown. Radio France Internationale, citing unidentified diplomats, said Labor and Social Affairs Minister Landouald Ndasingwa had been killed.

The two presidents, both Hutus, were on their way home from a summit in Tanzania that was aimed at finding a regional solution to the ethnic hostilities in their nations when their plane crashed.

Rwanda's government said the plane "was shot down" while landing "by unidentified elements in circumstances which are still unclear."

Sills said U.N. officers were denied access to the wreckage and could not confirm whether the plane was shot down.

Witnesses reported hearing heavy-weapons fire moments before the presidential plane crashed, the French Embassy in Kigali said.

It was not clear who was in control of Kigali.

Intense gunfire and explosions echoed across the city, U.N. spokesman Moutar Gueye reported by telephone early Thursday.

Israeli gunman shoots civilians at bus stop

JERUSALEM (AP) — A Palestinian opened fire with a submachine gun at a bus stop near the port city of Ashdod Thursday, killing one Israeli and wounding four others before being shot to death by bystanders, officials said.

The attack followed a suicide car bombing of an Israeli bus in the northern town of Afula on Wednesday in which the assailant and seven civilians were killed, including three teen-aged students.

Islamic fundamentalists claimed responsibility for both attacks. The violence came as Israelis observed Holocaust Day in memory of the six million Jews slaughtered by Nazi Germans during World War II.

The attacks, which undermined already shaky support for Israel-PLO peacemaking, spurred calls for a suspension of negotiations with the PLO about the withdrawal of Israeli forces from the Gaza Strip and the West Bank town of Jericho.

Lt. Gen. Ehud Barak, the armed forces' chief of staff, told reporters the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip would be closed "at least for several days" to prevent more attacks.

Attorney General clear of ethics charge

CHARLESTON, (AP) — Attorney General Darrell V. McGraw Jr. has been cleared of one state bar ethics charge in a complaint brought against him by the Division of Environmental Protection's director.

However, the state bar panel that dismissed the charge Wednesday is still reviewing three other charges against McGraw. It adjourned its hearing for an undetermined period.

Charles Love, chairman of the three-member hearing panel of the Committee on Legal Ethics, said scheduling conflicts prevented an immediate reconvening to hear McGraw's defense on those charges.

Charleston attorney James B. Lees Jr. said it would take him half a day to present the defense.

Sherri Goodman, the bar's disciplinary counsel, completed her case Wednesday, after which Lees asked that the charges be dismissed without McGraw putting on his defense. He said Goodman failed to prove her case.

"I think the subcommittee made a reasoned decision," Goodman said of the charge that was dismissed.

A Day in the Life of Tammy,

a single mother

of two children, who has her own business manages a household, and keeps up with her classes at Marshall.

The number of female-headed households with two or more persons in West Virginia is more than ten thousand, according to the West Virginia Population and Housing Characteristics. Besides, there are about 3,000 births each year to unmarried females between the ages of 18 and 22 in this state.

Although those figures help one guess how many single mothers live in West Virginia, it is still difficult to know how hard their daily lives are.

It is definitely difficult to guess the life of a single mother of two children, who is a full-time student and owner of her own business.

Many people may not know that Tammy Frazie, Huntington senior, sleeps for only four hours a day. Many may also wonder why she does the laundry at 6 a.m. when most people are still in the bed. Many might ask why does she have to handle five assignments in one day? Why does she have to rush and drive to Hills to buy a detergent at low cost using her 20-minute break between classes?

It has been four years since Frazie divorced and forced to face the stress of a hectic life.

"I made a decision (on divorce) after I thought it thoroughly and I have never regreted it," Frazie said. "I worked hard and it has been financially successful for the last four years and I am ready to complete my degree."

Frazie's immediate goal is graduating with a bachelor's degree, which is what most Marshall students are seeking.

She turned her hobby into a business, "Cents of Elegance," in which she sells various kinds of clothes at low prices. Here, she looks over the latest bargain items at Stone & Thomas in downtown Huntington (right).

COLA dean search narrowed to three

The list of College of Liberal Arts dean candidates started with 86 names and has been decreased to three.

Dr. David R. Woodward, professor of history and chairman of the COLA Dean Search Committee, said he will discuss the three candidates with Dr. Alan B. Gould, vice president for academic affairs, in a meeting today.

Woodward declined to say what three candidates were left. He did say Dr. Gregory S. Mahler, chairman of the Department of Political Science and professor at the University of Mississippi, withdrew his name from consideration. Woodward said he thought Mahler was unrealistic about his possible salary.

The committee submitted the names to Gould and President J. Wade Gilley Wednesday. Woodward said the names were not necessarily in rank order, but their strengths and weaknesses were listed. Woodward said "it was obvious who the first choice of the committee was."

Woodward said he does not believe Gilley has already made his choice. "I believe that Dr. Gilley has an open mind," he said.

Five candidates interviewed for the position last month.

Dr. Bertram W. Gross, president of Faculty Senate and a member of the search committee, said he expects Gilley to make his choice soon. "From everything I'm hearing, I am sure he will make this a priority."

"And one more thing about tomorrow's company picnic: Do I have to mention what happened last year when some moron sabotaged the games with a case of acid-filled LD-50s?"

Dogwood Bound

MU track team headed to Tennessee

By Rick Elmore
Reporter

The men's and women's track teams will compete today and Saturday at the Dogwood Relays at the University of Tennessee.

"We're looking for a fine performance," Head Coach Dennis Brachna said. "We're looking real good right now."

He said the team has had problems lately. "We've had a lot of nagging injuries. Kim McRae has been injured and Nicki McCallister has been bothered with her back."

Brachna also said a late spring break caused a problem. "We had a few people missing from the meet April 2."

The men's and women's teams enter the meet after losing a dual meet Tuesday against Ohio University.

OU's men won 111-52 while their women's team won 93-43.

Allyson Goddard highlighted the meet by winning the women's javelin and setting a school record of 133' 5".

Michelle Strager won the women's 1500m with a time of 4:51.1 and Beth Reck won the women's shot put with a throw of 40' 6 3/4". Kisha Nelson won the women's 400m with a time of 1:00.3 and Sarah Crandall won the 800m with a time of 2:19.6.

Wayne Phillips won the men's hammer with a distance of 151' 10" and Larry Brandon won the shot put with a mark of 51' 7 1/4". Bryan Butts won the pole vault with a mark of 14' 6" and Eric Putnam won the 3200m in 9:13.2.

Brachna said teams throughout the country compete in the Dogwood Relays.

"It is a very select group that gets to go. We only had a few people that qualified, so it is a honor to compete."

Lady Herd returns home for SC doubleheaders

By C.R. Vincent
Reporter

After completing the spring trip last week, the Lady Herd softball team will play doubleheader Southern Conference games Saturday against Georgia Southern and Monday against Furman.

During the team's spring tour it competed in two tournaments and two additional games in ten days.

Head Coach Louie Berndt rated the spring trip as a "B+ or A-."

"I was excited that we played well with the stronger teams. We lost some games that we should have never lost. I think that was just from inexperience."

In the Winthrop Tournament, March 25-27, the Lady Herd placed third in its group. They beat St. Francis 9-4, lost to The College of Charleston 6-2, lost to Georgia Tech 9-0, and defeated Coastal Carolina 5-1.

"I was surprised that we beat Coastal Carolina," Berndt said.

"They are a really good team. I knew we would lose to Georgia Tech. They are probably a top 30, 35 team in the country."

Marshall faced the University of Maine and lost 4-2. "It was a really good game," Berndt said it could have gone either way.

Marshall finished 2-3 in the Winthrop Tournament.

During the week, Berndt said the team did not really

"Hallie (Michaelis) had several games of great defensive play. She just had a superb defensive (Furman) tournament."

show up for the games. A doubleheader against the University of North Carolina Charlotte was rained out. Marshall lost to Winthrop 2-0 and the University of North Carolina-Greensboro 3-2 and 10-2.

In the first game of the Furman Tournament the Lady Herd defeated UNC-Greensboro. They played Campbell University in the second game and lost 4-1.

"Unfortunately, [Campbell] just happened to get a couple of extra runs," Berndt said.

Marshall then beat UNC-Greensboro 3-2 to advance to the finals against Furman on their home field.

Marshall took the lead 1-0 in the fifth inning, but Furman scored in the sixth and seventh innings to win 2-1.

"We shut their third baseman, who was an All-American last year, down to one hit at four at bat. With everybody else she was going 3-3 or 4-4 or 3-4."

Sophomore Hallie Michaelis and freshman Brandi Northrup were named to the all-tournament team.

"Hallie had several games of great defensive play," Berndt said.

"One game alone she retired three sides, which is three innings and nine batters, all by herself. She just had a superb defensive tournament."

Northrup batted .389 in the tournament, with eight RBIs in six games. Northrup was named player of the week.

Berndt said she did not think playing so many games in 10 days placed a strain on the team. "They had a lot of time to rest. It wasn't like they were playing four games a day in a tournament setting every day. They just did that on the weekends. During the week they had plenty of time to recover."

She said they were there to do two things: play ball and study.

"During their off time, we studied every day for two hours. We had study hall."

Marshall will play at home against Georgia Southern Saturday and Furman Monday.

Georgia Southern leads the Southern Conference with 2 wins and no losses.

Berndt said her goal is to take at least one win from each team.

"That will tell us that we can play with them. If we can take a game going into the conference tournament in two weeks, I think that will be a good lift for our kids."

Distractions could be a key factor in the home game, Berndt said.

"We play better when we're not here. I think that when the kids are on the road there are no distractions. They just play."

However, Berndt said if they continue their high quality of play as they have on the road, they'll be fine.

Marshall frosh on a hot streak

Northrup leads the Lady Herd's dominance over SC stats

By C.R. Vincent
Reporter

A Marshall freshman has been named Southern Conference/USAir Softball Player-Of-The-Week, and Marshall is ranked in every category but two of the Southern Conference statistics.

Brandi Northrup was named by the Southern Conference as player of the week. Northrup batted .389 in the Furman tournament last weekend and had eight RBIs in six games. She is third in the conference for individual pitching. Northrup leads in RBIs and ranks fourth in batting with a .375 average.

except doubles and triples.
"For a first year team, I think that's pretty good," Head Coach Louie Berndt said.

The Lady Herd is second in the conference for team batting with a .267 average. Furman leads with .271.

Marshall has four players in the top ten for individual batting statistics.

Carrie Hinkle leads the conference in stolen bases.

"We're getting some recognition for a first year team," Berndt said. "I think finally with all the games that they have watched and all the games that they have played they are finally starting to understand where I want them to be."

"They are learning their positions, which most of them had to relearn. It's different from high school to college."

New leaders review safety

By Amy Baker

About 10 faculty members, administrators, and students met Wednesday night to walk around campus in the rain.

But there was a method to that madness.

The group was participating in the initial Campus Safety Walk, the first project of Student Body President-elect Kristin L. Butcher, Huntington junior, and Student Body Vice President-elect Gregory K. Ferrell, Delbarton junior. The new administration's term will begin next Thursday.

"The reason for this is to show students and faculty some of our problems on campus," Ferrell said. "Both of us can see together what needs to be done to make improvements."

Ferrell led the group through parking lots; the stacks of the James Morrow Library; and around the Lefty Rollins Track, Science Building, Prichard Hall and Old Main.

Suggestions for improving safety included better lighting and more emergency telephones in the parking lots.

Donald L. Salyers, director of public safety, said another emergency telephone should be in place by fall.

Ferrell suggested that an emergency telephone be placed in the stacks of the library. The isolated rooms and the cramped stacks are safety problems, he said.

Stanley C. Sporny, an associate professor of art, was present as a representative for Faculty Senate.

Sporny, chairman of the Physical Facility Planning Committee, will be presenting a report on campus safety to the Faculty Senate.

He and Heidi McCormick, student activities coordinator, expressed their concern for art students working in the pottery lab late at night and said more lights are needed there.

Butcher and Ferrell both said the walk was a success. Butcher said they will be presenting a recommendation to President J. Wade Gilley based on suggestions generated during the walk.

"I thought it was encouraging to see students and faculty interested in evaluating and improving campus safety," Butcher said.

"I also thought it was encouraging that we on our walk passed MUPD on bikes twice."

"They not only took part in our walk, but could also be seen patrolling other areas."

Landscape artist to visit MU

By Chris Koenig
Reporter

Admirers of landscape artist Wolf Kahn's work, which is on display in the Birke Gallery, will have a chance to see and hear the artist when he visits campus Tuesday.

Kahn will give a demonstration of pastel techniques at 9:30 a.m. on the Ritter Park path at First Street. The demonstration will be on the eighth floor of Smith Hall if it rains.

He will give a lecture in the Birke Gallery at 3 p.m. on current trends in painting. A reception will follow the lecture.

Kahn's exhibit in the gallery includes 22 landscape paintings. The artist uses a technique called scumbling, applying wet paint over dry paint, to add texture to the vivid colors of the paintings.

"His paintings suggest a feeling of sweet melancholy, a kind of dark, poetic lyricism," said Dr. Marilyn Laufer, professor of art.

Admission to both the demonstration and lecture is free to the public.

Kahn's work will be on display in the Birke Gallery in Smith Hall through April 15. The gallery is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Mondays, and from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays.

More information is available in the Department of Art.
