Inter Dorm Council makes semester's plans

By SANDRA LEWIS
Staff reporter

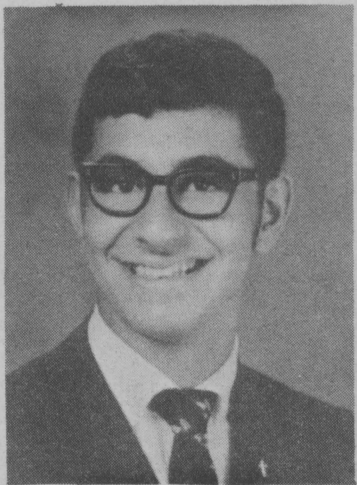

"Inter Dormitory Council can be a highly beneficial governing organization to dormitory students if they will take advantage of it," said new IDC President Paul Skaff, Charleston freshman.

"We're doing everything in our power to get the dorm residents confidence and interest," said Skaff in an interview. "It's up to them (students) to realize the power they hold through IDC."

"It's up to them to submit their problems to the IDC in order for them to be able to do anything about them," Skaff said.

However, he said the IDC constitution needs to be rewritten. He said he has written 10 different colleges with the same student population as Marshall to get copies of their dormitory constitutions. "I hope this will help in revising the previous constitution of the IDC so as to regulate its powers to its fullest capacity."

"My first year at Marshall, I didn't think I would become involved. Certainly not to the extent of becoming president of the IDC. I like it though, because I like working with people."

Skaff replaced Karen Thorpe, Vienna senior, when she resigned due to too much involvement in other activities.

"A lot of students come up to me and ask me what IDC is, it disappoints me to find that many don't even know what the initials stand for," said Skaff.

"This council is the governing body for all policies pertaining to all dorms and their residents in agreement with the Student Government constitution.

"The IDC maintains a communication channel between the administration, residence halls and other campus organizations," according to Skaff.

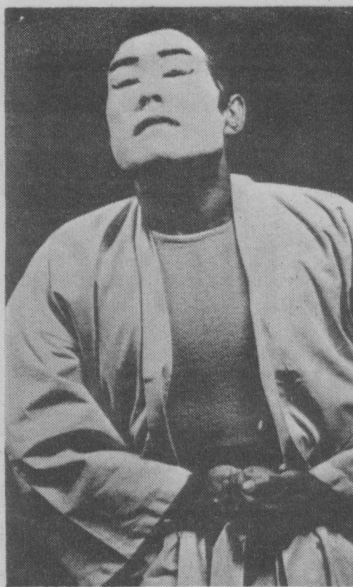

"The IDC has had a hard time getting started this year due to the plane crash, according to Skaff. Officers were not elected until January and didn't start looking into school policy until after semester examinations.

The council has examined two policies so far this semester. They were 1) the sign-in sign-out policy in the dormitories and 2) the extending of closing time from 10:45 to 11:00 in all dormitories.

IDC weekend is the main concern of the council now. The weekend of May 14-16 has already been booked through the Information and Publication Department.

"By providing an activity such as the IDC weekend, we, the council, hope to give the dormitory students the opportunity to participate in campus activities," said Skaff.

Another policy the council is examining is extending the visitation hours.

MU blood drive competition today

MU Spring Blood Drive is today from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Shawkey Student Union.

Anyone in good health, weighing over 115 pounds and between the ages of 18 and 66 is eligible to donate blood. Parental consent must be obtained for minors, anyone 18 to 21, before they can donate blood.

The fraternity, sorority, male dormitory and female dormitory which has the highest percentage of blood donors will receive a trophy.

Donors and their immediate families receive any blood they might need free for one year.

Also the donor receives a physical check-up in abbreviated form and a card showing the blood group to which he belongs.

Goal of the blood drive is 250 pints, according to Ray Wolfe, Moundsville sophomore and chairman of publicity for the drive. This is 40 more than the largest amount the MU campus had previously given.

Chairman of the Spring Blood Drive is Art Leuterman, Huntington sophomore. Assisting him are Wolfe, Dick Seelen, Huntington junior, and Gary Westrich, Kings Park, New York, sophomore.

Communications McMullen's theme

By BECKY DIAL
News editor
and
STEVE FERRELL
Staff reporter

"We just don't take time to talk to one another."

Communication was the theme of Tuesday's convocation between MU athletic director Joseph H. McMullen and about 100 students, faculty and administration members who far from filled Old Main Auditorium.

Student Body President Michael Gant, Huntington junior, introduced McMullen as a "controversial figure" and said this image may have resulted from "a lack of information or misinformation."

"This is the beginning of many opportunities to express opinions," McMullen said. "Both sides will have to listen a little."

"I've never been in a town for two weeks where I've seen more genuine interest in a university than here at Marshall."

"I would not have accepted the job here if I did not think people I would be working with had a feeling for major college athletics."

McMullen talked about the possibility of Marshall joining another conference, or rejoining the Mid-American Conference.

"I will say exactly what I said before and that is that the MAC is a fine major college conference with a fine reputation nationwide."

"We should not close the door. We should investigate all possibilities--be it remaining independent or joining a conference--be it the MAC, the Southern or some other conference not yet formed."

"But we are a suspended member of the MAC."

"At this time I don't have any other alternatives. Some of our natural rivals are in the MAC."

"We ask what good has that group done for us when we should ask what have we done for that group in return."

"Only one side of the story about Marshall's suspension from the MAC was ever told. The report was never released around here."

"I believe there were 122 proven violations--that's pretty hard when you only have 80 guys on scholarship. There were judgments and direct flagrant violations."

"A three year violation was drastic but the rule breaking was drastic, too."

"It's done and over with."

McMullen also discussed the Student Senate's resolution to support a proposal sent to the Athletic Committee to restrict the number of MAC officials refereeing athletic contests between MU and MAC schools to one.

"That type of action without facts or talking to the athletic staff doesn't establish a cordial relationship."

"I've been very mad at officials and have seen poorly refereed games in 21 states. Miami, Fla., had no MAC officials and I thought there were some lousy calls down there."

"I've never seen a well-officiated basketball game."

"Every man sees it from a different angle."

McMullen explained some of the reasons why Marshall should examine the consequences of maintaining an independent position in athletics.

"It would take a minimum addition of $400,000 to the budget to stay major independent and a million or more to get major college competition if we stay independent."

"Basketball would have a fair chance of a decent schedule if we would remain independent, in football you'll go crazy, and in track and other non-income sports it would break you up."

McMullen said he has talked to WVU athletic director Red Brown about the possibility of scheduling a Marshall-WVU athletic contest.

"There would be no losers if Marshall plays WVU. We could

JOSEPH McMULLEN
Airs his views
(The Parthenon Photo by Paul Winnell)

fill their new arena up--they can't."

"He said they're scheduled 12 years in advance and I said that's exactly why I want to schedule them now instead of three or four years from now."

"It would be a financial gain to both schools."

McMullen said he had also talked to the athletic director of Wichita State concerning the possibility of scheduling that school for an eleventh football game next season.

"Wichita State already has an eleventh game--they're trying to get out of it. I feel the NCAA couldn't turn us down for regional telecasting of that game. It would really help us financially."

He talked about new head football coach Dick Bestwick and the program he is undertaking at Marshall.

"Dick Bestwick is the kind of guy I want to work with. He knows there is more to college than football."

"The worst thing they put out is that there are 23 signees--we have letters of intent from them but they are not signed players for next season."

"He has two of his three assistant coaches already lined up. I think Dawson will remain."

McMullen said the first misunderstanding which developed on campus concerned MU head football coach nominee Sam Huff.

"I never met him personally but I had great admiration for him as a player. Sam Huff would be a great name for recruiting for one season--I've seen it happen."

"There are certain procedures to follow. He called a newspaper editor to withdraw his name instead of calling the head of the athletic committee."

"He seemed reluctant to have me talk to his former employer--this immediately can make you suspect. When you throw a question out of context, you find more out about a man."

When I asked him if he'd done any work on his Masters degree (not a requirement for the position although Coach Bestwick has one) he said, "What difference does that make?" It wasn't the difference, it was his attitude."

McMullen said he hopes to join committees dealing with the new civic center as soon as possible to aid Marshall's student seating problems.

"This is a long-term solution, but we have to have better facilities than we have right now."

Regents cite Dr. Dedmon

"The Board of Regents has expressed to Dr. Donald N. Dedmon its sincere appreciation for his contribution to Marshall University and to the West Virginia system of higher education," stated a resolution approved by the Regents in an open meeting on Tuesday.

The resolution was approved referring to Dr. Dedmon's acceptance of the Regents request that he become acting president of Marshall. Dr. Dedmon assumed the duties of acting president of Marshall University on Sept. 1, 1970.

Dr. Dedmon has now resumed his position of executive vice president at Marshall.

Entered as second class matter, May 29, 1945, at the Post Office at Huntington, West Virginia 25701, under Act of Congress, March 8, 1879. Published Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday during school year and weekly during summer by Department of Journalism, Marshall University, 16th Street and 3rd Avenue, Huntington, West Virginia 25701. Off-campus subscription rate $4 per semester, plus 50 cents for each summer term. All full time students paying student activity services fee are entitled to copies of The Parthenon.

University Heights filled to capacity

University Heights is filled to a 100 percent capacity, but there are no plans at this time for expansion, according to Warren S. Myers, assistant dean of students for housing. Myers stated that the general trend for universities is to leave married student housing to private investors.

The apartments are filled throughout the year, including summer months, with a long waiting list, according to Myers. The only requirement is that the breadwinner of the family must be a full-time student. This means carrying 12 hours undergraduate or 9 hours graduate work.

Rent varies, from $55 per month for an efficiency apartment to $120 for a two-bedroom apartment in the new building. Cost includes furnishings, utilities, and in the new building, air conditioning. Pay phones are available in each building, but students may install private phones at their own expense.

Although the housing for married students is filled to capacity the dorm rooms tell a different story.

At the present time, 15 dorm rooms are vacant. These rooms, however, are used at various times for special groups and guests visiting the University.

The number of students living in the dorms has decreased from last semester.

Food Association to meet

Marshall University Food Cooperation Association will have its first meeting in Smith Hall 154, at 4 p.m. today.

Interested students and faculty are invited, according to Richard T. Jennings, instructor of English.

Through the food cooperation, a member of the university community can buy food at wholesale price plus two per cent. A student will be hired to deliver the food, and his salary will come from the two per cent profit, Jennings said.

Sign-out policy brings varied opinions in coed dorm survey

"Signing-out is a waste of time and a bother," said Marilyn Young, Charleston sophomore, when asked her opinion of the voluntary sign-out policy that went into effect Monday.

Miss Young's views seemed to reflect the feeling of many dormitory women. Under the new policy women having self-regulating hours are no longer required to state their destination when leaving the dorm for the weekend or after closing hours.

"Since there are different ways of looking at it I can't say the new policy is good or bad," said Leslie Stanley, Moundsville sophomore. "The women should be responsible enough to decide whether or not signing-out is necessary."

"If you're just going out on a date I don't think you should have to bother. If you're going some place overnight or for the weekend I think the women should sign-out voluntarily so the residence director would know who was in the dorm in case of emergency."

Patti Harper, Scott Depot sophomore, said she didn't think signing-out was necessary. "Sometimes you aren't sure where you're going and some of the places you go you couldn't be reached if necessary anyway."

"Some people have said the new policy may lower the number of freshmen getting self-regulating hours. I can't agree with that reasoning because a lot of parents didn't know that much about the sign-out system and the parents that did give students their own hours weren't really worried about getting in touch," said Miss Harper.

I think it should be the resident's decision about signing-out," said Ruth Anne Davidson, Milton sophomore. "I also believe the conscientious women will sign-out if they are going to be out late or going some where unusual."

"If the women don't sign-out I think they should let someone know where they will be strictly for emergency purposes."

Pamela Justice, Charleston junior said the voluntary sign-out is the way things should be. "The only time I can see that you would need to sign-out is when you are going somewhere special or out of the ordinary."

"Often you are just going out on campus or other places where you couldn't be located. Usually someone on your floor will know where you are," she said.

"I feel like it will be a real convenience," said Becky Haight, St. Albans sophomore. "When you're just going out to eat or some place on campus signing-out can be a real bother."

The old policy was ineffective," said Shirley Layne, Charleston junior. "A lot of people didn't sign-out anyway and those who did usually didn't put where they were really going."

"I think signing-out is necessary only in emergency. If a resident doesn't sign-out I think she should leave a note on her door saying where she is going or tell someone on the floor."

Joellene Crum, Logan junior, said she felt it was good to let someone know where you will be even if it isn't by signing-out. "It can be bothersome and is actually a matter of courtesy," she said.

LEE DRIVES FOR LAY-UP AGAINST ST. FRANCIS
Herd's top scorer netted 26 points

Herd bombs St. Francis in 15th victory of season

By CHUCK LANDON
Sports editor

Marshall's Big Green cagers came up with a surprisingly easy victory Monday as they wore St. Francis College out by a 112-86 score.

In fact, the Frankies only led once, as Joe Hazinsky hit a 20 foot jumper following the opening jump-ball.

St. Francis did make a run at MU with 4:15 left in the first half, as it out-scored the Herd 10-4 to trail 46-42 at the end of the first half.

For the first 1:39 of the second half it was a see-saw battle with St. Francis coming within two points on three occasions, but never able to pull even.

But, in the next 12:12 of play the Thundering Herd stampeded for 42 points while St. Francis scored 19.

MU went over the century mark with 3:25 left to play, as Bob DePathy hit a 15 foot jumper.

Kevin Porter was the game's leading scorer with 27 points. He also had 11 assists.

The Herd, who placed six men in double figures, was paced by Russell Lee with 26 points and 12 rebounds.

Mike D'Antoni, Gary Orsini and Dave Smith were all 7-14 from the field with 18, 17 and 17 points respectively.

DePathy and Blaine Henry chipped it with 12 and 13 points a piece.

Smith was the game's leading rebounder, as he recovered 16 missed shots.

St. Francis out-shot the Herd percentage-wise 45.7 to 45.4 per cent.

But, MU took the victory in three categories.

The Herd was 24 of 34 free throw attempts for a 70.6 mark, while the Frankies shot 63.2 from the line.

Marshall out-rebounded St. Francis 64 to 50 even though the Frankies had a two rebound edge at the half.

The Big Green committed only 19 turnovers to St. Francis' 27.

D'Antoni broke his one-game-old assist mark of 14, as he threw 16 passes resulting in baskets against St. Francis.

Sig Eps down SAE in thriller

By JOHN GILES
Sports writer

A bucket as the buzzer sounded gave Sigma Phi Epsilon a 93-92 defeat Monday night over Sigma Alpha Epsilon in a preliminary to the varsity basketball game at Memorial Field House.

VPI defeats Little Herd

Marshall's Little Herd dropped its fifth straight game as Virginia Polytechnical Institute's freshmen defeated the frosh in overtime 82-78 at Blacksburg Monday night.

The score was 41-32 VPI at the half, but the Little Herd stormed back. A three point play by Mickey McDonald with 20 seconds on the clock tied the game. VPI failed to score and the 68-68 game went into overtime.

In overtime VPI jumped to a quick lead and the Little Herd could not catch up.

Jerry Stritholt led the frosh in scoring by connecting for 17 points. Don McCloud had 15 points followed by Andy Frederiksen and Chris Byard with 10 points.

The frosh shot 30.9 percent from the floor and 59.2 from the foul line. VPI had 67 rebounds to the Little Herd's 58.

The Little Herd's next game is with Bliss College at 5:45 Saturday night at Memorial Field House.

Campbell Wall, Huntington junior, connected on a 25 foot jump shot in the final second as Sigma Phi Epsilon came from 15 points down to remain undefeated. This was SAE's first loss.

SAE took the lead in the first half 54-46. But they could not slow down Sig Ep's running game in the second half. With 1:21 left in the game Sig Ep had closed to within one point, 92-91.

With 1:09 remaining, SAE's Richy Lambert missed two shots at the foul line.

With 1:03 remaining, Lambert again missed another foul shot attempt.

With :58 left in the game, Sig Eps' Bill Crouch missed at the line.

With :23 on the clock, SAE's Donnie Hall missed a foul shot. The tip in was void because of goal tending.

Sig Eps had the ball and with five seconds remaining the ball was passed to Wall. The shot at the buzzer was good and Sig Eps had the game 93-92.

Wall led Sig Eps in scoring with 26 points. Also in double figures for Sig Ep were Bill Crouch with 21 and Homer Martin with 18.

Charles Chaney was high man for SAE with 27 points. Richy Lambert hit for 20 points.

Branch building near completion

The Williamson Branch College building is near completion and should be available for occupancy in August when the fall semester begins, according to Branch Director, William E. Barrett.

The main problem standing in the way of completion is that of supplying the building with a water and sewage system.

A contract is now being negotiated with the Norfolk & Western Railway Co. to gain an easement so the building can be hooked up to the city's main water and sewage lines.

The five-story building will have 12 to 15 classrooms and offices and, according to Barrett, should increase student enrollment at the branch by 25 per cent. Furniture on order for the new building will cost about $8,000.

Parking is expected to be a problem at the new building, but Barrett is working on a solution. One proposal is to construct an area between the present lot and the National Guard Armory. This would provide space for an additional 60 cars. Present facilities will park 64 vehicles.

A final inspection scheduled for last Thursday was called off. An architect said there were still quite a few small problems to be cleared up before the inspection takes place.

Faculty recital is Wednesday

JOEL D. FOLSOM

Joel D. Folsom, assistant professor of music, and Dr. James Taggart, associate professor of music, will present a faculty recital at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday in Evelyn Hollberg Music Hall.

Folsom, in his third year of teaching at Marshall University, is director of the stage band, teaches orchestration, brass technique, and gives private lessons to trumpet majors.

Folsom attended the Air Force Academy and played first trumpet in the band. He was also a soloist in the Little Rock Philharmonic, and has been guest conductor and soloist in several states including Colorado, Arkansas, Ohio, Kentucky, and West Virginia. He received his music degree from Northern Colorado.

This is Dr. Taggart's first year at Marshall. His classes include studio piano, music appreciation, and giving private lessons in piano.

Dr. Taggart received his Ph.D. from the University of Iowa in piano performance, taught in central Oklahoma, and transferred to Marshall.

The recital contains trumpet solos composed by Gibbons, Purcell, Enesco, and White. Music ranges from the Renaissance Period to contemporary selections.

Besides the trumpet selections by Folsom, Dr. Taggart will perform four preludes by Debussy.
