Sticky fingers

By TERRI MILLER
Staff Writer

Two pre-adolescent boys walk into a store and engage in a scuffle that captures the cashier's attention, while a third boy pilfers money in the back room.

A 50-year-old school teacher browses along an aisle filled with school supplies. Seeing no clerks, she pockets an eraser, a ruler and a $1.95 paperback book.

Area merchants from Tene Mart, Stationer's, 7-Eleven, Opus One and the MU Bookstore agree shoplifters come in all shapes and sizes, but they view the rate of shoplifting differently.

"We figure there's a significant amount of shoplifting, but in terms of dollars and cents, we don't know," Stationer's Bookstore manager Peter

B. Barr said. "I don't think it is as high as people say. People are getting more honest."

Barr said most shoplifting occurs in the fall because traffic is greater and Stationer's receives more business.

Michael L. Beckner, Point Pleasant senior and manager of Tene Mart on 20th Street, said shoplifting is average, "considering how close we are to the university and the neighborhood we're in. It (shoplifting) isn't as bad as bad-check writers."

He said Tene Mart loses less than $30 a week, but said this wasn't bad considering the amount of business the store does.

"Because of the weather, people can't get out. So I would say shoplifting is down," Beckner said.

Maynard O. Chapman, Opus One clerk, said shoplifting was not bad until immediately before

Pilfering a problem for area merchants

Christmas. "We really had to keep our eyes open," he said. "It was the first time we really had to watch."

Joseph L. Vance, manager of the MU Bookstore, said he preferred to use the term "pilferage," which he defined as "anything that deprives a retailer of the full retail value of a product." Vance said this includes such acts as opening make-up and handling the contents, making it unsellable.

According to Vance, pilferage is not the most serious problem in the operation of a store, though it seems to occur most frequently during the holiday season and at the end of semesters.

On the other hand, 7-Eleven manager Mary A. Wooding said, "It (shoplifting) is bad, period. We have some everyday."

She described some incidents of shoplifting. "One girl put chewing gum in the back of her pants," she said. "Some boy put a candy bar in his glove. Another boy put a ham steak in his pocket. Others eat while in the store and think we don't see them. Then they argue when we charge them for the item."

Employee Mike Adkins related another incident where a man sneaked out of the store with a quart of beer in his coat. Adkins said when he saw the man, he called the police. Minutes later the culprit came back in and paid for the beer. The getaway car had a flat tire.

"I usually don't have time to call the police," Adkins said. "They keep you on the phone for 15 minutes and during that time, everyone else is stealing. Most of the time we only have one person working."

The most popular items shoplifted include canned goods, such as tuna fish, according to Terry L. Deering, another employee. "They (canned goods) are easier to get at and easier to stash," she said.

At the MU Bookstore, the most commonly pilfered items are health and beauty aids, jewelry, magazines and greeting cards, Vance said.

David H. Scites, assistant director of security, said if the bookstore signs a warrant against a shoplifter, "we can take him to a magistrate forthwith and he is incarcerated (confined). Sometimes it is worked out through the dean of students' office, but not very often."

'Ten years is long enough' - Sen. Nelson

Bridge tolls may be eliminated

By BARB SINNETT
Staff Writer

Tolls on bridges in the Huntington area may soon be eliminated if the bill introduced in the Legislature is accepted, according to Senator Robert R. Nelson, D-Cabell.

The bill, introduced Jan. 25, concerns removing toll charges on the two existing bridges in the Huntington region and bridges in Winfield and New Martinsville, according to Sen. Nelson.

"We have been paying toll charges on the Sixth Street Bridge and the West 17th Street Bridge for approximately 10 years and I feel that is long enough," he explained. "There is enough money in the toll fund now to remove charges and construct another bridge in the area."

Nelson said there was a need for a third bridge in the area of South Point, Ohio. People in east Cabell County and along Route 2 would also be benefited, according to Nelson.

Nelson explained that another bridge could not be constructed unless the toll fund money was used.

"Toll bridges were constructed in Huntington years ago when the people needed bridges, but the state would not construct them," Nelson explained, "so they went ahead and constructed bridges and we have been stuck with tolls ever since."

Nelson said to remove the tolls the contract must be broken by buying up existing bonds on the two bridges. He said this would be done by using the toll fund money.

"The construction contract for the two bridges was $15 million and there is now $12 million in the toll fund," he said. "The state would only have to put in the remaining $3 million in order for the contract to be met."

If tolls are removed from the bridges the state would assume full control of them, according to Nelson. He said that would mean maintenance would be kept by the state.

Once the tolls are removed by breaking the contract, the South Point bridge could be constructed by toll fund money, Sen. Nelson added.

"The whole purpose of charging tolls is to pay off bonds for bridge construction, to maintain the bridge, and to save for constructing another bridge," he explained.

Sen. Nelson said that a third bridge would encourage economic growth on both sides of the river in the area.

"We have been paying the tolls long enough and in an area this size, serving three states, we should not have to foot the bills for another bridge when there are funds available," he commented.

Brrrrrrrr

If you had hoped for warm weather, too bad. The National Weather Service forecast for today calls for a chance of light snow and a high near 20 degrees. Tonight will be very cold, with clearing skies and a low near 5. Wednesday will be somewhat warmer, with a high in the mid 20s.

And there's little good news in the near future. The extended outlook through Feb. 9 calls for continued subfreezing temperatures.

Herd offense buries Mocs; Gibson's 50 school record

By JODY JIVIDEN
Sports Editor

Marshall's Bunny Gibson missed a couple of foul shots Monday night at Memorial Field House, but no one really cared.

The 6-2 right wing poured in a school-record 50 points to lead the Thundering Herd to a 115-91 Southern Conference basketball victory over the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga.

Gibson hit 22 of 37 shots from the floor and six of eight from the line to eclipse the old record of 46 set by George Stone against Nebraska in 1967.

The performance also broke two other MU records, bypassing Russell Lee's record for most points at home by a Herd player and Mississippi's Johnny Neumann's mark for most points at Memorial Field House. Lee had 40 points and Neumann 41 in the 1970 Marshall Memorial Invitational tournament.

Almost overlooked in the furor over Gibson was the fact that the Herd's 6-1 freshman point guard Greg White tied the school record for assists in a game, passing off for 16.

He ties fellow Mullens native Mike D'Antoni, who had 16 twice, against St. Francis in 1971 and Western Michigan in 1972.

White had 15 assists against Davidson in the Herd's 108-80 rout of the Wildcats Dec. 17 at the field house.

The game also proved to be the "second coming" of MU's Frank Steele, a 6-6 junior left wing from Toledo, Ohio.

Steele, who hasn't played for a season-and-a-half because of academic problems, entered the game with 5:30 left in the first half and the Herd leading 43-17.

He eventually played a total of six minutes, scoring four points on two of three shots from the floor, grabbing three rebounds and blocking one shot.

Steele averaged 14 points a game for the 1975-76 Herd.

"I sure didn't expect that," said Herd head coach Stu Aberdeen of Gibson's performance. "But, when you continually shoot well in practice, you'll have nights when you can reach for the stars."

Aberdeen said it was not unusual for Gibson to hit 35 or 40 shots in a row in practice from deep in the corner.

"He's got to be one of the finest shooters in the country," the coach said.

Gibson was the nation's leading foul shooter before the game, converting 57 of 59 for a .966 percentage.

Marshall played the game without senior high post Harley Major, who was bed-ridden with bronchitis.

But 6-7 freshman Ken Labanowski, who missed Saturday's 69-60 Furman victory because of curfew-violation suspension, filled in well.

The East Norwich, N.Y., native had 25 points and 14 rebounds. He hit 10 of 15 field goal attempts and made five of 10 foul shots.

"I guess I should never worry about Ken," Aberdeen said.

Gibson hit the game's first basket, a 20-footer from the left side. From that point on, it was show-time.

He eventually scored 22 first half points, before being benched with three fouls with 7:26 remaining in the first half.

Gibson played only 31 minutes of the game.

He picked up in the second half where he paused at intermission, scoring 28 points before being leaving the game to a thunderous standing ovation with 2:20 left to play. Gibson's teammates carried him off the court on their shoulders.

Gibson set the record on a 25-foot jump shot from the right side with 3:31 to play. He then hit three of four free throws, giving him his 50th point with 2:20 to go.

Marshall dominated the game from the outset, bursting in front 24-6 before Chattanooga began trading baskets with the Herd.

With the Herd leading by 27 at 45-18 with 5:17 left in the first half, though, the Moccasins outscored the Herd 22-11 to make the halftime score 54-40.

"We let them off the hook," Aberdeen said. "But, we did what many teams can't when we picked right up in the second half where we left in the first."

Faculty, officials criticize pay raise

By CHARLES YOUNG
Reporter

Even though Gov. Jay Rockefeller has recommended a 7.5 percent pay increase for all state university faculty, some faculty members and state legislators believe the raise still isn't enough.

Originally, the Board of Regents recommended an increase of 11 percent for Marshall faculty and a 13 percent increase for WVU faculty. Rockefeller then trimmed the proposal to 7.5 percent.

Some teachers' groups and some state legislators have said they believe a larger increase is in order. The American Federation of Teachers, a national union and collective bargaining group, has indicated it favors a boost of 15 percent or $1,500 for all state university personnel.

The AFT's proposal has received support from three other teachers' groups—the American Association of University Professors, the Higher Education Coalition and the West Virginia Education Association.

And if the West Virginia Legislature approves three bills, the AFT may get its wishes granted. Two of the bills, one in the House of Representatives and one in the Senate, ask for an across-the-board pay increase of $1,500 for all full-time faculty members, including librarians and counselors. Any part-time faculty member would be eligible for a pay raise based upon a percentage of employment time.

Under consideration by the House of Representatives, the third bill proposes all state university faculty members be placed on a salary scale. Their position on the scale would be determined by their academic standing (professor, associate or assistant professor or instructor).

The salary scale ranges roughly from $9,300 to $111,000.

All state colleges and universities are grouped according to the type of degrees they are eligible to award. Each grouping has its own levels on the pay scale. Marshall, which is able to award up to a master's degree, is a group three institution.

The pay scale for group three provides for pay of $9,350 to $18,396 for instructors; $10,821 to $24,641 for assistant professors; $12,523 to $25,816 for associate professors and $13,804 to $34,651 for full professors.

One more factor can affect the pay raises. Even if the proposed pay scale bill is passed, all state university faculty personnel still will be eligible for the $1,500 increase also under consideration.

Marshall faculty salary hike would be less than WVU's

By BEVERLY CHILDERS
Staff Writer

Marshall faculty will receive a smaller increase in salary next year than West Virginia University faculty if the State Legislature approves the Board of Regents $122.9 million budget request for state colleges and universities.

The appropriations request, which is a 21.4 percent increase over the present fiscal year, is more than the $110 million recommended for the 1978-1979 school year by Governor Jay Rockefeller.

The Board of Regents requested an 11 percent faculty pay increase for Marshall, and most other public higher educational institutions in the state. However, the regents asked for a 13 percent salary boost for WVU and three state community colleges, both West Virginia Southern, West Virginia Northern and Parkersburg.

The present average Marshall professor's salary is $23,500, while a comparable position at WVU pays $26,300, according to the July 11, 1977, issue of the Chronicle of Higher Education.

Regents Chancellor Ben L. Morton says it is "normal for faculty at institutions granting doctorates, like WVU, to make more money."

The regents requested a higher increase for those institutions which presently rank below average in salaries compared to other states of the Southern Regional Education Board, he said.

This educational region includes 14 states from Texas to the east coast.

WVU ranks 12th in salaries, near the bottom to similar institutions (group one) which grant 100 or more doctorates. MU ranks in the middle of similar institutions in 13 states of the SREB, Morton said.

MU is a group three institution, offering degrees to the master's level. There are no group two institutions in West Virginia.

Morton says the projected 11 or 13 percent increases were made on the expectation that the other states in the SREB would request increases averaging five percent.

"If 13 percent is approved, WVU would go into sixth place—not a bad bench mark—because West Virginia is sixth in per capita income, a good economic indicator," Morton said. "If 11 percent is approved, Marshall will rank close to the top of the regional states."

Morton said overall, the SREB region is still lower in faculty salaries than the rest of the country because of lower economic conditions. "It would take another four to five percent increase to reach the national average in faculty salaries," he said.

Paladin's behavior vile

For most people, basketball is just a game. But for some members of the Furman University community, friendly competition has turned into ugly confrontation.

The situation reached a disgusting climax Saturday night during the final seconds of the Herd's 69-60 win over the Paladins. Rodney Arnold, a highly-regarded freshman recruit with 14.3 scoring average, turned to the jeering Marshall crowd and threw liquid (presumably water) in the faces of his "tormentors." And he asked for another cup after his ammunition was exhausted.

Perhaps one temper tantrum is excusable. But the condoning of such behavior by the Furman staff cannot be tolerated.

Furman Coach Joe Williams said after the game he did not see the incident. "I'll have to talk to him about it," he assured

The indefatigable journalist

Analysis by Ken Smith

onlookers. And that was apparently all he did.

Paladin sports information director Art Black said Monday no disciplinary action was being taken against Arnold. "People were throwing water at him," he explained, "so he just threw some back. We're not taking any action. When sick stuff like that happens, we just don't do anything."

An eye for an eye? In college basketball? Such thinking has no place in organized collegiate sports. Perhaps the Marshall fans were abusive. Perhaps Arnold was showered with debris from the stands. Perhaps he was the subject of ridicule. There still is no excuse for such immature behavior. And it is high disturbing to see such a wanton display of arrogance from a supposedly well-coached basketball team.

Arnold was one of Williams' top recruits and had worked himself into a starting position.

He averaged almost 36 points per game in eastern Tennessee high school play and seemed to have a promising future. But despite athletic talent, a child is a child. And Rodney Arnold proved it Saturday night.

Violence—even an incident such as this—is a blight on all athletic events. Perhaps the Marshall crowd did go too far. Black said it was the first time such treatment had been given Furman this year. However, Paladin fans themselves shouldn't complain. They're as guilty as anyone.

When Marshall's football team traveled to Greenville, S.C., the reception from Sirmine Stadium fans was not pleasant. And as the game progressed (a 42-24 Furman win), abuse from the spectators increased. Ice and paper cups were hurled at Herd players even as the Paladins increased the lead.

But there was a major difference from Saturday night's incident—Marshall did not retaliate. No objects were thrown back, no insults returned. Even in losing, the Herd had class. Furman should take note.

Suspension is in order for Rodney Arnold. His immature behavior has no place in the Southern Conference. And if the Furman staff will not act, the conference should. SC Commissioner Kenneth Germann will be sent a copy of this article. Let's hope he gives the arrogant Arnold a vacation. After all, he deserves it.

Derailed train causes fire

LEON, Ky.—Approximately 300 residents of two communities were forced to evacuate their homes Monday after nine cars of a freight train derailed and touched off a chemical fire.

Two of the cars containing the chemical acrylonitrile continued to burn 10 hours after the pre-dawn accident, raising the possibility of further evacuation. "We're dealing with a chemical that can pollute the air," said Gordon Nichols, a spokesman for the state Disaster and Emergency Services Office. "Because of this, we have set up a temporary shelter at Kentucky Christian College and moved 25 trucks and 50 guardsmen into Grayson as a precautionary measure," Nichols said.

He said the state Environmental Protection Agency was sending in its experts to check on conditions.

Nichols also reported that some of the acrylonitrile leaked into the Little Sandy River and the city of Grayson, four miles from the site, had to shut down its pumping station.

The leak was stopped later in the day but provisions were made to have water hauled into Grayson by tankers supplied by dairies and the National Guard.

Nichols said most of the evacuees came from a half-mile radius of the site outside this Grayson County town and that they moved in with friends and relatives.

"A number of other families moved out voluntarily in the Mayhew Flats area," Nichols continued.

The Chesapeake & Ohio train was pulling 53 cars when nine of them left the tracks about 5:53 a.m.

Carter favors Soviet agreement prohibiting low-flying satellites

WASHINGTON—President Carter said Monday he favors an agreement with the Soviet Union to prohibit the launching of low-flying satellites carrying radioactive materials.

He said such a pact should be permanent unless a failsafe system can be devised to prevent recurrence of the episode in which a Russian satellite plunged back into the atmosphere over northwestern Canada.

"If we cannot evolve those failsafe methods, then I think there ought to be a total prohibition against earth-orbiting satellites," with nuclear material aboard, Carter told a nationally broadcast news conference.

Carter also told critics in and out of Congress that rejection of any phase of his tax, jobs, and inflation-fighting programs could aggravate the nation's economic problem.

He said the success of his programs depends on "a very careful balance" between conflicting needs and priorities.

"To modify one element of a balanced plan can often destroy this balance and can aggravate our economic problem," Carter said.

Carter also defended his handling of the ouster of Republican David Marston as U.S. attorney in Philadelphia.

He said there was no conflict between the Marston firing and his campaign promises to take the appointment of prosecutors out of politics.

Adolescent sex increases, according to national study

NEW YORK—A nationwide report on adolescent sex shows a one-third increase between 1971 to 1976 in both premarital sexual activity and pregnancy among girls 15 to 19 years old.

However, the authors of the report said that learning about the dimensions of sexual behavior among female teenagers does not help to explain that behavior.

"Far more study is required before we can hope to explain and understand the sexual and reproductive behavior of young Americans," they concluded.

Barr said at Stationer's, the most popular items include albums, campus wear, books and sunglasses. "People wear loose clothing, and then try to put things in pockets or in their pants," he said. "Sometimes they'll pick up a shirt or jacket and wear it out of the store or they'll carry a tote bag out as if they brought it in."

"When we do catch someone, we give them a chance to owe up to it. We ask if there's anything else and we give them a chance to clear their pockets."

Barr said that years ago, Stationer's didn't do anything with shoplifters, but shoplifting became so bad the decision was made to prosecute.

"It depends on the circumstance," Barr said. "We just try to keep the person from coming back in."

Each area store uses safety precautions in hopes of curbing shoplifting.

Beckner said mirrors have been placed in each corner of the store, though clerks often are too busy to watch.

In addition, he said, "We hire only students. We have set up near the college to provide part-time work for students. That's good because we get to know students and it really helps us out."

Book drops, iron rails and cameras positioned throughout the store, in addition to many roaming clerks, help protect Stationer's from harm, Barr said.

But despite these precautions to discourage shoplifters, many try to beat the system.

"At first you think it's because they're hungry," Beckner said. Maybe they just don't have the money."

According to Barr, "People tend to stereotype shoplifters as young people wearing jeans, or a broken individual, older with no money. Instead they've found wealthy ladies who do it for kicks."

Carter claims no present plans to force miners back to work

Negotiations remained stalled Monday in the 56th day of a national coal strike, but President Carter reiterated that he has no plan to invoke the strike-stopping provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act.

"I have no present intention at all to intercede or exercise my authority under the Taft-Hartley Act," Carter said during a White House news conference Monday.

Under the act, an injunction could be issued ordering miners back to work for an 80-day cooling off period. Carter said action could be taken in a national emergency, but added, "We certainly haven't arrived at that point."

No new bargaining sessions have been scheduled since the Bituminous Coal Operators Association walked out of the talks Sunday. In a press briefing Monday, chief federal mediator Wayne L. Horvitz said an "enormous amount" of the contract has been settled, adding he hopes the mediators will be able to hold together what has already been accomplished.

Rodney Arnold Should be suspended

Letters

More on coal strike

Recent Parthenon articles concerning the UMWA contract strike have been decidedly biased.

There are two sides to every labor-management dispute, but most of the UMWA proposals, for the new contract, are fair and consistent with current economic trends. Since the welfare of almost every West Virginian depends either directly or indirectly on the solidity of UMWA wages, pensions, and benefits, it is necessary that an agreement of the proper munificence be obtained.

Ken Smith's article of Jan. 27 states that the UMWA has "intimidated the people of Appalachia long enough." Mr. Smith should realize, however, that the same people whom he thinks are being "intimidated" would still be working in unsafe conditions for substandard wages if it were not for the UMWA. No labor union condones violence by its members, but, during strikes, many coal operators hire extra security personnel. Such "personnel" were "responsible" for several miners' deaths during the organizing war 60 years ago.

The economic growth of Beckley does not owe its existence to coal. Unmined, this "black gold" is worth no more than black dirt. The economic welfare of southern West Virginia is dependent upon the hard-earned money and security of the members of the United Mine Workers of America.

University Council

We who are faculty members of the philosophy department wish to commend overtly the members of the University Council for their brilliant response to the Board of Regents' so-called "New Plan for Higher Education for West Virginia." It is an excellent statement and much-needed at this time when commercialism is making deep inroads into the philosophy of higher education, as obvious in the BOR's plan.

The statement of reply, to which we would hope every faculty member has access through his chairman, is one that reveals that Marshall University is not automatically rendering total homage to the BOR.

Fellow faculty members, if you have not seen the council's response, please do yourself a service and procure a copy. It can be duplicated by your department chairman, or we would be glad to do it in our department, if need be.

Here is one thing that bolsters a sagging morale. Thanks again, council, and stick to your principles.

Gibson scores 50

Marshall is now 7-2 in the conference and 11-8 overall. Chattanooga is 4-4 in the league and 11-7 overall.

The Moccasins* are defending National Collegiate Athletic Association Division II national champions. This is their first year of Division I play.

"I wish you could have seen our team last year," Chattanooga coach Ron Shumate said. "I think you would have appreciated them."

The Moccasins lost seven of their top eight players from last season's 32-5 team. The only returning starter, 6-2 guard Darryl Yarbrough, flunked out of school at the end of the first semester.

Aberdeen praised Chattanooga's pressing defense, which was largely responsible for the Herd's 22 turnovers, a season high.

"Their press generated a lot of offense for them," Aberdeen said. "They live and die with it."

"I'm surprised with the progress this team's made," Aberdeen said. "They're doing things now they shouldn't be able to do until next year."

Aberdeen said the game really was a "must" win for the Herd. "We've got to win at home," he said.

Aberdeen said Major's status for Wednesday night's game with Louisville, rated ninth nationally with a 12-3 record, is uncertain.

In the end, though, Bunny Gibson needed some help from Lady Luck to move into the Marshall record book. With the Herd leading by 20-25 points most of the second half, most coaches would have sent their reserves into the game.

And, Aberdeen might have, too. Because he did not know Gibson was closing in on the school record.

"The players and the other coaches might have known, but I didn't," Aberdeen said.

Herd beats Furman 69-60, takes over second in SC

By JODY JIVIDEN

Frankly, for the first few minutes of Saturday night's Marshall-Furman Southern Conference basketball showdown at sold-out Memorial Field House, the possibility of a Thundering Herd victory appeared slight.

For instance, the Herd's 6-7 high post Harley Major was playing with the flu.

Ken Labanowski, MU's 6-7 freshman who's a top-flight reserve, had been suspended for the game by head coach Stu Aberdeen for a curfew violation.

The Herd's Danny Hall, a 6-11 senior low post, lasted only four minutes 33 seconds before being benched for the rest of the first half with three fouls.

And, Furman had trounced highly-regarded Atlantic Coast Conference opponent Clemson 87-68 Wednesday night on the road.

But, through it all, Marshall prevailed 69-60, moving the Herd past the Paladins into second place in the conference.

Marshall is now 6-2 in league play, while Furman is 6-3. MU is 10-8 overall and the Paladins 12-5.

"Success, just like defeat, is a habit," Aberdeen said of the win, the Herd's fourth in a row at home and third straight overall. "Sometimes mental attitude is more important than x's and o's."

He said the Herd is the same physically, but different mentally. "We've pushed our way through a barrier," Aberdeen said. "Now when we stub our toes, we don't get down on ourselves. We believe in ourselves."

The Herd, down 30-28 at halftime, went ahead to stay at 34-32 with 18 minutes remaining on a 20-foot jump shot by 6-4 senior left wing Greg Young.

The lead grew until it reached 10 at 56-46 with 5:17 to play.

The Paladins then outscored Marshall 12-5 to cut the lead to 61-58 with 1:51 left. After the teams exchanged two points, the Herd's Greg White and Major hit six straight foul shots in the last 1:20 to secure the win.

White, a 6-1 freshman point guard from Mullens, hit nine of 10 free throws in the final 2:40.

It is the fifth Marshall win this year in which White has made critical foul shots in the closing minutes. The four others came against Morehead State (twice), The Citadel and Western Carolina.

"White's going to have the ball at the end if I have anything to say about it," Aberdeen said.

He said Furman, which was averaging 92 points a game, was more tempo-conscious Saturday than it was when it matlled the Herd 102-77 Jan. 9 at Greenville, S.C.

Paladin coach Joe Williams said Furman was not able to take advantage of the chances it had.

"We didn't play well," he said. "But, I thought we were still in control at halftime."

"I thought the outcome would depend on how we played," Williams said. "We played a smart game at Clemson Wednesday, but we just didn't take advantage of our opportunities tonight."

Aberdeen said Major, who scored all of his 16 points in the second half, is "a tough-minded son-of-a-gun."

"He just tossed it (the flu) aside and played a pretty good game," the coach said. "We slowed the tempo of the game occasionally to give him time to breathe."

Aberdeen said Hall, who had several rebounds in the last few minutes, played a strong second half.

"Just like at Appalachian State, he came back like a demon," he said. "Danny can come in after sitting out for five or six minutes and do a good job."

Hall came off the bench to score six straight Herd points Monday night when the Herd defeated league-leading Appalachian State 88-72 at Boone, N.C.

Hall said he thinks being the tallest center in the conference may have had something to do with his early foul trouble.

"The referees are watching every move I make," Hall said. "If I played defense like Furman played against me tonight, I'd foul out in two or three minutes. If you're going to call it close one way, you should the other way, too."

Hall said he could not understand two of the three fouls called on him in the first half.

Aberdeen said the suspended Labanowski would be able to play Monday against the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga.

"It was nothing big," Aberdeen said of the problem. "He was just late for bed check. But, the difference between winning and losing is not very big, either."

Young, a Brooklyn, N.Y., native, was the Herd's top scorer with 18 points. White finished with 17 points and eight assists, while Major, from Warren, Ohio, had 11 rebounds.

Carlos "Bunny" Gibson, a 6-2 right wing, had 14 points, hitting on five of 14 shots. The Morganfield, Ky., native hit all four of his foul shots, giving him 57 of 59 for the year.

He leads the nation with a .966 percentage.

Furman's 6-8 Jonathon Moore was the game's high scorer with 27 points, converting 13 of 18 field goal attempts. He also had 10 rebounds.

Anchors sink Eagles

By MIKE KENNEDY
Reporter

Marshall's swim team sank Morris Harvey College 64-26 Friday and evened its record at 2-2 for the season.

The Herd jumped out with an early 7-0 lead by winning the 400-yard medley relay with a time of 3:49.3 to the Golden Eagles' 4:13 mark.

Randy Nutt and Steve Biron placed first and second respectively in the 1,000-yard freestyle, while Sam Whitt placed third, scoring Morris Harvey's first team point.

The Herd allowed the Eagles only three more points before the diving competition by placing first and second, and holding them to third places in the 200-yard freestyle, the 50-yard freestyle, and the 200-yard individual medley relay.

"I was pleased with the performance of Randy Nutt in the 1,000-yard freestyle," coach Robert C. Saunders said. "That's the first time this year he has swam the distance race for us."

"Rick Carlson trained hard over the holidays and it paid off for him when he took first in the 200-yard free, and second in the 500-yard freestyle," Saunders said.

Neither team was represented in diving competition. Marshall has been without a diver all season, and Morris Harvey's diver was sick.

Morris Harvey took its first of three first-place wins when Scott Carlson edged MU's Mark Sheridan by six-tenths of a second in the 200-yard butterfly, with a time of 2:05.1.

William Drake took a first in the 100-yard freestyle for the Eagles when the Herd's Steve Pribanich and Mike Stewart swam exhibition only.

Don Puckett filled in for team captain Dana St. Claire and took first place in the 200-yard backstroke. St. Claire was out with the flu, but Saunders said he is expecting him to be ready for Friday's meet with VPI.

Rick Carlson took another first for the Herd in the 500-yard freestyle by defeating Sam White by six-tenths of a second with a 5:08.4 mark to Whitt's 5:09 time.

The Eagles' Mark Haberek won the breaststroke over the Herd's Randy Bowles and Paul Kowalski. Bowles finished second in the race and Saunders said he looked good for swimming in his first meet of the season.

Grapplers fall to WVU

Marshall's wrestling team hit the road this past weekend and split two matches.

The grapplers, now 4-4-1, defeated Waynesburg (Pa.) 22-16 Friday, but fell at West Virginia University in Morgantown 29-12 Saturday.

Dave Coyle, a 177 pounder, won both his matches. The Sayreville, N.J., junior is now 5-0, the only undefeated Marshall wrestler.

Three other Herd wrestlers were also undefeated this weekend. They are 158-pounder Gene Clapsis, Old Bridge, N.J., senior; Jeremiah Gagnon, Haverhill, Mass., senior, each with two wins; and 142-pounder Ralph Truitt, Canton, Ohio, freshman, with a win and a draw.

Those recording a win and a loss were 126-pounder Sam Peppers, Columbus, Ohio, senior; 134-pounder Scott Sadler, Nitro sophomore; and 150-pounder Jake Sanchez, Toledo, Ohio, senior.

The wrestling team's next match is Feb. 4 at home against Marietta College.

Fund raises $2,500

Approximately $2,500 has been collected or pledged to the Evansville Memorial Day fund as of Monday, according to Joe Feaganes, executive director of the Big Green Scholarship Fund.

Contributions will be collected again Monday night at the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga basketball game, Feaganes said.

Donations collected by Marshall athletes downtown, combined with the money contributed at the Furman basketball game Saturday night amounted to about $1,000.

Approximately $1,500 in pledges were called in to WMUL-TV, which televised the game, Feaganes said.

He said a final total will not be available until late this week.

Vida Blue trade stopped by baseball commissioner

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn rejected the trade of Vida Blue to the Cincinnati Reds Monday, but urged the two clubs to restructure the transaction.

The decision, announced by his office after Kuhn had left for Boston, was precipitated by the $1.75 million that the Reds had paid Oakland owner Charles O. Finley for Blue, a 3-time 20-game winner.

Kuhn has placed an informal $400,000 ceiling on the price any team could pay another club for an individual player. The Reds and A's tried to skirt that limit when Cincinnati included minor league slugger Dave Revering in the Blue deal, which was announced at baseball's winter meeting in Hawaii last December.

Within minutes of the announcement of the trade, Kuhn informed both clubs that he was withholding approval pending his examination of the transaction.

Finley and Reds President Bob Howsam spent two days testifying at hearings called by the commissioner earlier this month. There was an attempt at a compromise that would have sent other Reds players to Oakland and reduced the cash involved. But, when that could not be worked out, Kuhn stepped in and suggested that the two clubs renegotiate.

Game tickets going fast

Students who do not have their tickets for Wednesday night's Louisville basketball game are "highly recommended" to get them as early as possible this morning, Athletic Ticket Manager Joe W. Wortham said. "We are completely sold out of reserved seats," Wortham said.

He said Monday was the last day students had priority on tickets.

Students are limited to one ticket, and guest tickets are $2.

Bowlers to go to Penn State

Marshall's bowling team will leave Wednesday for its regional competition at Penn State University in State College, Pa.

The team will return Sunday. Ten bowlers, five men and five women, two table tennis players and a billiards player will make the trip.

The money for the trip, $335, was raised in a raffle. The team receives no money from the athletic department.

Soccer, anyone?

Students interested in having soccer as a varsity sport should meet at 4:30 p.m. today in the basketball area of Gullickson Hall.

Badminton set

Gullickson Hall will be available for badminton Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 10-11 a.m.

Hook, line and ... Security 'reels in' illegally parked cars

By Steven Fredericks
Reporter

Marshall University Security Office issued more than 6,700 parking tickets and approximately 300 vehicles were towed for violating parking regulations on campus in 1977, according to figures obtained from the MU Security Office.

This represents a slight decrease from 1976, said Donald L. Salyers, director of security.

The reason for the decrease, said Salyers, was the additional parking made available in 1977.

Parking tickets are issued for unauthorized parking on a lot without a valid permit, parking in any unauthorized zone, illegal parking in specific "No Parking" areas such as fire lanes and loading zones, parking on grass or other restricted unpaved areas and blocking legally parked vehicles.

Any vehicle in violation for the first time may be subject to towing, Salyers said, but with the second violation of any regulation the vehicle is subject to immediate towing.

The most common violation was parking on a lot without a valid parking permit, Salyers said.

MU Vehicle Parking and Operating Regulations requires all persons wishing to park a motor vehicle in a space under the control and jurisdiction of the university to buy a parking permit.

Application for a permit may be made at the Office of Physical Plant Operations in Old Main Room 116.

Some applications dating back to 1976 still haven't been processed by the Security Office due to the lack of availability of parking spaces, Salyers said.

Parking lots that require parking permits take up more than one-half the parking spaces available on campus and provide a total of 810 spaces.

Additional parking will be available on Third Avenue soon, Salyers said.

Meters to be placed on lot 'k'

Parking meters will soon be placed on parking area "K" of the Marshall Campus, located behind Memorial Student Center.

Assistant Director of Security David H. Scites said approximately $4,300 was spent to buy 55 meters to put in the two-hour parking lot. The meter will be installed as soon as they arrive and the weather breaks. Money from the meters will go for maintenance of the parking lots.

The meters, purchased from the KR Industries Inc., Pittsburgh, Pa., will be placed on area "K" now, but will probably be placed on other areas later on.

Should a car be over-parked, a citation will be given and the car subject to be towed at the owner's expense, with anticipation of fines in the future. "This area must be used for short time parking only," said Scites. "Somebody has business here, a student has to go to the bookstore—something like that."

The meter parking lot makes five different types of parking lots on the MU campus: faculty/staff, handicapped, mail zone, student, and meter.

Construction to begin in fall

BOR to view sports arena plans

Planning is on schedule and "all systems are go" for the development of MU's Multipurpose Facility, says Karl J. Egnatoff, vice president for administration.

The facility is in its second stage prior to construction contract bids. The preliminary drawings have been approved and the design and development drawings are to be submitted at the February meeting of the West Virginia Board of Regents, he said.

Bidding should be opened in mid to late summer with construction to begin in September or October, Egnatoff said.

The sports arena will be built at Third Avenue adjacent to Gullickson Hall in the area where Price's Bakery, the Mohawk-Redman building, and two storage buildings now stand. He said these structures will be torn down as soon as Marshall takes possession, adding, "We are hoping for titles soon." The facility will extend to, but not include, Riter Furniture Co.

Core drilling revealed no surprises, according to Egnatoff. Bedrock was struck at 60 to 70 feet which is consistent with the rest of the campus.

Egnatoff said planning is on schedule and within approved funding.

The $16 million facility is funded as part of a $40 million bond issue approved last year by the State Legislature.

It will house the department of health, physical education, and recreation classrooms and laboratories. Functions to take place there include intramural sports, commencement, registration, MU basketball games and some activities of the artist series.

Plans call for 10,200 seats, and Egnatoff says designing has included anticipated growth factors.

Women's Center to show films

Four films concerned with sex roles and human rights, sponsored by the Women's Center, will be shown in the Science Hall Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Topics include "Children as People," "Speaking of Men," "Does Anybody Need Me Anymore?" and "How to Make a Woman."

by Dr. Mary Ann Thomas and Stephen Hensley, staff counselor for the Student Development Center, and will emphasize methods by which men and women can form harmonious and productive working relationships.

Hensley, a staff counselor, says many people believe women are hard to work for, although psychological research indicates that women are more democratic, energized and have a sincere interest in the welfare of their employees.

Corrections

Errors in The Parthenon may be reported by calling 696-6696 between 9 a.m. and noon.

In Friday's Parthenon on the Energy Cost, it was stated that Marshall used 6,841 fewer cubic feet of gas in 1976 than 1977. But Marshall used 6,841 cubic feet more gas in 1976 than in 1977.

Florida trip deposit due

Deposit deadline is Feb. 15 for a spring-break trip to Florida sponsored by Student Activities Cultural Events said Debbie L. Blevins, chairman of the travel committee.

For $169.00, MU students, staff, faculty, families and friends of Marshall receive hotel accommodations and transportation by bus to Miami, Fla., March 19-26.

A $50.00 deposit guarantees a reservation. The remaining amount must be in by March 10, Blevins said.

Accommodations are for six days and five nights at the beachfront Barcelona Hotel. Four people occupy each room. However, Blevins said for an additional $15 double occupancy can be arranged. Complimentary tennis and a cocktail party are also included.

Golf, fishing and nightly entertainment are available.

Optional sightseeing to Walt Disney World, Sea World and day excursions to Biscayne Bay are provided.

The 43-passenger bus will leave Huntington March 19 and travel non-stop to Miami. Traveler's insurance may be purchased for an additional fee. Food is not included, Blevins said.

More information is available in Memorial Student Center Room 2W40.

Aliens' forms deadline today

Today is the deadline for the international students to mail in their alien address forms, said Judie J. Miller, international student adviser.

Students to learn to handle wheel

Students who have never had the opportunity to learn to drive can now have their turns at the wheel.

Traffic Safety and Driver Education, a course offered by Occupational Adult and Safety Education, is open to any MU student who wants to learn how to drive, said Dr. Allan Stern, assistant professor of the OAS department.

The course, will be taught by driver's education student teachers in Harris Hall Room 446 on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 12:30-1:45 p.m., with two hours of driving experience a week between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday at the convenience of the student and teacher.

Students do not need to buy any books or special equipment. Film strips, 16 mm films, cassette tapes and simulations will be used in class.

There is no guarantee, however, that everyone who takes the course will get a driver's license. "We'll do our best to train and educate the people," said Stern, "but when it's all over, they have to face the state examiner."

Alcohol alert

Films, discussions emphasize awareness of college-age problem

"Ninety-nine Bottles of Beer," a film on the death of a college-student alcoholic, will be shown at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 5 in Twin Towers cafeteria as part of MU's Alcohol Awareness Week.

Donald L. Chaffin, Prestonsburg, Ky., junior and publicity director for the event, said the film was produced by friends of a college student who died as a result of alcohol during a fraternity rush week.

"We're not pushing what's right or wrong, we're just presenting the facts," Chaffin said. "The goal of the week is to make everyone aware of the problems of alcoholism."

Monday at 7 p.m. in Buskirk Hall lobby, a local doctor and psychologist will discuss physical and psychological effects of alcohol abuse.

"Alcohol, the Law and You" will be the topic at 7 p.m. Tuesday. A lawyer and a law enforcement officer will be the speakers on the legal aspects of alcoholism in Twin Towers West lobby.

Beginning at 10 p.m., a "breath machine" will be in South Hall lobby Wednesday. The machine computes the amount of alcohol in the body. Chaffin said anyone can try out the machine.

An Alcoholics Anonymous representative will be in Twin Towers East lounge Thursday at 9:15 p.m. "I am a College Student, I am an Alcoholic" will be the topic.

"The Days of Wine and Roses," starring Jack Lemmon, will end the week's activities Friday at 9 p.m. in Twin Towers cafeteria.

Ann Zanzig, director of residence life, is in charge of the week of seminars and films.

Chaffin said Marshall students and members of the community are encouraged to attend the activities.
