McGovern coming to Marshall

A campaign appearance by Senator George S. McGovern (D-S.D.) on the Marshall campus was confirmed late Thursday afternoon by Mike B. Gerrard, press secretary for West Virginians for McGovern.

McGovern's tentative schedule calls for an outdoor rally in front of the Memorial Student Center at approximately 7 p.m. Sunday.

The Marshall speech is planned as the senator's only Huntington appearance during his overnight stay. Monday he plans to visit outlying coal towns and will present a major speech, to be delivered in southern West Virginia, on the problems of Appalachia, according to State Sen. Robert R. Nelson, Cabell County Democratic Chairman.

McGovern and his wife will arrive at Tri-State airport between 6:00 and 6:30 Sunday evening and is expected to come directly to Marshall for his campus engagement.

Confirmation of the McGovern visit was delayed considerably when the scheduling department of the senator's headquarters in Washington, D.C., indicated that there might be some question about the safety of McGovern flying into Huntington. At the same time the Washington staff mentioned the possibility of a security problem at the Huntington airport.

William F. Mays, manager of what is officially known as Walker Long Field, said he did not foresee any difficulties with a landing at the newly re-surfaced field, but added that airline officials had been in touch with him to check on airport conditions.

The Charleston office of the Secret Service denied any knowledge of a possible security problem at Tri-State Airport.

McGovern, who holds a Ph.D. in history, was professor of history and government at Dakota Wesleyan University and received a Distinguished Flying Cross as a World War II bomber pilot.

A member of the U.S. House of Representatives from 1957-1961, McGovern became a special assistant to then President John F. Kennedy after losing the 1960 race for the Senate. McGovern served as Director of President Kennedy's Food for Peace program and was later elected to the U.S. Senate in 1962.

After series of upset primaries starting with a victory in the Wisconsin primary McGovern won an uphill battle for the Democratic presidential nomination.

McGovern visited area 17 months ago

During his last visit to Marshall, Sen. George McGovern also found time to visit with residents of Cabin Creek.

'Not so young' Herd opens Saturday

BY ANDRE ARMSTRONG
Sports editor
and
TOM BUNEVICH
Sports writer

Phase two of the Marshall football rebuilding program gets under way Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at Fairfield Stadium as the former Young Thundering Herd battle the Morehead State Eagles.

In assessing this year's team, Coach Jack Lengyel said, "We're improved from last year. What percentage I'll be able to tell at 5 p.m. tomorrow."

Comparing this team with last year's squad, Lengyel said this year's squad has more balance and the coaching staff is also much better acquainted with team personnel.

In speaking of changes, the offense should be more of a ball control offense, looking to sustain drives, said the head coach.

"We still plan on throwing the football," he said, "and we hope the offense has improved enough to carry its load."

Lengyel also said that with the new stress on ball control offense, the kicking game would be emphasized.

Kickers are freshman Larry McCoy and junior Blakely Smith. Smith may be remembered for kicking the winning field goal in last year's Xavier game.

Speaking of the kicking game, Coach Lengyel pointed out that with the first extra point achieved this season, it will mark the first recorded in two years. Last year's squad failed in every attempt.

With the improvement expected by the coaching staff, Young has been dropped as the official name of the Thundering Herd.

According to Lengyel, the reason for dropping Young from the official title is because he feels the challenge met by the Young Thundering Herd was unique to that team and only one team deserves the honor of the name.

Summarizing the rebuilding program as it stands to date, Lengyel said, "We're still in the sophomore stage in rebuilding, but we have our feet and we're starting to walk forward."

Morehead State was beaten by Xavier last week, 26-7, but according to MSU Head Coach Roy Terry that was forgotten, and the attention turned to this week's game at Marshall.

Two key injuries, according to Terry, have hurt chances of beating the Herd. Starting quarterback Dave Schaetzke suffered a shoulder injury last week and will not play, he said. Also, defensive tackle Mark Sheehan will not play because of a knee injury he suffered in the loss to Xavier. Terry said he is not sure who will replace his wounded, and may not be sure until game-time Saturday.

Terry commented that last week's loss left his team down during the week, but he expects them to be ready at game time. However, he would not say if he has any surprises for Marshall, but did add that he will use the same 4-3-4 defense he used last week.

Terry did say that Marshall has a fine football team and credited them with being quicker but not as big as Xavier. He expects no surprises from the Herd.

Terry said he doesn't like the idea of playing in Huntington and considers his squad the underdog. "Marshall is tough to beat in Huntington, and as a matter of fact we have only beaten them twice there. But since last week's defeat we have to prove we can bounce back. We are going to have to give it all we've got beat Marshall and I think we may be able to do it."

Prof. Callebs leaves MU to campaign for Moore

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

John S. Callebs, assistant to the vice president for academic affairs at Marshall University, has been granted a leave of absence, the university announced Thursday, to participate in the re-election campaign of Governor Arch A. Moore Jr.

Callebs' two-month leave from his administrative duties without pay began last Monday.

Dr. William K. Easley, vice president for academic affairs, said Callebs would remain an employee of the university on a half-time basis, teaching two social studies classes.

Callebs has been named coordinator of urban activities for the Republican State Campaign Headquarters.

"John Callebs is considered one of the ablest young men in West Virginia and will bring outstanding credentials and expertise to the urban activities of this year's campaign," a Republican headquarters spokesman said.

Callebs, a GOP candidate for secretary of state in 1968 in the past has been associated with what has been termed the Cecil Underwood faction of the Republican Party, not always attuned to that faction supposedly headed by the governor.

His latest move is likely to be interpreted by some as a sign of party solidarity among Republicans this year.

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP)—Members of the Cabell County Medical Society's Committee on a New Medical School for Marshall University will soon meet with the West Virginia Board of Regents and the Veterans Administration, Dr. A. C. Esposito said today.

The meeting will follow Regents Chancellor Prince B. Woodard's letter to governmental officials seeking consideration of Marshall as a possible recipient of federal aid for establishing a med school.

Woodard would not comment as to whether the letter has yet been sent; action approved by the regents in a Tuesday morning meeting.

Marshall will strictly enforce the Sept. 25 deadline for tuition payment, according to Dr. Richard G. Mund, vice president for academic affairs.

Speaking at the first meeting of Marshall University Veterans Club Tuesday, Dr. Mund said that because of a $16,000 deficit from students failing to pay waivers last year, Marshall's policy of granting extensions beyond the deadline has been forced to change. Now, the only extensions which can be allowed will be to students who have loans through the University, he said.

Students who are anticipating late loan checks from sources other than the University should apply for emergency loans through the Office of Financial Aid, Dr. Mund said. Other sources of loans, he suggested, are local banks and federally insured student loans.

Dr. Mund added that his office is currently attempting to set up a loan fund built from private donations for Marshall students. If this fund is secured, students will be able to get short-term loans through the University, Dr. Mund said.

"If MU charged a pre-registration fee like some other colleges do, then we could possibly grant waivers," he said. "However, present policy does not require payment of a fee before pre-registration," he said.

Commenting on other possible solutions to the tuition deadline, Dr. Mund cited a possible pre-registration change.

Magic theater presents the 'Molly Maguires'

BY PAM MARSHALL
Staff reporter

Tonight at 7:30 in the Multi-Purpose Room the Marshall University Magic Theater will Present the "Molly Maguires", a film about management-labor problems in small coal mining towns in Pennsylvania in the 1870s. The film stars Richard Harris, Sean Connery, and Samantha Eggar. Harris portrays McParlan, a Pinkerton detective hired by the owners to expose a group of miners who are using terrorist tactics to improve their wages. Connery is Kehoe, the leader of the rebel group. Eggar is McParlan's landlady whom he expects to love him and run away with him, according to critic Stanley Kauffmann of the New Republic. The film is based on fact. On the testimony of McParlan 14 Mollys were imprisoned and 10 were hanged. The movie was filmed in Eckley, Pennsylvania—the only coal mine in America today that still exists as it did a century ago. McParlan and Kehoe are countrymen (Ireland) and of the same class yet the class society of America has divided them. According to Time, "Walter Bernstein's screenplay is a perfect model of the craft, some of the best movie writing in recent years. He has created two complex and difficult characters who emerge in all their shadings.

"They are two decidedly real people—approximately 1 1/2 more real people than most other movies can offer," says Time. Director Martin Ritt shows both sides of the struggle between owner and worker—an examination of a subject that concerns us all—revolution in America by an oppressed minority. Ritt has directed such films as "Hud" and "The Spy Who Came In From The Cold". Students will be admitted by showing their activity card. Guest passes can be obtained at door if the guest has a guest card from the main desk. The guest must be accompanied by a student. 100 guest passes will be available.

Regents cut SPIRG

Marshall's branch of WV-SPIRG (West Virginia Student Public Interest Group) has been reduced to "local task-force organizing" according to Joe Kirk, Pittsburgh senior and SPIRG member.

Due to the West Virginia Board of Regents' decision not to grant funding, the group has moved to the local level, concentrating its energies in areas of campus and community concern. They desire the participation of the student body in working toward, "things they (the student body) would like to see done," according to Kirk. WV-SPIRG was organized by consumer advocate Ralph Nader and first appeared on the Marshall campus last year. Its purpose is to work through the courts, the media, institutions of government and other legal means in such areas as environmental quality, consumer protection and social problems.

A petition was circulated by SPIRG members last year to determine interest in the group and its goals. Kirk estimated the 50 per cent of the student body was reached by the petition, but the Board of Regents disapproved funding. Their disapproval was due to doubts concerning legality of funding such a group.

While on the local level, SPIRG plans a consumer price comparison study in the area, and a study of the necessity of a walk light on 6th Avenue adjacent to the Marshall campus. A fund-raising concert is tentatively planned for sometime in October. Members of SPIRG have recently become involved in strip mining abolition campaigns. They plan to sell various articles such as bumper stickers and notepads advocacy tonight in the Memorial Student Center.

Alumni return surveys

The results of a graduate follow-up survey conducted by the Self Study Committee on Alumni Affairs are being determined, according to Dr. Robert P. Alexander, associate professor of management. Dr. Alexander, chairman of the Self Study Committee on Alumni Affairs, said more than 4,149 questionnaires were mailed to members of the classes of 1969, 70 and 71. Each graduate was asked to fill in information regarding his major course of study and whether or not he has followed up on it.

A cut off date of March 3, 1972 was set and at that time 46 per cent of the questionnaires sent out had been returned. Questionnaires are still being returned and it is estimated that will over 50 per cent have been received, according to Dr. Alexander. Questionnaires were also sent to the 1972 graduates of which 30 per cent of the 1,646 sent out have been returned thus far. Results of the survey can be reviewed in report form which is available in the following offices: President's Office, M108; Academic Affairs, M110; Arts and Sciences, M114; Business and Applied Science, BAS100; Teachers College, LS211; Graduate School, M113; Memorial Student Center, Main Desk; Library, Reference Desk; University Relations, M111 and Informational Services, M115. It may be read, while at the University or signed out for overnight use, one night only for each reader according to Dr. Mervin A. Tyson, Director of Institutional Self Study and Professor of English.

"The survey proved to be a very useful study, and I'm somewhat astounded by the willingness that recent graduates showed in their university and chosen profession," Dr. Alexander said.

Two against strip mining meet with MU students

Two representatives from Citizens to Abolish Strip Mining met with Marshall students Wednesday night in the Memorial Student Center to present their views against strip mining. Bob Handley and Willis Farley, the two representatives, stated that their purpose is, "to organize the people of the state and to encourage them to do what they can to abolish strip mining." Handley said that abolition must be considered from the people's standpoint. Individual's are effected by landslides, silt washing into rivers and property damage. Farley added that, "in some water-shed, siltation is almost 1,000 times what it would be in an undisturbed area."

According to 1971 U.S. Bureau of Mines figures, Handley stated 96.2 per cent of all coal can be reached by deep mining. "Yet strip mining remains the most profitable and the most destructive method. If abolition is accomplished, it will take a long period of time to reclaim the land and there is little money available to do the job," he said. While discussing reclamation, the two men described the use of special

Eerie novel now a film 'The Other' on at Cinema

By TONY RUTHERFORD
Film critic

A young boy possessed by an evil spirit leads to tragedy and terror in the eerie, but confusing, film adaptation of Thomas Tryon's gothic-type best selling novel "The Other." The film opened Wednesday at the Cinema Theater.

Set on a small Connecticut farm during the depression, the story involves 10-year-old Niles Perry who has been encouraged by his grandmother in developing a terrible power. The story resembles both "The Bad Seed" and Henry James' "The Turn of the Screw" in that a youngster is being corrupted by powers beyond his control.

Although "The Other" has the benefit of top notch cast and production crew, the film drags considerably at the beginning and is at times extremely confusing. Transitions are not smooth. One reason for this is the film editing since "The Other" originally ran 135 minutes and was trimmed before being released to 100 minutes.

Producer-director Robert Mulligan, whose previous efforts include "To Kill a Mockingbird" and "Summer of '42," accepted the challenge of directing a very difficult film when he chose "The Other."

Difficult in that the presence of the "ghost" comes off much better in print than it does on the motion picture screen. Mulligan, though, has set an ominous mood throughout the film by using such devices as a thunder storm, dark colors, mood music and by slowly panning the camera in such a way as to make ordinary inanimate objects appear forbidding.

Visually one of the most interesting scenes in the film is the moment when young Niles projects his mind into the body of a crow. Not only does Niles experience the sensation of flying, but the viewer feels himself being lifted off the ground and flying above the Connecticut countryside.

Much to the credit of the director and screenwriter, "The Other" is terrifying without the use of excessive blood and gore. The director foreshadows what is about to occur then cuts to a reaction shot. The viewer is left to fill in the gruesome details in the privacy of his own head. For example, Russell, a cousin of the Perry children, is killed when he jumps from the hayloft onto a pitchfork. We don't see the boy with a pitchfork intruded in his body.

Instead Mulligan shows Russell preparing to jump, cuts to a close up of the pitchfork immediately below, then cuts back to a long shot of Russell jumping. As Russell notices the pitchfork too late and begins screaming in mid air, Mulligan cuts away to the people outside the barn running to see why Russell is screaming. The next scene shows the casket in which Russell has been placed. Everyone knows what has taken place—our minds painted a picture far more horrible than what the best Hollywood make-up man could have created.

Snider wins ZBT honor

John Snider, Clarksburg senior, and Zeta Beta Tau president, has been awarded the Julius Kahn Award, significant of the outstanding ZBT in the nation. Snider said more than 300 applications were considered. Marshall's chapter also won three chapter excellence awards at the summer convention.

Snider, also Interfraternity Council president and past interfraternity rush chairman, said that he was quite excited over rush this semester. In his fraternity alone, Snider said the number of rushees was three times the number who rushees this time last year. The IFC president said he believes the fraternity system will experience a change or Marshall's campus this year. On a belief is that the fraternity and Greek system is dying.

Center needs physician

The search is still continuing for a new director and physician for the Marshall University Health Center. According to Dr. Richard Mund, vice president of student affairs, no doctors are currently in line for the position. He said he is utilizing professional agencies including the American College Health Association to fill the positions.

Presently, Dr. U.C. Lovejoy is the only physician and is acting director. Two nurses, a lab technician, secretary, and receptionist complete the present staff. "Additional nurses may be employed later on this year, but this can't be done until they have an adequate staff," Mund added.

Shuttle bus is offered

Free transportation of Marshall students to and from home football games at Fairfield Stadium will begin tomorrow, according to Student Body President Shelia Baxter. Two buses to the Marshall-Morehead game will leave tomorrow between 12:30 and 1:30 p.m. at 10-minute intervals and may be boarded at the Fifth Avenue side of the student center upon presentation of student identification cards, Miss Baxter said. The buses will also return students to campus after the contest, she said. The bus service, sponsored by Student Government and Student Affairs, will be available for each of the five home football games this season, she stated. "I think it will be good especially for the dormitory students," Miss Baxter said, "since they always have a problem with transportation." Also, the shuttle bus service, in effect now, after about a year of Student Government efforts, "will alleviate some of the parking problems at Fairfield Stadium, she noted.

The American Society of Civil Engineers, student chapter, will hold a special meeting at 11 a.m. Tuesday in Room 2E10 of Memorial Student Center. The main topic, according to ASCE vice president Larry Davis, Huntington senior, will be discussion of the decision by the Board of Regents to phase out engineering at MU. The members will attempt an assemblage of all information concern the Regents' decision and the rebuttals of the Department of Engineering and discussion from the meetings of the Citizens' Committee for the Preservation and Improvement of Engineering at MU.

Pre-season polls off again, but... writer goes out on limb anyway

Pre-season football polls have always been an intriguing thing to me. As many times as not, they are proven grossly mistaken by the time the season has ended and so are discarded somewhere in the middle of the season never again to be consulted. Yet they still continue to flourish at the start of every football year.

This year has already proven to be somewhat of a disaster for the pre-season pollsters and prognosticators as number one Nebraska along with top ten selection Arkansas have been beaten already. True the losses came at the hands of powers UCLA and USC, but still they are upsets all the same.

After now having thrashed out at pre-season polls and pollsters, one may be asking himself, "What is all this leading to?"

The answer to this question is simple. The end is nothing other

Swimmers are needed for team

By TONY SPINOSA
Sports writer

Coach Robert Saunders has begun to put together his swimming team for the year and of major concern to him is the need for "new faces."

Saunders said the team lost three swimmers from last year's squad when their eligibility ran out. He said any male students interested in swimming or diving should contact Tom Palmer, graduate assistant, in Gullickson Hall Room 107.

Saunders, presently on leave at Ohio State working on his doctorate, will leave Palmer and Dave Beakes, Clarksburg senior, former captain and distance record holder, to assist in holding practices.

Saunders said that anyone who shows an interest in trying out for the team should be a very good swimmer, but does not need previous competitive experience.

This coming season Saunders said he is encouraging the men on the team to increase the daily distance they swim in practice sessions. He also said he will urge each swimmer to seek a second workout according to his class schedule.

With no freshman recruits, Saunders said he is "counting heavily" upon Vince Berendsen, Cincinnati, Ohio sophomore, who transferred from the University of Cincinnati last year.

Saunders said the first workouts for the team are scheduled for the last week of September at a local YMCA pool.

Saunders said that renovation of the Gullickson Hall pool will be finished by the first or second week of October.

The first meet of the season is slated for the first week of December. The season will close the first week of March.

Saunders also announced that this year's team captain will be Jeff Pratt, Columbus, Ohio senior, who is a record holder in sprint events and co-record holder for the relay events.

Campus court times different

University students and faculty may now reserve tennis and handball courts, but at different times than were listed in Wednesday's The Parthenon, according to Larry Belknap, director of intramurals and recreations.

Handball courts will be available on Monday, Wednesday and Friday from noon to 6 p.m. and on Tuesday and Thursday from 3:10 to 6 p.m. Courts 1, 3 and 4 will be available and there will be a one hour time limit for each reservation.

Tennis courts will be available on Monday from noon to 6 p.m., Tuesday and Thursday from 12:30 p.m. to 6 p.m., on Wednesday and Friday from noon to 3 p.m. and 5 to 6 p.m. The varsity tennis team will have all four courts reserved on Wednesday and Friday from 3 to 5 p.m. Two courts may be reserved with a one hour time limit.

Any other reservations, such as the use of Gullickson Hall or the use of a field, may be made by calling Belknap at 696-6490. All reservations must be made before 11:45 a.m. the day the facilities are to be used.

Regarding intramurals, Belknap said there are 18 master rosters in the running for the President's Cup. "I'm disappointed there were no black organizations in the running," he said.

Thirty football rosters are in. "I think this is a good total for the University," Belknap added.

than my own pre-season poll. Yes, that unique entity, the pre-season poll, that which I so despise, I am now about to embark upon.

After having ridiculed the predictions game, I have no logical reason for setting out upon such a venture. I could go along with other predictors and say it's the sportswriters bug which possesses me and it is with great courage I go forth in presenting my predictions. But what it really boils down to is, I just have to satisfy my ego.

With that in mind, let me head down the road of no return, knowing fully what I have to say will be forgotten in a weeks time, and if it isn't, it should be.

No. 1 - Colorado.

The Big Eight may have lost one contender for the national crown, but another looms in its wake. Finishing third in the conference last year was no disgrace as it also meant third in the conference means the national title for CU.

No. 2 - UCLA. A year away from greatness, Jim McCalister and Mark Harmon could give the Uclans their first Rose Bowl appearance since Gary Behan.

No. 3 - Ohio State. Woody Hayes looks like he's got another powerful crew and a return to "three yards and a cloud of dust," could mean a national title contest in the Rose Bowl.

No. 4 - Oklahoma. Greg Pruitt should once again pile up plenty of yardage, but the Sooners will miss Jack Mildren, which could mean a few more fumbles.

No. 5 - Penn State. The best in the east, but a weak schedule holds them back. With luck, namely being the nation's only undefeated team, a national championship could be in store.

No. 6 - Washington. A personal favorite. Six because of Sonny Sixkiller and the thousands of sixes adorning UW fans' t-shirts. A sleeper in the Pacific Eight, possible Rose Bowl appearance.

No. 7 - USC. I'm still skeptical about the number one ranking, but here it's only a guess.

No. 8 - Nebraska. Down, but not out. Still a good team. Look for them in a bowl.

No. 9 - Notre Dame. I trust Ara. Rebuilding at Notre Dame is like fortifying the colosseum.

No. 10 - Alabama. Johnny Musso's gone, but the Bear is still there. Another bowl appearance for the Crimson Tide.

On the local level, it's still a rebuilding time, but the improvements should be readily seen. On the season look for four wins. They're twice as good as last year.

The Herd's first victory should come Saturday against Morehead whom the Young Herd fell victim to last year. A year's maturity gives the Herd a 14-6 win over the Eagles.

So much for predictions, let the games begin.

Committees chosen to review policies

Marshall's Athletic Committee has gotten its 1972-73 agenda under way by forming four committees to review and make recommendations for current policies.

The committees, according to Marvin Mills, associate professor of safety and new chairman of the Athletic Committee, are in the areas of conference affiliation; recruitment, eligibility and scheduling; facilities; and budget.

Mills said, "These committees will try to anticipate problems and have solutions to them before they arise." He emphasized the committees only suggest policies or solutions to the administration; they do not form policies.

Additional business included asking the Administrative Council to temporarily replace Assistant Professor of History, Charles Bias, who has a leave of absence to work on his doctorate degree at West Virginia University. Also, Student Council will be asked to appoint a student representative to the committee to replace Jim Vickers, who graduated last spring.

Mills has served on the Athletic Committee four years, but this will be his first year as chairman. He replaced Dr. Hunter C. Hardman, who retired last year.

Mills said, "The Athletic Committee will meet the first Thursday of every month."

Intramural games begin Monday, Falcons to play AKD at Gullickson field

The Falcons and AKD will kick off the intramural touch football season with a 3 p.m. contest Monday on the Gullickson Hall main field.

Other games scheduled for the main field on Monday are 4 p.m. TKE #1 vs. SAE #2, and at 5 p.m. Pike #1 vs. KA #2. Games scheduled for the area two field adjacent to the Gullickson Hall main field are: 3 p.m. Veterans vs. Spartans, 4 p.m. Forty-niner #2 vs. Sig Ep #1 and at 5 p.m. BUS #2 vs. Lambda Chi #1.

Tuesday at the main field will have East Towers #2 vs. Bored of Regents at 3 p.m., Forty-niner #1 vs. Sig Ep #2 at 4 p.m. and BUS #1 vs. Lambda Chi #2 at 5 p.m.

Also on Tuesday but on field two will be East Towers #1 vs. Triple Threats at 3 p.m., Rolling Stones vs. South Hall at 4 p.m. and Pike #2 vs. KA #1 at 5 p.m.

A team must have its members wearing uniform jerseys or they will forfeit the game. Also any team which does not show up within ten minutes of the scheduled starting time will forfeit.

MU alumni to meet before Dayton game

A reception for Marshall alumni will be 5-7 p.m. Sept. 23 in Dayton, Ohio, before the MU-University of Dayton football game, according to Howard B. St. Clair, director of alumni affairs.

Scheduled at Neil's Heritage House, the event is being sponsored by a group of Dayton, Ohio alumni.

Athletic Director Joe McMullen will give a presentation on current athletic activities of the Thundering Herd, St. Clair said.

Reservations are $2.50 per person, and may be obtained by contacting St. Clair at 9-696-3134.

For those who attend the reception and would like to have dinner before the game, facilities are available.

Those desiring to sit in the Alumni section should mail their application for tickets to The Ticket Office, University of Dayton, Dayton, Ohio, 45909.

Tickets are $4.00 per person. A reception is also being planned in Cincinnati for alumni following the Marshall-Xavier game.

OIL HELPS WEST VIRGINIA SCHOOLS MAKE THE GRADE

Our schools use hundreds of things that are made from oil: desk tops and fiberglass seats, educational films, tapes and records, paint, ink . . . even the erasers on pencils. But most of all, schools use energy. For heat, light and transportation. 75% of all our energy comes from oil and natural gas (including 40% of our electricity). But today, we're using these petroleum fuels faster than we are finding them. That's why America faces an Energy Gap. We're your local oil companies. Working to bridge the growing Energy Gap. Because it's as simple as A-B-C . . . a country that runs on oil can't afford to run short.

Variety offered at Coffeehouse

BY MARGARET LEACH
Staff reporter

Where can you get steak, salad, baked potatoes or french fries and your choice of beer or a soft drink for a $1.79? At the Coffeehouse in the basement of the Memorial Student Center.

Operating on a part time basis last year, the Coffeehouse opened full time in August, deviating somewhat from original plans.

As first planned, the Coffeehouse would have served a variety of foreign foods. However, according to Richard Ruggier, manager of the ARA Food Service in the student center, this plan had to be changed due to lack of space in the cooking and storage areas.

The most exotic foods now served in the Coffeehouse are bagels with cream cheese and knockwurst with kraut. In addition to these, a variety of other foods have been added to the menu. These range from traditional hamburgers and hot dogs to such foods as shrimp baskets, pizzas, reuben sandwiches and pizza steaks.

Although the imported coffees and teas are not being sold, students haven't complained, since the sale of 3.2 beer has begun. Now students may buy beer during all regular Coffeehouse hours.

Ruggier accredited the sale of beer and live entertainment as the House's main attractions. He added that the Coffeehouse is usually crowded on Friday nights after the Magic Theatre.

According to Ruggier, the Coffeehouse has had few problems, although he admitted that they had "anticipated problems with some of the students." Stating that the students' behavior has been excellent, he went on to add that he has not seen any students intoxicated in the Coffeehouse.

The biggest problem with both the Coffeehouse and student center cafeteria has been pets brought in by students. "In general, students are cooperative when asked to remove their pets. In only one instance have we had to contact the humane society about the removal of a pet," Ruggier commented.

The Coffeehouse is open from 3-11 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 3-midnight Fridays, noon till midnight Saturdays and 3-10 p.m. Sundays. All students must present ID's and guests must have guest passes.

Jazz trio performs

The Bernard Peiffer Jazz Trio performed Wednesday before a crowd of approximately 100 in the Old Main Auditorium. Jim Martin, coordinator of the MU Artists Series introduced the improvisational jazz group.

The trio performed such numbers as "A Child Is Born," "Prelude in C-Sharp Minor," and "Something." They also played "Merry-Go-Round for Lovers"—a tune composed by Peiffer. The trio finished their performance with a piece written by Peiffer's brother-in-law.

Al Stauffer, who plays bass fiddle, had many solos as did James Paxson, percussionist. In one number the audience clapped for Paxson's playing so loudly they almost drowned it out.

The innovative jazz group was well received by the audience. The clapping was very loud for such a small crowd. The trio was liked so well they were recipients of a standing ovation by several members of the audience.

The next Convocation performance will be on Oct. 5 at 11 a.m. in Old Main Auditorium. John Jacob Niles will be presented. Niles is a folk concert artist and composer. Carl B. Stokes, former mayor of Cleveland, is scheduled to appear Oct. 6 at 8 p.m. in Old Main Auditorium as part of the MU Forum Series.

SHE'S MISS WEST VIRGINIA

Miss West Virginia title has extra responsibility

BY DEBBIE MAZZOTTA
Feature writer

"I am a changing person, learning to live many life styles and enjoying each of them."

This is Lynnette Koper's Weirton senior and current Miss West Virginia, attitude of her experience in Atlantic City where she represented West Virginia in the annual Miss America Pageant.

Lynnie feels that the change in living conditions hit her quickly because she began as Miss Huntington living in group-style at the Alpha Chi Omega Sorority house, then, one month later learned to be independent and solely living on her own for three months, mainly in Parkersburg. Now returning to MU she finds herself adjusting to apartment living with close friends.

"Although I experienced much through my recent trip I look forward to the reunion of friends and the return of my natural life style such as school, cooking, cleaning and just being Lynnie," she said.

Carrying the title of Miss West Virginia, Lynnie said she feels she has changed because of the extra responsibility. "But as far as the real me is concerned I still enjoy the simple things I used to do and look forward to the little extras included 'my title.'"

"Now there are things I have to do and I don't have a choice, such as this Saturday is the first game and I can't go because I have an appearance in Grafton and being the state representative I feel it is my responsibility to do the best I can."

Miss West Virginia has gained much through her winnings, including the use of an MGB convertible for one year, a $2,000 scholarship, fur stole, 7-piece set of luggage, over $3,000 worth of clothes, the expense-paid trip to Atlantic City and her crown, scepter and trophy.

Preparing for the Atlantic City trip, Lynnie, along with Mrs. Betty Smith, her personal chaperone, and Ralph Nelson, manager of "Belle's" in Huntington, flew to New York and selected many of her outfits for the pageant.

During final week in Atlantic City, Lynnie recalled a few hectic moments.

"Every morning I was ready at eight for rehearsal which usually lasted until 4 p.m. Besides rehearsal we had photography sessions, interviews and meetings."

"Each evening at 7:30 I was at Convention Hall preparing for a full night of swim-suit, evening gown and talent competition. During dinners and balls I met many celebrities such as Burt Parks; Mr. America, Val Vasilef; Joe Garagiola; TV personality, Peter Marshall; Jeopardy, Art Fleming, and Peter Lynn Hayes."

Now that Lynnie has returned to MU she is carrying 11 hours of art classes and continues with weekend appearances.

The state queen will relinquish her crown June 16, 1973, and is eager to see another girl sharing the same experiences. "It has really been a lot of fun and a once-in-a-lifetime experience for me, but I'm glad to be getting back to the natural life style with friends and just being me," she said.

Forensic plans set

Qualifications for those interested in participating in this year's MU forensic squad were discussed in a Wednesday night organizational meeting.

Mary Ann Murphy, instructor of speech, announced the Speaker's Bureau, a program which sends students into the community to perform for clubs and civic groups, will be active this year.

In tournament competition, students may compete in salesmanship speaking, drama duo (which is similar to Reader's Theater), oratory, extemporaneous speaking, oral interpretation, and impromptu speaking.

Mary Stout, Marietta junior, and Steve Hayes, Huntington senior, gave selections in oral interpretation and oratory.

Mrs. Murphy said both squads won 34 trophies this year, which they hope this year's squads will double. At least 24 tournaments are expected.

In addition to other tournaments, MU will host its first debate tournament Nov. 3-4, according to Mrs. Murphy.

For more information concerning debate, forensics, or the Speaker's Bureau, contact Mrs. Murphy at Smith Hall Room 246 or Dr. Benjamin Hope, professor of speech, Smith Hall Room 247.

AAUP group approves plan for salaries

A plan to allow faculty members to distribute their salaries over 12 months instead of nine, has been organized by the Marshall chapter of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP). Dr. William P. Sullivan, professor of English and MU AAUP president, said the plan, approved Tuesday by the AAUP Executive Committee, will go into effect Sept. 30.

Under the proposal, arranged by the AAUP in cooperation with the First Huntington National Bank, participating faculty members will deposit 25 per cent of each paycheck in a savings account at the bank. The faculty member would then receive a monthly paycheck during the summer, which would include interest from the savings account.

Dr. William E. Coffey, associate professor of social studies and president of the West Virginia AAUP, feels the Marshall plan has some advantages over a similar one at West Virginia University. The WVU plan, Dr. Coffey explained, was a trust arrangement and is subject to a 5 per cent administration fee. There will be no administration fee on the Marshall plan, he said.

Honors Seminar to study Africa

By SHELIA STEPHENS
Staff reporter

The Freshman Honors Seminar will survey the African Continent in the 20th century this fall, according to Dr. Larry Ten Harmel, who is directing the freshman seminar this semester.

According to Dr. Ten Harmel, assistant professor of English, the class will study government, art, economics, literature and music of the second largest continent. "We will try to achieve an understanding of what life is like on the continent that has been so remote for so long."

The atmosphere of the seminar is informal and with small numbers of students, there is more participation than in the ordinary classroom situation, Dr. Ten Harmel said. Also the students help choose the method of grading as well as what will be included on the examinations, he added.

Dr. Ten Harmel said there are no specific requirements of students wishing to participate in the freshman seminar; high school performance is taken into consideration. In the past, freshman students have been informed about the seminar at orientation, but many are "scared off," Dr. Ten Harmel said.

He hopes to find a better method of informing students about the seminar as it does away with the boredom and frustration that other classes induce.

"I would like to make it clear that we are trying to involve other people from the community to use the resources of the seminar when possible," Dr. Ten Harmel said.

Interested persons are invited to attend the lectures of guest speakers which will include: Dr. Charlotte Giles, West Virginia State, who will speak on African music; A. D. Mdaki from the Embassy of Tanzania; E. O. Kolade, Nigerian Embassy, speaking on the governmental situation; Professor Della B. Taylor, West Virginia State, speaking on African art and others, according to Dr. Ten Harmel.

Dr. John Dewees, a linguistic specialist from Ohio University, spoke to the seminar Sept. 12 about the languages of Africa. He concentrated on the linguistic diversity of the continent.

Dates of speakers will be announced and Dr. Ten Harmel invites interested persons to attend.

Center forms oral history unit

The history and sociology departments are working with the James E. Morrow Library and the Cabell-Wayne Historical Society to form an Appalachian Oral History Center at Memorial Student Center.

"The purpose of the project," according to Dr. Michael Galgano, head of the history department division of the project, "is to get down on tape, the history, folklore and memories of the Appalachian area."

The information is being collected by both graduate and undergraduate students.

Poetry workshop to organize

Department of English poetry workshop will have its first meeting at 2 p.m. Tuesday in Memorial Student Center, according to Mrs. Louise Bailey, assistant professor of English.

Dr. Warren W. Wooden, assistant professor of English, will speak on "The Dynamics of the Renaissance Sonnet."

The workshop, said Mrs. Bailey, will meet Tuesdays and Thursdays at times to be announced through Nov. 14. It is designed to provide an informal forum for MU administrators, faculty, staff and students interested in poetry. All interested persons are urged to attend.

The workshop's committee includes Dr. Robert S. Gerke, associate professor; Dr. William P. Sullivan, professor; Mrs. Elizabeth Nordeen, assistant professor, and Mrs. Bailey, all of the Department of English.

Although another is yet to be chosen, Wayne deRussett, graduate student, represents students on the committee.

Graduate students to organize

Marshall University graduate students will meet Tuesday, Sept. 19, at 9:00 p.m., to discuss the formation of a Graduate Students Association.

The meeting will be held in Room 2W22, Memorial Student Center, according to Dr. Herman N. Weill, dean of the Marshall Graduate School.

Students will elect a voting representative to serve on the Graduate Council. Full-time and part-time graduate students are asked to attend.

Photography class to start

Marshall University's Office of Community Services will sponsor a 10-week, non-credit course in basic photography for amateurs, Director Paul H. Collins announced.

The classes will be conducted every Wednesday, beginning Sept. 27, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. in Smith Hall Room 209.

Kenneth H. Hixson, photography instructor in the Department of Journalism, will teach the course. He said the classes will deal with the basics of camera choice and handling, exposure, composition and subject matter. Students will have weekly picture-taking assignments which will be evaluated by Hixson, who then will suggest improvements.

Any person interested in enrolling for the course should contact the Office of Community Services, 696-6440, for reservations as soon as possible as the class size will be limited, Collins said.

Checks in the amount of $20 for the course fee should be made payable to the Marshall Foundation, Inc., and sent to Collin's office, Old Main Room 112, Marshall University.

The class will meet every Wednesday evening from Sept. 27 through Dec. 6, with the exception of Nov. 22, the day Marshall's Thanksgiving recess begins.

Those enrolling should bring a camera to the first class session, Hixson said.

Water Corp. to up rates

CHARLESTON (AP)—A Huntington Water Corp. official Thursday testified that rates approved for the utility by the Public Service Commission in 1970 yielded a rate of return well below that authorized.

W. R. Cobb, company manager, said the 1970 order authorized a 6.75 per cent return but in the test year ended July 31, 1971, the rates yielded 4.89 per cent. He called this return "clearly inadequate."

Cobb was the first witness in a PSC hearing on a 26 per cent water rate increase which Huntington Water Corp. has had in effect under a $575,000 bond since March.

The bond is to guarantee customer refunds in case the PSC ultimately disallows part of the increase.

Represented at the hearing as a protestant against the increase was the Lavalette Public Service District, which buys water from the Huntington Water Corp.
