Jazz festival brings soul sound to campus

by JANIS P. SHEPPARD
reporter

Plans are being finalized for the 28th annual Marshall University Jazz Festival Jan. 30, 31 and Feb. 1 in the Smith Music Recital Hall.

The festival will feature the university's Alumni Jazz Band and its Jazz Ensemble, as well as visiting guest artists, collegiate jazz ensembles and high school bands. Dr. Ed Bingham, director of jazz studies and coordinator of the festival, said. The visiting guest artists include Bill Prince, a woodwind and brass multi-instrumentalist, and Steve Rehbein, an electronic percussionist.

Prince, the director of the music theory program at the University of North Florida, plays a variety of instruments including trumpet, trombone, saxophone, clarinet and flute.

He has performed professionally as a studio musician with bands including: the American Wind Symphony, the NORAD Band and several major orchestras.

He has performed on more than 50 albums. Prince has also appeared on the "The Tonight Show," "The Today Show," "The Steve Allen Show," "The Mike Douglas Show," "I've Got A Secret," and a variety of other programs throughout the United States, Canada, Japan, Costa Rica, Colombia, Ecuador and the Philippines.

Rehbein, who has also played professionally, is coordinator of jazz studies and percussion and assistant director of bands at the University of Nebraska at Omaha. He will be performing percussion music with electronic marimba and computer generated vibraphone effects.

He has toured the United States and Europe as co-founder, co-musical director and performer/composer of the critically acclaimed progressive jazz ensemble "Auracle." Rehbein has recorded two albums, "Glider" and "City Slickers," on Chrysalis Records. In the 70s he played for television soundtracks at MGM, Paramount and Universal studios as a Los Angeles studio musician.

Rehbein has assembled his own band to perform his original compositions, he is owner of the SAR Publishing Company and is an artist and clinician for the Ludwig/Musser Company. His freelance credits include performances with Ed Shaughnessy, James Moody, Dizzy Gillespie, Ndugu Chanler, Jack Jones and many local and regional orchestras.

He is the author of "The Contemporary Jazz Vibraphonist: The Electroacoustic Revolution," "Today's Tips for Tomorrow's Music Teachers," and "Rehbein's Rules: The Road to Musical Success and Personal Fulfillment."

The evening concerts begin at 7 p.m. Thursday's opening concert will feature collegiate ensembles from Huntington police followed standard procedure in the misdemeanor drug possession arrest of Marshall University sophomore football player Cedric Watson Sunday night, said Lt. Allen Meek of the Huntington Police Department.

"This is really not a big issue for us," Meek said. "He (Watson) was charged with a misdemeanor."

According to a story in Monday's Herald-Dispatch, Watson, a native of Fort Valley, Ga., was pulled over because his Georgia license plates had expired. The officer noticed an odor of marijuana coming from inside the car and conducted a pat-down search of Watson. The police report shows 5 grams of marijuana were found on Watson, and he was arrested without incident.

The Herald-Dispatch also reported freshman wide receiver Randy Moss was in the car, but reported he was not arrested

Tutoring offers support, jobs

by WHITNEY A. GIBEAUT
reporter

Students who have concerns about the spring semester classes have access to tutoring.

Tutoring is available to all full-time and part-time students and can improve grades.

The tutoring services are financed through student fees.

All students are entitled to tutoring in two areas. Tutoring will be provided in a variety of course.

Mitzi Cyrus, tutor coordinator, said, "Although last semester our tutoring program was successful with a turnout of 130 student tutors, there needed to be some changes made in the program."

Cyrus said in the past the tutors worked independently. Starting this semester, all tutors will have time frames and locations in which to tutor.

Tutoring will be available in the James E. Morrow Library Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m.-8 p.m. and Fridays 9 a.m. - 1 p.m.

The tutoring will take place in two areas of the library, the rock room and the law alcove.

Students who are seeking a part-time job on campus may become a student tutor.

Full-time students are needed in all subjects for tutoring.

Cyrus said students can tutor in any course in which they have made an "A" or "B."

Students are also required to have an overall 3.0 grade point average to tutor.

Students can pick and choose their schedule. Student tutors may work up to 20 hours a week.

Graduate students will be paid $6 per hour and undergraduates will receive $5 per hour for tutoring services.

Students interested in receiving tutoring or being a tutor may contact Cyrus in 134 Prichard Hall.

At the Movies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Early Super Bowl weekend estimates in the box office derby showed "Jerry Maguire," "Beverly Hills Ninja" and "In Love and War" in a three-way tie for first place.

"It's a very tight weekend," said Ed Russell, executive vice president of publicity for Columbia TriStar Motion Picture Cos.

The three films were projected to bring in $5.9 million each, although Sunday's televised National Football League championship made it difficult to project audience sizes.

"Jerry Maguire" stars Tom Cruise as a sports agent; "In Love and War," the story of a young Ernest Hemingway's love affair with a nurse, stars Sandra Bullock and Chris O'Donnell; "Beverly Hills Ninja" is a Chris Farley sendup of martial arts movies.

In its first weekend of wide release, "In Love and War" had the best per-screen average of the trio at $3,665, $733 above "Ninja" and $992 over "Maguire."

Also opening in the top 10 were "Fierce Creatures," a reunion of the cast from "A Fish Called Wanda" in a nonsequel comedy about a zoo, and "Zeus and Roxanne," an animal pal story about a dog and a dolphin.

The top 10 films and their estimated grosses for Friday through Sunday:

1. "Jerry Maguire," $5.9 million.
1. "In Love and War," $5.9 million.
1. "Beverly Hills Ninja," $5.9 million.
4. "Metro," $5.6 million.
5. "Evita," $5.5 million.
6. "Scream," $4.4 million.
7. "The Relic," $4.16 million.
8. "Fierce Creatures," $4 million.
9. "Michael," $3.7 million.
10. "Zeus and Roxanne," $2.9 million.

Honda Accord recognized as nation's most stolen car

DETROIT (AP) — It may be the second best-selling car in the United States, but among thieves it's first by far.

CCC Information Services Inc., which keeps track of car theft for the insurance and body repair industries, said the Honda Accord took 11 of the top 25 spots on its annual most-stolen list.

The 1994 Honda Accord EX was No. 1, the '88 Accord LX was second and the '92 Accord LX was third. Other Accords ranked seventh, eighth, 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 24th and 25th.

The Accord has ranked among the best-selling cars in the United States for years; it was No. 2 last year, behind the Ford Taurus. Honda maintains that in sales to individuals, as opposed to rental companies and other fleet owners, the popular family sedan and coupe ranked No. 1 last year.

The Accord's new dubious distinction marks the first time since the early 1980s that a foreign automaker ranked that high in thefts, said Bill Geen, CCC's senior vice president.

Honda spokesman Art Garner said the list is misleading because it ranks cars based on raw theft totals for other cars in its class.

In taking the top spot, the Accord ousted the mid-80s Oldsmobile Cutlass Supremes, which had held the most-stolen crown for the tion. There are a lot of them on the road, so demand for their parts grows stronger as they start to age. Many parts are interchangeable from year to year and with other models.

"The market for stolen cars evolves to meet demand," Geen said. "Thieves don't steal vehicles based upon how simple or hard it is to take them; rather, they determine how easy it may be to sell them on the black market."

But strong sales don't guarantee a spot on the most-stolen list.

The best-selling sport utility vehicle, the Ford Explorer, didn't make the top 100. Neither did the Taurus. And the best-selling vehicle in America — the Ford F-series pickup — ranked only 74th (the '95 Ford F150 4X2 XL).

The most-stolen light truck of the past few years — the 1993 Jeep Grand Cherokee 4X4 — fell to No. 35 overall last year from No. 17 in 1995.

CCC ranks the 100 most frequently stolen vehicles based on an analysis of its data from valuing stolen or damaged vehicles for insurance companies.

rather than theft rates, such as the number of thefts per 1,000 cars.

"It's only natural that there would be more Accords stolen than most," Garner said. "There's more of them out there, so there are more stolen."

Theft rate studies have shown the Accord is about average compared with other cars, Garner said, and its insurance rates are average or slightly better than those past four years and the top three spots in 1995.

The '84-87 Cutlass Supremes are still on the list, but have fallen to the fourth, sixth, 14th and 18th places. "Now you're looking at a 12- or 13-year-old car," said Bill Geen, CCC's senior vice president. "At that point, they start disappearing from use."

The same features that made the Oldsmobiles popular with thieves "helped" the Accord win its dubious dis-

Citadel sees higher increase in freshman dropout rate

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — More freshmen at The Citadel have quit already this academic year than during all of last year, one of the highest dropout rates at the military academy in the past decade.

"I wish I could put my finger on the reasons why," interim President Clifton Poole said. "Whatever it is, we need to do something to turn that around."

Four women were among the 581 freshmen who enrolled in August, the first female cadets ever at the 153-year-old school. Since then, 113 cadets have dropped out, including two of the women who said they were leaving because of sexual harassment and hazing.

Last year's freshman class lost 102 students by May, or 16.2 percent.

So far this year, 19.4 percent of freshman have left, the second-highest dropout rate by January in the past 10 years. The highest was 20 percent in the 1994-1995 school year.

The rate is "very high," said James Bradin, a former Citadel commandant and school board member. "My guess is that there's something that caused that. It's something in the barracks."

The female cadets who quit, Jeanie Mentavlos and Kim Messer, said male cadets set their clothes on fire and washed out their mouths with cleanser. Two male cadets were suspended, and 11 face disciplinary action.

The women were admitted following a U.S. Supreme Court ruling last year that a similar all-male policy at Virginia Military Institute was unconstitutional. The first woman to enroll at The Citadel, Shannon Faulkner, dropped out after less than a week, citing stress and isolation.

In the past 10 years, the academy's dropout rate at the end of the first year has ranged from 17 percent to 24 percent.

"Maybe what we're seeing now is that times have really changed," Poole said. "Kids are just different today. Maybe the fact it's a coed corps, the culture needs to change and will change even more."

Immigrants get longer wait

WASHINGTON (AP) — The spouses and dependent children of legal immigrants are having to wait longer to be admitted to the United States — fresh evidence of problems with the system, an immigration study panel says.

Most legal permanent residents now must wait a minimum of three years and 11 months to be reunited with immediate family members living abroad and seeking U.S. immigration visas, according to State Department figures cited by the Commission on Immigration Reform.

Just four months ago, the minimum wait was three years and eight months, and in September 1996 it was three years and one month, the congressionally appointed commission reported recently.

The wives, husbands and young children of people who have attained U.S. citizenship are admitted into this country immediately. But more than 1.1 million spouses and offspring of legal permanent residents are on waiting lists, the figures show.

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — New Jersey wants to grab more tax dough from pizza parlors.

The state loses up to $50 million in unpaid sales taxes because many pizzerias don't report all their sales, said Joseph Thiel, assistant director of audits at the state Treasury Department.

Making them deliver the right numbers is hard because pizzerias are cash businesses. Therefore, the state plans to go to the suppliers of pizza ingredients. Investigators will compare orders from pizza parlors to their reported sales.

"I've had pizzerias tell me they put four pounds of cheese on a pie in order to justify the low percentage of profit they were showing," Thiel said.

Deborah Dowdell, executive vice president of the New Jersey Restaurant Association, said she hopes the audits distinguish between parlors truly holding back on taxes and those simply in error.

MONTVILLE, Conn. (AP) — Dozens of couples will gamble on wedded bliss when they take their vows Valentine's Day at the Mohegan Sun Casino.

The mass wedding was planned as a promotion for radio station WKSS-FM. The station set a goal of 95 couples to correspond with its location on the radio dial. By the weekend, they had signed up more than 70 pairs.

The couples will marry on the air during the "Ross & Courtney" morning show. Disc jockey Ross Brittain will officiate.

The station hopes to top last year's Valentine's Day promotion — a 95-second wedding at a McDonald's drive-through.

SALINE, Mich. (AP) — A burglar has stolen a dog's kitty.

Customers at Harry's Service Station delighted in tipping Charlie, a 7-year-old golden retriever trained to take bills and deliver change.

But someone broke into Harry's and raided an estimated $80 to $100 in a jar set aside for Charlie's tips.

"Nothing else was taken," manager Rick Parsons said last week.

Parsons' father, Harry, said Charlie has been a public relations windfall and a paw print even appears on credit card receipts.

"When someone gives you a $20 bill for their gas, they're generally pleasant," he said. "But when they give it to Charlie, they're downright happy."

Coach Pruett proves he's a class act

There was so much green and white in downtown Huntington this weekend and so much talk of the grid-iron, a casual observer may have thought it was championship weekend all over again. 'Salute to the Champions Weekend' was the final batch of icing to go on a cake that came out of the oven Dec. 21 when the Thundering Herd defeated the Montana Grizzlies, 49-29 to take the NCAA I-AA title. Herd coach Bobby Pruett has been the toast of the town for more than a month and rightly so.

But this time last year, Pruett was the new guy in town, the guy who had to fill Jim Donnan's shoes. Fans were wondering if Pruett could keep the Herd in the top tier of teams in I-AA. Well, he did with no questions asked, leaving the I-AA world in the dust as the Herd moves into the Mid-American Conference next season.

A 15-0 record, record-setting passing game, two 1,000 yard rushers, a dominating defense and a national championship trophy, and suddenly Donnan's shoes look like baby slippers.

Ask Pruett about all this and he gives all the credit to the players and assistant coaches. Here's a guy who hours after winning the national title shows up to cheer on the men's basketball team. Pruett could have been welcomed with open arms anywhere in the tri-state area that night and he decided to show his support for fellow first-year coach Greg White.

This past Saturday, Pruett showed up again at the Henderson Center as the football team was honored once again during half-time. But he didn't just leave after the football team's standing ovation. The basketball team was in a tight game against Southern Conference foe Appalachian State. There was a timeout on the floor and Pruett joined Marco out on the court to fire up the crowd. Does anybody remember Donnan doing that? He isn't trying to prove anything, he's just a class act and deserves to be the toast of the campus and town.

Closing cafeteria causes chaos

It has come to my attention that on behalf of the students who eat over at Holderby Hall cafeteria, I am one of them who is very displeased at the closing of the building on Friday and the weekends.

I just think closing the building on Friday is unfair and unjust. Yes it is true that turnout is very bad on the weekends here at Marshall, but I would rather eat there than over in the noisy Twin Towers.

I say let the residents in Towers have their cafeteria, and the residents in Buskirk, Laidley, Hodges, and Holderby have theirs. We really enjoy the company and sometimes the quiet that Holderby provides.

Also, the service is a whole lot better. Let's say you eat over in Towers, and the next thing you know you are waiting in a line for food for an hour.

Is that right? There is always only one line open there anyways. As a resident of the dorm of Hodges, I feel that closing Holderby on Friday will not make

Nursing faculty give medical aid to poverty-stricken Hondurans

by KAREEM W. SHORA
reporter

The spirit of the holidays is alive and well at the Marshall University School of Nursing.

Four School of Nursing faculty members participated in a 10 day medical aid program in Honduras during Christmas break.

The volunteer program was organized by Rev. Charles Wood II of the West Virginia Southern Community and Technical College in coordination with Peaceworks, a private aid organization for developing countries.

Dr. Lynne B. Welch, dean of the School of Nursing and one of the participants, said the group traveled from the town of El Progreso by bus and then took trucks to the remote village of Ocotepanlino.

"Poverty here in the United States is not really poverty by world standards," Welch said. "Some villagers walked for up to five hours with their children in order to see us."

The other three nursing faculty members who participated were Becky D. Rider, Denise A. Landry and Dr. Linda M. Scott.

Scott said the adventure, the first of her career, was one of the hardest things she has ever done, but it was also one of the most rewarding.

"I would do it again," Scott said, "But if asked a week ago I would probably have said no."

Welch, a veteran world traveler who began her nursing career in Nigeria, said the severe poverty in Honduras was the worst she had ever seen.

"A few buildings had concrete floors, but many did not," Welch said, "Pigs and chickens roamed free in many houses."

The group also included three nurse practitioners who graduated from Marshall, and 18 nursing students from the Southern Community and Technical College.

The volunteers were able to treat 2,400 patients during their eight days in Ocotepanlino.

The most prominent problems encountered by the group were malnutrition, parasites and tropical diseases such as Chagas, Dengue fever, amoebic dysentery and malaria.

Two dentists provided by the Honduran government to aid the volunteers pulled 600 teeth during that same period.

"Many people complained of headaches and dizziness due to anemia," Welch said, "There had not been any medical effort in those areas for over two years."

Continuing education crunch being relieved

by CHRISTINA REDEKOPP
staff writer

The rubbing of elbows in crowded continuing education classes at the Community and Technical College (CTC) may soon be coming to an end.

Dr. K. Edward Grose, senior vice president for operations, said the Marshall University Foundation purchased the former Faith United Methodist Church on 7th Avenue for expansion of the CTC.

"We've been looking for a long time to identify a home for the continuing education piece of the CTC," he said.

Dr. Robert B. Hayes, provost dean of the CTC, said, "Continuing education now is so crowded among every other program, they have a difficult time finding space. We're looking forward to growth."

He said continuing education will move into the building and the allied health department and legal assistance program may move in as well.

Grose said the 20th Street Baptist Church was looked at originally to expand the CTC. He said that even though the church was still occupied, the congregation was willing to change its location.

But the former Faith United Methodist Church was vacant as a result of a merger and university officials were approached about purchasing it. He said it was in better condition structurally than the 20th Street Baptist Church.

The building was evaluated and purchased by the MU Foundation at the beginning of December, Grose said. The MU Foundation is a private non-profit corporation chartered specifically to support Marshall University.

Grose said, "There's a real void there that we have not been able to meet. I think this property will meet that need. It's close enough to the university that if a class were offered there, people can get there without a lot of inconvenience."

Richard Hensley, director of continuing education, said the purchase of the former church will allow continuing education to have its own identity.

"It will make us more visible and we'll have the facilities that we need available to us," he said. "Continuing education is a rapidly growing and an important part of education now and I'm pleased the university is recognizing the need and making it a part of their mission."

Hensley said in 1996 they had 144 programs and 2,596 people enrolled. They have had to add a full-time and a part-time person because of the rapid growth.

"It's the fastest growing form of education right now. We're in a time of lifelong learning," Hensley said. Continuing education is a self-sustaining part of the university with expenses covered by fees charged. He said they offer a wide variety of classes from dance and calligraphy to cooking and comic strip drawing.

"The nice thing about continuing education is we can react or act promptly and quickly as needs arise," Hensley said.

Hensley said many people in continuing education already have degrees but they want to update skills or take a class because of a hobby. He said the programs run year-round but may only last a few weeks so it is difficult finding classroom space at the university.

"Our problem has been we've had to take what's left after credit classes," Hensley said. He said the CTC needs its own classrooms for conference space and tables for courses with art classes. They expect at least 5,000 people enrolled at the new building, he said.

Revised student handbook outlines rules of conduct

The newly revised Student Handbook describes many aspects of student life at Marshall University, including the Code of Conduct.

A free copy of the handbook may be obtained in Memorial Student Center.

The Code of Conduct is divided into several areas of behavior, including academic misconduct, negligent bodily harm, gambling, and scalping.

Violating these rules may result in a referral to the Office of Judicial Affairs or expulsion from the university.

A student may file a complaint through the judicial offices if they feel they have been unjustly accused.

"We will give a trial for most minor offenses if a student wants," said Linda P. Rowe, director of judicial affairs.

"A Marshall student who feels he or she has been treated unfairly in the campus judicial system not only has appeal rights, but may file a grievance against the offending staff or office through the grievance procedure for students," she said.

"Sometimes students seem to feel that their rights have been violated just because they are accused of something," Rowe said.

She said students are guaranteed the right to due process before being found guilty of what they are accused of.

"The accused always has the right to defend him or herself," Rowe said.

She said she feels confident Marshall's judicial system is fundamentally fair and rational.

"We're here to protect student's rights, including living in a safe, oriented environment," Rowe said.

Buses, chicken fill SGA agenda

by SARAH D. WARRICK
reporter

The Marshall University Student Senate will meet Tuesday at 4 p.m. in MSC 2W29B.

The senate will be addressing a wide range of issues from Valentine's Day fund raisers to accepting bids for the 1997 student directory.

Vicky Shaffer, general manager of the Tri-State Transit Authority, will be there to answer questions concerning the proposal between Marshall and TTA. The proposal would allow students to ride the TTA buses at discount prices.

Steve Wilcox, general manager of Marriott at Marshall, will also attend the meeting.

Wilcox and the senate are trying to work out an agreement to change the current rule prohibiting students from using their meal plan to pay for Chick-fil-A menu items.

Another related issue that is scheduled to be addressed is adding more chicken alternatives to the Marriott menu.

Student Body President Nawar Shora said he encourages all students to attend the meeting and voice any concerns or questions they might have.

MUPD Police Blotter

by JULIE M. STRIDER
reporter

Five Marshall students were arrested from Jan. 11-Jan. 21. The charges range from possession of marijuana to writing a bad check.

- Tilford J. Bradley, 19, was arrested and given a citation at 9:24 p.m. Jan. 11 in Twin Towers East on a drug violation charge.

Campus police officers were checking out a complaint when they said they smelled marijuana, knocked unannounced and were given permission to enter. They reported finding a small amount of the drug and paraphernalia.

- Garrick L. Hopkins, 18, was arrested at 9:24 p.m. Jan. 11 in Twin Towers East when a local background check revealed an outstanding warrant for a worthless check.

- Walter L. Williams Jr., 18, was arrested at 9:07 p.m. Jan. 13 in Twin Towers East on a bench warrant for failure to appear in court.

- Destruction of property outside the Fine and Performing Arts building was reported at 11:30 a.m. Jan. 15. The victim reported a mirror was removed from the passenger side of a 1996 green Chevrolet S10.

- A threatening phone call was reported made at 5:15 a.m. Jan. 17 to a female living off campus. There reportedly is a suspect and the case has been turned over to judicial affairs.

- A charge of assault and tampering at Old Main Circle was filed at 2:12 p.m. Jan. 17. A verbal argument between two females over a parking space ended with one being poked in the chest and another nearly getting hit by a car. The case is under investigation.

- Matthew E. Kay, 19, was arrested at 4:33 p.m. Jan. 17 in Hodges Hall on a bench warrant for failure to appear in court.

- Randall G. Price, 23, was arrested at 3 a.m. Jan. 21 on 3rd Avenue for driving with a suspended license.

Price reportedly ran a red light, was pulled over and a driver's license check revealed it was suspended due to unpaid citations.

- At 10:03 a.m. Jan. 21, an RCA 8mm Camcorder in a green canvas bag was reported stolen from the Science Building

Alderson-Broaddus College and West Virginia State College.

Friday's concert will feature the Morehead State University Big Band, the MU Faculty Jazz Ensemble and Prince and Rehbein.

The final show Saturday will feature the MU Jazz Ensemble, the guest artists and a performance of the Marshall University Alumni Jazz Band. Bingham, who will direct the jazz ensemble said, the Marshall Jazz Ensemble will be performing a Dixieland selection entitled "Black Bottom Stomp," numerous standard jazz tunes and contemporary compositions composed by the guest artists. The selections "Jonathan's Dream" and "Coffee Break" written by Rehbein, and "Ebony Dance" and "Little Willy Pentatonic" written by Prince will be among those played.

West Virginia High Schools participating in the festival include Fairmont, Lincoln, Scott, Point Pleasant, Sherman, Greenbrier East and Huntington.

Bingham, who is in his seventh year of coordinating the festival, said the high school ensembles will perform at various times Friday and Saturday.

The Pied Piper and the Ludwig-Musser division of Selmer are sponsoring the festival and will have products on display.

Admission is $5 and tickets are available at the Music Department Office or at the door. Faculty and students are admitted free.

ARREST

or charged.

Meek said in this type of situation the driver of the car holds most of the responsibility.

"They (police) usually check for any outstanding warrants," he said. "If none are found, you don't normally charge the others in the car."

Meek also said an arrest such as this doesn't usually find its way into a story.

"If it hadn't been for Moss being in the car, nothing at all would have been said," Meek said. "In some situations we issue a citation for this sort of thing, and sometimes it involves paying a fine."

Meek said a drug test cannot be administered at the scene.

Marshall head football coach Bobby Pruett said his program is still investigating the incident.

"We have a pretty stringent drug policy here at Marshall, and we're adhering to that drug policy," Pruett said.

Pruett said all players were tested before the National Championship Game.

The Marshall University Handbook states, "Members of the Marshall University community are responsible for knowing and complying with provisions of West Virginia law that define as crimes the possession, sale, delivery, or manufacture of those drugs known as 'controlled substances.'"

Referring to university action against violators of these laws, the handbook states, "Penalties imposed may range from written warnings with probationary status to expulsions from enrollment and/or termination of employment."

Keydets top Herd

LEXINGTON, Va. (AP) — Darryl Faulkner and Bryan Taueg each hit a pair of free throws in the final half-minute Monday as Virginia Military held off Marshall 97-92.

Faulkner led five Keydets (9-10, 5-2 Southern Conference) in double figures with 21 points.

Marshall (14-4, 6-1) shot 50 percent from the floor and 52 percent from 3-point range but was outrebounded 48-39.

The Thundering Herd's Keith Veney led all scorers with 29 points, and Derrick Wright had 12 rebounds.

The Keydets trailed by as much as eight in the first half but led 45-41 at halftime. After the intermission, VMI led most of the way, but Marshall stayed within range behind the shooting of Veney and John Brannen, who finished with 23 points.

Keith Veney scored 29 points in the loss.

A weekend devoted to champions

reporter

Crowds cheered, coaches and players presented trophies and signs, and Mayor Jean Dean declared everyone in Huntington a champion.

All of this happened during Salute to the Champions Weekend.

"I was happy with the turnout from the community, but I was extremely pleased with the amount of students that attended," said Athletic Director Lance West.

Many football players and coaches were in the parade that ended at the Ninth Street plaza where senior members of the team shared the stage there with Coach Bob Pruett, West and Dean.

"We're all champions in the city of Huntington," Dean declared as she unveiled a city entry sign that was inscribed "Marshall University 1996 NCAA Division 1-AA National Football Champions."

The crowd then met Pruett with cheers as he led them in a chant of "we're number one."

"Marshall University has won more games in the 90's than any other football program in the United States," Pruett said.

Pruett turned the stage over to the seniors. After each received his applause, they thanked those who supported them and made comments about the season.

Senior offensive lineman Aaron Ferguson said, "When you go 15-0 and win the championship, it is the perfect end to the perfect season."

Later that evening the NCAA Championship Trophy and other trophies were displayed to the crowd of more than 1300 at the women's basketball game.

They were brought back for halftime of the men's game and were accompanied by the new city entry signs and the entire football team.

The crowd of 7000 plus gave a standing ovation. West said both games had a season high attendance.

The festivities closed Sunday with the Quarterback Club Awards Banquet.

Among those honored was freshman wide receiver Randy Moss, who was named most valuable offensive player. Senior defensive tackle Billy Lyon received the defensive MVP award for the second consecutive year.

Women's team knocks off Davidson

by DAN LONDEREE
sports editor

After Saturday night's victory over conference leader Furman, Marshall women's basketball was back to .500 with a 9-9 record.

Last night, the Herd added an 81-73 win against 11-5 Davidson to give Marshall a winning record.

Sophomore forward Kristina Behnfeldt led the Herd with 18 points and 11 rebounds.

"I think we're playing more as a team," Behnfeldt said. "Everyone's really playing together."

The Herd committed a season-low nine turnovers, and Behnfeldt said it was no fluke.

"We're definitely focusing more on our turnovers," she said. "When we make turnovers in practice we have to run, so we try to avoid them."

Junior forward Kerri Simmons poured in 16 points and also grabbed 11 rebounds.

"It's good to be back on the winning side, and hopefully we'll keep it going," Simmons said.

Simmons said the difference in the game was Marshall's fast breaks.

"We pushed the ball up the floor tonight," she said. "We ran a lot, and I think it caught them off guard."

Marshall head coach Sarah Evans-Moore said the win was important for the future.

"We are now in position to make a run at the Southern Conference title," she said.

Marshall plays 7 p.m. at home this Saturday night and looks to pick up a conference win against East Tennessee State.

The biggest threat to depression is your awareness of it.

Serious depression strikes millions. Serious depression strikes indiscriminately. Serious depression is MOST dangerous when it goes unrecognized. That's why it's so important to always be aware of the threat of depression. And if your life is ever interrupted by a period of depression, remember that it is readily, medically treatable.

Davidson's Music relocates and expands

by TONYA A. JOHNSON
reporter

If you're looking for Davidson's Music and can't seem to find it, it has not gone very far.

The store has moved to a new location at 932 4th Ave., across from the Keith Albee Theater.

Davidson's owner Jay Mitchell said the reason the store was moved was to have more space and expand its music selection.

The variety of titles range from Billy Holiday to Marilyn Manson. The new store opened the second week of January.

Davidson's Music offers delivery of merchandise, and pre-ordering of upcoming CDs. Mitchell said he wants to have bands sign autographs in the store regularly.

The band Cannibal Corpse will be signing autographs in February.

Mitchell said he plans to open a skate shop that carries skateboards, snowboards, clothing and does repairs in the balcony of the new store. He hopes to have the shop, Board Generations, opened in the next four to six weeks.

When asked what makes Davidson's Music different from its competitors, Mitchell said, "We treat our customers better and offer the best selection of posters and T-shirts that no one else can." He says they also offer the best prices on new releases.

Economics major Mike E. Virag, a junior from Ligonier, Pa., said the reason he shops at Davidson's is, "they have the selection and variety of music I listen to."

Freshman Summer D. Turley, a nursing major from Barboursville, said, "Davidson's is different compared to the other music stores downtown because they sell the things I need, as well as the CDs."

Mitchell said he feels it is too early to tell if the move is going to affect business, since they are still in the process of unpacking boxes.

"We treat our customers better and offer the best selection of posters and t-shirts that no one else can."

owner of Davidson's Music

He said he hopes to have everything unpacked by the first of February.

You can have the latest releases delivered to your door with Davidson's delivery service, or sit at home and read about them on their web site at www.davidsonsmusic.com.

"Davidson's goal for 1997 is to expand, expand, expand!"

Student activities wants to gain support through quality

by REGINA FISHER
reporter

The Office of Student Activities will focus on quality rather than quantity this semester in an effort to gain more student support.

Lisa I. Bartram, Fort Gay graduate assistant in the office of student activities, said attendance has been the biggest obstacle to the success of the activities in recent years.

Direct student involvement is another contributing factor, according to Bartram.

"We had more than 90 students sign up to volunteer at our activities fair last year, and when we called those students back, only a few would commit to getting involved," Bartram said.

Throughout spring semester, student activities and Campus Entertainment Unlimited plan to work on the problems with participation by what they hope to be better activities.

"We're looking at the possibility of having two bands that are more well known for Springfest this year," Bartram said.

Also scheduled for Springfest is a virtual reality booth where students can experience activities such as boxing and other sports via computer generated images.

"Students seem to be more interested in programs they can actually get involved with, so we are trying to provide more interactive programs," said Andy Hermansdorfer, director of student activities and Greek affairs.

The offices plan to discard some of the less successful activities of past semesters, but some of the same events will be offered.

Fun Flicks, a booth which enables students to make their own movies and music videos, will be returning this semester although it has not been decided where the booth will be located.

"Fun Flicks was a good idea, it just wasn't highly visible."

This semester we want to try it again in a high-traffic area," Bartram said.

Some comedians are also tentatively back in the spring schedule.

Jessica A. Johnson, Huntington freshman work-study in the Office of Student Affairs and member of Campus Entertainment Unlimited, said that activities are there if the students want to participate.

In spite of the lack of student involvement, the office remains optimistic about the success of future events, Hermansdorfer said.
