Fair to give job contact opportunity

By Shawna Edmonds
Reporter

Students can get a handle on the health care job market at the 18th annual Nursing/Health Careers Fair today from noon to 3 p.m. in the Don Morris Room in the Memorial Student Center said Lynne Welch, nursing dean.

Sponsored by the Placement Services Center, the fair gives students an opportunity to meet with various contacts in the health field said Patricia Gallagher, recruiting coordinator of the Placement Services Center.

"This annual event brings together representatives from local, state and regional health facilities and provides an ideal setting for Marshall students and alumni to discuss employment opportunities within the health care industry," Gallagher said.

Gallagher said more than 25 medical facilities and health agencies will participate in the fair including employers such as Cabell Huntington Hospital, the Charleston Area Medical Center and the Southern Ohio Medical Center.

Dean to be professor

By Mike Taylor

After eight years as dean of the College of Education, Carole Vickers is resigning.

Vickers' resignation will become effective June 30, 1995. President J. Wade Gilley named Vickers a distinguished professor after accepting her resignation Wednesday.

a teacher again.

Gilley said the university "wishes she would stay on for a few more years, but she has decided to move on and we will miss her."

Vickers' role as distinguished professor means she will have a teaching load of six hours, plus any research or service work she decides to do. The professorship lasts for three years.

Vickers will teach home economics, which is what she taught when she arrived at Marshall as a professor in 1966.

"The major things I tried to do as dean was to provide opportunities for faculty to grow and develop as professors," Vickers said.

"I also wanted to get accreditation for the college and to look at the curriculum to make sure that we are serving students," Vickers said.

Vickers said she thought the college has had some success in the last eight years. She said her role as dean is to act as a facilitator between faculty and administration.

"I would like to think the College of Education is a source of quality in the university and in the state," Vickers said.

Dr. Alan Gould, vice-president of academic affairs, said Vickers was an "outstanding faculty member and dean."

Gould also said he has known for a while that Vickers was thinking about resigning.

Gilley said there is no timetable to replace Vickers and he hasn't thought about a possible replacement.

"The job is open and whoever turns out to be the most qualified candidate will get the job," Gilley said.

Gould said he thought the same process would be used to replace Vickers as the one that was used to replace the College of Liberal Arts' dean.

"Gilley will meet with faculty and talk to them about the future of the college and a committee will be formed to review candidates," Gould said.

Vickers served as associate dean of the COE from 1985 to 1987.

She was then named interim dean in June 1987.

In July 1988, Vickers was named Dean of the College of Education. She also served as chairman of the department of home economics.

Gilley said Vickers has done a wonderful job as dean of the College of Education.

GRADUATION

Time for graduates to act

By Terri Borden
Reporter

For graduate students planning to graduate in May, it's time to act.

Graduate students must file for admission to candidacy for their master's degree no later than the semester before they plan to graduate. For those who wish to graduate in May, that means now.

Tammy Alliff, Graduate School program assistant, handles candidacy applications. She said a student's candidacy must be approved by the first day of class spring semester if he plans to graduate in May.

Alliff reminded students the approval process takes time. To be admitted to candidacy for spring, she will need applications by the second full week of December.

On the application, the graduate students must list courses they've taken, are taking and plan to take before they graduate.

After the first semester, the student and the advisor should have determined if the student will continue with the program.

If the student has chosen to continue, he and the advisor should plan the student's program and he should then apply for candidacy.

Leonard J. Deutsch described candidacy as a "contract made between a student, an advisor, another faculty member of the student's department and [himself] the dean of the Graduate School."

Billy Joel says its his last world tour

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Workin' too hard can you give you a heart attack-ack-ack-ack-ack. Billy Joel oughta know by now.

The Piano Man announced Monday that his current world tour will be his last. "It doesn't mean it's the last time I'm going to do a concert, it's just the last time I'm going to do these long marathon tours," said Joel, 45.

He said he would spend more time writing and composing than performing because he was "getting a little bit burnt out with this Billy Joel guy."

Schwarzkopf given Five-Star Award

WAYNE, Pa. (AP) — Thanks for the bravery: Retired Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf received the Bob Hope Five-Star Award from the entertainer-to-the-troops himself.

"This is slowing up my golf game, but I don't care," joked Hope, who awarded the medal Sunday to the former Desert Storm commander.

The award honors someone displaying the qualities of honor and courage symbolic of George Washington and his soldiers at Valley Forge.

About 3,000 people attended the ceremony at Valley Forge Military Academy and College, where Schwarzkopf, a four-star general, graduated in 1952.

Pierce's charity run his last

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Frasier" co-star David Hyde Pierce used to do some running, so he thought he'd get up early and jog down Sunset Boulevard in a 5K race to benefit an AIDS charity.

"It was a good cause but I'm never running again," Pierce said Sunday after completing the 3.1 miles in 26 minutes. "For me it was about 400 miles." The winning time was just over 15 minutes.

Pierce, who plays Dr. Niles Crane on the NBC comedy series, says he'll be more choosy about other charity events.

"I'm going to see if they have any 5K sits ... a 10K nap," he quipped.

Carter rewarded for environmental acts

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Former President Carter received a National Audubon Society medal for his work to protect the environment.

"The underlying foundation of what we have achieved in the past and what we hope to achieve in the future is the public's interest in a better quality of life," Carter said Sunday as he accepted this year's Audubon Medal.

"The average citizen wants pure air, pure water and biodiversity," he said.

Carter's environmental acts included linking conservation and energy policy, backing a tough strip-mining bill and thinking globally with his environmental policies, said society president Peter Berle.

Engler becomes dad of triplets

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The election's over, but Gov. John Engler is still kissing babies — his wife just had triplets.

Margaret, Hannah and Madeleine — the couple's first children — were delivered Sunday by Caesarean section.

"It's the most special thing anyone could go through," the 46-year-old Republican governor said, his eyes full of tears.

And the timing is no campaign trick, said Michelle Engler, 36, a lawyer. "My husband is a good politician, but not that good."

Fonda relives 'Easy Rider' days

GLENDAL, Calif. (AP) — Peter Fonda relived his "Easy

Rider" days as bikers clogged the Golden State Freeway in the 11th annual "Love Ride."

"Tonight Show" host Jay Leno joined about 1,500 mostly leather-clad motorcycle riders in Sunday's event, which raised money for the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Fonda was this year's grand marshal.

Clinton defends U.S. dropping of Bosnian arms embargo

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Brushing aside objections from allies, President Clinton said Monday the United States is not violating the Bosnian arms embargo simply by stopping American enforcement of the ban.

"We have been criticized by some of our allies," Clinton said at a news conference, "but I think they need to understand the situation."

"We are not violating the arms embargo," Clinton said. "We are observing the international arms embargo. We will continue to do it."

It was the president's first comments on the issue since the administration announced that U.S. warships patrolling the Adriatic Sea would stop diverting or delaying vessels suspected of carrying weapons bound for Bosnia.

Clinton portrayed his move as a preferable step to an outright revocation of the arms ban.

He said the step was taken after intense negotiations with

"We are not violating the arms embargo. We are observing the international arms embargo. We will continue to do it."

President Clinton

members of Congress, particularly Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., outgoing chairman of the Armed Services Committee.

The president said the action helped the administration "avoid what I believe would have been a very serious mistake, which would have been a unilateral vote by the Congress to lift the arms embargo."

The president spoke about the subject after talks with Asian leaders before a summit on Pacific trade.

The United States hopes the move will nudge Bosnian Serbs toward a diplomatic settlement to end the war in the former Yugoslavia.

The immediate effect of halting U.S. enforcement of the embargo may be small since most weapons enter the region by air.

Only three ships out of 42,000 challenged since the maritime embargo began 17 months ago were found to have weapons bound for Bosnia, according to Pentagon officials.

Russia, Britain and other European allies have objected to Clinton's move, arguing that it could only prolong and increase the war.

The embargo was imposed in 1991 against all parties in the conflict as Yugoslavia disintegrated and fighting began in Slovenia and Croatia.

The ban has never completely prevented Muslim-led Bosnian government forces from getting weapons bought clandestinely or donated by sympathetic governments and smuggled across the Croatian border.

U.S. officials say weapons are being funneled through Zagreb, the Croatian capital.

Rhone-Poulenc Ag. Co. is stockpiling unnecessarily large quantities of dangerous chemicals at its Institute plant, a citizen group says. A report said the plant may be a disaster waiting to happen.

Presidential race heats up with GOPs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Energized by their party's midterm elections triumph, more and more Republicans are training their sights on ousting a vulnerable President Clinton in 1996.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, who for months has made clear his desire to be president, said Sunday he will file papers with the Federal Election Commission this week in preparation for a March announcement.

The conservative Texan also took aim at future Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, probably the leading unannounced candidate, saying his Kansas colleague lacked commitment to major changes in government.

Gramm and Dole were both in Iowa, site of the first party caucus of the 1996 presidential season, following the Republican election sweep last week.

Meanwhile, Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., scheduled a news conference in Philadelphia Monday to announce the formation of a presidential exploratory committee, usually a prelude to a formal campaign for president. He travels from there to Concord, N.H., and then to Des Moines, Iowa.

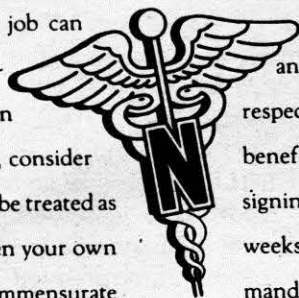

The moderate Specter, 64, is a long shot in a likely field crowded with conservatives such as Gramm, former Vice President Dan Quayle, former Housing Secretary Jack Kemp and former Defense Secretary Dick Cheney.

Gramm, speaking Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press," suggested that even Dole, whose voting record generally reflects the nation's shift to the right, wasn't conservative enough to lead the party in 1996.

"I think that I am more committed to changing government fundamentally than Bob Dole is," Gramm said. Asked if he would make a better president than Dole, Gramm replied: "If I didn't think so, I wouldn't run."

Senate will vote on class

By T. Jason Toy
Reporter

AIDS awareness may soon be a topic for discussion in the classroom.

CR 263 will be one of the proposed course additions made by the Academic Standards and Curricula Review Committee to the Faculty Senate at Thursday's meeting.

According to the committee's recommendation, the course is designed to disseminate accurate, current information about the disease.

"The one hour course will be a round table type discussion class," said Denecia Merritt-Damron, chairwoman of the Academic Standards and Curricula Review Committee.

"It will be taught over eight weeks by the counseling and rehabilitation department of the College of Education and will have no textbook," Merritt-Damron said.

She said she is glad to see this course.

"Anything that will give the student information about health is needed," she said.

The recommendation will be discussed and possibly voted on at the meeting.

TIME

Students can be admitted to candidacy after they have completed 12, but no more than 18, hours of graduate credit with a 3.0 or better G.P.A. Staff at the Graduate School see many students waiting until the last minute.

"Early candidacy is in the best interest of the student, because it allows them to move most efficiently through the program," Deutsch said.

In a few cases, students are not able to graduate when they planned because they did not file in time. A student cannot file for candidacy and graduate in the same semester. The Graduate School will not allow it.

The student must list his GRE score on the application. Even those who have not yet taken the GRE may still have a chance.

According to Aliff, "a computerized version of the GRE is offered three times a week in Charleston for $96."

Unlike the regular test, from which scores are reported within six weeks, the scores from the computer-based test are reported within 15 days.

Once a student's candidacy is approved, he can apply for graduation.

"For those students planning to graduate in May, the deadline for graduation application is Jan. 20," said Charlene R. Hawkins, senior administrative assistant for the Graduate School.

"Their application for graduation puts them on the listing for comprehensive exams. There is no separate form," Hawkins said.

Students seem to be getting conflicting information from their advisers and their peers. Hawkins has had a few students come in to her office upset and insisting, because the school does not offer comps during the summer, they will not graduate until fall.

"No one told me that and I'm the one that handles comps," she said.

Actually, comps are offered four times a year, every year.

Hawkins encourages students who have questions to call the Graduate School.

FAIR

dents an opportunity to "comparative shop." They can look at a variety of health care providers and find out what their philosophy is in comparison to their own.

She said some of the institutions will provide students with various handouts, such as paper and pens with their company's logo, as well as having representatives talk about the institution and job opportunities.

Gallagher said students can come to the Placement Services Center at 1681 5th Ave. to obtain a list of the institutions or call the Placement Services Center at 696-2371.

Homestay to help facilitate growing international population

By Alk Wah Leow
Reporter

Feel a need to increase your intercultural experience? How about providing housing for an international student.

Marshall University's Center for International Programs has started a Host Family/Homestay program to facilitate the cultural and practical needs of Marshall's growing international student population.

"This is an excellent opportunity for local families to learn about foreign cultures," said Dr. Will A. Edwards, executive director of Marshall's Center for International Programs.

"We hope this program will facilitate an intercultural awareness in the community around Marshall by integrating students with families," said Eric Spears, student program adviser and coordinator for the Host Family/Homestay program. "This will be an excellent opportunity to help students enhance their study abroad experience."

Yoko Imamura, Shizuoka, Japan, graduate student, agrees. She said she has participated in host family programs in Boston and Davis, Calif.

"I had a really great time. The people that I stayed with were interested in Japanese students and culture," she said. "There was a lot of interaction and I enjoyed talking about my culture."

"I recommend the host family program for students that want to experience American culture and lifestyle," Imamura said.

According to Spears, host families should have an interest in living and interacting with people from other cultures, be able to provide breakfast and dinner daily and be able to provide the student with transportation to the university, or live within walking distance.

"Families who participate in the program will be compensated $100 per week for providing room and board," Spears said.

Students will be expected to cover all other expenses during their host family stay including transportation, food (except for breakfast and dinner), travel and clothing.

"International students have many more challenges and barriers to face than the typical student," he said. "They are encountering a new culture, environment and language, so it is important to find a caring family that will provide a helpful and encouraging environment for these students."

"Families and students that are interested in the program have to fill out application forms," Spears said.

"Contracts for the homestay program is on semester or yearly basis," Spears said. "In the event that family and student do not get along, we will place the student with a different family."

Spears said there is a need for homestay families who can provide temporary housing over the Christmas break and for those students who will be arriving during late December or early January.

Marshall University's yearbook, the Chief Justice, will receive a facelift in 1995 thanks to a first-ever photo contest.

Initiated by this year's staff and graduate adviser Kim Taylor, students can submit their color photos and negatives to be considered for the cover of the yearbook.

"We thought a contest would create more student interest in the yearbook and provide a way for everyone to get involved," Taylor said.

The yearbook's theme is "Have You Herd" and the cover is just one of the 1995 innovations.

According to Taylor, the photos should fit the theme of the yearbook, but can depict anything relative to Marshall.

The winner, who will receive $100, will be announced Nov. 22.

Herd romps Paladins to finish 10-1

By Chris Johnson
Reporter

By defeating the Furman Paladins Saturday Marshall won its 10th game of the year, clinched a share of the Southern Conference Championship and secured home field advantage throughout the playoffs.

"The win today is a great moment for this program. I'm extremely proud of our players," Herd coach Jim Donnan said. The 10 regular season wins are the most by a Donnan coached team and equaled a school record that was set in 1988.

"I think Furman did a good job today. They did a good job of stopping the run. We had to throw the ball more in the first half than I thought we would have to."

Although the Paladins only had 67 yards of total offense in the first half, the Herd took a slim 14-7 lead into halftime.

"I thought we played a team that was very prepared to play us," Herd quarterback Todd Donnan said. Donnan threw for 264 yards and four touchdowns.

In the second quarter Furman's Mark Tate intercepted a Donnan pass and returned it to the Herd 45 yard line. That turnover led to the Paladin's first score and was the only time in the entire half that the Furman offense was past the 50 yard line. The interception turned out to be irrelevant as the Herd scored 21 points in the second half for a 35-14 victory.

The biggest play of the second half may have been the result of the Herd special teams. The Paladins stopped the Herd on its first possession of the second half, forcing Travis Colquitt to punt. Colquitt's punt was fumbled by Furman's Josh Cole. Freshman running back Javonne Darling recovered the ball for the Herd at the 18 yard line and on the next play Chris Parker went in to the end zone for his 17th rushing touchdown this year.

"We felt like we had a chance until we fumbled the punt," Furman head coach Bobby Johnson said. "You can't give a team like Marshall the ball at the 20. They are the most complete offense we have faced all year."

The Herd knows it is in the playoffs and that it will be playing at home. But it will be another week before the Herd knows for sure who its first round opponent will be.

One possible match-up would pit the Herd against the Alcorn State Braves and its Heisman Trophy candidate Steve "Air" McNair.

Todd Donnan said, "I'd love it. I'd like to see what he can do. But anybody who comes here is going to have some problems."

Marshall overcomes fatigue to beat Slavs

Bonapart, Hightower slated to play in Saturday's game

The Herd's most antagonistic opponent Saturday night was not the team from Slovakia but fatigue.

Marshall pounded out 54 first half points but slowed down in the second and produced only 35 in the team's 89-80 defeat of Inter-Bratislava.

"I think our guys played hard for 30 minutes, but during the last 10 minutes, they had a lead and started to coast," Donovan said. "I'm not trying to make excuses for them, but I believe part of it had to do with fatigue."

The Herd fields a 10-man team for the 1994-95 season. However, in exhibition play Saturday night, the squad was minus a few players.

Malik Hightower and Thad Bonapart did not play Saturday because of a team violation. Donovan said after the game that the two would be reinstated.

Injured forwards Michael Peck and Troy Gray had to step up their play in the absence of Hightower and Bonapart. Peck had nine points and seven rebounds while Gray had 14 and seven respectively.

"We need both of those guys in there, along with Thad and Malik, in order for us to win," Donovan said.

Narrowing the team's depth even further Saturday was Tink Brown's early foul trouble, which left the Herd with seven players to finish the first half.

The rookie head coach said despite the fatigue factor, he was pleased with his team's effort.

"I think our guys played hard and did a great job with the press," Donovan said. "They stole off the ball and rotated things around. Yet, in order for us to be successful we have to play hard for 40 minutes."

One player Donovan awarded high praise was forward Shawn Moore. Moore lead the team with 35 points.

"He is one of the best competitors I've ever been around and he is in unbelievable shape," Donovan said of the 6-6 senior from Greenville, N.C. "When he is out there on the floor he elevates everyone's emotional level and he becomes a very difficult person to play against. The guys in practice don't like to play against him."

Moore said one of the best things about this year's team is its ability to come together and play well.

"I think we played well and we played unselfishly," Moore said. "It may not look that way on the stat sheets, but it is a big difference from last year."
