Vol. 78 No. 100

Doug Blair, Charleston graduate student, and Becky Dick, Milton junior, discuss their choices of candidates for Thursday's student government elections. Blair served as presidential candidate Darrell Samples' campaign manager.

Van Cleve second as 1,539 vote

Hamrick wins in record turnout

By CINDY MARTIN
Reporter

Ed Hamrick and Pam Shaffer were elected Marshall University student body president and vice president in a record voting turnout Thursday.

Hamrick received 636 of the 1,539 votes cast to defeat his nearest opponent, John Van Cleve, and his running mate, Ruth Ann Hendrickson, by 160 votes.

Frank Black and Tom Galvin were third in the election, receiving 222 votes. Darrell Samples and Alane Messner received 166 votes, and Randy Cullum and William Schroeder came in last with seven.

Seven student senators were elected from three constituencies. Dormitory senators elected were Liz A. Turner, 414 votes, and Richard J. Tomlinson, 356 votes. The other candidate in this constituency was Nancy E. Campbell, who received 355 votes.

Two off-campus senators elected were Kevin S. Hughes, 159 votes, and Rex W. Johnson, 143 votes.

Three transient senators were elected—

Brian Angle, 142 votes; Kevin Bowen, 126 votes, and Lee Williams, 125 votes. Other candidates were Jeffrey Adkins, David Kreglo, Mark Odekirk, and Michael Whisman.

One of the two referenda on the ballot received a positive vote, while the other was rejected. The senate restructuring referendum received 636 no votes and 479 yes votes, while the referendum asking students if they prefer the alphabetically based registration system over the old system received 691 yes votes and 502 no votes.

Hamrick, Clendenin senior, said that he was "exhausted and happy. I'm just glad it's over, and now that it is, I plan to sleep, celebrate, and then get to work."

"I'd like to praise all of the other candidates," he said. "There was a fine bunch of people running this time, and it was a tight race."

"I'd also like to thank all of the students who supported me and showed confidence in me. I only hope I'll be worthy of the trust they put in me," Hamrick said.

Student Body President Rick Ramell said he "couldn't be more pleased with the elections, especially since The Parthenon had such a negative attitude towards the elections."

"The campaigns were much more fierce this time than I've ever seen in the past, and there were five excellent candidates," he said.

"I am very proud to be turning my office over to as fine a person as Ed Hamrick."

Regarding the senate restructuring referendum, Ramell said, "I just don't understand it. The students are continuously crying for change, and when a change is offered to them, they turn it down. I am still convinced that the Board of Directors idea is the restructuring plan, and I can't figure out why it was rejected."

The defeated restructuring plan called for replacing the current 16-member student senate with a Board of Directors having 13 members. Members would also serve on various standing student-faculty committees and would have been elected at-large.

Countdown As elections near end, candidates nervous, tired

By KAREN McGEE
Reporter

Gusts of wind whipped signs back and forth as candidates and their workers passed out cards, fliers, pencils and matches. Small groups of students clustered around Twin Towers West and Memorial Student Center.

One student carried a loudspeaker, periodically calling for students to "vote for Samples and Messner, number three on the ballot."

It was election day and a record turnout was expected. "It will be a good turnout because there are four candidates running who have a lot of support," said

Toni L. Korb, East Bank senior and election commissioner.

Some candidates seemed more nervous than others, but all admitted being very tired.

Fidgeting with his engraved campaign cards, presidential candidate Darrell E. Samples, Elkview senior, said, "I'm not nervous, just extremely physically tired."

Each candidate said he had approximately 20 campaign workers stationed at polls and calling on dormitory residents throughout the day.

"It's been a tough campaign and as for politics, I'm worn out with it," said Samples' campaign manager, Doug Blair, Point Pleasant graduate student.

"If we win, that's good," said vice presidential candidate Ruth Ann Hendrickson, Moundsville sophomore. "If we don't, we'll have to live with that, too."

Hendrickson added that having campaign signs defaced made the campaign unpleasant.

"In elections like this, people are learning how it is in the adult world," said Bob Lesh, Wheeling junior and director of student government's Student Consumer Agency. "This is where people start turning the way the world is."

"These candidates are reaching so hard for the offices," he said. "Is it really that important?"

IE speech team to vie in nationals

Marshall's Individual Events team will compete in the national tournament at Monmouth College in Long Island Branch, N.J., April 20 because of the efforts of the speech department.

Maureen Milicia, IE coach, said the department raised $2,500 from excess money found in the budget, profits from a tournament, and contributions from faculty, the dean and civic organizations.

Milicia said the IE and debate teams receive approximately $5,000 from the university each year, depending on enrollment. This money is spent on tournaments throughout the school year, and by the time nationals come up, she said, the teams are broke.

"This year, my department head told me if we sent 'Purle Victorious' to South Carolina so they could compete in a regional drama festival, we might not have any money to send the IE team to the nationals," Milicia said. "But I told her to give the money to the play and we'd just pray we could get some more money."

Marshall is sending 12 or 13 players and eight judges to the nationals. Each student will receive $5 a day for meals, and lodging will be at a local motel with four people sleeping in a room for $27 a night. The IE team will pay $200 for the driver of the Marshall bus taking them to the tournament.

During the tournament, the students usually will eat a breakfast of coffee and donuts and then go to a restaurant offering a salad bar and something hot to eat after the tournament, Milicia said.

Milicia said she spends about $3,000 a year of her own money on the IE team. She said some students don't receive money from their parents to supplement the school's allotment, so she gives them the money.

Milicia said the IE team is going to the nationals to represent Marshall as well as the state and is going to do the best it can. "I feel Marshall has a chance of finishing in the top five slots," she said.

This weekend the team will receive lots of practice at two tournaments. On Friday and Saturday, it will be participating in a Qual-Prep tournament here and then travel to Parkersburg for the WVIFA state meet.

This tournament is designed so schools can qualify more people in the nationals and gives students who have already qualified a last chance to present their materials.

The tournament will draw 200-225 people and will represent more than 20 schools from 12 states. Marshall is the defending state champion in individual events and debate.

"Our main goal is to retain the state championship and qualify more slots in the nationals," Milicia said. "We already have 40 slots filled but I'd like to go to the nationals with 60 slots filled."

Teams participating in the Qual-Prep tournament are Fitchburg State, University of Montevallo, Morehead State, Eastern Kentucky, Georgetown, Youngstown, Miami, Muskingum, Wake Forest, Guilford, Tennessee Technical College, Trevecca Nazarene, East Tennessee State, Virginia, Geneva, DePaul, Morehouse, Berry, Parkersburg Community College, Glenville and West Liberty.

Beer boozers, cars banned in Ritter Park

By SHEREE FLOWERS
Staff Writer

Beer drinkers who enjoy drinking in Ritter Park on a sunny afternoon had better expect it while they can since beer will soon be banned from the park, according to Charles C. Lewis, Director of Parks.

An ordinance has been passed banning beer in the park but the commissioners are not yet ready to enforce it. "We have to publicize it and put up signs first," he said.

Lewis said he doesn't think permits will be issued for those who wanted to drink beer in the park. "We are not sure yet," he said. "Right now, we're just thinking about it."

Beer is being banned mainly because of the trash being left everywhere he said. "The amount of trash laying around is fantastic," he added.

"Many people also smash their beer bottles in the street," he said.

Lewis said no particular group of people could be blamed for the trash or misuse of beer in the park. Marshall students did not have a lot to do with it, he said. "They come from everywhere," he said. "This also happens frequently with people in out-of-state cars."

Lewis hopes the restriction will not cause any trouble. "I hope everyone will cooperate. We're going to start persuading people," he said.

After the beer ban has been put into effect, anyone caught with beer in the park will be fined a maximum of $50 or 10 days in jail, he said.

Another change about to take place in the park is the driving of automobiles through the park.

"We are going to close the gates at the 10th Street entrance and 13th Avenue," he said. "We haven't made this permanent yet. It's just a trial run."

The congestion of traffic in the area was heavy and should be eliminated Lewis said.

He also said many people drive their automobiles on the grass. "They can be cited for destruction of public property," he said.

According to Lewis, automobiles in the park have caused many problems. "There are a lot of obscene conduct, attempted rapes, indecent exposure and profane language," he said.

Lewis said some people sit in their cars and use profane language to people walking through the park. "It is getting so bad many families are starting to avoid the park. They don't want to take their children there," he said.

If they decided to ban automobiles from driving through the park, anyone breaking the rules will be fined, he said. "However, we haven't decided the fine yet," he said.

"I have to give Marshall students pretty high marks," he said. "They're pretty cooperative." He added, "I hope they will continue to cooperate. Being a highly educated segment of society, I think they will.

Standards low for grad admission

By STEVEN FREDERICKS
Reporter

Marshall's graduate school admissions standards are below many universities, but the dean of the school said he believes the university is taking the most equitable approach to student selection.

Dr. Paul D. Stewart, associate vice president and dean of the graduate school, said the graduate school is one of the few schools in the country that does not require a minimum grade point average for admissions. The graduate school is in the minority when it comes to admissions procedures, he added.

Most universities require a minimum undergraduate Grade Point Average and/or the Graduate Record Examination for admission to their graduate schools, Stewart said.

MU only requires prospective graduate students having a baccalaureate degree from an accredited college or university, he said. West Virginia University requires a minimum of a 2.5 GPA for regular admissions.

Students will be admitted to the graduate program based on the degree and the information contained on the application form, Stewart said.

The undergraduate GPA is not always a true indication of a student's ability to do graduate level work, he said. Many students do not concentrate on their studies or take college seriously during their undergraduate years.

Also the GPA does not reflect the learning experiences a student acquires after graduation, he said. As an example, Stewart cited a Navy captain who has spent 20 years in the military and then decides to go back to graduate school. You do not turn him down just because he has a low GPA," he said. This is one reason the university changed its policy and dropped the minimum GPA requirement in the 1973-74 Graduate Catalog, Stewart said. Until the change, there were no exceptions to the rule to admit American College Test; and recommendations from faculty and administrators from the students' school.

However there is one condition these students must meet in order to stay enrolled in Marshall, Harless said, as all MU students must do. They must maintain a "C" average throughout their years at MU, he said.

If any student fails to meet this condition he is dealt with through the retention standards, such as probation, depending on the degree to which they have failed to meet the requirement, Harless said.

Some of the schools in the Huntington area which do not have state accreditation include Mount State Christian School and the Huntington Christian Academy. These schools are not state approved because they choose not to be and not because they don't meet the state requirements, he said.

In Kanawha County alone there are some 1,500 students that have changed from the public school system within the past few years, Harless said. Also, there is a steady increase of students switching to the religious oriented schools, he said.

This constant increase in enrollment in non-accredited. This constant increase in enrollment in non-accredited schools is one reason the provision to admit students from these schools was made at Marshall, Harless said.

people like the Navy captain, he said.

Another reason for the change, Stewart said, was that students who were being turned down by MU were being accepted at West Virginia Institute of Graduate Studies in Charleston. There was competition going on between the two schools for students, Stewart said.

Removing the GPA requirement does not mean the school has lowered its standards, it means the university gives students the opportunity to prove themselves.

It still takes a 3.0 (B) GPA to graduate, Stewart said.

Although most universities require a minimum GPA for admission, they also consider the total person and make exceptions.

If you take this into account, Stewart said, it doesn't put the policy too much out of line with other universities.

Clearing

Don't worry about those gray skies and gusting winds. The weatherman says the rest of the weekend will be all sunshine and warmth.

Skies should begin to clear tonight, the low being about 45 degrees. Saturday's temperature will reach a season-high 75 degrees, the weatherman says.

Chance of precipitation during the weekend is 10 percent both tonight and Saturday.

Interchange

A space dedicated to the interchange of opinions within the university community

What is opinion?

This has gone far enough. Apparently many members of the Marshall community do not have the fundamental knowledge of journalistic principles needed to intelligently criticize campus media.

There are three basic types of printed material in The Parthenon—editorials, commentaries and news stories. They are independent of one another, and have their own specific purposes.

EDITORIALS

An editorial is an unsigned opinion which represents the stand of The Parthenon editorial board. It is NOT objective. The purpose of an editorial is to present to the readers our opinion concerning important issues affecting the student body. As a newspaper, The Parthenon is guaranteed the constitutional right to express its views without censorship from anyone.

Editorials are printed in the daily In-

COMMENTARIES

Commentaries are signed opinions printed in the daily Interchange section. They represent the view of the writer only, and contain that writer's personal observations. Just as editorials are not censored, neither are commentaries.

NEWS STORIES

News stories are just that—news stories. They are objective, balanced reports of news-worthy events. A news story is not an editorial or commentary, and an editorial or commentary is not a news story.

News stories are not censored under any circumstances.

If anyone has any questions concerning these matters, The Parthenon welcomes them.

AstroTurf wrong priority

Marshall's decaying football program has been granted an extravagance that serves only to cast serious doubt on the mentality of the Board of Regents.

The BOR Tuesday approved $430,000 to replace the eight-year-old artificial surface at Fairfield Stadium—a ghastly sum to "carpet" the playpen of the Herd's gloomy gridders. Perhaps the replacement of that wretched rug could be tolerated, but the addition of 21,900 square feet of AstroTurf for practice facilities is a gross waste of time, money and effort.

Why should such an obscene amount be spent on a program that clearly was the laughing stock of the anemic Southern Conference? Football is merely a game, a weekly diversion for stir-crazy first-semester students. As such, it serves its purpose as entertainment. However, no game ever should receive such a ridiculous allocation.

Although the crowds flocked

The indefatigable journalist
by Ken Smith

to Fairfield Stadium early in the season to watch the highly-touted Herd, attendance dropped sharply after the team returned from a dismal 0-4 road trip. And the situation does not seem brighter for this fall.

The prowess of the squad is not the true question. However, it is apparent the quality of Marshall football does not coincide with BOR plan. Del. Patricia Harriman, D-Cabell, disagrees with the decision and has suggested private funds be used for part of the replacement cost. In light of other potentially needy programs, that course would seem to have merit.

Marshall University is not a football school. Period. The team may win four, five, six or even seven games next season—but what will that prove? An occasional winning season is one matter. Consistency in victory, on the other hand, is quite another.

There's no sense belaboring the point. The Regents have shown their preference to stress popular issues, such as athletics, and forsake the academic needs of this institution.

A $430,000 allocation would be acceptable for worthy academic purposes. However, for a petty game the price is far, far too high.

Letters

'Bickering'

I feel that it is time for all concerned students and candidates to quit bickering about The Parthenon's editorial in last Wednesday's paper. (April 5th). First of all, let me set some things straight. Is it or is it not true that The Parthenon staff and its writers have the right of freedom of speech and of the press? The answer is yes. All of us, and candidates included, have the right to speak or write about anything we want to.

As for The Parthenon's editorial, I do not consider it in "poor judgement"; it is the right of The Parthenon to print their opinions, just like newspapers do across the country. As for The Parthenon being a "strong motivating force," I agree to a certain extent, but to call the school newspaper a "powerful media," is a little overstated. Since when, has the student body or the candidates running for office, upped their opinion of The Parthenon to the status of a big time newspaper? On the contrary, I have heard nothing but crass and derogatory remarks about The Parthenon ever since I attended this university in 1975.

As I have said, we all have our right to voice our opinions whether it be in written form or by word-of-mouth. Most of the concerned students had made up their minds as to who they'd vote before the editorial had been published, so they should not have been swayed in the least. As for the candidates, they should not have felt threatened or weakened by The Parthenon's editorial. I feel that some of the candidates and their campaign people have acted in a disoriented and neurotic fashion. These candidates have the right to voice their opinions in The Parthenon—just like everyone else.

The Parthenon should print anything within reason and the law. I think those candidates who wronged The Parthenon should step forward and apologize. To ask The Parthenon to apologize, in my eyes, would be wrong. To ask someone to take back what they put in print and believed in is utter nonsense.

In conclusion, I feel if one has something to say and wants to be heard by their fellow students, write a letter to The Parthenon. I did.

Women bowlers

"Women bowlers advance"—how exciting is this headline?

MU's women's bowling team traveled to Richmond, Va., and won the sectional tournament. This provided us with a chance at the national title in collegiate bowling. We were awarded an all expense-paid trip to Milwaukee. This honor is bestowed to only twelve women teams (same for men) in the entire nation. The sectional tournament director referred to us as being "the cream of the crop." I could hardly believe we received such a story and headline.

Most people may not realize it but we put just as much effort in our sport as any other team on this campus. Even though we are not considered a part of the athletic department we still represent Marshall University and are very much a part of the school. We are proud of the school and we think it only fair that they recognize us for our efforts. We realize that there are a few faculty, staff, and administrators who know what it means for us and for Marshall. At this time I would like to express our gratitude and appreciation to them.

Just once we would like to be recognized by someone other than Memorial Student Center. We have worked just as hard and long as some of these teams that have been recognized at Marshall's basketball games. We have waited a long time for this moment. We love our sport and our teammates. We love the people who have remained interested in us for the last three years (with special thanks to Mr. Don Morris). Without the support of these people and our other friends, it would all be meaningless.

Of course, we would love to win in Milwaukee, but no matter what happens it is still a great achievement and honor to have made it this far. We are proud of our team and of Marshall University, and we will represent it to the best of our ability.

Authorities label benefits as 'great step forward'

WASHINGTON—Two authorities on Social Security urged Congress Thursday not to be panicked into rolling back the Social Security tax increases enacted last year.

They told the Senate Finance subcommittee on Social Security that—taken as a whole—the benefit changes and tax increases voted in December were a great step forward.

Noting that an effort to roll back some of the tax increases is gathering steam in Congress, Robert M. Ball, who headed Social Security during the Kennedy, Johnson and Nixon administrations, said "It would be the wiser course not to legislate on this matter at all this year."

He and Robert J. Myers, who was the nation's chief Social Security actuary for 23 years, agreed that the public has zeroed in on last year's tax increases and ignored the improved benefits.

The high-income workers in their early 40s who seem to be complaining loudest about the tax increases, apparently do not realize that when they retire, their Social Security benefits will be about $21,000 a year—or more than $30,000 for a couple, Ball said.

Once a worker is retired, he added, his or her Social Security pension will be shielded forever against inflation. "Fifteen years after retirement, the Social Security beneficiary will still be able to buy the same level of living as at the time of retirement," Ball said.

"At the present time, there is an undue and misleading cry of crisis—even panic—about the financial effects of the 1977 amendments," Myers said.

In simple terms, Ball said, under the 1977 law, "all the high earners are being asked to do is pay the same flat rate that low earners already are."

Poisoned marijuana possibly in W. Va.

CHARLESTON—Whether contaminated Mexican marijuana has arrived in West Virginia has yet to be determined, but users apparently are being more careful.

"The word on the street is that no one is buying Mexican pot," said Bob Grubb, a drug abuse specialist for the state Health Department. "The dealers are frantic. They're telling people it comes from Colombia or Venezuela."

The National Institute of Drug Abuse has warned that Mexican authorities have been spraying marijuana crops with a herbicide supplied by the United States. But some Mexican farmers harvested their crop before the poison, Paraquat, killed the plants.

Prolonged use of the poisoned marijuana can cause migraine headaches, open sores in the mouth, breathing difficulty and irreversible lung damage, the NIDA said.

Mexican marijuana is the most common found in West Virginia and sells for about $45 an ounce. But authorities have said there is no evidence that the contaminated marijuana has reached the state.

"It wouldn't surprise me if it was here, though," said Elliot Henderson, director of the area drug abuse treatment program. "The public needs to be informed."

Gypsies torment jailers; burglaries unprosecuted

SAN DIEGO—Eleven Gypsies charged in a series of local burglaries had been arrested more than 500 times in various parts of the country—but authorities always let them go because they're too much trouble to prosecute, a law enforcement official says.

"No one wants them," Deputy District Attorney Thomas Hardy said Wednesday. "They create so much havoc in jails when they're arrested that they've always been let go after they pay their bail and fines and return the stolen property."

The Gypsies, who wear the colorful skirts and shirts of their native central Europe, face preliminary hearings next Wednesday in connection with thefts in nearby Borrego Springs. Several children traveling with them—including a 12-year-old girl who authorities believe cracked a safe—have been placed in a county home or in Juvenile Hall, Hardy said.

Hardy said police from Chicago to California report at least 500 prior arrests for the same group of Gypsies, but as far as he knew they had not been prosecuted until now.

Deputy Sheriff Sam Bove said the women make a habit of tormenting their jailers by such acts as throwing excrement at them.

"If we keep them in custody and convict them, the penal system will have done a tremendous chore," Hardy said. "Breaking a 3,000-year-old habit—stealing."

Hardy said immigration officials have declined to take action against the Gypsies, who are considered stateless.

Lebanon soil lumped with foreign armies

BEIRUT, LEBANON—At no time since the Korean War has a country had so many foreign armies serving on its soil as embattled Lebanon: nine by last count, or one soldier for every 30 Lebanese citizens.

Lumped together, the foreign troops from Israel, Europe and the Arab countries would muster a standing force of some 90,000 fighters. Nor does this include 28 armed militias and Lebanese official forces.

The Lebanese government hopes to one day reassert its authority throughout the country—a dream also held by the average citizen.

"There are too many armies," said Sakhne Awadeh, a Moslem widow who fled to Beirut with her five children after Israel invaded southern Lebanon March 15 and drove out Palestinian guerrillas on the border.

"They all want to draft my sons. If one goes with Saad Haddad, an Israeli-backed Christian leader, we will not be safe with the Palestinians," the mother added.

"If another goes with the Palestinians, we will not be safe with the Israelis. So, I will leave my sons here and hope for the best."

After the Israeli thrust, right-wing Christian leader Camille Chamoun demanded to know "if this is a sovereign state or a whorehouse."

Chamoun was commenting on the influx of several hundred Iraqi so-called "volunteers" into Lebanon through Syria whose avowed purpose was to aid Palestinian guerrillas resisting Israel in the south.

Since then, the Lebanese government has issued the strictest restrictions in its 32-year history on foreign entry into Lebanon.

The largest armed forces in Lebanon belong to Israel and Syria. The Israelis number about 20,000. An estimated 25,000 Syrians form the bulk of the Arab League peacekeeping force which controls the cease-fire imposed in Lebanon to end the 1975-1976 civil war.

Three other Arab countries nominally assist Syria in the peacekeeping role—Saudi Arabia, the Sudan and the United Arab Emirates.

When a cease-fire was declared March 21 in the Israeli thrust into the south, a United Nations interim force was dispatched into the area with 700 French soldiers, 700 Norwegians, 252 Swedes and 120 Iranians.

College protest serves purpose; jobs restored

PHILIPPI—A demonstration by upwards of 100 Alderson-Broaddus College students to protest an elimination of nearly half of the school's work-study jobs for the rest of the school year apparently has served its purpose.

School officials announced Thursday that the college has rescinded its plans to eliminate 91 of its 218 students work positions. The college said that a number of the students were improperly hired for the jobs without consultation with the proper college officials.

Plans to eliminate nearly half of the work-study jobs resulted in a nearly day-long protest Wednesday by some of the college's students.

However, the college's executive council voted Thursday to restore the jobs, even though the college will be forced to absorb the $25,000 to $30,000 cost itself.

"Everybody who had a work-study job before will continue to have his job," said Steven Douglas, A-B's director of public information.

Regents grant MU $430,000 for new 'turf'

By MIKE RUBEN Reporter

Fairfield Stadium, home of Marshall University football, will be getting a new $430,000 artificial surface before next season, the West Virginia Board of Regents announced Tuesday.

The new turf will replace the existing eight-year-old surface that is now "threadbare" in the center according to MU director of athletics Joseph McMullen.

The new surface will be 21,900 square feet larger than the old one. The added turf provides the stadium with wall-to-wall carpet, McMullen said.

The additional turf can be used for more practice space in upcoming seasons. McMullen said the surface will accommodate soccer facilities.

McMullen said the old turf "lived a full life", adding that the guarantee was for five years.

McMullen and head football coach Frank Ellwood said the poor condition of the old turf could have been responsible for several injuries last season.

"If you don't have a synthetic turf you can count on using at least two additional practice fields," McMullen said. He noted Fairfield Stadium was used for over 40 events last fall alone.

The old turf will be brought up and the usable portions will be installed in locker rooms and on the uncovered ramp at the stadium.

McMullen said there is a possibility that some of the turf will be cut and sold for fundraising for the Big Green Foundation.

McMullen indicated the new turf will be "just a basic artificial surface". He said paint in the end zones and at mid-field would be pretty, but when you slide on paint it's just like sandpaper. "The safety of the players must be our first objective at all times," McMullen said.

Installation of the new turf will not interfere with spring or fall football practice. McMullen said August 1 is the estimated date of completion. The project will take five weeks, he said.

Olympic champion Edwin Moses will not be alone in making this weekend's Ohio University Relays one of the three toughest meets this season for Marshall's men's track team, Coach Rod O'Donnell said.

O'Donnell said about 25 teams will be in the meet, which starts Friday at Athens, Ohio, and concludes Saturday.

He said this meet, the Southern Conference championships at Marshall, April 28-29, and a meet at the University of Pittsburgh, May 13, will be the Thundering Herd's roughest competitions.

"This is always one of the top meets around," O'Donnell said. "It's run very well. It's first class."

No team score will be recorded. Moses, who won a gold medal and set a world record in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles in the 1976 summer Olympics at Montreal, will run Saturday.

The Herd probably will not leave Huntington until Saturday, O'Donnell said, adding the only

Track team travels to OU for one of three tough meets events Friday are the triple jump, the decathlon and the 10,000-meter run.

MU's Dave Kline, St. Albans junior, was to run the 10,000, but O'Donnell said he developed achilles tendon problems and won't compete.

"It's not greatly serious," O'Donnell said of the injury. "But, it's bad enough to make him think he shouldn't run."

Last year, Kline became the first person in school history to qualify for the National Collegiate Athletic Association championship meet.

O'Donnell said schools from Ohio, Michigan and Pennsylvania will be at the meet. Probably included among those, he said, are Mid-American Conference teams, Ohio State and Pitt.

He said he expects strong competition from Cleveland State's distance runners. Cleveland finished among the top 15 teams in the country in cross country last fall.

O'Donnell said he is not concerned that Marshall has not competed in a big meet, where team scores have been kept. MU's first major "scored" meet will be the league championships.

A dual meet at West Virginia University March 25 is the only meet MU has been in this spring where a team score was recorded.

"Big meets just aren't scored anymore," O'Donnell said. "It helps the team by taking some of the pressure off individuals and letting you experiment. That way you don't have to tell a kid that he's GOT to score so many points in an event."

He said no team score will be kept this year at the April 22

Marshall Invitational. O'Donnell said Marshall should "do real well" Saturday in the shot put, discus, javelin and pole vault.

He said shot-putter and discus-thrower, Joe Johns, Columbus, Ohio, junior, and javelin thrower Bill Yanosky, both have "good shots" at "placing high."

Defending Southern Conference champion Dave Thompson, Xenia, Ohio, junior, and Rusty Mittendorf, Ironton, Ohio, sophomore, are the Herd's pole vaulters.

O'Donnell said MU's distance runners will compete in only one event Saturday, and no relays.

Softball team loses doubleheader, falls to OU

By JEFF ANDERSON Reporter

After having seven players leave the team for various reasons earlier this week, the women's softball team dropped both games of a doubleheader to Morris Harvey Wednesday, before being shutout by Ohio University Thursday afternoon 31-0.

Losing 24-4 in the initial contest at Morris Harvey, the Herd extended its losing streak to four with a 31-3 loss.

The lack of a good pitcher-catcher combination was cited for the unsuccessful attempts by the team in its first year by coach Linda Holmes.

"On a fast-pitch softball team, the two strongest positions must be a good fast pitch pitcher that can consistently throw good fast pitches, and the catcher, who must be quick and have a strong arm to keep the runners from stealing bases," Holmes said.

Cited in the Morris Harvey game game for good hitting were Karla Amburgey, senior and Patty Bostick, junior.

According to Holmes, it may take two or three years before the team reaches the point where the women can play together and develop a strong team.

"Morris Harvey was a superior team, Holmes said. "They are very strong and have developed their program well."

The Herd will play Shepherd College at Prindle Field at 1 p.m. Saturday. Holmes said the Shepherd team has good recruiting from the Maryland-Washington D.C. area and should field a good squad.

Baseballers head south

Marshall's varsity baseball team will travel south once again, this time to take on two Southern Conference opponents in double-headers.

The Herd (8-4) will take on Western Carolina Saturday at Cullowhee, N.C., in a 1 p.m. game. Monday, the charges of Coach Jack Cook will venture further south to tangle with the Moccasins of the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga.

The Herd made a useless trip to Morgantown Wednesday. MU was scheduled to take on West Virginia University in a doubleheader, but the contests were canceled because of rain.

New member admitted to SC

East Tennessee State University, recently admitted to the Southern Conference, will be eligible for the league's basketball championship in 1979-80 when the SC adopts a round-robin schedule.

East Tennessee will be eligible for the conference football title when it schedules five league games. It is eligible for all other conference championships now.

Marshall, Western and Appalachian are the league schools that sponsored East Tennessee's admittance.

MU Sports Information Director John Evenson said East Tennessee is "respected" for its golf, cross country and baseball programs.

Track meet Saturday

The women's track team will compete Saturday in a dual meet with West Virginia Wesleyan. The meet, to be held in Buckhannon, will begin at 3:30 p.m.

MU netters face WVU

West Virginia University brings its men's tennis team to Huntington Saturday for a match against the winless (0-8) Marshall netters. Both coaches said they believe this battle for "West Virginia court supremacy" is just another match.

Marshall tennis coach Bill Carroll said it would be nice to beat WVU, but it is not a special match. "It is not like this year's basketball game. For one thing, we play each other every year," he said.

WVU coach Stan Farr agreed with Carroll. "It's just not a natural rivalry. Tennis is an individual sport and I don't think my kids play any different against specific teams," Farr said.

Carroll's teams have never fared well against WVU, losing all four years that he has coached.

Saturday's match will be 11 a.m. at the Gullickson Hall courts.

Model UN groups debate world events

North Sea territorial rights, arms control and disarmament, and the dispute between Great Britain and Guatemala over a portion of Belize will be debated today and Saturday at Marshall in the fifth annual High School Model United Nations at Marshall.

The Model UN provides students an opportunity to "role play" the actual positions and policies of the nations comprising the UN Security Council, according to Margaret Arthur, Huntington senior and president of the Marshall Model UN.

The keynote speaker will be the United States Ambassador to the United Nations, Andrew Young, who will appear via film, according to Dr. Clair W. Matz Jr., associate professor of political science. "Young has so many speaking requests that he has recorded his opinions and ideas concerning the world organization for use at events similar to this," Matz said.

Also addressing the participants in today's opening session will be Leonard Madu, an international student from Nigeria, who is attending Marshall. The son of a former Nigerian diplomat, Madu will discuss "U.S.-Nigerian Relations" and comment on President Carter's recent trip to Lagos.

"When you try to defend another country's policies, you begin to understand their viewpoints," she said. "The Model UN is a fun way to stand in another person's shoes and understand world events from their perspective."

Seniors exhibit artwork; today last chance to view

Today is the last chance to view the senior art exhibit in the MU art gallery.

As a requirement for graduation, all senior art majors must display their work in a final exhibition, said associate professor June Kilgore, chairwoman of the art department.

Kilgore explained that this show is one of the most conservative exhibitions by students in recent years.

Kilgore added that realism is

ABC executive on campus

An ABC television executive will give Marshall students the opportunity to quiz him about the broadcast industry during an April 10-11 visit to campus.

Stephen K. Nenko, director of program administration for ABC Entertainment, will come here as a Speech Department broadcaster-in-residence, a program funded by the Distinguished Lectureship Series of the Marshall Foundation.

Nenko is responsible for east and west coast program formatting, procedures and post production; commercial scheduling, announcers, screening operations and departmental finance, budgeting and personnel.

One MU student describes the ABC executive as "dynamic." John Sadler, Charleston Jr., met Nenko in February at the Faculty/Industry Seminar and College Conference sponsored by the International Radio and Television Society.

Sadler was one of 26 college and university students chosen to attend the five-day New York seminar. Students from across the country competed; selection was based on papers written on "Broadcasting in the Year 2000."

Sadler says Nenko is interested in students and has good rapport with them. According to Sadler, Nenko answers questions "straight from the cuff."

Sadler says Nenko told conference participants that, contrary to popular belief, networks do have job openings, but added they are looking for good people who are enthusiastic and willing to dedicate themselves to their careers.

Nenko will meet with students in seven sessions over the two-day schedule. Topics to be discussed include sports; news; opporunities for writers, and drama programs and docudramas; scheduling, and programming trends; the future of radio; public reaction to contemporary programming and ratings. Nenko will meet with students informally to discuss job opportunities in the broadcast industry on April 10 in the Smith Hall faculty lounge.

'Horizons' Alumni to focus on past, future

The past and the future have won the lead roles in "Horizons," the 41st annual Alumni Weekend, April 21-23.

"We want people to come back not only for the past, but to appreciate the present and look over the horizons toward the future," explained Janice Framp-ton, Alumni Weekend chairwoman.

Highlights of the "spring homecoming" include presentation of three major Alumni Association awards, golf and tennis outings, athletic events and a banquet.

Distinguished Alumnus, distinguished service and community service awards will be presented at the banquet being held Saturday at Memorial Student Center.

Classes of 1928, 1953, and 1968, celebrating their 50th, 25th and 10th reunions, respectively, will be honored along with the award recipients at a reception Friday and at Saturday's banquet.

Suite A of the Huntington Civic Center will be the site of the opening activity, "Weekend Warm-up," being held from 8-11:30 p.m. Friday.

Other campus activities during the weekend include a musical production and an art exhibit. "Man of La Mancha" will be presented by the music and speech departments April 19 through 23. A viewing of the "Aunt Nell Art Collection" and the "Marion Vest Fors Graphic Collection," donated to the university by alumnus Michael Maroney, is scheduled from 6 to 8 p.m. Friday, April 21, in the Art Gallery of the lobby of Smith Hall.

Alumni and friends are asked to contact the Alumni Office in Memorial Student Center at (304) 696-3134 by Thursday, April 20, to make reservations for weekend activities. Participants are asked to indicate their partners for tennis and golf events.
