Legislature Unanimously Approves $1,350,000

Final action on the bill to permit the college to retire $400,000 more tuition fees for construction of a physical education building was taken yesterday by Governor Underwood. Both houses of the Legislature had unanimously passed it earlier. The Parthenon went to press before his decision on the bill was announced.

Final action could have raised from $950,000 to $1,350,000 the ceiling on the amount of tuition fees that could be accumulated.

Tuesday the House of Delegates passed it 96-0. Wednesday the Senate passed it 32-0. It was then sent back to the House for concurrence when a senator discovered that the House bill had failed to list "Marshall College" as the owner of the building.

The bill had followed a hectic patch to the governor. It was not in the governor's call and therefore had to be approved by a two-thirds majority of each house before it could be considered as a bill.

This is a budget session of the Legislature. It is supposed to consider only the items assigned it by Governor Underwood in his session-opening address. The revised architect's estimate which upped the amount of money needed for the gym's construction was not released until after the session first re-convened in early January.

The 1957 Legislature had passed permissive legislation allowing the college to retire in a special fund $950,000 from tuition fees beginning with this fiscal year (it began in July, 1957). This amount was supposed to finance the gym's building, but architects Frampton and Bowers said January 9 that rising construction costs made this figure too low. Their new estimate was $1,357,200.

If the gym had been built at a cost of $950,000, it would have been stripped of a proposed swimming pool, rifle range, auxiliary gyms to the main gym, classrooms, and offices. That would have left only the main gymnasium and some office, shower room, and locker space.

Site of the new gym is to be on Eighteenth Street between Fourth and Virginia Avenues, behind the college cafeteria.

Student Struck By Automobile

A Huntington senior was struck and injured Thursday at 8:03 A.M. while crossing Fifth Avenue at Seventeenth Street.

The injured student, Donald E. Willis, 22, of 1006 Twelfth Avenue, was en route to classes when he was struck.

He was rushed to St. Mary's Hospital, where hospital officials said that he had suffered severe lacerations of the left leg and back of the head, and would be admitted for treatment.

School officials have been complaining to city administrative officials about the "speedway" which has resulted in the college area on Fifth and Third Avenues since the inception of one-way traffic January 3.

At Parthenon press time, a city police official said that a traffic survey and a check with state officials would be necessary before stoplights could be installed.

Music Department's Operetta Set Next Tuesday, Wednesday

By KEITH RAY

Next Tuesday and Wednesday in the College Auditorium at 8:15 P.M. students of the Music department will present a modern folk opera, "Down in the Valley," by Kurt Weill, with the Symphonic Choir providing the musical background.

Cast in the starring roles will be Cecil Jividen, Charleston senior, as Brack Weaver; Barbara Ann Kingsbury, Huntington junior, as Jennie Parsons; and Ned DeJournett, Huntington senior, as Tom Bouche.

The opera opens with a scene of Brack Weaver behind bars in the Birmingham jail. He has been sentenced to be hanged for the knife-killing of Tom Bouche in a violent fight at the Shadow Creek Dance.

Brack escapes jail and flees to the waiting arms of his amorous sweetheart, Jennie Parsons. While in each other's arms, they reminisce of past joys together and re-enact their first meeting and the ensuing romance.

Brack escorts Jennie to the Shadow Creek dance (in retrospect) and fights the former suitor of Jennie, Tom Bouche. It is during this fight that Brack fatally stabs Tom and is later sentenced to be handed for killing him.

After this brief respite with Jennie, the remorseful Brack returns to the Birmingham jail to await his hanging.

The opera is an hour long and features several familiar folk melodies such as "Sourwood Mountain" and "Down in the Valley."

The choreography, acting, staging and directing is done by the students of the music department alone.

Jerry Rutherford, Barboursville senior, is director of the play and also sings the part of the chorus leader.

The staging is abstract, which is the using of an idea of a set, rather than a complete set. For instance, the entire set for the jail scene will be nothing more than a cell door which gives the impression of a jail.

By WALT LEONHART

Jim Snyder, head basketball coach at Ohio University, was quoted recently as saying that "a Mid-American Conference team will have to win on the road if it is going to win the championship."

Just how true that is remains to be seen. But one thing is certain, if Marshall's Big Green is going to have anything to say about who wins the crown this year, then it must start tonight when it tangles with the Falcons of Bowling Green in the first of a two-game, two-day road trip.

After tonight's tussle with the BG's, Marshall moves on to Toledo Saturday night to depose the Rockets. Both the Bowling Green and Toledo games are conference tilts and a loss in either game would mean disaster for the Big Green.

To explain why a loss would be disaster for Marshall is not hard. Miami, holders of a fine 8-0 record, is leading the pack and the Big Green, sporting a 4-1 conference slate, seems to be the only MAC team with a chance to catch the rampaging Redskins. Thus a loss would drop Marshall down to a 4-2 record and therefore it would probably take slightly more than a miracle for the Green to come up with a championship.

Leo Byrd and Hal Greer supplied the points and Ivan Mielke and Sonny Allen the sparks as the Big Green stuttered to its twelfth win in 16 tries, 98-89, over Ohio University Wednesday night.

The victory was necessary to keep the Big Green in the Mid-American Conference race, as they need to win them all to keep up with unbeaten Miami (8-0). Marshall is second with a 5-1 mark.

Wednesday night's game seemed sewed up for the Big Green at halftime. It had a 52-40 lead and had earlier led by as much as 19 points. Byrd had 26 of the 36 points he was going to score and things looked rosy.

But in the second half, OU got red hot and Marshall was just the reverse. The Bobcats clawed back to go ahead at 75-74 with just seven minutes left.

Then Mielke, Greer, and Allen took over. Ivan, 6-5, started clearing the boards and tipping in baskets. Hal pitched in the majority of his 28 points, and little Sonny became a plague upon the Bobcat guards.

Mielke's clutch rebounding and scoring were the difference. In only his second varsity game, he put in the points at crucial times, his baskets coming when OU was at its hottest, and supplying almost all the punch the Big Green could muster.

Theatre To 'Inherit Wind'; Force Chosen

By JUDY O'DELL

The cast for College Theatre's next production, "Inherit the Wind," which will be produced the last of March, has been announced, according to Clayton Page, associate professor of speech and director of College Theatre.

"Inherit the Wind," which opened on Broadway in 1955, is based upon the 1924 "monkey trial" in a small town in Tennessee which caused nation-wide concern. A young professor was put on trial for teaching the Darwinian theory of evolution in his classes.

Ray Bane, Wheeling sophomore, will portray the judge and Bob Lynn, Charleston junior, Wheeling freshman, will play the mayor.

Mrs. Brady will be played by Carol Reynolds, Huntington sophomore, and Rachel Brown by Pat Blackburn, Belle junior.

For too many years Morris Harvey and Marshall have been traditional athletic rivals. "It was a natural," as the saying goes in sports. We are only 50 miles apart, and have often been closer than that in comparative caliber of athletic teams.

Besides the rivalry, the series with the Golden Eagles has given Marshall a needed tie-in with the state. Being stuck away off here in the corner of the state, the college often seemed to be on the wrong side of the Ohio River. Sure, we played other State Conference teams and tried to play WVU, but Morris Harvey was the main link toward keeping the state aware of Marshall.

As in any rivalry, victories were precious. We almost always won, but there was usually a stiff battle. The series flourished, both on the field and at the gate.

Those were the "good old days."

Now Marshall is considered a Midwestern school, as a result of its Mid-American Conference relationship. We don't need games with State Conference foes to keep our name before the state. A big league record speaks for itself. Better opponents can be found in Ohio and points west and northeast.

The feeling here is (unless you're a sports Puritan, or hypocrite) that we have to trounce Morris Harvey when we play—not just beat them, but do it decisively. We must do this to save face. It's not respectable for an aspiring cage power like the Big Green to be considered as in the same class with State Conference schools, especially Morris Harvey.

Before we go further, let it be known that this article is not meant as a slam at Morris Harvey athletic teams or the Charleston college itself. It is an attempt to realistically appraise the Big Green's awkward position in this situational manhole.

The simple truth is that we have nothing to gain and everything to lose when playing Morris Harvey. A similar situation supposedly exists now between here and Morgantown. That's undoubtedly one reason we'll be a long time in making the Mountaineer sports schedule. They're being practical. You don't schedule teams who aren't supposed to beat you, but can.

We're not being practical in playing Morris Harvey. They're no longer a drawing card. Only in a few quarters are they still considered our "natural" state rivals. A close shave the Golden Eagles is felt even more keenly in prestige than a loss to any of our other opponents is felt in the percentage column.

Last year's upset should have opened official eyes. This year's squeaker should be the death knell to a series that is no longer a rivalry but a gamble to Marshall.

The moldy tie should be severed.

Operation Costs Have Tripled In Last 10 Years: Fred Smith

By GEORGE BENNETT

If students were required to pay the cost of utilities on our campus, their rates would have increased from about $6 to $15 over the past ten years.

Figures released by Fred Smith, comptroller, also revealed that the total cost of utilities over this same period has almost tripled, from $19,424.12 to $45,267.40.

As the cost of utilities increased, appropriations by the state legislature, in most cases, increased proportionately. The utilities are broken down into heat, light, and power, and water, with the most notable increase being in the cost of light and power.

Over this 10 year period there have been many fluctuations in the cost of each of the utilities, but with each significant change there has also been a definite reason. The largest increase in both heat, light and power, was from 1950 to 1951, and this was the year the Science Hall was built on the Marshall campus.

The largest jump in the cost of water was from 1956 to 1957 when a new sewer charge was put on the college's water bill. Aside from these decisive leaps (the largest at any one year was approximately $4,660), the rates have moved along progressively, with a few being lowered at different times.

Utilities are just one factor which adds to the tremendously increasing cost of operating an institution of higher learning.

SENATE SPEAKS

Flavored by the submission of petitions and the presentation of committee reports, an hour session of the Student Senate on Wednesday, January 15, accomplished the following:

Joe Lechiara, business manager, gave the financial report for January 1, 1958. This report showed the reduction of December's finances to be $151.58 less than the first of the month figure, which was $3,324.36.

The Executive committee report given by Senator Alex Lawrence, chairman, discussed the lobbying procedure which was followed by the eight campus members that attended Charleston.

The Robe petition for a dance February 12 in the Student Union was tabled. Likewise, a petition from the March of Dimes for a similar dance on February 26 was tabled.

Pi Kappa Sigma's pledge class bake sale petition was passed.

Albin Wheeler was accepted as Alex Lawrence's choice to fill the vacated position of senior senator left by John Mayberry.

The resignations of Carolyn Thabet and Brooks Adkins from the senate were accepted.

O Wad Some Power The Gift He Gie Us, To See Ourselves As Others See Us . . .

By NORMAN HADDAD

Have you ever wondered what people not affiliated with the college think of our school?

Nola Meadows, formerly of Beckley and now from Arlington, Virginia, probably has that thought running through her mind.

Since her father was appointed assistant to Robert C. Byrd, member of the United States House of Representatives from the sixth district, Nola was employed by the Central Intelligence Bureau in Washington. She decided to further her education by enrolling in Marshall. She has completed a one-and-one-half year working period after graduating from Woodrow Wilson High School in Beckley.

When she was preparing to leave Washington, her working companions joined hands in giving Nola a going-away party. They asked the visual aids department to come up with a novel "memoir" for Nola to take to West Virginia and the result was the novel going away card, an original, which is pictured below this story. On the opposite side from the drawing is listed the signatures of all of her working companions.

It is evident how much value she attaches to the card when she describes the time when she received it as an "event I'll never forget."

BELOW is the "good luck card" given Nola by her Washington friends. It is in color, which makes it even more effective. The question is, how accurate is their conception of our institution of learning? It might be fun to try to compare individuals on our campus with the hayseed trio in the cartoon.

Have Money Difficulties?

Aid Available To All Students

By GAIL TABOR

Anyone with ambition and the desire for knowledge can attend college, even though their finances may be low. Proof of this is approximately $70,000 worth of money loaned and given to students annually by the college.

According to Dean Harold L. Willey, Dean of Men, between $30,000 and $40,000 of the total amount goes into academic scholarships and loans.

More than twenty-two different scholarships are awarded each year to students worthy of receiving them. Recipients of these scholarships are determined by the Scholarship Committee, who also reviews requests for loans from students. The committee is composed of Dean Willey, chairman, and Luther E. Bledsoe, registrar, Dean of Women Lillian Buskirk, Mrs. Helen Harvey, associate professor of English, and A. O. Ranson, professor of speech.

The scholarship and loan committee meets in the spring to review scholarship applications. A recommendation from the applicant's high school principal and a transcript of grades is required. The scholarships are granted on the bases of need, scholastic ability, moral character and leadership, according to Dean Willey.

Dean Willey said the scholarships range in size from $100 to $700 a year. Besides those granted by the school, there are also local community scholarships granted to students by people in their home town.

However, he said many of the scholarships are not based entirely on grades. For instance, a working scholarship, as the name implies, requires a student to do actual work in connection with school.

Cash Borrowed Athletic Gifts May Be $1,000 Given By Club

Two types of loans are available to full-time students in good standing and who have been in attendance at Marshall at least one semester.

The short-time emergency loan is granted to students who meet the requirements and need money in a hurry. They are allowed to borrow up to $60, with a period of 60 days to repay the loan. If at the end of this time the student is unable to repay the loan, the note may be renewed with the approval of Dean Willey and Mr. Bledsoe, and the payment of a one dollar renewal fee. There is a ten cent assessment for each day the note is overdue.

Long-time loans are for students who are in need of a sum of money greater than $60. According to Dean Willey, loans have been made for as high as $600, and may be made for amounts up to $1,000. The amount borrowed is due one year following the date of graduation or withdrawal from school. After that date, 6% interest per annum is charged until the loan is paid in full.

There is a service charge of $.25 on each loan to cover cost of handling. Applicants for loans must secure and complete application in the Dean of Men's office.

The scholarship committee has no regular meeting, but convene when necessary to review applications for long-time loans. Applicants for this loan are required to complete a detailed application and appear before the committee for an interview. Bases, given by Dean Willey, on which these loans are granted are need and good standing in the college. If the loan is approved, the student must get the note signed by the parents or a guardian.

According to Dean of Men Harold E. Willey, approximately $30,000 or $40,000 a year goes into Marshall's athletic scholarship program. These scholarships are given by the Big Green Club which is composed of people in the community who are interested in Marshall and its athletic program.

Dean Willey said the scholarships are granted to football and basketball players, and although they are called scholarships, they are really grants-in-aid since the men work for the money.

About eighty men come under this program and, according to Mid-American Conference rules, must work for their room and board. Under this work scholarship, they are required to work one hour a day in season, and two hours a day out of season. Books, tuition, and fees come under the category of grants-in-aid.

No outright grants of money are given to athletes. Dean Willey said a few of the men have entered college under an academic as well as athletic scholarship—which proves they have brain as well as brawn.

A new scholarship in this category is the Tom Dandele Memorial, in which the recipient is required to make better than the "C" average required by men under ordinary athletic scholarships.

In another aspect of the athletic program are the twenty-two men who work in a student assistant capacity. They are required to work fifty hours a month and are paid by the state through the program.

Notices are periodically posted in Old Main concerning pertinent information on scholarships.

Commuter Student Uses 'Thumb' Transportation

By CHARLES HARPER

Roy Harrison Pauley, a January graduate, travelled approximately 64,800 miles from his home in St. Albans to college and back home again during the four years that he attended college here, and he covered all of this distance by hitchhiking!

Roy, who was a marketing and retailing major while he was here, hitchhiked from St. Albans to Huntington each morning and from Huntington to St. Albans each evening. The only time that he had to catch a bus was during a four week period when it was too dark to hitchhike. One semester Roy had an 8:00 o'clock class and he was late only four times.

Roy got most of his rides with travelling salesmen who usually took him straight through. Truck drivers picked him up when he first started hitchhiking, but they have recently cracked down on this practice. One time he got a ride with a family from Anchorage, Alaska, who was going to Virginia. Roy said that in another instance, he drove a man's car from Huntington to St. Albans for him. Pauley said that women travelling alone often gave him rides, which is unusual.

Roy said that the average time to get to and from school was about one hour and fifteen minutes, although one time it took five hours because of an icy road. Roy kept an accurate account of his rides and the distance he travelled each day.

He also had worked out a plan for hitchhiking, which included carrying a raincoat for unexpected showers and never hitchhiking after dark or getting on a lonely stretch of road where speeding cars couldn't slow down to pick him up. Although the Huntington police warned him about hitchhiking, he never encountered the State Police.

Roy's biggest reason for this way of travelling was to save money. He said that travel is a big expense and that by hitchhiking he eliminated it and was able to go to college.

Ride, Mister?

Job Open

Senate Secretary Feels Job Gives Her Active Campus Life

In this edition of The Parthenon, it's hats off to a vital cog in the efficient functioning of our Student Government. Her name is Carol Kay Dawson and her job is executive secretary of the Student Government.

Carol, a South Charleston junior, was appointed to her position by the president of the student body at the first of this school year.

Although Miss Dawson's responsibilities are listed in the student handbook, she sums up her duties as involving typing, shorthand, filing, and buying supplies for the business manager. In addition to this, Carol must handle the money for the dance tickets and the money submitted by candidates for elections. Another monetary responsibility is administering the student government petty cash fund. And, or yes, she's bonded for $3,000.

Upon asking the efficient secretarial major what she felt the value of her training to be, Carol replied, "Before I started working this year. I had no idea of the large realm of activity in the student government. Now being an active member of this political body, I feel that I am not only involved more deeply in governmental affairs but I am also being more useful to the school."

Last year, Carol worked for a lawyer and found that the legal knowledge she obtained in that job has been helpful in her present position in the student government. Some knowledge of parliamentary procedure which she acquired has proved to be helpful.

After asking secretary Dawson how her position will be filled this year, she announced, "My position will be filled by appointment of the new president of the student body who will be elected in the spring elections during the first part of April. Before a person is placed in my position she must receive a maximum of 30 days training. We will need a trainee very soon."

Hark all you sophomore or junior secretarial majors! Carol has announced the student government's interest in a trainee for her position. This is your chance to be a valuable asset to the school in addition to receiving monetary compensation for your work. Stop in the student government office any afternoon from 1-4 P.M. and ask Carol about it.

Student Interviews

The Dean of Men's office has announced that the following interviews will be held next week:

Monday, the International Business Machines will interview students interested in being sales personnel.

College women interested in Girl Scout camp counseling for the Huntington area may arrange interviews Tuesday with a representative of the Girl Scout Council.

On both Wednesday and Thursday of next week, Procter and Gamble representatives will interview students in sales management.

Interested students may obtain further information from the office of the Dean of Men.

Grades Will Be Out Next Week

First semester grades are expected to be mailed to students' homes Monday, February 10, according to Edward R. Beckett, assistant registrar.

The grades were returned from the service bureau where they were tabulated yesterday and today. They will be sorted today and tomorrow to prepare them for release Monday.

Life Planning Week To Display Art Exhibit In Library During Festivities

Paintings for the Art display during Life Planning Week will be furnished by the New York Graphic Society, according to Judy Patterson, Trenton, New Jersey, sophomore and chairman.

"These paintings and the books to be displayed with them have been chosen by the committee with the aid of instructor Joan Gregory and Arthur S. Carpenter, associate professor of art. The paintings were chosen because they illustrate the theme, 'I'm Third.'"

The twelve paintings to be displayed in the library and Student Union are: "Corn Pickers," Doris Lee; "John Marshall," Moses Hyman; "Praying Hands," Peter Paul Reubens; "Dr. Albert Einstein," Nettie Steyns-Bromberg; "Third Class Carriage," Honore Daumier; "Himself," Robert Henri; "On Top of the World," Henry Major; "The Tragedy," Pablo Picasso; "Adoration of the Magi," Botticelli; "Story of a Candle," Mordecai; "Pulse of Industry," F. Gerwin; and "The Mother," Pablo Picasso.

The books to be displayed will deal with subjects of Life Planning Week and the theme. They will be furnished by the Huntington Religious Book Store.

Anyone wanting to purchase one of the paintings to be exhibited should contact Judy Patterson, who will send in the order. The purchaser will receive a 25% discount if he follows this procedure.

Marshall Can Avenge Early Season Defeat With Win Over Musketeers

(Continued from Page One) road trip, it gets right back into action, this time on its home court Monday night when it takes on a fine Xavier of Ohio quintet. The Muskies hold a 70-68 victory over Marshall earlier this season in the Cincinnati Invitation Tournament and a victory for Marshall would certainly be sweet revenge.

However, Xavier will be playing against the Big Green without the services of its fine scorer and rebounder, Corny Freeman. Freeman was declared ineligible last week due to scholastic difficulty and will not be in a Xavier uniform Monday night. Freeman was the leading rebounder and third on the team in individual scoring with a 11.1 average.

Getting back to the road trip and to Bowling Green, Marshall will be meeting a team that gave defending champions Miami fits on the Redskins' home court before it fell, 76-74.

Also facing the Big Green in its battle with the Falcons are three players who are hitting for averages in double figures. Leading the pack with a fine 22.9 mark is Jim Darrow. The Bowling Green ace is not only leading individual scorers on his team but is third in the conference. Also averaging in double figures are Jim McDonald and Frank Wade with 13.3 and 10.5 marks respectively.

Bowling Green has a 3-2 record in conference competition and is in third place behind Miami and Marshall.

Besides the high scoring Darrow the Big Green will have one of the leading rebounders in the conference to contend with in 6-6 Chuck McCampbell. Chuck has been pulling them in at a .126 percentage and is third in the conference behind Miami's Wayne (Goose) Embry and Western Michigan's Ed Blair.

In Saturday night's game with Toledo, Marshall will be facing a club that has managed to win only one game in the conference and consequently is in sixth place.

However, the Rockets have a much better record outside the MAC and could prove to be dangerous to the Big Green.

Toledo has two men averaging in double figures in Al Vann and Joe Keifer. Keifer is hitting the nets at a 16.2 rate while Vann is not far behind with a 13.9 mark. Vann is also one of the MAC's sharpshooters as he is fourth in field goal percentage with a .469 mark.

Marshall will also face a sharpshooter Monday night against Xavier in Joe Viviano. Joe has averaged 18.7 per game in 17 games and is hitting at a .435 mark in field goal percentage.

Also leading the Muskie attack will be rangy Hank Stein. Stein has been tossing them in at a 14.2 points per game average in helping Xavier to a 14-4 record this season.

In compiling this fine record Xavier has met and defeated such clubs as Fordham, Louisville, Miami of Ohio, Western Kentucky and LaSalle.

The tables will be turned when Marshall and Xavier meet this time. As mentioned before, the Muskies will be playing without the services of Freeman. But the Big Green will be playing with the services of a player who didn't get a crack at Xavier when the two met earlier. This player is, of course, Ivan Mielke, and he should prove to be a great advantage to the Big Green the remainder of the season and could definitely be instrumental in Marshall's drive for a MAC crown.

In telling of what Marshall faces in Bowling Green, Toledo and Xavier, it would be a word to the wise to tell just what the above three will be meeting in Marshall.

The Big Green is leading the nation in scoring with an 89.4 mark and has two players in the top ten. The two are Leo Byrd and Hal Greer, who are hitting for 24.7 and 25.6 averages respectively. These marks are good for the sixth and seventh positions.

It's called "The Mutual Admiration Society." This song, which was fairly popular some months ago, is presently making the rounds of the varsity basketball team.

And the two players who "sing" it the most happen to be the two greatest Marshall College basketball players ever to don a uniform during the same season. These two, of course, are Leo Byrd and Hal Greer.

The way these two worship the other's basketball ability is almost unbelievable. In talking to Byrd, the subject of Greer was brought up and Leo, without hesitation, said, "You know how I feel about H (Hal's team given nickname). He's the greatest." Leo went on by saying, "Hal has the softest touch I've ever seen. He is a good man to have on your side when the chips are down."

Greer's value of Byrd is just as high, if not more so. According to Greer, Byrd is "the greatest thing that ever happened to Marshall College."

Coach Jule Rivlin should be the happiest man in this new "society" as he is the only coach in the nation to have two players in the top ten scorers. But, at first Jule took a pessimistic view in saying, "I'm sorry one of the two is a senior (Greer)," but he added, "I'm equally as happy, knowing one of them is only a junior."

Seriously Rivlin is very proud of his two basketball All-Americans. He also is happy of the fact that none of the other players holds any envy about the scoring feats of Byrd and Greer.

"You know," Riv said, "when two boys really love the game and give it everything they have, like Byrd and Greer do, a person—coach, player or fan—can't do anything else but admire them."

In the last two weeks, when The Parthenon wasn't published, quite a few sports tid-bits have been flowing upon the desk, so I'll shoot them out to you now . . . In the latest January edition of "Scholastic Coach," a nation magazine for coaches, a story entitled "The Trainer's 'Warbag,'" has been written by the Big Green trainer and wrestling coach, Ed Prelaz. Prelaz won national recognition when he saved halfback Dyke Six' life with the oral screw in 1955. The oral screw is an instrument to open the locked jaws of an athlete and Prelaz's story places heavy emphasis on this instrument.

For boxing fans, the Golden Gloves will be held in the Memorial Field House starting February 22. The Advertiser has a special ticket plan for the Gloves and The Parthenon will give you complete information on this plan next week.

Last year there were a few students who boxed in the gloves, and one of them, Carl Hickey by name, was good enough to win a novice championship. If anyone knows of any students who have entered this year's field, would you please contact yours truly here at The Parthenon office in the basement of the library.

Coach Bill Chambers' baseball squad will begin working out in the campus gym and at the Armory in the West End of town very shortly. Chambers said that he has a good number of boys who have reported to him for baseball competition, but he also leaves an open invitation to all who would like a try-out for the team.

O'Conner And Dunlap Drafted By NFL Clubs

Big Green football fortunes, which were at their highest peak in the last ten years this past season, got another shot in the arm recently when two of the team's players were drafted by the National Football League.

Halfback Ramon Dunlap and tackle Jim O'Conner were picked up by the pro clubs—Dunlap by the Chicago Cardinals and O'Conner by the Cleveland Browns.

O'Conner, a sophomore who is a war veteran, will have two more years of college ball before entering the pro ranks, but for Dunlap, who graduates in May, the pros are right around the corner.

Ray said that he was surprised by the draft choice, but even more so by being picked so far up. He was the fifteenth choice of the Cards.

All-American King Hill of Rice and John Crow of Texas A & M were the top two choices of the Cardinals. This put Dunlap in pretty fast company.

One might think that the Cardinals were wanting back field material in the draft, but of the first 20 picks only six backfield men were picked up by Chicago.

Dunlap can't sigh a contract until after school is out, in order to remain an amateur for varsity track competition.

O'Conner was even more surprised than Dunlap since he has two more years of college ball. This has been quite a year for the 240-pound tackle. He was named to the All-Mid-American second team as a sophomore.

"These honors will make me try even harder next year," the softspoken lineman said. He finished up by saying, "I will play on a Mid-American championship football before I graduate."

Sig Alph Duo Of Waldek, Cain Cop Intramural Bridge Tourney

By STRAT DOUTHAT

Guy Cain and George Waldeck copped the blue ribbon in the intramural bridge tourney by defeating Fred Freeman and Bob Gardner 2 to 1.

Cain and Waldeck, representing the SAE's, sped through a field of 36 contestants. The field of this year's tournament was considerably larger than last year's. This can be attributed to the growing popularity of the game on Marshall's campus.

Bridge enjoyed a tremendous popularity here several years ago, but died down in '56 and '57. The proof that it is on the upswing is evident at the Student Union where a half dozen games are usually in progress all day long.

Intramural basketball regained the spotlight this week with the Sig Eps remaining on top in league 1, downing the SAE's 61-29. Neil Doaks and Jim Maddox paved the way for the winners with 17 points each. Gene Cunningham led the SAE team with a fourteen-point effort.

Runnerrup spot goes to the Pikes, who kept in step by swamping a hapless ASP squad, 78-52. Harold Vealy, Bobby Rodgers, and John Todd combined their scoring efforts into a whopping 62 points. Vealy and Rodgers shared the top scoring honors with 22, while Todd breathed down their necks with 20. Frank Roncella hit the nets for 14 to lead the losers.

Dana Kirk, center for the faculty quint, put on a tremendous scoring exhibition as he scorched the cords with a red hot 46-point performance against the Dancers. The Faculty came out on top, 75 to 49.

An undefeated PKA No. 2 team ran roughshod over the SAE No. 2 quint with Charlie Wright and Marvin Hensley spurring the Pikes with 35 and 27 point efforts respectively. Bob Payne's all around play netted him 27 tallies to spark the losing SAE squad.

HOME EC CLUB MEETS TUESDAY

The Home Economics Club will meet Tuesday at 4 P.M. in N202 for its regular business session. The slate for the new officers will be presented, according to Adella Strouss, associate professor of home economics and sponsor of the club.

Wrestlers Visit Falcons Tomorrow

The Big Green matmen will travel to Bowling Green tomorrow to clash with the Falcons at 2 P.M. This will be their ninth match and for the current campaign, the Green and White grapplers have suffered six losses.

The starting line-up for the Bowling Green tilt will be: Earl Rine 123, Bob Stover 130, Captain Kenny Adkins 137, Bob Lester 147, Granville Zopp 157, Bill Gillispie 167, Bob Wilson 177 and Rudy Colombo Heavyweight.

Commenting on the Bowling Green match, Coach Ed Prelaz said, "Bowling Green is pretty good, but not as tough as Toledo or Kent State. Coach Prelaz also said that Granville Zopp and Bill Gillispie are showing considerable improvement which will enable next years team to have considerable experience.

In their next outing, the Big Green will meet Fairmont State here next Saturday. And on March 7-8, the Green and White will go to Bowling Green for

Congressman Robert Byrd 'Life' Speaker

Congressman Robert C. Byrd of the Sixth Congressional District of West Virginia, will be one of the speakers for Life Planning Week, according to Kay Leech, South Charleston junior, chairman of Class-room speakers committee.

Byrd telephoned Miss Leech Monday night to inform her of his plans to attend the week's activities and to address the students on the theme "I'm Tired." He was to telephone or wire her later in the week concerning the exact dates he will be available.

Congressman Byrd was a student at Beckley, Concord, Morris Harvey and Marshall Colleges. He served in the West Virginia House of Delegates from 1946-1950 and in the Senate Chamber, 1950-52. In 1952, he was elected the representative to Congress from the Sixth District.

Recently, Byrd announced his candidacy for the U. S. Senate for the term now being completed by Senator Chapman Revercomb.

March 28 Is Deadline For Spring 'Et Cetera'

By LaDONNA CROCKETT

The deadline for submitting original compositions for "Et Cetera," campus literary supplement to "The Parthenon," has been set for Friday, March 28, according to Pat Fannin, Ashland, Kentucky, senior and editor of the magazine.

"Et Cetera" is the literary magazine established in 1953 as an outlet for student creative writing. The spring issue will be the second publication of the year. The winter issue is now available at "The Parthenon" boxes in the various buildings on campus free-of-charge.

Prizes totaling $50 will be awarded this year for the best short stories and poetry published in both issues. The author of the best short story will receive $20; $15 will be given for the second prize for short stories. First place poetry award will be $10 and second prize $5.

Faculty advisors for "Et Cetera" will judge the stories for the awards. They are: John Stender, associate professor of English; Marvin Mitchell, assistant professor of English; and John Marvin, instructor of English. The $50 for the awards, to be given in the spring, has been contributed by an anonymous donor.

Literary criticisms, essays, and translations of foreign works will also be considered for publication but no prizes will be awarded in these categories.

Manuscripts may be given to Pat Fannin or put in the "Et Cetera" mailbox in the Dean of Men's office. They should be either double-spaced typed or legibly handwritten.

The staff for the magazine includes: Gretchen Border, Charleston senior, art editor; Hilbert Campbell, Hico junior, Marjorie Cappellari, Point Pleasant senior, Linda McGhee, Huntington junior, Bill Moran, Huntignton senior, and Bryan Compton, Huntington senior, as the editorial board; and Nancy Marples, South Charleston senior, and LaDonna Crockett, Matewan sophomore, as the production staff.

The staff meeting will be Friday at 4 P.M. in the Laidley Hall lounge. Anyone interested in the publication may attend.
