TWO NEW FRESHMAN senators will be appointed by Corns to succeed John Kelly, Logan Freshman, who did not maintain the necessary average, and Raymond McIntyre, Charleston freshmen, who has withdrawn from Marshall.

Hunnicutt, newly elected sophomore president, is a member of the basketball squad and Varsity M. Corns, a pre-law major and member of Cavaliers, was president of the student body last year at South Charleston High School. He was also a candidate for the freshman class presidency in the fall elections.

UNDER ITS noted conductor, Eugene Ormandy, the Philadelphia Orchestra is launching its fifty-third season. Since its beginning the orchestra has been led by only four regular conductors.

Begun in the gay "90's", through the unremitting labors of Fritz Scheel, the first conductor, the orchestra has maintained a continuity of success and dynamic vitality which has always characterized it.

Under such a leader as Leopold Stokowski, the orchestra reached a peak of development, the like of which had probably never appeared before in the history of orchestral music.

'Bull Sessions'

Tonight, the "bull sessions", usually the most popular and interesting of all the annual Life Planning Week activities, will be held in the various fraternity and sorority houses and dormitories. Above all, you should attend.

If a student attends none of the other well-prepared and interesting activities planned by the committee, he should make it a point to be at one of these. During the few minutes these sessions last, many of the questions that trouble the college students of today are answered.

THESE ANSWERS do not come from the leader, however. Although he will make comments one way or the other and give views along with the rest of the men and women attending, he acts simply as a moderator and lets the students talk-over and discuss among themselves before summing up an answer for them. He does not attempt to push ideas down your throat, but merely lets students own thoughts clear up the vague points of view.

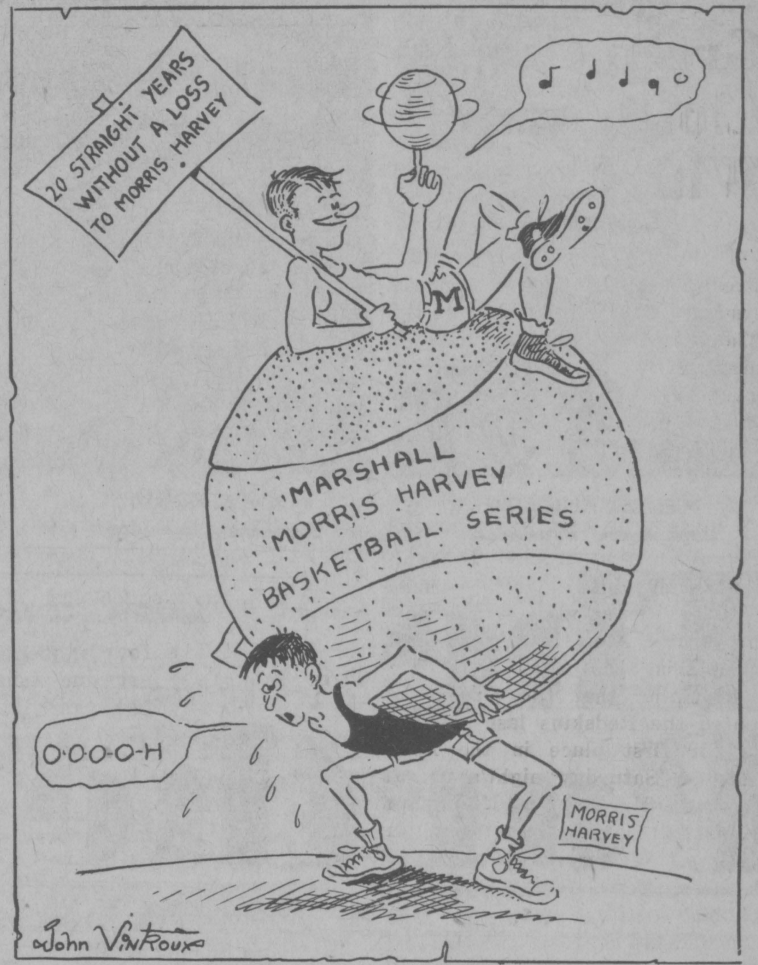

This year, instead of having out of town speakers leading the "bull sessions", the committee decided that by letting local ministers and laymen conduct them better results would be derived. Local men from this city know the problems that the college students at Marshall face. They live here, day by day, and are better qualified to answer questions from a local viewpoint. This was a great improvement in the setup of the Life Planning Week activities.

THE LIFE PLANNING WEEK activities are your activities. They are designed to give you a better understanding of the way your problems must be faced after graduation. The many questions that they try to answer are contained under the main theme "The Time of Your Life". All of the aspects of your future life can be found in the four sub-topics, "Something To Live On", "Something To Live For", "Someone To Live With" and "Someplace To Go", which will be discussed by the featured speaker, Dr. Floyd Faust.

These and other basic questions that students have today is the reason for the annual religious emphasis week. One speaker cannot answer questions for each individual, but through such media as the "bull sessions" and the other popular program known as the "skeptical hour", which was held yesterday, problems can be answered for everyone.

Henderson Completes Twentieth Season Saturday

Green Cagers Close Season With Reserve

By STEVE POSTI

Riding a six-game winning streak, Marshall's Big Green cagers met the conference leading Miami Redskins in what may be termed as the most "crucial" game of the season last night. (Scores of this game were not available for today's edition). Marshall needed a win over the Redskins to keep in the running for the Mid-Am. championship. At the present Marshall has only one regular season game remaining, that being with cellar-dwelling Western Reserve at Cleveland, Ohio, this Saturday.

Providing that the Green defeated the Redskins last night, a tie for first place in the MAC rests on Saturday night's tilt at Reserve. Western Michigan's Broncos are also in contention for a tie and have an identical record in MAC play as Marshall. Both had a 9-3 prior to last night.

Should a tie result among the three schools, a playoff on a neutral floor will be staged to determine the first place position and who will represent the conference in the NCAA tournament at Lexington, Kentucky.

LAST WEEK, Marshall marked up their fifth and sixth straight victories as they defeated Morris Harvey and Bowling Green. On Thursday, Marshall knocked off M-H's Golden Eagles 103-92 and on Saturday night dumped Bowling Green 91-69.

As usual, the M-H Eagles proved to be a little tough in the first half and enjoyed a slight lead only to wilt under the famed Henderson fast-break in the second half. For Marshall, it was their twenty-first straight victory over the Eagles in a period of ten years.

Co-captain Dave Robinson sparked the Green offense with a 27 point display and was closely followed by the squad's other co-captain Charlie Slack who sunk 24 points. Sophomores Cebe Price and Paul Underwood, performing before hometown fans, scored 20 and 18 points respectively.

LEWIS BURNS an alternating starting guard became the first of three to hit the double figure mark as he accounted for 10 points against the Eagles.

Cap Smith once again took down the game's scoring honors as he hit for 32 markers to pace the M-H offense.

After only beating Bowling Green's Falcons by only two points last week on the Bee Gee's home court, the Big Green marched off to an early lead during the first half and went on to increase it and the final result was a twenty-two point victory.

AGAIN IT WAS the South Charleston "scoring twins" who proved to be the determining factors as the two. Price and Underwood, accounted for 58 points between them. Price hit for 30 and Underwood 28.

Robinson and Slack scored the remaining 33 points, Robinson getting 21 and Slack getting only 12. Slack, listed as the nation's number one rebounder, picked off 32 rebounds.

Winter Intramural Sports To Make Way For Spring Program

By ART KEYSER

The winter phase of the intramural program nears its completion as the basketball season ends in a week. With this in mind, the teams bear down as they vie for a position in the tournament.

In last Wednesday's competition the Sig-Eps No. 2 team won easily over the S.A.E. Golds by a score of 75 to 29. Dawkins and Wilson lead the way for the winners with 28 and 19 points respectively, while Pratt pushed through 22 for the Golds.

The K.A. No. 2 squeaked by the T.K.E. No. 2, 28 to 27. Adkins of the Tekes, led a fourth quarter surge that fell just one point short. Lamb was high point man for the K.A.'s with 16.

Another close game involved the A.S.P. Cardinals and the L.X.A. The Cardinals over-came a half time deficit to defeat the Lambda Chi's 43 to 41. Robinson, of the L.X.A., posted 20 points, while Seaman with 14, and Cain with 13, led the offense for the winners.

In other scheduled activity, the Boonites won a forfeit game from the Rangers, and in the nightcap the P.K.A. Hornets rolled over the A.S.P. Greys by a 99 to 46 score. Garshaw's 28 points and Egnor's 26 paced the Pikes to their easy win. Clay was high for the Grays with 20 points.

Other intramural activities will be completed this week.

Along The SPORTS CIRCUIT

By STEVE POSTI

"Ho-Hum—Same old Morris Harvey", said a Marshall student upon leaving the Morris Harvey Field House last Thursday night after watching the Big Green cagers stop M-H for the twenty-first time in ten seasons. Well this is exactly the same feeling that flashed through my head as I made my exit from the gymnasium along with 2500 others who were on hand to witness the 103-92 defeat handed the Eagles.

After one watches the same old routine several times, it becomes tiresome and uninteresting. This does not only mean a basketball game but practically everything interesting in life. Well, I for one, I am getting a little tired of watching the same old routine that takes place when Marshall meets our neighbors from Charleston.

During my three years at Marshall, I have witnessed five of the six games that the two schools played. Each time its the same thing. Morris Harvey playing a close first half with the Green, only to fall behind under the powerful strain of the fast-break and lose in the second half. And from all indications, this is the way it is going to be for many years.

This season found coach Mike Josephs' Little Green humbling the Morris Harvey frosh on three different occasions which goes to indicate that Marshall has far much more strength coming up in the yearling ranks than Morris Harvey and as a result the fans of the two schools will be seeing the same old "show".

For many years Marshall has been a power in the college cage world and has never received the chance to exhibit this power simply because of some of the teams appearing on the Marshall schedule. One of these being Morris Harvey.

Each year several teams of this type appear on the Green schedule and consequently the Henderson quint can not claim national ranking by defeating these schools such as M-H, Colorado State, W&L, and Carnegie Tech. However, should games like Xavier and Virginia be scheduled there might be a change in the picture. This year, excluding MAC games, Marshall played six games with six "weak" foes. This may be one of the reasons that Marshall, after being considered by the NIT for a bid, was dropped from consideration and there remains only a dim light that they may be asked should they fail to bag the Mid-Am championship.

Therefore, we would like to suggest that in the near future when scheduling begins for next season that Marshall's efforts concentrate on scheduling of more powerful schools and omitting of some of the weaker ones as mentioned.

Next season, only one of Marshall's present starters will be missing. That being co-captain Dave Robinson. Robinson's loss will be felt but with men such as Jack Freeman, Hal Greer, and Dave Kirk moving up to the varsity from the frosh squad, there will be a little more power on the Marshall bench long with several men returning from the varsity. All will be making bids to fill the shoes of the consistent and valuable Robinson who has largely been responsible for the success of this years squad.

Then to it must be considered that men on the Marshall squad like Robinson, Charlie Slack, Cebe Price and Paul Underwood are not receiving a fair chance to reveal their basketball capabilities in front of the "big city" fans and sports writers. The latter, being the ones responsible for the selection of the all-American teams.

The essential material is here but it remains to the athletic board to schedule the games with some of the college powers whom I feel confident the Green could handle.

And if we must play Morris Harvey—could it only be once during the season instead of twice.

Winless Wrestlers Oppose Miami This Weekend In Season Wind-Up

WAA Basketball Opens Play Today

By SUZANNE HENSLEY

Pi Kappa Sigma will play Delta Sigma Epsilon at 3 P. M. today in the gymnasium in the first game of the women's intramural basketball season.

Alpha Chi Omega will play Laidley Hall tomorrow at 3 P. M. in the gymnasium for the second game. Other teams should check the bulletin board in the Women's Physical Education Department for their game schedule.

Nine teams will represent the sororities and independent organizations in this year's intramural basketball season.

Registration for the handball doubles tournament will continue through this week. The teams are composed of two members and organizations that wish to be represented should sign the entry blank in the Women's Physical Education Department as soon as possible.

Players may choose their own teammate and as many teams as

The Big Green wrestling squad will get one more opportunity to come up with that first victory before closing out the regular season. The wrestlers host Miami at the college gym Saturday after noon before moving into the Mid-American Conference meet the following week.

Marshall dropped its seventh straight last weekend to unbeaten Virginia Tech. The visiting Gobblers took every match by a pin except two. Big Green 157 pounder Don Adkins picked up five points in the 30-8 defeat by pinning his adversary.

Charlie Tanner, beaten only once this year, was credited with the other three points in winning a decision in the 167 pound bracket. Heavyweight Bill Harris lost his second match in a row, this time by a pin in four minutes. He suffered his first loss only a week ago against Ohio.

Cartoonist For Parthenon Follows In Father's Footsteps

By STEVE POSTI

During the past three years, students reading The Parthenon have enjoyed the humorous, true-to-life cartoons of John Vintroux, Charleston senior, who has been doing cartoon work for publications since his junior high school days.

Vintroux, an accounting major, was inspired in his art work by his father, Kendall Vintroux, editorial cartoonist for the Charleston Gazette for the past 33 years. The younger Vintroux began publishing his art while attending Thomas Jefferson Junior High school in Charleston.

UPON ENTERING Charleston high school, Vintroux served as the staff cartoonist on the school paper, The Bookstrap, for four years and during this period began to gain recognition for his outstanding art work.

Vintroux, when only a junior, had one of his first political cartoons published in the Gazette and later was published by many other prominent papers throughout the nation and state. John, as he is known, considers this as the greatest thrill thus far in his career.

John graduated from Charleston High in May of 1951 and entered Marshall that fall. He immediately became interested in carrying on with his cartoon work during his college days and was named as staff artist for The Parthenon during his freshman year. Some of John's work at Marshall has included humorous student incidents, caricatures of faculty and students, promotional cartoons, and safety cartoons.

"ONE OF THE greatest problems I have in doing cartoons is getting the idea for one," said Vintroux. The 21-year old cartoonist added, "After I have an idea it takes me approximately an hour to draw it."

Upon graduation in June, Vintroux will join the ranks of Uncle Sam for two years as a second lieutenant as a result of ROTC training. After returning from the service, he plans to work as an editorial cartoonist like his father.

When asked who his favorite cartoonist was Vintroux admittedly said, "Parrish and Orr of the Chicago Tribune are", then hesitating and smiling said, "excluding my father."
