UHSP Conference Will Begin Here Today

Kilgore Set As Main Speaker; 240 Journalists Are Expected

By JULIA SADD

The United High School Press Conference, West Virginia Teachers Association and United High School Yearbook Association will open a two-day meeting with registration beginning this afternoon at 1 P. M. in the basement of the James E. Morrow Library.

Approximately 240 persons representing 30 high schools are expected to attend the meeting, according to Miss Virginia Lee, assistant professor of journalism.

Senator Harley M. Kilgore will be the principal speaker for the occasion. Senator Kilgore, Beckley Democrat, heads the judiciary committee of the United State Senate. The congressman received his LL.B. degree from West Virginia University in 1914. After a few years of teaching, he began his law practice in 1916.

The West Virginia senator is the first person to be elected to the U. S. Senate for three successive terms by the state's electorate. These terms were in 1940, 1946 and 1952.

The regular meetings will begin Saturday, at 9:45 A. M. in the Science Hall Auditorium with greetings from Prof. W. Page Pitt, head of the journalism department; Yvonne Watson of DuPont High School and president of UHSP; and Bill Chaddock, editor-in-chief of The Parthenon.

After this, Jack Hardin, Huntington Advertiser reporter and winner of the $500 Big Story Award, will discuss his experience in apprehending a dangerous criminal. Hardin will speak to the delegates at 9:45 A. M.

Following recognition of the delegations, panel discussions on six topics will start at 10:30 Saturday morning. The panel on reporter and editorial problems of high school newspapers will be headed by Bill Chaddock, editor-in-chief of The Parthenon; Bill Keese, managing editor; Richard Kelly, assistant news editor; Constance Morehead, editor of Huntington High School's "The Tatler", and Yvonne Watson, editor of DuPont High School's "The Panther Press". This panel will meet in the Science Hall Auditorium.

Problems of the high school sports writer will be discussed in Room 111 of the Science Hall. Parthenon members include Robert Friedly, sports editor; and Steve Posti, assistant sports editor. Others on the panel are Winston Sarver, Huntington Vinson's sports editor; and Herbert A. Royer, Marshall's head football coach.

In Science Hall, Room 122, business problems will be discussed and headed by Ralph Moeller, business manager of The Parthenon; Mrs. Jack Nichols, adviser of Huntington Vinson's "Tiger Tales"; and Shirley Barker, of Beckley's Woodrow Wilson High School.

The news room in the journalism department will be the place of the meeting for a discussion on high school yearbook editorial problems. Chairman for the discussion is Everett Roush, Chief Justice editor. Other members include Gretchen Border, editor of "The DuPontian", DuPont High School; Mrs. Vernice McMullin, faculty sponsor, "Huntingtonian", Huntington High School; and Kay Hall, editor of Huntington East's "East-Hi".

A discussion on high school yearbook problems will be in Room 109, Science Hall. David Dunlap, Chief Justice business manager; Paul Pancake, advertising manager of Marshall High School's "The Brigadier"; David Sommerville, editor of Point Pleasant's "The Ohkan"; and John A. Sizemore, manager of Charleston High School's "The Charlestonian", will lead the panel group.

The business meeting of the W. Va. Journalism Teachers Association will be in Room 113 of the Science Hall. James P. Stinnette, president of the association will preside.

The annual UHSP luncheon will begin at 1 P. M. at the college cafeteria. This luncheon is sponsored by the Huntington Chamber of Commerce and admittance will be by official badge. Clyde C. Ball, editor of the Huntington division of the Associated Press will preside as master of ceremonies.

President Stewart H. Smith will deliver the invocation and extend greetings to the delegates. Guests of honor are Mr. and Mrs. Hugh D. Stillman. Stillman is president of Huntington's Chamber of Commerce.

Principal speaker for the luncheon is J. Knox Dye, editor-manager of the Point Pleasant Register.

Saturday at 3 P. M. in Old Main Auditorium and Room 111 in the Science Hall, the UHSP and United High School Yearbook respectively, will have election of officers for the coming year.

At this time, the Journalism Teachers will meet in Room 109 of the Science Hall. Clarence Pennington, city editor of the Ironton Tribune of Ohio, will address the members. Pennington is a Marshall graduate and received his AB degree and certificate of journalism in 1951.

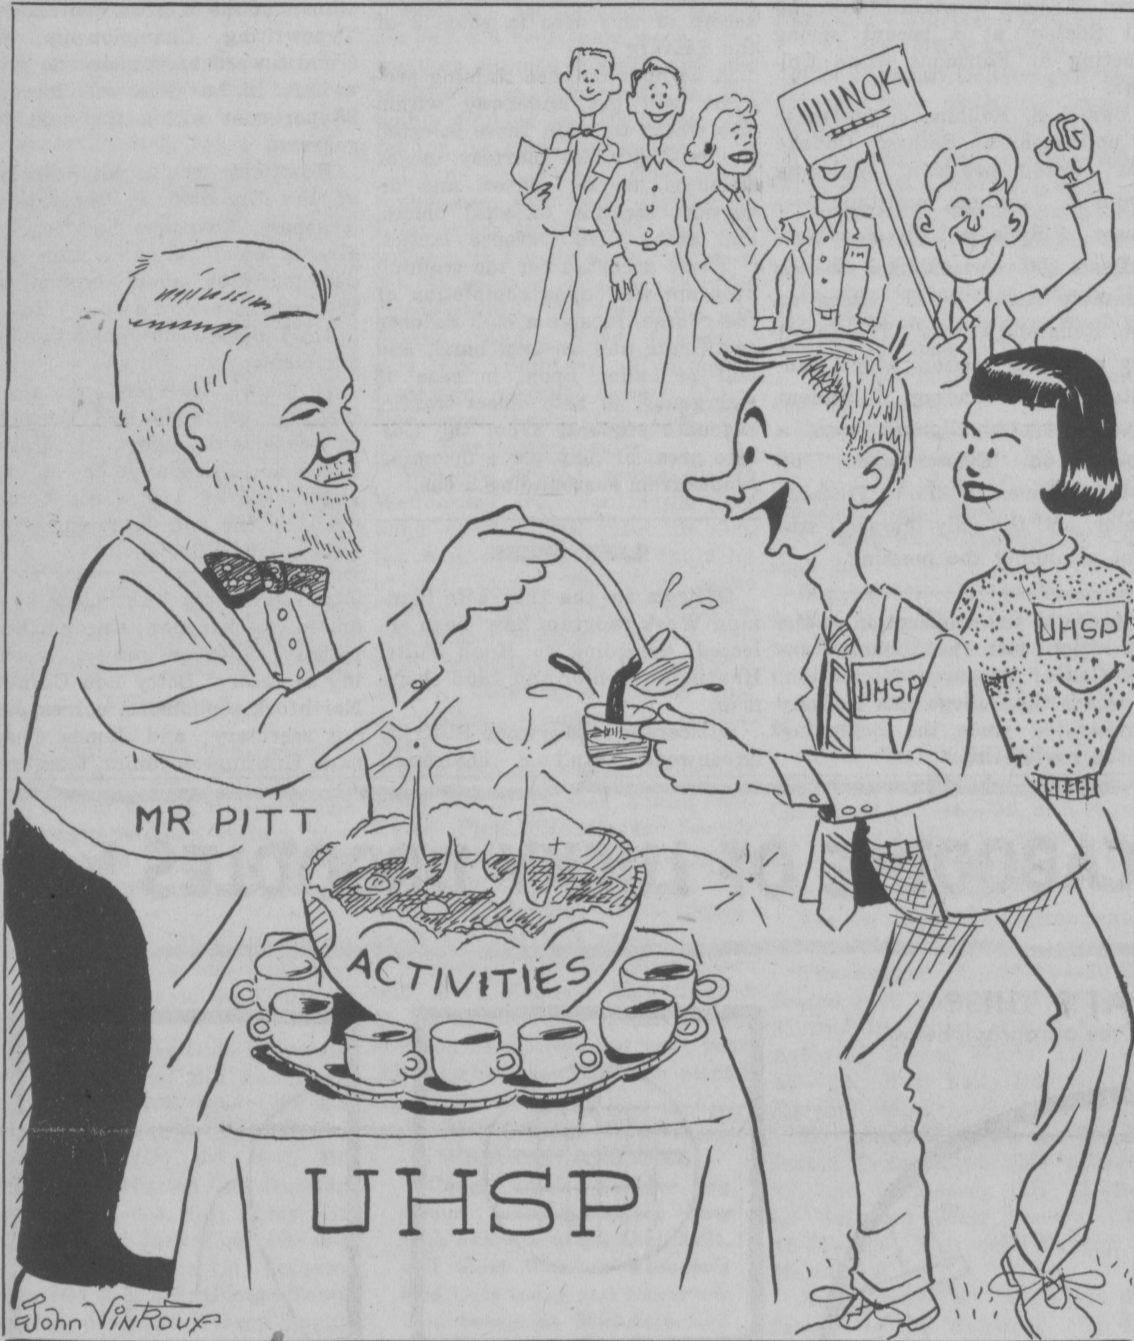

Highlighting the two day event is the annual UHSP dinner sponsored by the Huntington Publishing Company and Col. J. H. Long, "Daddy" of the UHSP. The banquet will be Saturday, at 6:45 P. M. in the college cafeteria.

Mr. Raymond Brewster, editor-in-chief of the Huntington Herald-Dispatch will be master of ceremonies.

Following the invocation by President Smith, introduction of Colonel Long and introduction of guests, Nick Basso, radio and television news director of WSAZ will give a talk on radio, television news and its presentation.

Following Senator Kilgore's address, the banquet will close with an introduction of new officers of the UHSP, High School Yearbook and Journalism Teacher's Association.

A dance from 9:30 P. M. to 12:00 A. M. in the Student Union and sponsored by The Parthenon for all members of the three groups, closes the two-day conference.

New Coach To Arrive; 'Riv' Begins Practice

Jule Rivlin, newly appointed basketball coach, will arrive in Huntington tomorrow morning to meet the members of the Big Green cage squad and to discuss plans for spring practice, according to Robert A. Morris, Jr., athletic director. Rivlin was picked to succeed Cam Henderson at the helm of the Big Green only last week.

Spring practice sessions, if held, must be conducted some time before the end of May. Rivlin does not, however, officially take over as coach until July 1. The Mid-American Conference permits fourteen days of spring drills.

It is uncertain at this time whether Rivlin will be available for spring practice. He is currently coaching and teaching at McKinley Vocational trade school in Wheeling.

Rivlin, who from the middleman spot on Cam Henderson's fast break in the late thirties helped make the break famous with his shooting and passing prowess, plans to continue teaching the quick-break, hell-for-leather brand of basketball taught him by Henderson who he calls "the greatest coach who ever lived."

Both the graduating Big Green team members and the squad newcomers will meet with Rivlin for the organizational meeting tomorrow. "Riv" is scheduled to arrive at 10 A. M.

WHAT'S THIS?

For solution see paragraph below.

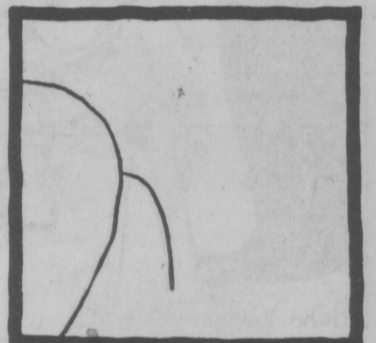

A WONDERFUL SLANT on smoking! You'll find it in the Doodle above, titled: Tourist enjoying better-tasting Lucky Strike while leaning against tower of Pisa. If your own inclination is toward better taste, join the many college smokers who prefer Luckies. From any angle, Luckies taste better. They taste better, first of all, because Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. Then that tobacco is toasted to taste better. "It's Toasted"—the famous Lucky Strike process—tones up Luckies' light, good-tasting tobacco to make it taste even better. Little wonder that Luckies tower above all other brands in college popularity!

Charleston Relays To Test Green Thinclads Tomorrow

By GEORGE SMITH
Coach Dan Wickline will pit his Big Green track and field men against VMI, VPI, Morehead and a number of smaller West Virginia colleges tomorrow in the twenty-first running of the Gazette Relays at Laidley Field in Charleston.

Morehead looms as the major threat to Marshall's hopes of capturing the meet. Coach Wickline gives his charges the edge in the sprints, but feels Morehead, the defending champions, hold the upper hand in the distance events.

The Big Green mile relay team earned favorites role by setting a new record last week in the Morehead triangular meet. Lugging the baton Saturday will be these same four men, Don Adkins, Ken Adkins, Ray Dunlap, and Jim Smith.

Other competitors for the Marshall squad are: 220 yard dash, Ray Dunlap, Dick Athey and Jim Smith; 5 mile run, Dave Pitzenberger, Johnny Aleman, and Don Robinson; 120 high hurdles, Ralph Fleming; 440 yard dash, Don Ad-

What About 'Riv'?

DR. GRESHAM TOOLE, professor of history, said, "I remember Jule very well as being one of the best basketball players I have ever seen. He is a very fine lad and was a good student. I am very pleased to see that he received the appointment as coach and have no doubt he will do an excellent job."

PHIL CLINE, Kopperston senior and president of the student body, had this to say, "I think Dr. Smith has made a wise decision in appointing Mr. Rivlin to the position. I think he (Rivlin) possesses all the qualifications that we need for the Marshall Big Green."

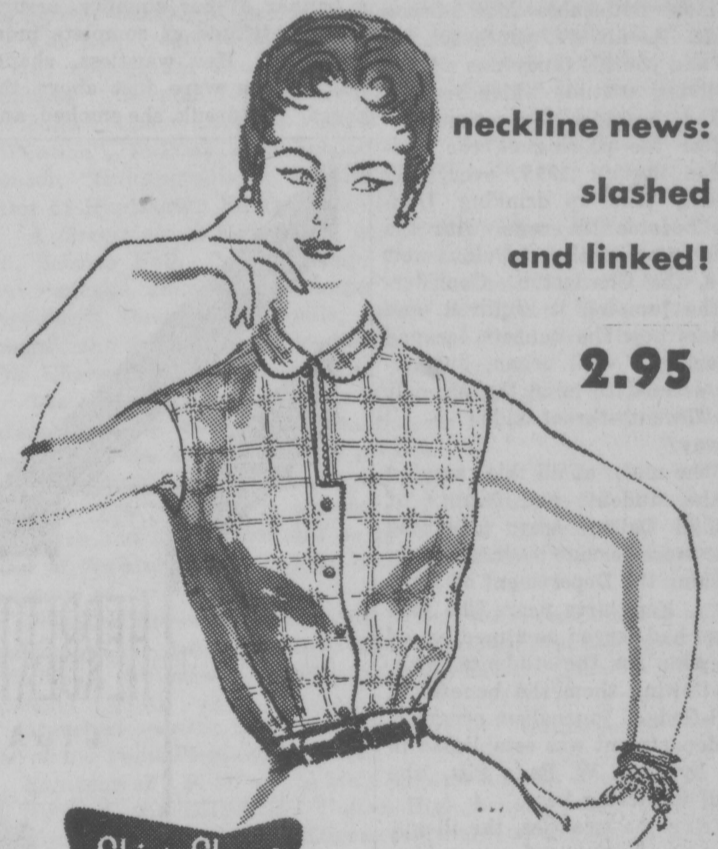

"I DID BELIEVE that Rivlin would receive the job all along although I do think that all three were highly capable of handling the job," said Charles Slack, Pomeroy junior, and three year veteran of the Big Green cage squad. Slack added, "I was not surprised by President Smith's selection of Rivlin".

"I THINK his appointment was the best one that could be made for Marshall College's welfare. He is a two-sport man and it will confine our coaching personnel to the campus," said Otto (Swede) Gullickson, associate professor of physical education. "I'm always delighted to see alumni return to the campus."

College Life Inspired Many Fads Of 'Roaring Twenties'

By JOHN SEFFENSE
(Parthenon Feature Editor)

Ed. Note: The fourth in this series of articles will appear next week. It deals with the depression and its effect on American life during the years leading up to World War II.

"The Roaring Twenties!" This was the title given to an era of busy, brisk, successful living for most Americans. Prosperity seemed well-established from the beginning and people expressed their sense of well-being by living it up generally. Anybody who was anybody went to Europe, and most of them returned loaded with sophistication.

College life inspired many of the most noticeable fads of the decade. As always, youth set the style and youth's fancy was a bold, free-living attitude which frankly shocked the older generation.

After the passing of the Prohibition law in 1919, everybody suddenly took up drinking. Dances became the rage, with the introduction of that fabulous new dance, the Charleston. Considering the jumping it required, one wonders how the dancers escaped displacing a vital organ, but nobody seemed to mind the pace. It was "Twenty-three skidoo — all the way."

In the midst of all this carrying on, the students and faculty of Marshall College were attending to the more serious business of establishing the Department of Journalism. For thirty years The Parthenon had served as a medium of expression for the students, without allowing them the benefit of a full-fledged journalism program. The department was established in 1926 by Prof. W. Page Pitt, who is still its acting head.

During the twenties, the illegitimate production of moonshine rose to an all-time high. When a society matron decided to throw a spree, she turned her bathtub into a still. The vile-tasting she did the racious "Black Bottom" while the jazz-ridden age rose madly to a disastrous climax.

1929. The erratic, intoxicating years were bound to produce a headache, which came in the form of distress and poverty for the entire nation. Dad put away his beanie and beaver coat, and Mom quietly went back to her old, sweet ways—the party was over. Hard times stole upon the scene and prosperity went out the window, for this the year of "The Great Depression".

Probably the one personality people most remember from the twenties is none other than that charming trick of flight and daring, the Flapper.

Typical of the college coed, this young woman desired to appear worldly and sophisticated. Several editions of The Parthenon are devoted to the transition, complete with hilarious illustrations on what they chose to call her "mode of allure."

The Flapper replaced her opulent coiffure with a boyish bob as a banner of her equality, assuming an attitude of complete independence. Her waistless, shapeless dresses were just above the knees. She drank. she smoked, and
