Boards being formed

Judicial, appeal groups to hear student cases

By CHARLES FERGUSON
Staff reporter

"The forming of the Marshall University Judicial Board and an appeal board are in the making," according to Frank Julian, director of student financial aid, and acting dean of students.

The Marshall Judicial Board is made up of seven students and two faculty members and will be used to hear administrative cases against three students arrested in connection with bomb threats, Julian said.

He explained that as soon as the boards are named and the names are approved by Dr. Donald Dedmon, acting president, a workshop will be held to train the members.

Julian said that Student Body President Michael Gant will submit names to Dr. Dedmon and he will make appointments.

He said after the workshop is completed a written notice will be sent to the students involved notifying them of the date and time to appear, including a statement of University policies allegedly breached by them, and a brief description of the behavior constituting the incident.

The men are to meet with Julian before their hearings so he can explain the charges to them and inform them of their rights in the case.

Julian explained the Judicial Board members are appointed for a one year term, but can serve a maximum of two years if they are appointed to the board again by the president.

He said the Judicial Board can do one of six things in its cases. The board can acquit the student or find him not guilty; put him on warning; place him on disciplinary probation; suspend a student for a definite or indefinite period of time; expel the student, or compel him to reimburse the University for damages.

Julian pointed out the rights of a student at such a hearing.

He said students have the right to confront their accusers, call witnesses in their behalf, present evidence in their behalf, remain silent with no inference of guilt, cross examine plaintiff witnesses, and have an advisor from the University community.

Julian explained that Marshall has the burden of proof in presenting "clear and convincing evidence," and that the student is innocent until proven guilty.

If the Judicial Board finds a student guilty, the student can appeal to the Marshall Appeal Board. This board is composed of three students and two faculty members. Julian said the student must present his appeal in writing to the board which can make one of three decisions. The board can sustain the decision of the Judicial Board, or it can reverse the decision, or it can order a rehearing in front of the Judicial Board.

Julian said if the student still is found guilty, he can make a written appeal to the University president. In both appeal cases, the student must present written forms showing the respects in which he feels he was wronged.

Procedure stated for bomb threats

By ROGER DYER
Staff reporter

A new procedure for the length of time a building is closed because of bomb threats is reducing class time lost by students, according to Sgt. W. F. Donohoe of the West Virginia State Police.

"This is not a policy, but a procedure made on judgments of the University administration and both local and state police. The nature of the call determines the length of time the building is closed," said Sergeant Donohoe.

After a building is evacuated, a search is made and if nothing is found to indicate trouble, the building is then reopened, according to Sergeant Donohoe. "We hope that in future cases, the amount of time out of classes can be held to a minimum," he said.

Earlier, bomb threats have closed buildings for as long as 12 hours.

"Cooperative efforts are being made by all concerned to streamline procedures in bomb threat calls. Therefore the majority of students wanting an education will not be thwarted in their efforts by a minimal minority who interrupt this institution in its intended purpose," continued the sergeant.

Number 29 in the recent series of threats closed Science Hall for about 30 minutes Tuesday.

The case is under investigation and no comment would be made by the state police as to information regarding other investigations being made to determine the source of the calls.

Hearings for two students involved in action concerning bomb threats have been continued, according to Justice of the Peace Andy Kitchen.

Kitchen said the hearings, originally set for 2:30 p.m. Nov. 6, were continued until 2:30 p.m. Nov. 17 at the request of attorneys representing the men.

The two arrested men were Larry Lucian Conn, 21, Kistler sophomore, and William Beverlin, 18, Salem freshman. Both were released on a $1,000 bond each.

A 17-year-old juvenile also was arrested with Conn and Beverlin. His case is being handled by Cabell County Juvenile Court Judge Russell Daugherty.

Doug White, chief probation officer for Cabell County, said Monday that the juvenile's case still has not been heard.

A report from the Domestic Relations Court office Monday said that court action on this term's docket is running behind. The report said that was the reason the juvenile's case had not been heard and that no hearing date has definitely been set.

Sebastian Cabot, actor and television personality, will present a series of excerpts from literary works at 8 p.m. Thursday in Old Main Auditorium. He co-stars in the television series, "A Family Affair."

Cafeteria IDs given Thursday

Cafeteria identification cards for the second eight weeks of the semester are being distributed through Thursday in the lobby of South Hall dormitory, according to Gordon Yingling, director of food services.

To receive the new card a student must submit the first eight weeks card and a receipt for the second eight weeks room and board payment.

Gant undecided on running again

By GWEN DEAN
Staff reporter

Student Body President Michael Gant, Huntington junior, said events in the next month or so will determine whether he will seek reelection.

This year is the first time a president can succeed himself. Changes made in the constitution have permitted him to do so.

Gant said that he honestly didn't know about running for office again. "Naturally, if I thought I couldn't be elected I wouldn't run. If I find other students think I haven't done a good job, I don't think I should run again. I don't want to say if I'm drafted whether I will run because obviously, I have an interest in this job."

"It all depends on how much we get done and whether I think I can take all the headaches for another year. There are personal factors involved too; my fiancé and family aren't overjoyed at the amount of time I spend around here. I have to take that into consideration too."

In answer to the question "Is ISP dead?", Gant said "Right now it is certainly not dead. ISP is alive and well and doing a lot of work in the Senate and the Student Government as a whole." He said that a lot of people thought that since ISP candidates did not run in the elections this fall the party was dead.

"We saw so much criticism last spring that people thought we all of a sudden decided to form a political party and didn't give anybody else a chance to form a party. I thought that was absurd because we didn't stop anybody from forming one."

"It's ridiculous to me because we're on our initiative to form our party and they are on their initiative to form their party. No one chose to do this, so this fall we decided to sit out and see if a party would form and what developments would come about. I think competition is good. The NOW party has a lot of good people and has good ideas."

"This is what Marshall needed. We've never had a competitive type of party system here. If this party remains and ISP remains we might see the start of a viable two-party system at Marshall. This competition is exactly what we need for a viable Student Government."

Gant said that we need a two-party system and ISP will be in there kicking next spring. "Whether I'll be running for the party or someone else remains to be seen. If I run, it will be with ISP."

According to Gant, the biggest change in ISP will be its image. He said too many people got the idea that since it was an independent student party that it was for independents only. "Nothing could be further from the truth." He said that the party is for the independent thinking student with independent ideas.

"ISP is working for students as a whole. It is not for any type of faction."

An investigation of The Parthenon and Chief Justice was suggested in a letter read in Student Senate meeting last week by Joe Drummond, Huntington senior and commissioner of administrative affairs for Student Government.

"I'm not making any charges against The Parthenon or Chief Justice, but there is concern that there may be possible prejudice within the two," said Drummond.

Drummond's statement to Senate reads as follows:

"The October 9th issue of The Parthenon contained a front page article branding the N.O.W. party as ineffective and went on to describe, in somewhat vague terms, how Student Government has solved the many problems the N.O.W. party feels still exist.

"I believe that investigation will show that comments attributed in the article to Mike Gant, student body president, were not made by Mr. Gant and further were attributed to him expressly against his will.

"Secondly, I should like to point out that this Student Government statement was issued without the consent or approval of a number of Student Government officials, many of whom had no knowledge whatsoever of the statement prior to its publication, myself included.

"Student Government is supposedly a microcosm of the American system of government. The issuance of this statement, therefore is analogous to, for example, the President of the United States saying the government of the United States opposes the Democratic party. It is certainly unethical and perhaps unlawful.

"I personally resent any group within the Student Government speaking in my behalf without consulting me. In this particular case I feel that all in Student Government who so opposed the N.O.W. party should have identified themselves and had no right to speak for other members.

"I have received continuing complaints from two student organizations concerning The Parthenon and Chief Justice coverage. These complaints involve inability to have time and location of meetings publicized. In addition, both organizations feel that they were slighted in the Chief Justice in that one organization's picture was replaced by an unrecognized organization which professed a basically contradictory viewpoint and the other organization was afforded a page which many people feel also contradicted the basic beliefs of the organization.

"I make no charges but there is concern about possible bias within The Parthenon and Chief Justice. Therefore, I have decided to direct the student member of the Publications and Public Relations Committee to introduce this matter to that committee in order that a full investigation may be conducted."

Wayne Faulkner, Hurricane junior and editor-in-chief of The Parthenon, said in an interview Tuesday:

"There are no grounds for an investigation. We're willing for anyone to investigate us. We have nothing to hide.

"Concerning the article in The Parthenon on Oct. 9 giving a rebuttal on the N.O.W. party platform, Mr. Drummond says that statements were not made by Mr. Gant and were attributed against his will. Mike Gant called and asked that Student Government be allowed to make a rebuttal against the N.O.W. party criticisms of Student Government. The Parthenon felt we should do this to provide equal space for both sides.

"Incidentally, articles concerning N.O.W. party outnumbered its counterparts three to one.

"Mr. Drummond also says Student Government is a microcosm of the national government. I agree with him. But I disagree, however, when he says that Gant issuing a statement in rebuttal to the N.O.W. party is like saying the U.S. government opposes the Democratic party.

"I believe this is analogous to the situation of the President, who is a Republican, responding to charges against his administration by Democrats. This is to say, Gant can speak for Student Government, as Nixon can speak for the national government.

"Mr. Drummond says the article was certainly unethical and perhaps unlawful. I say it was the most ethical thing we could have done. And saying it's unlawful is ridiculous.

"And to Drummond's charges of bias in The Parthenon, there are no biases nor is any organization purposely discriminated against.

"Mary Martin, student representative on the Publication and Public Relations committee said she would bring the matter before the regular meeting of the committee. She said there wouldn't be any special investigation. I think even the review of these articles borders on news censorship. I think even their mention in the committee is unfounded."

Student Government Affairs Commission is attempting to organize campus guides for high school seniors visiting Marshall's campus, according to Jocelyne McCall, Glen Ellyn, Ill., senior, and commissioner.

ABORTION COMMITTEE

The Ad Hoc Committee to repeal the abortion law in West Virginia will meet Wednesday, Nov. 11 at 6:30 p.m. at the Charleston YWCA.

Contact Groups at CCC

Contact Groups will be featured this week at the Campus Christian Center along with the other regularly scheduled activities.

The Rev. George L. Sublette, Baptist campus pastor and head of the staff, will be the coordinator of these groups.

A group of eight to 10 students will meet at 3, 5, and 7 p.m. Monday through Thursday for 10 weeks in an effort to "communicate an awareness of the basic needs of people," according to Sublette.

He said, "We try to be alert to verbal and non-verbal communication in order to make each one in the group sensitive to self and to others."

Religious realities such as trust, reconciliation, hope, and love will be discussed during each group session, according to Sublette. He added that "they talk about who they are as persons, what they feel about life, and where they are going in an attempt to develop an awareness or sensitivity to other people."

Other programs at the center this week will be the faculty-student luncheon and the faculty-administration luncheon at noon each day.

The Catholic Community will hold Mass at 4:30 p.m. today led by Father Robert T. Scott, Catholic campus pastor. Catholic confession will be held at 5 p.m. and Mass at 6 p.m. Saturday.

A police-student seminar will be held at 3 p.m. Wednesday which will be the third in a series to discuss community and university needs.

Intercollegiate sports policy set for women

The Women's Physical Education Department would like to remind women students of the policy for intercollegiate competition that a student may participate as a member of only one team during any one sport season.

A person may go out for two sports at the same time, but a decision must be made between the two if she makes both varsity teams. Playing schedules overlap although practice times do not, so the decision must be made by the student.

Another announcement from the women's physical education department is the instructors decided to permit women physical education instructors to wear pant suits or dresses to class. Also varsity team members may wear either pant suits or dresses when traveling to games, although the coach of the particular sport has the prerogative to determine the attire her team wears.

Champs ousted by Tekes #One

Tau Kappa Epsilon No. 1 romped past the previously undefeated Champs, and Pi Kappa Alpha No. 1 stopped Alpha Sigma Phi in intramural flag football Monday. Sigma Phi Epsilon No. 2 led Lambda Chi Alpha No. 1 with 3:24 left to be played. The game was called because of darkness.

The unbeaten, untied and unscored-upon TKE's, led by John Snyder, South Charleston senior, scoring three touchdowns, crushed last year's intramural football champions, the Champs 22-0.

Watts, aided by a rugged Pike defense, kept the unbeaten Pikes tied for first place in the Central division with the TKE's.

The co-leaders of the Eastern division battled Monday in a game that was destined not to end. Sig Eps, led by the passing and running of quarterback Emil Ralbusky, Wheeling junior, held a 14-13 lead when the officials discontinued the game because of darkness.

MU tournament Dec. 18-19

The Fourth Annual Marshall Invitational Basketball Tournament will be conducted Dec. 18 and 19 at the Huntington Memorial Field House, according to Howard St. Clair, director of Alumni Affairs.

The Marshall University Alumni Association sponsors the tournament.

The three teams taking part in the contest in addition to Marshall are Holy Cross, Iowa State, and the University of Mississippi.

The first round schedule, Dec. 18 begins at 7 p.m. with Holy Cross against Mississippi. That game will be followed by Marshall and Iowa State, at 9 p.m.

On Saturday, Dec. 19, the consolation game will be played at 7 p.m. followed by the championship game at 9 p.m.

St. Clair said trophies will be awarded to the championship team and the runner-up team at court side following the championship game. Teams, coaches, school officials, tournament officials and some special guests will remain for the ceremony.

In addition, awards include a trophy for each member selected to the all tournament team and to the most valuable player as voted by the members of the press.

St. Clair said applications for reserved seat tickets may be made now either to the Marshall Athletic Department or

Tournament competition under way

The Association of College Unions tournaments are currently under way, according to Don Morris, union manager.

Competition in chess, with eight students entered, table tennis singles, with 16 entrants and table tennis doubles with seven two-man teams is now being held. Competition in pocket and rail billiards was held up when someone took the sign-up sheets the day before registration deadline.

The new sign-up deadline for billiards is Wednesday. "If more students don't sign up for rail billiards between now and the deadline, the tournament will be cancelled due to lack of interest," Morris said. Only two students had signed up as of Monday.

Financial Aid Office is formulating plans to pay student employees every two weeks instead of once a month, according to Terry L. Myers, financial aid officer.

To prepare for this change, the office will notify each student employed under the College Work-Study Program and each University and off-campus supervisor, that the Financial Aid Office will no longer be responsible for supervising student work loads, Myers said.

Myers said students are awarded College Work-Study funds of $300 to $700.

"As of Dec. 1, it will be the responsibility of each student and his supervisor to see that he does not work over his allocation. Any student uncertain as to the exact amount of money he has been awarded or the exact number of hours per week which he is supposed to work may contact the Financial Aid Office. We suggest that the departments keep the students within their original seven, 10 or 15 hour per week range."

Work-Study pay period to change

The new program means students and departments will have more flexibility in setting up work schedules, with a maximum of 15 hours of work per week, said Myers.

Myers said a student may keep track of the amount of money he has earned by the tab attached to each paycheck. "The Financial Aid Office will be available to each student and supervisor to advise them concerning the student's earnings at any time."

Vacation times for student employees are Christmas vacation, final weeks, semester break and Easter vacation.

Board raises Dedmon's salary

The West Virginia Board of Regents approved a motion Tuesday at Pipestem State Park to give Dr. Donald N. Dedmon acting president "commensurate" pay with his duties as long as he continues to act as president.

The motion is retroactive to Sept. 1 when Dr. Dedmon became acting president, after the resignation of Dr. Ronald H. Nelson Jr.

"I appreciate the thoughtful consideration of the Board," Dedmon said.

The board rejected a request from the West Virginia Union of Students for a meeting with the board. Madeline Stover, Beckley senior and student representative to the Board, said all the students wanted was "for someone to sit down and listen to them."

The Board instructed its staff to prepare enabling legislation to the January session of the legislature for the beginning of a network of formation of two-year community colleges through out the state.

The community college system would be completely separate from the university system but under the Board's control.

Funds for construction of a library at West Virginia Tech were approved in the amount of $1,756,980, this came after two previous rejections of excessive bids at earlier meetings.

No decision was made in reference to a new Marshall president.

Police commander to speak

Sgt. W. H. Donahoe, commander of the Cabell County State Police detachment, will speak on "State Police on the University Campus" at the fourth and final police-student seminar 3 p.m. today at the Campus Christian Center.

Donahoe's talk will center around the Nov. 8 disturbance, recent bomb scares, and how investigations of "subversive activities" on campus are run. Discussion between Donahoe and the audience will follow.

Gilbert Wilson, Kingwood sophomore and CCC student coordinator, said, "I think this is one of the most important seminars so far because, if there should be any other disturbance, it would be the state police who would move on the campus. I also wish more students would participate in this last seminar."

TV building now occupied

The move into the new Telecommunications Building has been completed with the exception of closed circuit television and WMUL-FM studios, according to Dr. Stephen D. Buell, director of educational television and radio.

Buell said the new facilities provide "more space in the television studios and control rooms, and we'll be able to do a better job than in the old music building."

He said new equipment is arriving all the time which will help make for a more "flexible operation."

A new console and turntables have been purchased for WMUL-FM and will be put into use when the station moves to the new building, said Buell.

He added that all the fundamental television equipment is already here and is being rapidly installed by engineers.

In citing other improvements in the broadcasting facilities Buell said that every area of the new building is "extremely well lighted." The control rooms for instance, are equipped with rheostatic lighting controls.

Buell also noted that experience in designing the Smith Hall offices revealed faculty offices were too small so the ones in the new building are "slightly" larger.

Buell said there are still a few "bugs" in the new building which will "take awhile to work out."

The major problem is the air conditioning system, which built over the FM and CCTV studios, and causes noise beyond broadcast tolerances.

Coeds report theft; car, television taken

Three Marshall coeds reported their apartment burglarized and a car stolen Tuesday between 2 and 7 a.m.

Shelia Davisson, Ravenswood junior, of 411 16th St., said that when she got up Tuesday morning she noticed "everything had been dumped out of our wallets and the radio and TV were gone."

Miss Davisson reported that she did not notice that her 1965 navy blue Mustang was missing until she called her mother, who suggested that she check to find her car keys.

Other residents of the apartment are Nancy Christman, Wykoff, N.J., junior, and Beverly Neal, Charleston sophomore.

Miss Christman said she heard noises on the balcony around 2 a.m. but didn't pay any attention to them. "Apparently they were waiting for us to go to bed," she stated.

Miss Davisson reported that chocolate milk was taken from the refrigerator, cigarette butts were left, and a purse was taken from the room in which they were sleeping. "It looked like they took their time," she said.

She added that the burglar(s) overlooked taking a suede coat, a raincoat, or credit cards.

Huntington City Police are investigating.

Student teacher seminars slated

A change in procedure for second semester student teaching seminars has been announced by Jack E. Nichols, coordinator of student teaching.

Set for Thursday and Nov. 19, both seminar's previously had to be attended by all student teaching applicants. As an aid to students, only one will now be required—elementary education on Thursday or secondary education on Nov. 19.

Held at 4 p.m. in Science Building Auditorium, the programs provide students with a chance to select schools at which they will student teach, to be sure all requirements have been met, and to ask questions.
