Hodges And Laidley Are Redecorated

The halls and shower rooms of Hodges Hall are undergoing a thorough painting job this week and as soon as they are completed the rooms of Laidley Hall will be painted, according to Charlie Collins, superintendent of buildings and grounds.

Mr. Collins pointed out that there wasn't any vacancies in Laidley so the women would have to "double up" while the painters are going over the rooms. "This is necessary," Collins said, "because the rooms won't be vacant long enough for painting until next fall and then the moving in and out of students would interfere with the work of the painters."

Sun Family Flees Reds Five Times

The Nationalist-Communist Civil War now raging in China has stranded many Chinese students now studying in the United States.

This war has struck even closer home to Charles H. Sun and Yoo Lin Sung, China's two representatives here.

Sung's family, which lives in Showkuang, China, is now in Communist dominated territory.

Although they have been forced to move five times, Sun's family has been more fortunate. Sun in an interview said that his family is now moving from Nauthang to Canton, their fifth different home in recent months. Previously they have been forced to move from Tsinan, Nanking, Shanghai, and Nanchow.

All I Want For Christmas Is My Horse's Two Front Teeth

BY RAY GEOUGE

The popular song hit, "All I Want For Christmas Is My Two Front Teeth," may or may not have been written by a Roman milkman grieving for his dead "old faithful," horse because, according to Dr. Lucy A. Whitsel, head of the Latin and Greek departments, one of the earliest known.

Donald Court Store Built By Students To Open In March

Using scrap lumber and the only tools at hand, students and faculty members of Donald Court recently completed a 25 by 10 foot building which will house a co-operative grocery store.

According to Lunda Griffith, mayor of Donald Court, the store will stock a complete line of canned goods, household items and tobacco. The store will operate on a cash and carry basis, and is tentatively scheduled to open about March 1.

Each family living at the housing project invested $11 in the undertaking, and the store will be operated by students.

A ten per cent mark-up on wholesale cost of each item will provide a margin to cover the payment of a manager and to cover losses. A dividend will be declared every six months from the accrued profits.

The store will open with a $341 cash collection and an additional $200 has been pledged.

Alma Mater, Fight Song On Record In 1949 Year Book

A phonograph recording will be in "Your 1949 Chief Justice" again this year according to John Sayre, editor.

This year the record will have the Alma Mater on one side recorded by the Madrigal Club with an orchestra accompanying. On the other side the College Band will record The Fight Song and Sons of Marshall, Sayre said.

Monday February 21 is the deadline for all individual and group pictures for the annual.

sets of false teeth—possibly dating from 700 B. C.—was made from the two front teeth of a horse. She has a picture of the false teeth among other relics on display in the department office to prove it. "And," says Dr. Whitsel, "if the girls of today think a safety pin is a handy thing to have around, just imagine what the girls of 100 B. C. Rome had to say about the ancestor of the safety pin, the fibula, when their toga was showing . . . often it was made of gold and encrusted with jewels."

Another Roman item, a tear bottle, must have been quite popular. According to Dr. Whitsel, the ladies used to save their tears in such bottles and show them to their boy friends, after a long absence, to prove how much they missed them. The tear bottle dates from 200 A. D.

Other things on exhibit are an Eighth century B. C. perfume bottle, a First century B. C. lamp, a small model of the "Mouth of Truth"—insert your hand in the mouth and get bitten if you're a liar, pottery fragments dating from 3000 B. C., Roman coins—including one from the currency which Mark Anthony was supposed to have debased, and a First century B. C. surgical instrument.

In praise of the artists, Professor Curtis Baxter, manager of the Artist Series, said, "They are one of America's leading duo-piano teams and the foremost exponents of modern music."

Arthur Gold and Robert Fizdale made their New York debut two seasons ago after reports of their out-of-town successes had drifted back to the musical capital. They had made a few appearances on the radio, but most of the audiences which came to hear them play were completely unprepared for the caliber of their performances.

In the two seasons since their Town Hall debut they have played more than 160 recitals and orchestral concerts. On October 7, 1946, they appeared as soloists with the New York City Symphony Orchestra, Leonard Bernstein conducting.

The adjectives "orchestral" and "symphonic", often applied to Gold and Fizdale, furnish a clue to the impression these two men have made on the music world. Their ability to make two pianos sound like a superbly-balanced orchestra is the outgrowth of two individual talents which have been integrated into a musically dramatic entity.

Arthur Gold, the eldest by one year (he is twenty-nine) was born in Toronto, Canada, and came to the United States as a permanent resident twelve years ago. Of Russian parentage, he was encouraged by his family at the first indication of his musical powers. At the age of three he accompanied his sister, an accomplished soprano, playing entirely by ear.

When he was six, he started studying the piano and five years later, when he came to this country, he entered the studio of Rosina and Josef Lhevinne with whom he worked for six years before joining his talents with Robert Fizdale.

Though their programs are well-balanced, featuring the "classics" as well as the "moderns", Gold and Fizdale like to emphasize the music of modern American composers.

Psychology Dept. Adds Laboratory Study Equipment

A Singerman color mixture apparatus and a perimeter have been added to the list of laboratory instruction instruments now possessed by the psychology department, Dr. Kenneth K. Loemker, department head, announced.

The former is a box that mixes the light from red, green, and blue light-bulbs situated in the back of the box by throwing the colored rays on a translucent screen in the front of the box. It is used to show the differences encountered in the mixing of colors by the eye retina and actual mixing of colored lights by mechanical means.

The Perimeter is an instrument that maps the color zones of the retina and its blind spot.

LIFE PLANNING WEEK

Yesterday one of the most outstanding programs ever undertaken on the Marshall College campus, Life Planning Week, came to a close. Never before, to our knowledge, has such a large group of distinguished people been present at the same time on a single occasion. The guest speakers, Dr. Raymond F. McLain, Dr. Wayne S. Huffman, Rev. James L. Stoner, Congressman Brooks Hays, Mrs. James D. Wyker and Rabbi Stanley Brav, are recognized nationally.

It was the announced desire of the Life Planning Week Committee that this series of seminars and assemblies would serve not only an educational purpose but would win students to active and useful life in service to the community.

It is interesting and encouraging to note that President Stewart H. Smith describes the general student response to this splendid program as "gratifying". Numerous nationally known speakers and many interesting subjects of discussion were available, at least one of which would appeal to every student. The privilege to miss classes in order to attend certain Life Planning Week activities was not abused by the students.

Marshall College recognizes the need for a wholesome atmosphere on the campus and this is only one of the steps taken to provide for the spiritual welfare of the students. With such programs in the offing throughout the years to come, students and their parents can rest assured that the spiritual side of life will not be neglected here.

W.R.B.

U.S.N.S.A.

Action on the proposal to join the United States National Student Association was postponed by the student council in the meeting last Tuesday until the first of April. Since a quorum was not present and because there was some conflict of opinion among the members present, President Earl Kirker appointed a committee of three to investigate the association more thoroughly.

The student council is to be congratulated for taking this matter seriously. This is not the time to make a definite decision, since they are not very well acquainted with the actual aims and purposes of this organization.

As we understand it, this organization was dominated by radicals when the first national assembly was held, and it ended in fruitless confusion. Since then, about two years ago, it was reorganized under competent leadership and sponsorship.

Membership dues for Marshall would be $100, being based on the enrollment. Many of the larger, more influential institutions are members and it offers this college an opportunity to associate with them.

BY CELIA SMITH

Life Planning Week is over — for this year at least.

Comments from students all over the campus, reveal it's after-effects will be here for some time. It is practically impossible to judge how much discussion has been stirred up by the class room lectures, talks before different groups, seminars and assemblies.

"How can I help, at least a little bit, a family which has just lost a member by death?"

"What can I contribute to my marriage to make it successful?"

"Are politicians religious?"

"What are the factors in an ideal marriage?"

"How will I know when I am in love?"

These are just a few of the questions thrown at speakers during their four-and-a-half day visit here. They are just a small sample of dozens of different topics and facts of religion and life which the speakers discussed before numerous groups and classes.

Some of the specific topics discussed were "What Can I Believe About Christianity?" "Can Co-eds Be Christians?" "Christianity and Judaism, What They Have in Common," "Where Is the Conflict Between Science and Religion?" and "Love, Courtship, and Marriage."

Again, the names of the five speakers who so capably spoke to students and faculty alike are Dr. Raymond F. McLain, Dr. Wayne S. Huffman, Rev. James L. Stoner, Congressman Brooks Hays, Mrs.

James D. Wyker and Rabbi Stanley Brav.

Dr. Huffman, when asked to comment on the activities of this week, said, "My hope is that the situation will not come to an end when we leave—when the concentrated effort is at an end—but will lead to a continuation of the program for a long period of time. That a wholesome discussions will be held in an attempt to understand another person's viewpoint."

Letters . . .

Dear Sir,

There is a sign in the basement of Old Main that reads "Boy's Rest Room." On the second floor of the Northcott Science Hall there is a sign that reads, "Boy's Wardrobe."

Some of the more ancient of Marshall's habits may be flattered by these indirect references to our immaturity, but to the majority of male students, who may be veterans of the chow line, the pay line, and possibly the diaper

Bob Blubaugh's sensational field goal in the last second of play gave the Gentlemen a 52-50 win over the Blue Devils and kept his team undefeated in mural hardwood play.

Blue Devils, one of the big disappointments of the season, fought furiously throughout the contest and had a two point lead with a minute to play. Jack Rose, pressing hard on the defense, succeeded in stealing the ball from a Devil player and fired it to Booth who dropped it in to knot the score at 50-all.

The Devils fired away at the bucket but the shots went wild.

Then Blubaugh hit a game winning pivot shot from 15 feet out as the gun sounded ending the game

Gentlemen held a halftime lead, 27-25 but Blue Devils tied the count at the third quarter mark, 40-40 The winners, not to be denied, waited until the final second to win the game.

Dick Maddox, playing his first game for the Gentlemen, led the scoring parade with 16 points. Blubaugh followed a close second with 13 counters. Bill Cravens and Dave Connors with 11 and 13 points respectively starred for the losers.

Smokers Independent Despite Ad Pressure

BY EVERETT W. SMITH

Just how great is the power of radio commercials and newspaper advertising? Do soothing cigarette commercials and full page ads showing some celebrity with brand X between the first two fingers, left hand, have any effect on the average smoker?

The syrupy voices on the radio, ads in the newspapers, and periodicals apparently have no effect on Marshall devotees of the weed. All answers received for the following question were in the negative: Have current advertising methods (radio, newspapers, magazines) had any influence in determining the brand of cigarette you smoke? Why or why not?

John Mullen, South Charleston junior, stated that "There are so many advertisements in the publications and on the radio that I seldom notice them now."

Joe Crickard, Huntington sophomore, said: "I began smoking my brand of cigarette for no particular reason, and for that same no particular reason, I change brands occasionally."

Leonard Hudgins, Bluefield sophomore, is not affected by cigarette advertising because he is not devoted to "any one special brand."

Henry C. Reed, Huntington sophomore, does not like movie star advertising and said: "When it comes to listening to the advertising, I do not like to hear what they are saying. And a movie star can't taste a cigarette any better than I can."

Hyman Smith, Huntington junior, likes his independence and stated: "I changed brands with every pack I buy because I don't want any tobacco company to feel that they own me. I'm fed up to here with all this advertising, anyway."

Since the war, smoking has increased on the campus, but it seems that no matter what brand you smoke, it still gets in your eyes.

IFC Amends Rule On Pledge Grades For Frat Initiation

The Interfraternity council unanimously voted at its Wednesday meeting to amend the IFC constitution to read "To be eligible for fraternity initiation, a man must have passed at least 12 hours with an average of C or better in the last semester he was enrolled preceding his initiation, or an overall average of C" Ed Bartles, IFC president announced today. The effective date of this amendment is February 28, Bartles added.

"It is hoped that this amendment will clarify the present clause in our constitution dealing with scholastic standing before the actual initiation of a pledge into a fraternity," Bartles commented, "and the council will check these men's records more closely in the future. The pledging of first semester freshmen will remain as it now is."

BIG GREEN TROPHIES WILL BE DISPLAYED IN THE STUDENT UNION

A trophy case worthy of the NAIB championship cup will adorn the student union in the near future, according to Charlie Collins, superintendent of buildings and grounds.

"The NAIB and other trophies won by Big Green squads in recent years will fill the case," Dean Brailey said, "But we do not feel it necessary to go back to the year one with the displays," he added.

Materials for the case were secured through the courtesy of The Duncan Box and Lumber Company and Central Glass Company, with the Student Council allocating funds for the purchasing of remaining materials as soon as they are available.
