It's Bestwick of Ga. Tech Coach named, confirmed

By CHUCK LANDON
Sports editor

Richard L. Bestwick, former Georgia Tech assistant coach, was named head football coach, was named head football coach Wednesday by Athletic Director Joe McMullen.

The appointment was confirmed by John G. Barker, President of Marshall University.

Bestwick, will tentatively assume his duties on Monday.

Bestwick, 40 year old father of three, holds an A.B. degree in physical education and also possesses his Master's degree.

He graduated from the University of North Carolina in 1952 where he played offensive guard for three years.

He also made his coaching debut in 1952 with Penn State.

However, Bestwick didn't return to college coaching until 1962 when he became the defensive coordinator for Oberlin College.

In his 10 years away from the college ranks Bestwick coached three high school teams to a 47-30-5 record with five conference championships.

Preceding his three year stay with Georgia Tech Bestwick served as an assistant coach with Westminster College, the University of South Carolina and the University of Pittsburgh.

At Georgia Tech he coached a different phase of football each year.

In his first season he coached the offensive line; the second year he was in charge of the linebackers and in his final season Bestwick was the head freshman coach.

Bud Carson, Georgia Tech head football coach, had this to say about Bestwick in his letter of reference: "In 20 years of coaching, I could not recommend a better man to you. He not only is one of the finest coaches in the country, but also one of the best organizers with whom I have ever been associated. His recruiting ability is unsurpassed."

McMullen stated that assistant coaches will have the option to leave, or remain at their current posts.

However, Bestwick will also add three of his own assistants to the coaching staff.

Referee changes asked by Senate

By STEPHEN PLANTZ
Staff reporter

Student Senate meeting at Prichard Hall, Tuesday night passed a three-point proposal calling for unbiased officiating in all MU athletic events.

The proposal, written by Joe Drummond, Huntington senior and commissioner of administrative affairs, and introduced to the Senate by Sen. John Womack, Nitro junior, read:

"1. That all home games with MAC schools be officiated by two or preferably three officials only one of whom may represent the MAC.

2. That Marshall shall not schedule nor participate in any away games with MAC schools unless it is officiated by at least one official not representing the MAC.

3. That a study be conducted as to similar policies being enacted for all other sports in competition with MAC schools."

The motion passed and is now with the Athletic Committee for consideration.

Womack called the motion "a definite move on the part of the Marshall student body to say we don't want the MAC."

Womack also called for an itemized account of the $25 damage fee dorm residents must pay showing what residents are billed for. The motion passed and will be referred to the Senate Dorm Committee.

In regard to a question of lack of social life at MU, Student Body President Mike Gant, Huntington junior, pointed out that the Student Planning Board is working with such activities as the Film Force, the possibility of beer on campus, and building a Ratscheller in the new student union.

Gant also said the date for the Student Benefit has been changed to later in April because of "production hangups."

In other business, Sen. Steve Hinerman, Huntington junior, proposed Senate inquiries into the academic planning calendar for 1971-72.

According to Hinerman, under the new calendar classes will be dismissed for Thanksgiving after the last class on Wednesday instead of noon as has previously been done.

The motion carried and will be referred to the Student Affairs Committee.

Finally, a report by Sen. Joe Lazear, Pittsburgh junior suggested the Senate ask the Executive Committee to recommend to the Board of Regents abolition of the $10 in absentia fee.

The Senate voted to accept Lazear's report, but no further action was taken.

Guitarists perform today

Los Indios Tabajaras, two guitarists from Brazil, will perform for the convocation today, 11 a.m. in Old Main Auditorium.

The musical brothers, Natalico and Antenor, have worked their way from the remote jungles of Brazil and the primitive Tabajaras Indian tribe to world fame.

The Tabajaras began singing when they found a guitar in the forest near their tribal home. Fascinated by the sounds the guitar produced the boys taught themselves to play and accompany their native songs.

In 1936, along with 16 members of their family, they walked 3,000 miles to Rio de Janeiro. Here they continued to teach themselves to play the guitar and began to perform.

A few years later the Tabajaras began playing concerts in Mexico and studying the fundamentals of music seriously. In 1950 they began their international career with a European concert.

Los Indios Tabajaras came to the United States where they have played hundreds of concerts in many cities and universities.

Appearances with Ed Sullivan, Johnny Carson, Mike Douglas, and Arthur Godfrey and eight best selling albums have made Los Indios Tabajaras popular in the United States.

Los Indios Tabajaras play everything from primitive tribal music, and Latin American folk songs to familiar classics by composers like Chopin and Tchaikovsky.

'Miss Marshall University' hopefuls

THIRTEEN GIRLS will be vying for Miss Marshall University, a preliminary to the Miss West Virginia and Miss U.S.A. titles. Listening as Sharon Alberti, current Miss West Virginia, explains basics of the contest are (from left) Sally Leimkuhler, Judi Frame, Becky Browning, Rocheda Joseph, Cathy Sparacino, Vicky Shamblin, Lynne Clendenin, Betsy Griffiths, Pam Michael and Becky Elliot. The contest, sponsored by Kappa Alpha Order, will be at 8 p.m. Saturday in Old Main Auditorium. Not pictured are Diana Giles, Carol (C.J.) Newly formed Fourth Estate wants Sigma Delta Chi okeh

A new Fourth Estate is being organized by interested students and faculty members of the Department of Journalism to work toward acceptance as a campus chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism society.

Fourth Estate, meaning public press, was the name used by the women's journalism honorary prior to their acceptance as a student chapter of Theta Sigma Phi, national women's journalism honorary.

Officers of the new group are John Hendrickson, Summersville graduate student, president; Gary Ramsey, Huntington senior, vice president; and Grace Moore, Buckeye junior, secretary-treasurer.

In order for a campus journalism organization to be accepted as a chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, it must first prove that it is strongly organized, financially sound, and likely to have continuing faculty and alumni support.

It must have a program of professional activities and must send a representative to each Sigma Delta Chi national convention.

In addition, the group must prepare 240 printed or mimeographed petitions for membership giving evidence of its ability to meet all requirements. These petitions are sent to all Sigma Delta Chi chapters, which must then vote on accepting the new chapter.

The campus extension policy of Sigma Delta Chi is in the interest of improvement of standards of journalism, the advancement of journalism teaching, and the broad preparation of students to enter the field of journalism.

Sigma Delta Chi has over 19,000 active members. It has more than 100 professional chapters and over 100 campus chapters.

The Parthenon called our friends at West Virginia University Monday afternoon and learned all offices were closed there—something to do with the celebration of President George's birthday.

So how come they're celebrating a week late? Maybe they're still operating on Pennsylvania's calendar.

Hints to the nosy: This week Friend and State Sen. Robert R. Nelson, D-Cabell, will publicly support Sen. Si Galperin's, D-Kanawha, bill to abolish strip mining—the first senator to do so. Maybe his move will encourage others to do the same.

ACT official to visit campus

Pete Fisher, eastern regional director of American College Testing Program (ACT), King of Prussia, Pennsylvania, will meet at 9 a.m. Thursday with the Deans Council about ACT and its use on campus, according to James W. Harless, director of admissions.

He will speak with each dean about the overall make-up of freshmen enrolled, briefing them with the types of students and the academic differences found within each college of MU.

Correction Department: I jumped the gun last week when I reported the 18-year old vote had been sent to the governor after Senate passage. It seems the measure differed from the House version and had to be sent to committee for compromise.

Just can't believe Del. Freda Paul, D-Cabell, introduced bills providing for the establishment of a Marshall law school and veterinary program without even consulting MU officials for their views. Now let's see some enterprising delegate offer a statute to finance a Marshall Medical School.

Fisher will meet Thursday afternoon with the Student Personnel to discuss how ACT data may help them to better understand the students and their needs.

Harless said whereas standard scores had been used in the past to place students in specific classes, that ACT data was more valuable in counseling and admitting students.

The American College Testing Program (ACT) is an independent, nonprofit, educational service agency that collects, analyzes, processes, and reports information for use in educational planning by college-bound students and their parents, secondary school counselors, college administrators, and other educators.

The ACT student assessment program consists of a test battery administered to high school juniors and seniors on five national test dates each year. Information from the tests is reported to the students, to their secondary schools, and to colleges selected by the students.

Cleveland State Herd foe tonight

By MIKE STARN
Sports writer

The Thundering Herd 'tried but they couldn't do it' and tonight they're back at it again. This time at Memorial Field House where they take on Cleveland State University at 8 p.m.

Chances appear somewhat better for Marshall tonight. Cleveland State won only five games last year and meeting Marshall on the Herd's home court certainly will not help the

SAEs win, stay on top

Sigma Alpha Epsilon No. 1 kept their intramural basketball record intact by trouncing Affa Kaffa Daffa 89-76 in one of nine games played Tuesday evening in Gullickson Hall.

Led by Chuck Chaney, Huntington senior, and Don Hall, McDowell, Ky. senior, with 25 and 21 points respectively the SAE squad remained undefeated in the Fraternity League.

Harry Kirk, Ferrellsburg junior, of the AKD team was the games top scorer with 27 markers followed closely by Andy Williamson, Harts junior, with 26 points. Their effort was not enough to subdue a well organized SAE team.

Affa Kaffa picked up a quick 8-6 lead but it was short lived. Sigma Alpha Epsilon, employing a tight man-to-man defense, began executing their well planned plays and with two minutes left in the first half had a 42-27 lead.

Affa Kaffa came back in the second half with the difficult task of playing catch-up ball and outshot the winners 48-47.

In other Fraternity League contests, Mike Smith, Orangeburg, S.C. junior, chipped in 18 points to lead Pi Kappa Alpha No. 2 over Sigma Phi Epsilon No. 2, 61-57, in a see-saw contest. Pi Kappa Alpha No. 1 beat Kappa Alpha Psi 67-60 and the Bruins ran away from Zeta Beta Tau No. 2, 97-48.

Three games were played in the Dorm League with the Knicks squeaking by a determined Team squad 36-35. Pershing Rifles out scored Mother Truckers 63-43 and South Hall lost a hard fought battle at the hands of the Losers 67-42.

Red Eye upended Big B and the Bombers 74-35 and Mad Dog No. 6 got the best of the Vets 52-46 in the only Independent League game.

Weight room has new pad covering

Marshall's weight lifting room now has good protection for its floor, thanks to a Huntington businessman.

According to Coach William "Red" Dawson, the matting was donated to Marshall by Bob Trocin who is president of Banks-Miller Supply Co. of 330 3rd Ave. in Huntington.

The matting is actually a conveyor belt of the type which is used to carry coal. The belt will be cleaned and then cut into strips to cover the floor of the weight lifting room in Gullickson Hall.

The conveyor belt is made of a very heavy rubber and, according to coach Dawson, "It should last for a long time."

Flooring in the weight lifting room takes a constant beating from the heavy weights and other equipment being used.

Vikings of Coach Ray Dieringer.

CSU does, however, have all five starters from last year returning, including LaMoyné Porter, who holds the single-season scoring record at Cleveland State.

Meanwhile, back at the ranch, the Herd couldn't contend with Willie Allen Tuesday as the University of Miami handed Marshall its second consecutive one point defeat 89-88 at Miami, Fla. The Herd lost to Miami of Ohio Saturday 75-74.

Stewart Way threw three different defenses at the University of Miami's Willie Allen, but none of them could contain the 6-6 center as he almost single-handedly defeated the Herd.

Although MU's cagers trailed the Hurricanes for most of the second half, they fought back to an 86-86 tie, with Gary Orsini's steal and Mike D'Antoni's layup with 43 seconds left to play.

However D'Antoni fouled Allen with 31 seconds left and he converted both charity shots in the one-and-one.

Marshall had another opportunity to even the score, but D'Antoni missed a layup. Donald Strong then sank one of two free throw attempts and Bob DePathy put in a meaningless layup with two seconds left.

In a see-saw first half battle, the Hurricanes scored four points in the last 10 seconds to lead 46-45.

Big Green cagers were able to take three one-point leads and tie the game on five occasions in the second half, but were never able to gain control.

The win broke a ten game losing streak for the Hurricanes and boosted their record to 6-18, while MU lost its fourth in a row for a 13-9 mark.

Allen played a phenomenal game as he connected on 13 of 20 field goals attempts and hit 12 of 14 free throws for 38 points. He also found time to collect 15 rebounds.

Russell Lee had 22 points and 15 rebounds to lead the Herd, while D'Antoni added 21.

Marshall was out shot by Miami 49 per cent to 44 per cent, but was accurate at the foul line, hitting 75 per cent of its attempts. The Hurricanes also out rebounded MU 52-42.

Little Duck and Big Dave do their thing

"Hey Big Dave!"

"Hey Duck." I really enjoyed watching your game; I don't get to cheer too much and I liked it. You should watch your rebounds because you jumped too soon a couple of times."

Whose conversation is this? Avid basketball fans probably already know them. It's Beverley Duckwyler and Dave Smith, top rebounders on both of Marshall's varsity basketball teams.

Beverley and Dave have a lot in common. Beverley, 5'9", is the tallest player on the women's team while Dave, 6'6", is one of the men's biggest players. Both would like to continue playing basketball after finishing college.

Dave has hopes of being drafted by a Professional team and Beverley would like to play in AAU (Amateur Athletic Union) if she gets a bid.

Both are physical education majors and are minoring in language arts and which teach if their first desire isn't fulfilled.

Dave and Beverley started playing basketball as little children. Bev played ball with her male cousins and on organized playgrounds. She played on her church team, Calvary Baptist in Charleston during high school.

Dave comes from an athletic family in Dayton, Ohio. He played basketball with his older brother when he was young and continued playing on school teams since 7th grade.

Duck and Big Dave feel varsity basketball takes up a lot of their time. "You're tired after practice and then you have to rest up for the next practice," Dave said.

"I'd like to give it (basketball) more time, but I'm a student first and on varsity second," Duck said. Only practicing three times a week, Bev said she wouldn't mind practicing daily like the male varsity.

Duck and Dave did spend this past summer differently. Dave played sandlot type basketball while Beverley went to a women's basketball clinic. At Western Michigan. Two other Marshall women varsity players, Jody Lambert and Bobbi Crews, attended the camp as well as basketball coach Donna Lawson.

"It was like being in boot camp, up early and going all day," Bev said. She and Bobbi and Jody were all picked to be on the all-star team and Bev was voted Most Outstanding Player. She also received Most Valuable Player in the recent Marshall University Women's Invitational Tournament.

"Are you tough, can you take it?" was the phrase that echoed in Beverley's mind after attending the week-long clinic.

Bev feels Marshall's womens basketball team is good but "it takes five to win a game."

An all-round sportswoman, Duck participates in volleyball, softball, track, and bowling. "But basketball is my favorite."

A major difference between these valuable players is that Dave will be playing football next year. I wonder what Duck and Big Dave will tease each other about then?

Women's gym open for recreation

The Women's Physical Education Building is now open two nights a week for recreation. The hours are 6 to 7:30 p.m. Monday and 8 to 9:30 p.m. Thursday.

Evening recreation is supervised by two student workers who issue equipment and coordinate activities.

With the coming of good weather the hours may be extended according to Betty Roberts, assistant professor of physical education. "We hope to open at 2 in the afternoon and continue to 7 or 8 in the evening so the women can use the tennis courts and other outdoor facilities."

"The purpose of this program is to get the students to use the equipment," she said.

Baseball announcer needed

WMUL-FM baseball announcer try outs will be noon to 1:30 p.m. March 5 and March 12 in the radio studios, Science Building Room 16.

Any MU student with a workable knowledge of baseball is eligible. Baseball season will be March 30 to May 22.

WMUL will be the only radio station broadcasting MU baseball, according to Mike Kirtner, Huntington sophomore and sports director. All home games this season will be in the afternoon, he said.

Kirtner said plans are to broadcast the Bowling Green Classic, May 21-22. It will mark the season's finale. Teams participating will be Bowling Green, Toledo and MU.

Golfers to open March 27

Marshall's golf team will begin its 1971 season early this year when Reginald Spencer, head coach, and his golfers' host Morris Harvey College March 27 at Guyan Country Club.

Following the 18-hole opening match, Marshall will meet Morris Harvey April 2 at Meadow Brook Country Club in the capitol city, and then host Ohio University for an 18-hole match.

Coach Spencer's team will compete in the Bob Kepler Invitational Golf Tournament at Ohio State April 9 and 10 followed by an 18-hole match at Morehead State April 15.

Miami (Ohio) University will be the site of the Mid-American Invitational Golf Tournament April 19.

Marshall will host Western Michigan April 21 and on April 24 the MU golfers will travel to Eastern Kentucky.

Morehead State and Eastern Kentucky will invade MU territory for an 18-hole match April 30.

On May 7 and 8 Marshall will compete in the Spartan Invitational Golf Tournament at Michigan State before traveling to Ohio University May 10.

The final match for Marshall will be May 12 against VPI at Guyan Country Club.

Name the team

Five dollars will be the prize offered in the Name the Team Contest being aired by Radio Station WGNT.

The Women's Intercollegiate Sports Program Board, consisting of a coach and player from every sport, will select the name from the entries by post mark dates or drawings.

McCoy relates career of experience

Dr. Thomas McCoy is no okie from Muskogee. He earned a B.A. from the University of Oklahoma in radio and t.v. He got a M.A. from the same university, but it was in journalism. His doctorate came from Oklahoma City University, but it was in law.

His background for the past ten years has been a very busy one. He has been a disc jockey, a radio and t.v. news announcer, a radio station manager, a radio and t.v. program director, and a legal intern.

He practiced law with David Hall, now the governor of Oklahoma and at the present time, Dr. McCoy is a journalism professor at Marshall.

"I came to Marshall because I answered a blind ad in Editor and Publisher," McCoy said. "Professor Pitt sent me a letter with a Marshall University letterhead on it and that was the first time I knew where I was applying for the job." The only other time I ever heard of Marshall was when I read their football scores on the radio and that was because the scores from the west coast weren't in yet," McCoy said.

"I came down and saw the place and liked it," he added. "It seemed like a place where I could work my own way and have freedom to approach mass communications the way I wanted to."

Before Dr. McCoy came to Marshall he was a lawyer.

"I had been thinking of teaching college for a long time while I was winding up a few things at law school," McCoy said. "My last year or so in the practice of law was a never ending line of divorces and probates. It was then I decided to try teaching."

When asked if he missed the courtroom, he said, "some of the toughest juries that I have ever faced were not as tough as coming to a new school and pleading my case to the students."

Dr. McCoy lives in Ona and likes it very much. "I'm out in the sticks, removed from town with little or no traffic. It's just good quiet living," McCoy said.

When Dr. McCoy first came to Marshall, he noticed something different about the students here. "The first thing I noticed here about some of the students was they didn't wear any shoes. I had been going to law school, where the dress was rather restricted and never noticed some of the college students were going shoeless."

Dr. McCoy has met some very interesting recording personalities over the years he has been a disc jockey. Jimmy Rodgers, Pat Boone, Connie Francis, Jackie Wilson and The Brothers Four are only a few.

"The most interesting personality I ever met was a man most people have never heard of," McCoy said. "His name is David Seville of the Chipmunks. He was the guy who always said 'come on now Alvin' on their records. He was a really down to earth guy and very pleasant to be with," McCoy said.

Dr. McCoy likes every kind of music except the country & western, hillbilly type. He also thinks that today's music is stagnated and will be changing.

"The electronic aspects of acid rock will be leaving us," McCoy said. "With the final split of the Beatles, some of the trends set by Lennon and McCartney will die away. Even those two have gone out and done different things since the split up," McCoy said.

Talking about his radio career, Dr. McCoy said, "I think anyone who has ever been on the air is a frustrated d.j. One of the reasons I didn't make a career out of it is the voice factor. Once your voice gives out you're finished. I suppose I could always go back to doing that sort of thing again if I wanted to."

"If I ever get tired of teaching I would like to go back to continue my law practice," McCoy said. "This time I think I would concentrate in laws of mass communication instead of being bothered with divorces and that sort of thing."

DR. THOMAS MCCOY

Recruiting schedule outlined

Representatives from Florida and Ohio county schools, an accounting firm, a chemical company, and a gas company will be on campus today and tomorrow to recruit prospective employees.

Representatives from Norwood Public Schools, Ohio will be here tomorrow recruiting teachers.

Ernst and Ernst Co. will be at the Placement office today looking for graduating seniors majoring in accounting.

American Cyanamid and Consolidated Gas Supply Co. will be at the Placement Office tomorrow. American Cyanamid is looking for majors in chemistry, engineering, and business administration. Consolidated Gas wants majors in chemistry, geology, engineering, marketing, finance, and business.

All graduating seniors who are interested in jobs should contact Reginald Spencer at the Placement Office.
