Sig Eps, Tri Sigs Cop Top Homecoming Honors

Alpha Chi's, SAE's Win No. 2 Spots

By AL POSTI

Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority and Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity were judged as the best house decorations for the recent Homecoming festivities, to capture first place in their respective divisions.

Coming in second in the sorority competition was Alpha Chi Omega and Sigma Alpha Epsilon in the fraternity division.

Using the theme of "The Musketeers Care To Show Their Might, but Marco Proved to be the Leading Knight," the Tri-Sigs depicted the Xavier Musketeer being met in battle by Marco, both of which were riding charging steeds. The background of the scene was a large castle done in full detail.

The Sig-Eps used as their theme, "Marco Erupts to Victory." Their decoration consisted of a volcano forty feet in diameter at the base and twenty-four feet high in front of a backdrop of dark clouds.

As the sounds of a volcano erupting began to be heard, large clouds of red smoke began appearing and soon the entire volcano began rumbling and from the mouth of the volcano appeared Marco holding a victory sign.

To win second place in the sorority contest, Alpha Chi Omega used the theme, Marco Says "They'll Be A Draggin'". The scene depicted a large dragon being toted by Marco.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon placing second in the fraternity division used as their theme "Marco Zooms To Victory." An airplane being shot between goalposts, depicted their theme.

The judging of the house decorations was held last Friday at 8 P.M.

The winners were announced at the intermission of the Homecoming dance.

Tau Kappa Epsilon having won the float contest in last year's fraternity competition were in charge of building this year's Queen's float.

Sigma Phi Epsilon having won this year's house decoration award will build the Queen's float for next year's Homecoming parade.

IT'S THE WINNERS! Above are the first place Homecoming house decorations winners in the men's and women's divisions respectively. Left is Sigma Phi Epsilon's volcano which depicted Marco erupting to victory. The affair featured sound, smoke, erupted with mache boulders, shook, and finally erupted with a Marco carrying a victory sign. Second place in the men's division went to Sigma Alpha Epsilon. Theme for Sigma Sigma Sigma's decoration was Knight Marco winning a jousting match with a Musketeer. Marco was dressed in shining armor with a caption which read, "The Musketeers came to show their might, but Marco proved the leading knight." Second place in the women's division was Alpha Chi Omega. See pages four and five for other Homecoming pictures.

College Theatre Readies For Opening Next Week

By JUDY O'DELL

With less than a week left for rehearsals for "Teach Me How To Cry," College Theatre's first production of the season, last minute set preparations are in full swing.

The set, built by James A. McCubbin, assistant professor of speech and his play production class, is constructed in four stage areas. There will be no changes of set as each section will be lit as it is used while the others remain dark.

The four areas are: the living room of the Grant family, Henderson family kitchen, a raised platform upstage suggesting the ruins of a bandstand. Center stage is a small area with no scenery as the locale will be changed as required.

"Teach Me How To Cry," was first produced at the Theatre de Lys, in New York, on April 5, 1955. It is a three act drama with ten scenes.

The story of the play concerns the manner in which human beings shape one another's lives, and tells of a young teenage girl who is saved from a life of escapism through the love of a boy who himself had to learn to face reality.

The love story parallels that of Romeo and Juliet, however despite parental opposition and social disapproval, they find the courage to go on although faced with separation. Unlike the lovers of the great classic they see an answer to their problem in life rather than in death.

"Teach Me How To Cry" opens Tuesday, November 11 and will run through Friday, November 14. Performance time is scheduled for 8:15 in Old Main Auditorium. Students will be admitted by activity cards and admission for non-students is $.60.

$1,000 Prize To Be Awarded In National Short Story Contest

Any student interested in creative writing is reminded by the English department that he has until December 31 1958, to submit entries to the Ivy and Esquire National Undergraduate Short Story Contest.

Prize money of $1,000 will be awarded. The top three entries will be printed in Ivy Magazine and be considered for publication in Esquire.

Requirements call for type-written, double spaced copy with suggested length of 2,500 words. However, length, subject matter and format are not restricted.

Entries are to be sent to the following address before the deadline: IVY-ESQUIRE FICTION CONTEST, 167 Elm Street, New Haven, Conn.

The contest is sponsored by the editors of the two magazines in order to present a means of giving undergraduates a chance to reach a contemporary audience through widely read mediums of publications.

Cabinet Planning Student Poll To Select Official Nickname

Honoraries Give Tutoring Service

By TED McCLURE

Freshmen who need tutoring can find solution to their problem in the Freshman Tutor Program. This program is provided for by two freshman honor societies, Phi Eta Sigma (men) and Alpha Lambda Delta (women).

The tutoring services are available to any freshman at the rate of $1.00 an hour. If a definite need is shown, tutoring services will be given free of charge.

The procedure for obtaining a tutor is as follows:

- (1) Report to the office of the Dean of Men and obtain a tutor system blank from the secretary.
- (2) Fill out the blank and leave it with the secretary.
- (3) You will be contacted by a tutor qualified in the subject which you have specified.

The tutors are members of Phi Eta Sigma and Alpha Lambda Delta and have qualified for their membership in these honor societies by obtaining a 3.5 point average during their first semester at Marshall or by having an over-all 3.5 point average for their freshman year.

FOOTBALL GAME

The football game Saturday, November 8, against Miami, will at 8 P.M., Fairfield Stadium, instead of 2 P.M., as reported in the November 1 Faculty Bulletin.

To be or not to be—Big Green. That will be the question—or at least part of it, when the student government polls the student body to determine an official nickname for the college's athletic teams.

The poll is scheduled for 11 o'clock class periods on Friday Nov. 21, Secretary of Athletic Affairs Bob Cole announced Wednesday.

The poll will in effect be a petition to the administration to declare the choice of the student body as the college's official athletic name.

The ballots for the poll will list four voting choices: (1) Big Green, (2) Thundering Herd, (3) Big Green and Thundering Herd, (4) any other nickname the student wants to write in.

The nickname receiving a majority of the votes cast will be presented to the administration for official adoption.

Big Green and Thundering Herd are the commonly accepted nicknames for the college teams now. Both were applied to the teams by sportswriters, and the student government cabinet feels the college should officially endorse one or both of these nicknames or adopt a new one.

Several attempts have been made to choose an official nickname for the teams. The most recent attempt was in the fall of 1955, when a similar classroom poll was conducted.

There was little interest in the 1955 poll, according to President Smith. "The results of the poll weren't conclusive enough to consider," Dr. Smith said, "because not enough students voted."

Any student, regular or part time, will be eligible to participate in the poll.

Job Interviews

The Placement Office has distributed approximately 320 sets of credentials to seniors for completion. Interviews have already started. No student may be interviewed unless these credential folders are on file. All seniors who have not turned in this information are urged to do so immediately.

Robert P. Alexander, director of placement, says, "We will be able to increase the number of companies visiting our campus with opportunities only if we can provide good service. This service cannot be fully performed unless all parties cooperate."

Congrats And Thanks

It's all over but the shouting—and the congratulating. We're speaking of Homecoming. First on the list of those to be congratulated are Alpha Chi Omega, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Sigma Phi Epsilon, and Sigma Sigma Sigma for constructing winning homecoming decorations. Next are all others who constructed decorations and worked in any way to add to the festivity. Top in this area is of course the Veteran's Club who worked what we call unselfishly, since they climaxed their efforts with a float which was not, as they knew, eligible for a prize.

In another facet of the activities, first to command congratulations are the three young ladies who were named queens in the elections. Namely, Ann Crockett, our Miss Marshall, and her class queen attendants, Linda Matheny, Mary Mott Mossman, and Stephany Shelly.

In the thank you category, Charles "Buddy" Turner leads the race by a full furlong. As chairman of the Homecoming Commission "Buddy" did a top notch job in coordinating what is difficult and by and large a thankless job.

Another unit on the thanks list is the ROTC who partook of foul weather to contribute to the Homecoming parade. Many thanks from this corner, men.

Property Defacement

An official policy statement has been formed regarding property defacement which has plagued sorority and fraternity houses since September. The statement, printed below comes from President Smith.

"The defacing of fraternity and sorority houses which has been going on this fall must stop. It is difficult to believe that men and women of college age and standing would engage in such despicable and destructive activities.

"I am deeply concerned and disturbed about this situation and I have made the decision that any individual or group found guilty of such defacement of property will be dismissed from the college.

"I ask the cooperation of all students in apprehending the guilty persons."

The staff was pleased at this action from the President, and we hope that all groups and students will give careful regard to the statement. We further hope that no occasion ever arises which demands that the decision be employed.

Tombstone Inscriptions Are Richardson's Hobby

By JUDY O'DELL

"O think not you are safe in your health, the kick of a horse was the means of my death."

This little verse is one of many epitaphs that can be found in the collection of Dr. J. T. Richardson, head of the sociology department.

Dr. Richardson has always been interested in the collecting of old and unusual inscriptions found on the tombstones of our forefathers. Often as a child in Texas, he would walk through rural cemeteries, reading the inscriptions which made lasting impressions.

One of Dr. Richardson's favorites is: "Remember, stranger, as you pass, as you are now, so once was I, as I am now you soon must be, therefore, prepare to follow me."

To this some wit added on a tomb in Serpent Mound Park, Adams County, Ohio: "To follow you I am not content until I learn which way you went."

Many times, the cause of death was the inspiration for the inscription. Such is the case with this one found on a child's tombstone in Enosburg, Vermont:

"Here lies the body of our Anna

Done to death by a banana
It wasn't the fruit that laid her low

But the skin of the thing that made her go."

Careless wording sometimes caused rather humorous inscriptions, as was the case on one marker in a cemetery in Saratoga, New York:

"Erected to the memory of John Phillips accidentally shot, as a mark of affection by his brother."

Other inscriptions gave evidence of marital discord. One in a Bayfield, Mississippi churchyard reads:

"Here lies my wife in earthly mould

Who when she lived did naught but scold.

Peace, wake her not, for now she is still.

She had, but now I have my will."

However, not all showed the unhappy side of marriage. This one from Alexandria, Va., puts a different light on early day marriages. "An excellent husband was this Mr. Danner, he lived in a thoroughly honorable manner, he may have had his troubles, but they burst like bubbles. He's at peace now, with Mary, Jane, Susan and Hannah." (Mr. Danner was married four different times.)

Many epitaphs in Dr. Richardson's collection were sent to him in response from viewers of his televised sociology class in 1957.

Along with collecting the inscriptions, Dr. Richardson also has photographs of some of the tombstones themselves.

An Open Letter:
To Whom It May Concern:
Homecoming Was Alive!

This letter is somewhat late because it could not be printed in Friday's edition of the Parthenon, according to Mike Maroney, editor-in-chief.

In regard to the recent articles appearing in the Parthenon and the local newspapers, we of I.F.C. wish to state our reasons for not building floats.

To many, homecoming is merely a time for floats and parades. (Continued on Page 6)

DEAN HOSPITALIZED

Dean J. Frank Bartlett of the College of Arts and Sciences returned to the hospital in Houston, Texas, last Tuesday evening, October 28. He will be away for an indefinite period. During his absence Mr. Paul Collins will serve as Acting Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

A write-up, three-fourths of an inch in length, about Marshall College, appears on page 4825 of the World Book Encyclopedia.

ANYONE FOR FOOTBALL?

When Pancho Sigafoos, sophomore, pale and sensitive, first saw Willa Ludowic, freshman, lithe as a hazel wand and rosy as the dawn, he hemmed not; neither did he haw. "I adore you," he said without preliminary.

"Thanks, hey," said Willa, flinging her apron over her face modestly. "What position do you play?"

"Position?" said Pancho, looking at her askance. (The askance is a ligament just behind the ear.)

"On the football team," said Willa.

"Football!" sneered Pancho, his young lip curling. "Football is violence, and violence is the death of the mind. I am not a football player. I am a poet!"

"So long, buster," said Willa.

"Wait!" cried Pancho, clutching her damask forearm.

She placed a foot on his pelvis and wrenched herself free. "I only go with football players," she said, and walked, shimmering, into the gathering dusk.

Pancho went to his room and lit a cigarette and pondered his dread dilemma. What kind of cigarette did Pancho light? Why, Philip Morris, of corris!

Philip Morris is always welcome, but never more than when you are sore beset. When a fellow needs a friend, when the heart is dull and the blood runs like sorghum, then, then above all, is the time for the mildness, the serenity, that only Philip Morris can supply.

Pancho Sigafoos, his broken psyche welded, his fevered brow cooled, his synapses restored, after smoking a fine Philip Morris, came to a decision. Though he was a bit small for football (an even four feet) and somewhat overweight (427 pounds), he tried out for the team—and tried out with such grit and gumption that he made it.

Pancho's college opened the season against the Manhattan School of Mines, always a mettlesome foe, but strengthened this year by four exchange students from Gibraltar who had been suckled by she-apes. By the middle of the second quarter the Miners had wrought such havoc upon Pancho's team that there was nobody left on the bench but Pancho. And when the quarterback was sent to the infirmary with his head driven straight down into his esophagus, the coach had no choice but to put Pancho in.

Pancho's teammates were not conspicuously cheered as the little fellow took his place in the huddle.

"Gentleman," said Pancho, "some of you may regard poetry as sissy stuff, but now in our most trying hour, let us hark to these words from Paradise Lost: 'All is not lost; the unconquerable will and study of revenge, immortal hate, and courage never to submit or yield!'"

So stirred was Pancho's team by this fiery exhortation that they threw themselves into the fray with utter abandon. As a consequence, the entire squad was hospitalized before the half. The college was forced to drop football. Willa Ludowic, not having any football players to choose from, took up with Pancho and soon discovered the beauty of his soul. Today they are seen everywhere—dancing, holding hands, nuzzling, smoking.

Foreign Students Comment Regional Science Fair On American Ways Of Life Continues To Expand

By JOHN MURPHY

"Irish customs are as different from those in the United States as St. Patrick is from Davy Crockett."

That's the feeling one of eight Marshall foreign students has about this country.

"The college student in Ireland does not receive so liberal an education as here but he is more specialized in his particular field," said Norman Jones, sophomore from Ireland who has been in this country for five years. "Our student is not as social conscious as the American and tends to think in conservative tones," he added.

"In our country," said Korean student Nyoungdon Kwon, "most college students carry 40 to 48 hours a week. Usually we don't have many social activities."

Continuing to stress that the big difference between Marshall students' activities as compared to those of other countries, Hungarian student Miklos Szalavits indicated that the government limited social life in his country.

"The social activities of our students are restricted by our government (Communist) so that the student is more serious about his academic record," the freshman student commented. Miklos has been in America one and a half years.

"Activities at our university are only cultural; there are no social ones," said Jeanette Singer of Argentina. Jeanette has been here for only six months.

Eul Soo Pang, also of Korea, stated that American students pay too much attention to being entertained. "Most of our students pay more attention to the political movement over the world rather than movies, sports, or just being entertained. Social activities don't seem to interest our students," he said.

These new residents are experiencing many new things in America. Many had their first view of Homecoming Saturday. Most are seeing an election campaign such as ours for the first time. Foreign affairs is one of the most discussed topics in the campaign, and as such directly affects these students.

Reporting of the anti-Yankee feeling in their countries and how many of our actions are misinterpreted, most felt that in the end the United States was found as correct.

Formosan student Mary Man-li Ho reported that it isn't a "question of right or wrong. It depends on the circumstances which one holds and the difference of cultural background."

Cuban student Daniel Puerto, who has been in the U. S. for two years, answered the question of misinterpretation with a question.

"What do you read in the newspapers? Gangs from New York, juvenile delinquency, et cetera. What do you see when they come to your country? Nothing but a bunch of drunken sailors disturbing everyone. Is that mis-interpretation?" he asked.

Tanzer Kalaycio, of Turkey, commented on the family relationship difference between the countries. "Teenagers respect their parents and their teachers more in Turkey. There is less restriction on the teenagers here." Tanzer has been here for two months.

Mr. Kwon summarized this with an example of the biggest difference between our country and his Korea. "We Koreans and Americans have different senses: Koreans have developed in the philosophical sense, and Americans have developed mechanically."

and director of the 1958-59 Fair.

The Marshall Regional Science Fair has experienced tremendous growth since its organization in 1955, according to figures released by Dr. N. Bayard Green, professor of zoology at Marshall

A total of 64 exhibits representing 16 different junior and senior high schools were entered in the Regional Science Fair in its initial year. In 1957, the number of participating schools had risen to 37 with 402 exhibitors competing for awards.

Two hundred six of the exhibits entered last year were from Huntington schools, which usually make up the majority of the entries, according to Dr. Green. The remaining number was composed of 70 projects from Ohio, 35 from Kentucky, and 88 from other West Virginia schools, excluding the Huntington area.

Dr. Green believes there is a good possibility that over 600 exhibits may be entered in the Fair this year. The chances for future growth of the event are also very favorable, since students from only 37 of approximately 135 schools have entered in past years.

Any boy or girl in public, private or parochial schools in parts of Ohio, West Virginia, and Kentucky is eligible to enter the 1958-59 Science Fair, which will be held at Memorial Field House April 3-4.

In West Virginia, counties included are Cabell, Mingo, Wayne,

Exhibits for the Science Fair must be designed to show a biological, chemical, engineering, mathematical, or physical principle, a laboratory or other procedure, or an industrial development. During the three year history of the fair, all types of exhibits, ranging from "A Life in an Ant Hill" to "Monkeys and Medicine" have been displayed.

Judging is done on the following criteria: scientific thought, creative ability, thoroughness, clarity and dramatic value, and technical skill.

The true sense of homecoming seems to be lost if one can only think of homecoming in this manner. There were many festivities other than floats. For instance, there was the ball game, the dance, and the reunion of the alumni. Many feel that homecoming was dead, but in our opinion it was still very much alive. There was a parade, even with a few floats missing.

Our reasons for not building floats were as follows:

1. Expense.
2. Time.
3. Lack of adequate support from the merchants.
4. Expense involved in renting trucks and employing drivers, plus a place to build the floats.

Each year everyone feels homecoming in its strictest sense is homecoming, but let them try building a float in about a two-day period. Then it becomes drudgery.

Why build something that costs $300 or $400 which is torn down within six hours after the game? It would be more sensible to spend this money on a dance in which all members of an organization could enjoy themselves for four or five hours, or for some other worthy purpose.

A recent article in the Parthenon stated that 95% of the students wanted floats, but are 60 students representative of the entire student body? How many of these students do any work toward building a float?

The students who criticized our ruling the most, and who wanted to build floats, were those who did not have to build them, with the exception of one organization. These individuals enjoy seeing the finished product parading down the street, and justifiably so, because their money, time and efforts were not involved.

Homecoming Spoiled By Musketeers

Xavier Aerial Nips Herd Fumble-Penalty Costly

By STRAT DOUTHAT

Homecoming was dampened considerably Saturday afternoon at Fairfield Stadium by the weather but the deluge that broke up the game came through the sky in the form of a 76-yard Xavier pass play.

Marshall took an early lead but failed to stave off the victory hungry Muskie squad that fought back to a 14 to 6 win. The loss was the third in a row for the Big Green.

Xavier coach Mick Connolly would be the first to agree that except for a few bad breaks the Big Green could have easily walked away the victor.

After the game in the Marshall dressing room, coach Royer, mulling over the game, said he thought "We deserved to win this one. The kids played well, and except for some bad breaks, might have won." Coach Royer was backed up by Connolly, who said, "I would have been happy with even a one-point win."

Xavier, taking its fourth in a row from the Green and White, opened the contest by kicking off to the Herd, who promptly began a 54-yard scoring drive capped when Jim Maddox scored from the one-yard line.

Marshall kicked to Xavier, who failed to make the first down and was forced to punt. The ball deflected off the hands of Paul Miller and rolled into the end zone. Miller was downed behind the goal for a safety.

A recovered fumble and a 15-yard penalty aided the Musketeers in a 65-yard scoring drive to put them out in front 8-6.

Marshall was still very much in the game until Xavier quarterback Ralph Lane unleashed his fatal aerial to halfback Terry Meyer. The Big Green had tightened its defense and Xavier had a third and three situation deep in its own territory. This set the stage. With everyone expecting the visitors to crash the middle for the three needed yards, Lane rolled out and tossed a perfect bullseye to Meyer, who had eluded the Herd defenders.

This one play proved to be the straw that broke the back of the Marshall eleven. The Muskies were on top 14 to 6 and never in serious trouble afterward.

Bob Wagner led a last gasp drive in the fourth quarter but the attack sputtered and died on the defenders 20-yard line. Xavier took over on downs and ran out the clock.

All in all, it was a pretty dismal homecoming; the weather was miserable and to top it all off Marshall lost the game.

Now, when you get in there . . .

Look out for a kick, or a pass, or a run, or a punt, etc., etc.

I'm not jumpin' rope, man, kick it.

I told them not to let those receivers get behind them.

Little Green Ohio U, Tie

By WALT LEONHART
Co-Sports Editor

A never-say-die bunch of Marshall freshmen traveled to Athens, Ohio, Friday afternoon to meet the Ohio University frosh and returned home with a 28-28 tie to show for the day's work.

The Little Green, coached by Bill Chambers, was down 28-22 with only two minutes remaining and the hopes of all Marshall rooters dampened considerably when a fourth down pass play was knocked down and Ohio took over an Marshall's 48. On the first play from scrimmage Ohio's speedy halfback Clyde Thomas started to sweep around left end but found the going a little rough and was hit by two Little Green defenders. The ball popped into the air and Marshall's Malcolm Price gathered it in and was off to paydirt.

By the time Price was halfway to the goal, the Bobkitten realized the man carrying the ball had on a different colored jersey than they were wearing. By that time it was a little late and Malcolm crossed the goal some 15 yards ahead of any Ohio defender.

The outcome of the game didn't look too bright when Ohio took the opening kickoff and marched 68 yards for a touchdown.

After the Ohio TD the Bobkittens kicked off to Marshall and after failing to pick up a first down the frosh were forced to punt. But after four downs the Bobkittens couldn't get the needed 10 yards and they were forced (Continued on Page 8)

The extra point was good and the Little Green went ahead 8-6. But before the half ended Ohio marched 93 yards for the touchdown that netted it a 12-8 half-time bulge.

Marshall took the second half kickoff and started a drive of its own. The drive started on its own 35 and ended when Bruce cracked over for the score.
