Jeffrey Dahmer killed in attack

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Jeffrey Dahmer, who confessed to murdering 17 men and boys and cannibalizing some of them, was attacked and killed Monday while cleaning a prison bathroom.

A fellow inmate was taken into custody at the prison, said Michael Sullivan, the state corrections secretary. A bloody broom handle also was found at the scene, but Sullivan didn't know if it was used to kill Dahmer.

"There was a great deal of blood in the area of the attack," corrections department spokesman Joe Scislowicz said. Dahmer had extensive head injuries and died at a hospital, Scislowicz said.

"Oh my God! My son! How could this happen?" Joyce Dahmer told TV's "Hard Copy" from her Fresno, Calif., home.

Dahmer, 34, was cleaning a bathroom at the Columbia Correctional Institute when he was attacked.

An inmate who beat his wife to death in a parking lot was injured in the assault. The suspect was working with them, Sullivan said, adding that it was premature to discuss a motive.

A guard overseeing the three inmates on clean-up duty had just left the basketball court adjoining the bathroom when the attack occurred, Sullivan said. He did not know where the other guard assigned to watch the prisoners was.

Dahmer's body was found in the staff's bathroom and shower area. The injured inmate, Jesse Anderson, whose murder case drew wide attention in Wisconsin, was found in the prisoners' bathroom across the court.

Dahmer, convicted in all but one of the sex killings in Milwaukee and Ohio, was serving 16 consecutive life sentences at the maximum-security prison in Portage, about 40 miles north of Madison.

■ DONATIONS

Donors give over $1 million to help faculty

By Debra McCutcheon
Reporter

Private donations totalling $1,050,000 have been given to the university to be used for projects for Marshall's faculty.

Ernest L. Hogan, retired insurance executive, from Boca Raton, Fla., established a $1 million trust for Marshall's College of Business.

Dr. Calvin Kent, dean of the College of Business, said when Marshall receives the new trust, the money will be used to endow the Ernest L. Hogan Chair of Private Enterprise.

"This trust will allow a faculty member to be granted release time to undertake research and activities and still get paid," Kent said.

This is the second $1 million trust that Hogan has established at the university within two years.

The 1993 trust he established will provide scholarships for future West Virginia students attending Marshall. Hogan is a native of Davy in McDowell County.

Ethel K. Pickens, a retired West Virginia educator, and her nephew, Glenn J. Queen, retired Tradewell supermarkets chairman, donated $50,000 to Marshall.

President J. Wade Gilley said

This is the second $1 million trust retired insurance executive Ernest L. Hogan has established at the university within two years.

the money will be used to establish an endowment to honor faculty members in their early years of teaching on the collegiate level.

Each year during the Elizabeth Gibson Drinko Honors Convocation, three faculty members will be presented with the Pickens-Queen Award for innovation and excellence in teaching.

Each will receive a $1,000 cash award. The recipients will be selected based on nominations and review by their peers.

Pickens and Queen have been long-time supporters of Marshall activities.

Queen and his wife, Carol, were the first individuals to contribute to the university's Society of Yeager Scholars.

Pickens is the newest member of the Marshall University Foundation Inc.'s John Marshall Society, comprising major donors to the university's academic and athletic programs.

■ FACULTY SENATE

Course changes await approval from Gilley

By T. Jason Toy
Reporter

Fifteen committee recommendations are awaiting President J. Wade Gilley's approval after being passed by the Faculty Senate with no objections.

The recommendations were course changes and additions.

"It was a long one, but a good one. We got a lot of things accomplished," Bert Gross, Faculty Senate president, said of the Nov. 17 meeting.

Science Literacy and International/Multicultural Studies were the major proposals on the agenda.

Both recommendations came from the Academic Standards and Curricula Review Committee.

"Our desire is that all graduates of Marshall University have the necessary mathematical and scientific skills for professional advancement and that they be literate in science," according to the Science Literacy proposal.

The proposal wants to raise the ACT requirements for math to 19.

The Multicultural/International Studies proposal seeks "to develop an international and inter ethnic 'competence' in Marshall students through the courses that we develop respect, understanding, and knowledge of the pluralistic world in which we live and work today."

The other five recommendations passed, including a recommendation to terminate a two-year A.A.S. degree in Accounting.

Newman looking to next movie

NEW YORK (AP) — Now that Paul Newman's wrapped up another movie, he's looking forward to the next one — maybe with Robert Redford.

"We've been looking for a script we want to do for twenty years, and we've never been able to find one," Newman says in Sunday's New York Newsday. The two were paired in "The Sting" in 1973 and "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" in 1969.

In "Nobody's Fool," Newman plays a ne'er-do-well construction worker who rents a room from Jessica Tandy, her last screen role. The movie is to be released Christmas Day.

Megadeth star delivered papers

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — Before he became a thrash-metal star, Megadeth band singer Dave Mustaine delivered newspapers as part of his daily routine.

"Listen to music loud enough to make you sterile. Then get in and throw papers. Get home at six in the morning, put on eye blinders and try to sleep," he said in a recent interview. "What a horrible way to survive."

Now he's got a ranch in Arizona and a 3-year-old son to manage in between concerts.

Earlier this month, Megadeth's new album, "Youthanasia," debuted at No. 4 on the Billboard album charts.

No children for Hartman-Black

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — Lisa Hartman Black is starring in "Someone Else's Child," a TV movie about a mother whose son was switched at birth. But she and country-singer husband Clint Black don't want kids of their own.

"No! No babies," Hartman Black said in the Dec. 3 issue of TV Guide. "Clint and I just love being together so much, and we love our freedom. We don't want to change that."

The 37-year-old "Knots Landing" graduate says she only accepts about two roles a year since she got married because she hates to be away from Clint. And when she isn't acting, she keeps house, cooking, cleaning and washing clothes.

"It's not fair, I know," Clint jokes, "but hopefully she's not going to catch on."

Author moves to Sri Lanka for peace of mind

NEW YORK (AP) — Why did science-fiction writer Arthur C. Clarke move to Sri Lanka? For peace of mind — and scuba-diving.

"If I had lived in New York or London, I'd be eaten alive," the author of more than 80 books and numerous short stories and scripts including "2001: A Space Odyssey," which he co-wrote with Stanley Kubrick.

"Here in Sri Lanka, I can control things better," said Clarke, who moved to Sri Lanka nearly 40 years ago. "I don't get so caught up in the mad rush."

Clarke, 76, is working on at least two dozen projects, The New York Times reported today, including a collaboration with director Steven Spielberg on a film based on Clarke's novella, "Hammer of God."

An article in the Nov. 18 issue of The Parthenon incorrectly stated mandatory advising in the COLA has been abolished except for students in three programs. Freshmen, sophomores and first-semester transfer students also have mandatory advising.

Serb forces pound U.N. safe haven

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Serb forces pounded a U.N. safe haven in northwest Bosnia with heavy artillery and mortar fire Monday, again proving what a U.S. official has conceded: NATO is unable to stop the assault.

Serb fighters from Bosnia and neighboring Croatia control about one-third of the U.N.-declared "safe area" in Bihac and its surroundings.

Their forces moved within 500 yards of a hospital after two shells struck near the 800-bed building, which is overflowing with 2,000 patients.

The Serbs' war gains have embarrassed the international community. Three NATO air strikes on Serb positions last week and appeals for a cease-fire have been ignored.

Villages where Muslims lived have been set ablaze by Serbs from Bosnia and the Krajina region of Croatia.

The Bihac offensive has sunk hopes for a negotiated settlement in the war that has left 200,000 people dead or missing in over 31 months.

Lt. Col. Jan-Dirk von Merveldt, a U.N. military spokesman, said the Bosnian Serb army "is able to enter the town any time they wish."

"Hellish fights are going on in the outskirts, while the center of town is shaking from artillery detonations and infantry fighting," Hamdija Kabiljagic, mayor of the Bihac region, said by ham radio.

Shelling also was reported Monday to the north in and around the government-held town of Velika Kladusa, which has been raked by artillery, tank and small-arms fire for two weeks.

Peter Kessler, a U.N. relief official in Zagreb, Croatia, said water supplies had been cut off entirely to Velika Kladusa and partially to Bihac.

"A number of villages were burned," he said, "...there are thousands of people inside the safe zone without shelter."

OxyChem accused of violations

CHARLESTON (AP) — State environmental officials accused Occidental Chemical Corp. of 49 violations of hazardous waste laws at the company's Kanawha County plant.

The Division of Environmental Protection alleged in an inspection report that OxyChem illegally stored and spilled hazardous waste at the plant in Belle.

The report will be forwarded to state and federal enforcement agencies, which will decide whether civil or criminal penalties should be imposed, said Eli McCoy, the division's deputy director.

The report was issued last Wednesday. Dave Dorko, manager of the plant, said company officials were still reviewing the report Monday.

"The allegations appear to involve technical violations of very complicated regulations," Dorko said.

"There's no sign there was an impact on the environment, and there was no endangerment to human health," he said. "Nonetheless, we take these all very seriously and we're in the process of reviewing the document."

State environmental officials accused Occidental Chemical Corp. of 49 violations of hazardous waste laws.

The inspections were conducted in late October and early November. The plant closed in September for routine maintenance and never reopened after OxyChem announced it would be permanently mothballed Dec. 6.

Plant workers said the company closed the plant to punish their decision to unionize.

The company has denied the charge and said it ordered the shutdown because of tougher environmental laws and cleaner alternatives used by other factories.

Meanwhile, OxyChem denied allegations by the Oil,

Chemical and Atomic Workers union that the Belle plant ignores worker safety regulations and illegally pollutes the air.

The company said the allegations were based on "inaccurate, incomplete or outdated information." The union, which made the allegations Nov. 17, represents 50 workers at the plant.

The two sides have been at odds since the workers voted for union representation last year.

OxyChem announced Oct. 6 it was closing the plant because of stricter environmental laws that limit emissions of certain chemicals produced there.

Since then, the union has accused the plant of environmental and worker safety violations several times. OxyChem, which is headquartered in Dallas, did not respond to the allegations until last Wednesday, when it issued a news release.

Staff council sets goals — Calvin and Hobbes

by Bill Watterson

By Mike Taylor
Reporter

The goal of Jonathan Brown, president of the Classified Staff Council, and the rest of the staff council is to provide the best learning atmosphere in the state.

The staff council is a collection of faculty and staff that works to improve the workplace and relations between staff and administration.

Brown, who was elected president in July, has many goals he would like to accomplish.

Among the goals are to develop a classified staff handbook, develop a service bureau to involve the Marshall community, and work with other state schools to educate state legislators about the needs of higher education.

The staff council meets each month to discuss policies which affect that staff.

Brown said the council represents employees in grievances against the university.

The staff council includes all the workers who, according to Brown, "make the university go everyday."

Staff council elects 28 representative that are divided into categories and are elected to three year terms. The president and vice-president positions are one year terms.

Brown was a representative for two terms before being elected president.

"I became interested in how the university works and I decidated to get involved," he said. Brown said the staff council sometimes works very closely with President Gilley.

"We have an excellent relationship with the administration," Brown said. "We all want the same thing, a good working environment and to provide a high level of achievement," Brown said.

A LOT OF PEOPLE DON'T HAVE PRINCIPLES, BUT I DO! I'M A HIGHLY PRINCIPLED PERSON!

I LIVE ACCORDING TO ONE PRINCIPLE, AND I NEVER DEVIATE FROM IT.

WHAT'S YOUR PRINCIPLE?

Student Health offers services for less cost

By Jason Philyaw
Reporter

Students at Marshall receive the same basic health services as the students at West Virginia University for a cheaper cost, according to Steve Hensley, associate dean of student affairs.

"We offer almost the exact same services as WVU," he said. "The only difference is they pay more for their services."

Students at WVU have $56 of their tuition taken out for medical services, and Marshall students pay only $28.35.

The comparisons of health care can be scaled to the size of the school, according to Judy Sites, receptionist at John Marshall Medical Center.

"WVU may have more doctors in various fields than we do," she said. "But they have a larger medical staff and a larger facility."

She said larger schools will have larger facilities.

The Student Health Service at John Marshall Medical Services is available to students weekdays from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

"We are basically walk-in except for family planning and sports medicine," Sites said. "On a normal weekday we average about 65-70 students."

The staff at John Marshall consists of board certified physicians and resident physicians from the Family Practice clinic, physician's assistants, nurse practitioners, nurses and a clerical staff.

Most services are available to the students at no extra charge.

"There might be a charge for a physical exam if a student needs it for a class credit," she said. "There could be some unusual lab work where the student incurs the cost."

Sites said labwork done by doctors orders can be less expensive.

"We have an agreement with one lab in the area for [labwork at] a cheaper price," she said. "It would cost $40-45 here, whereas it would be about $100 elsewhere."

Some basic services available are diagnosis and treatment services, laboratory procedures and radiographic procedures.

Routine lab procedures include urinalysis, mono tests, and throat strep screens.

Radiographic procedures, as ordered by the medical staff, include X-rays of the head and neck, chest, spine and pelvis, and upper and lower extremities.

Other services provided by the John Marshall Medical Services include:

- An ambulance service to students through the office of public safety

- Prescription medication with a $3 co-payment; some basic medication such as cough syrup and antibiotics will take only a $3 payment, others can be purchased at a 10 percent discount at the University Pharmacy

- Birth control pills and contraceptive supplies are provided free

- Mental health services are supported, including liaison with the Counseling Services staff in cooperation with the Student Health/Family Practice physicians.

- Ophthalmology services through the Family Practice clinic

- Continuity of care to students with chronic medical conditions

- Physical exams by appointment

- Testing such as Tuberculosis (TB), STD's and pregnancy

Herd to focus on Dukes after 49-14 win

Defensive ends John Duncan and B.J. Cohen (right) converge on MTSU quarterback Kelly Holcomb on a third quarter sack. Marshall upended the Blue Raiders 49-14.

By Chris Johnson
Reporter

After an impressive win against Middle Tennessee State, the Thundering Herd has its sights set on the quarterfinals and the James Madison Dukes.

The Herd scored two first quarter touchdowns and was never in danger as it cruised to a 49-14 victory.

"My hat is off to them. Marshall is a very gifted team," said MTSU coach Boots Donnelly. "They beat us in every facet of the game."

Middle Tennessee appeared to gain some momentum early in the first quarter when Sean Luckett intercepted a Todd Donnan pass inside the 20-yard line.

But on the next play from scrimmage, the Herd's Melvin Cunningham got the ball back for the Herd with his first interception of the year.

"Melvin played a tremendous game. He was making plays around the ball all day," Herd coach Jim Donnan said.

Cunningham made another big play in the second quarter when he recovered a fumble by Blue Raider punt returner Dennis Mimms.

Both of Cunningham's big plays resulted in Herd touchdowns. MTSU had five turnovers in the game.

"You can't make mistakes like we made against a team like Marshall. They whooped us today," Blue Raider quarterback Kelly Holcomb said.

Donnelly said another key for the Herd's success was the way it dominated both sides of the ball on the offensive and defensive lines.

Chris Parker had huge holes to run through all day long and that's exactly what the all-conference back did. Parker finished with 36 rushes, 180 yards and three touchdowns.

"We've been saving Parker for the playoffs and he exploded," Herd quarterback Todd Donnan said.

Donnan, who was named Southern Conference Offensive Player of the Year last week, had his typical game. He completed 18 of 26 passes for 216 yards and three touchdowns.

Two of Donnan's touchdowns went to Shawn Goodwyn, who Donnan compared to NFL receivers Herman Moore or Alvin Harper.

"Sometimes all I have to do is throw it up there and just let Shawn go get it," he said.

Because both Marshall and Youngstown State had impressive victories in their first round games, there is already talk of a possible Dec. 17 championship meeting between the two teams.

Coach Donnan said he hasn't thought about it because the Herd's philosophy all year has been to take one game at a time.

"Right now I'm looking forward to playing James Madison."

One game down, but a long way to go.

Marshall head coach Billy Donovan said he was pleased with the Herd's 112-67 thrashing of Bluefield College, but his team still has a way to go to be competitive.

"I think overall our guys played well, but to be competitive in our conference we still have a lot of work to do," he said.

Donovan referred to the poor free throw shooting and the lack of rebounding. The Herd completed only 28 free throws of the 46 attempts.

The Herd was outrebounded by the Rams 49-44.

"We were trying to rebound with three players and we certainly need to improve on our free throw shooting," he said. "It's amazing some of our better shooters were not shooting the ball as well as some of the other guys."

The team set a school record with 33 attempts from the 3-point line. The old record was 29 against Appalachian State in 1991.

Doug Schieppe set his own career high with 29 points including seven baskets from 3-point land.

"I finally hit a couple," Schieppe said, referring to his first 3-point attempt in the game which resulted in nothing but air.

"I thought Doug was extremely scared and nervous during the first few minutes," Donovan said of his senior shooting guard. "I told him to settle down and go have some fun."

"I got chewed out," Schieppe admitted. "Not because I missed the shot, but because I got down on myself."

A few of Marshall players had some fun including Thad Bonapart and Shawn Moore who completed the game with 25 and 21 points respectively.

Bonapart shined in his college debut by grabbing six boards and dishing out four assists.

The rookie head coach said this is the type of balanced game he would like to see consistently throughout the season.

"We were very balanced in scoring," Donovan said. "I don't think we should have a 'go to' guy every game," he said. "We're going to play against good teams who will be able to shut us down so we need to have several guys we can go to."

Donovan said he was pleased with the unselfish effort of the players. The team combined for 23 assists and nine of the 10 Herd players put points on the scoreboard.

Despite free throw percentages and rebounding problems, Donovan said he was pleased with the team's debut.

With one game down, Marshall now looks to the next four contests which will be played on the road.

"This team has not traditionally been a good road team," Donovan said. "We are going to have ups and downs during the season but that makes teams stronger and it will carry us through the season."

"If we were at the point where we were playing our best basketball, I would be scared because we still have three months to go."

Eagles' coach leaves post

STATESBORO, Ga. (AP) — Georgia Southern basketball coach Frank Kerns and two of his assistants resigned Monday after the school revealed possible violations of NCAA regulations.

A basketball prospect allegedly was given help in completing lessons and a test for a correspondence course, said university president Nicholas Henry, who announced the resignations at a news conference.

He said the player, who was not identified, was awarded a scholarship but has been declared academically ineligible and never played a game for Georgia Southern.

Resigning with Kerns were Mike Backus and Mark White.

When the resignations were announced, the Eagles were in Athens for Monday's game against Georgia.

Henry said they were being coached temporarily by assistant Doug Durham.

"This kind of sad episode can happen anywhere, even Georgia Southern," Henry said. "Every appropriate officer in the university moved immediately, intensively and aggressively in rooting out this apparent violation."

Henry said the allegation came to light last Tuesday, and the Southern Conference was informed Wednesday and the NCAA was informed Friday.

The school's internal investigation is continuing, and results will be turned over to the conference and the NCAA, he said.

Kerns, who has compiled a 244-132 record at Georgia Southern, coached the Eagles to a 68-58 victory over Brewton-Parker in their season opener Friday night.

He has been selected Southern Conference coach of the year four times and has taken the Eagles to three NCAA Tournaments and two NITs.

Gay and Lesbian community served by outreach office

By Debra McCutcheon
Reporter

In just three years, the Gay, Lesbian, and Bisexual Outreach Office has established itself as an organization intent on educating the community about alternative lifestyles.

Brian Davis, Huntington Graduate student, founded the office, then called the Alternative Lifestyles Initiative, in January 1992 because he thought the gay and lesbian population at Marshall was underrepresented.

"The intent was to establish the office as an educational outreach that would provide a way of channelling lesbian and gay students into the services of the university," Davis said.

Kenneth Blue, associate vice president of multicultural affairs, worked in the office of student affairs when the outreach office was initiated. "The fact that they are still operating after more than two and a half years shows they are serving a portion of the university that needs to be served," Blue said.

The office was the first of its kind at an institution of higher education in West Virginia. A similar office was opened at West Virginia University one year ago and Fairmont College is in the process of developing its office.

During Davis's first two years in the office, he gave classroom presentations, instructed sensitivity training for Residence Services and worked to educate other organizations on campus.

Now the office is in a transitional phase. Davis left the of-ice this semester and was replaced by Jennifer Patterson, Bluefield freshman. As Patterson works to make herself familiar with the history of the office and to develop her own future educational projects, she has another task of making the student body aware of the outreach office and the services it provides.

"It is hard for us because the student body changes every year and students are not always aware that our office exists. It is necessary for us to let students know of the services available to them through this office," Davis said.

Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Outreach Office has built up a reference library of over 100 fiction and non-fiction books for use by any student. Video tapes, pamphlets, brochures and articles from periodicals are also available.

Patterson said since she has been at the office she has noticed that the resources are used quite frequently by all students for research for class assignments or just for general knowledge of gay and lesbian issues and lifestyles. Patterson said the office not only serves Marshall's campus but has become an information referral service for the entire Huntington community.

Davis said, in the past, the office has served as a liaison for lesbian and gay problems on campus. Davis said the office has had success in many such incidents that involved faculty members, resident directors, and students.

The office has a hotline, 696-6623, that can be reached at any time.

"Sometimes people wish to approach the office anonymously," Patterson said.

Patterson said she is developing a gay, lesbian and bisexual support group and is planning for World AIDS Day, December 1.

President of International Club wants student social activities

By Timur M. Dilsiz
Reporter

The new president of International Students Club, Nadeem Khan of Pakistan, will try to bring students together and also help new international students.

"Three years ago, we had a very strong international club. Like two years, everything has just gone down. So, I realized that we should do something," Khan said. "We should need some change."

"I have been here for 3 and a half years and when I came in the beginning, there was president, Emir, from Iran. He was very popular among all international and American students," he said. "It really made a difference that there was somebody who was there to help us, because when you come here in the beginning, you have no idea what is going on."

"The students who came this year and last year had nobody to help them out," he said.

"I put a lot of time in this and I discussed with a lot of people what I was going to do before I ran and a lot of people agreed what I was talking about," he said.

"I want everybody to get together. We don't want secluded people. We don't want just Pakistani people hanging out together or just Chinese people hanging out together," he said. "We really want to globalize it. We want people from anywhere."

"We are going to have a party before this semester ends. We want all the students to participate," he said. "Now, we are basically looking for a place where we can have a party."

"When I won, I felt really good, because it is not really for me. It is the idea that we are here in school. Considering a place like Huntington, the small city, you don't have a lot of things to do," he said. "Plus, for international students, it is the major problem, because they don't know where to go and what to do."

"So, it is nice if everybody gets together and has a great time," he said.

"If I really can make people satisfied with my work this semester, I may also run for next semester," he said.
