'Not out to get them,' prosecutor says

By DENISE GIBSON
and
GWEN DEAN
Staff reporters

"I just want the student body to know that we are not 'out to get them' but that we are interested in law enforcement and the protection of individual rights," Robert O. Ellis, Cabell County prosecuting attorney, said Wednesday.

Ellis said his office had not received notification that the Student Senate had drafted a resolution asking for amnesty for 11 Marshall students arrested during last Thursday night's disturbance.

Student Senate Tuesday night approved the resolution requesting that charges be dropped. It said:

"Be it enacted by the Student Senate that: Student Senate respectfully ask the Huntington Police Department and the City of Huntington to drop charges of inciting to riot that have been made against 11 Marshall University students in connection with last Thursday night's disturbance near the university. In doing so, we fully realize the responsibility of protection of life, property, and order that is carried by the police. However, we believe that such a move might reduce the tension and lessen hostility between the police and city, and the students."

The resolution was sent to the police department Tuesday. Police Chief G. H. Kleinknecht said Wednesday, however, that he had not received it.

Ellis said, "As prosecuting attorney of Cabell County, until the resolution is presented to me personally by the Student Senate, I have no comment to make as to what position my office will take."

He said further that he could not speculate as to whether the charges will be dropped. He added that his office would have to be presented some indication that students are willing to do something to correct the tense situation which currently exists.

In further action Tuesday night, Senate moved that the state Human Rights Commission be asked to investigate the activities leading up to and including the 7th, 8th and 9th of this month and passed a resolution commending campus police on the way they conducted themselves during the disturbance.

Homecoming '70 different

By TOMMIE DENNY
News editor

"We're trying a totally new thing this year for the Homecoming concert. It's going to be a 'do your thing' type of experience."

These were the words of Pat Harlow, Huntington senior and Homecoming coordinator, when asked what the "Festival of Sounds" on Oct. 23 was all about.

According to Miss Harlow, concert dress will be "grubbies." She suggested that those attending should bring a blanket or something to sit on, as no chairs will be available on the main floor. Those wishing to sit in the bleachers must go to the balcony.

The six-hour concert will be 6 p.m. to midnight, Oct. 23, at Memorial Field House.

Headlining the concert will be the Youngbloods, popular for their song "Get Together."

The group's album "Best of the Youngbloods" is listed in the "Hot 100" of Billboard. Their latest LP release is "Youngbloods Rock Festival."

The Omegas of Mansfield, Ohio, will be playing at the dance from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m., Oct. 24, at Memorial Field House. This seven-piece band and four singers are well-known for playing the "traditional hits of the Temptations, DelFonics, and Friends of Distinction," according to Rich Dunfee, Wheeling senior and Social Affairs commissioner.

Tickets for the concert and the dance may be purchased at Shawkey Student Union from noon to 2 p.m. and in the Twin Towers Cafeteria from 4 to 6 p.m. any weekday until Homecoming. The concert tickets are $3.50 per person and dance tickets are $2.50 per person. A book of tickets, including two concert and two dance tickets, may be purchased for $11.

"Tickets are going fast," according to Pam Sullivan, Richwood senior and ticket chairman. Tickets for the dance are limited to 600 persons.

Homecoming "kick-off" will be at the TGIF, 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday at the Electric Underground on Fourth Avenue. There is no admission charge, a band will be provided, and everyone will buy his own refreshments.

Cornfeld explained that he will relate art to "Modernism" through the use of slides. In his slides, covering the last 100 years in art, he plans to point out the use or non-use of modernistic tendencies. He also plans to relate art to "Modernism" today.

He also intends to describe problems artists have had in their work, as well as those areas in which the artists were particularly interested.

Observers in a riot could be arrested

Any person in the area of Thursday night's disturbance who failed to disperse could have been arrested and charged with inciting a riot, according to Dr. C. W. Curriss, director of personnel programs.

Dr. Curriss said that under the "riot law" no one is a bystander even though many students have claimed they were observers.

He said he visited the jail over the weekend, as did several other University administrators, and several students told him they were only observers. Dr. Curriss said public opinion of a "bystander" differs from that of law enforcement officials in that "anyone at the scene is considered a part of it under law."

Dr. Curriss said of the 24 persons arrested at the scene, 11 were Marshall students. Ten of the 11 students were charged with inciting a riot and the other was charged with being intoxicated.

FLU SHOTS FREE

Flu shots are still available to students at no charge at the Student Health Center, Room 1, Gullickson Hall.

The vaccine being used is a new type and has fewer side effects than others that have been used before.

Dr. Curriss explained that out of the 24 arrested, 18 were charged with inciting a riot, two for inciting a riot and resisting arrest, two for being intoxicated, one for driving while intoxicated, and another for carrying a concealed weapon.

He said he "had no facts whatsoever" concerning students reportedly being beaten by policemen while they were on their way back to dormitories.

Dr. Curriss said his office has not received word of students being released from custody after being arrested during the disturbance Thursday night.

Letter to the editor

TO THE EDITOR:

At last some of the Marshall students have taken a stand for a specific cause. BUT, the cause they are backing and the way in which they are demonstrating is really appalling.

If one is going to get behind a cause, we feel that poverty, war, inequality or pollution should certainly rank higher than the one these students have chosen.

Actions of some people last Thursday and Friday nights -- throwing rocks, breaking windows and making fire bombs -- are no way to right any injustices that some claimed have been perpetrated by law enforcement officials.

Most people pass through the rock throwing stage around the age of five or six. Likewise, burning and destroying property is similar to a young child's temper tantrum. Even if their motives were justified, their actions were not.

Even though the disturbance was not on the campus, it marred the image of Marshall in the community as well as parts of the nation.

We feel that the burning and destruction of property was totally uncalled for, and we, as many other students, hope that similar disturbances will not occur, and that the Marshall students can find a better cause to support in the future.

Sorority's to battle on Oct. 18

Pike's Peak, an annual event for sororities, will be at 11 a.m. Sunday by Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity at the central intramural field.

There will be 16 events ranging from the classic mud hunt to the usual 50 yard dash. Three events have been changed this year.

A minor change was made in the pie eating contest and consequently has turned into a pudding eating contest.

The water relay is now a Coke bottle chug. The relay previously took two girls but has now been changed to one drinking from a coke bottle instead of a glass.

The pig chase has been replaced by a shoe race in which the competing girls grab shoes from a bag and run a designated distance.

Each sorority will enter a girl for Miss Pike's Peak who will be judged by members of the fraternity, and each sorority will pick a girl from their group who they feel has represented them best in competition for the All Pike's Peak Team.

Other rules are explained on event sheets, and rules will also be explained at the beginning of an event.

For the past two weeks, coaches and teams have been getting in shape and practicing the upcoming events.

The winning sorority will receive a trophy and a TGIF with the Pikes.

Quarterback plays frosh split-end

By CHUCK LANDON
Staff reporter

Reggie Oliver, freshman football player from Tuscaloosa, Ala., threw 37 touchdown passes in two years of high school football. But, Oliver may not throw another pass this season.

When the Little Herd defeated Potomac State last Friday, Oliver played split-end the entire game.

Oliver said Freshman Football

Coach Gail Parker asked him to play split-end because of the numerous injuries on the team.

"I took it as a means of helping the team," said Oliver. "But, I'd rather be playing quarterback," he added.

"I don't have any idea if I'll be playing anymore quarterback this year," said Oliver.

Oliver may not play anywhere Friday when MU's frosh travels to the University of Kentucky.

He suffered a sprained ankle while pursuing a Potomac defensive back who had made an interception.

Oliver said he has been attending practice, but that he hasn't been able to do much.

Other players sidelined with injuries are Dave Romano, Clarksburg; Dan Polcyn, Gallipolis, Ohio; and Dave McCoy, Matewan.

Oliver became Druid High School's starting quarterback in the second quarter of his first game as a junior.

He went on that season to throw 22 touchdown passes and pile up 1,459 yards passing.

Although Oliver played on a weaker team as a senior, he still managed to toss 15 scoring passes.

Oliver, 6-2 and 180 pounds, received scholarship offers from Alabama A&M, Knoxville, Jackson State, and Alcorn

A&M, among others.

"All the credit for the win over Potomac should be given to the defense," said Oliver.

He also praised the offense for their 96 yard touchdown drive.

Oliver, co-captain of the frosh, feels the team hasn't played up to their potential.

"Like the score in the Ferrum game, the score against Potomac doesn't reflect the kind of team we have."

New faces expected as basketball drills open

Approximately 20 prospects are expected to report for pre-season basketball practice today in Gullickson Hall.

The opening of drills marks the beginning of the first full season for head Coach Stewart Way, who served as acting head coach following the recruiting controversy and resulting NCAA probation.

New faces will dot the Herd roster this year including high-scoring Tyrone Collins and ball-handling ace Mike D'Antoni from the freshman team. Other new faces include Eugene Lee, who returns after a year's absence resulting from a motorcycle accident. Barry Driscoll, a transfer from the University of Detroit, Bill Bertelam, who red-shirted last year because of a knee injury, and junior college transfers Gary Orsine and Willie Wilcox.

Heading the list of returnees are Russell Lee, who averaged over 25 points per game as a sophomore, Bob DePathy, spark plug guard of last year's team, versatile Blaine Henry and two year regular center Dave Smith.

Others expected to report are John Sark, last year's freshman center, and possibly senior Rick Turnbow.

Freshman Coach Dan D'Antoni reports that he expects 21 men to report.

All persons interested in freshman basketball must report to Gullickson Hall 6 p.m. today for physicals.

3 Frosh hurt, out for UK game

Marshall's Little Green football team will be without the services of three and possibly four starters when it travels to Lexington Friday for a 4 p.m. encounter with the University of Kentucky freshmen.

Definitely out of action is Dave Romano, Clarksburg freshman, who underwent knee surgery Wednesday morning. Romano's injury also kept him from playing in the game against Potomac State Junior College. Also out of action are Mike Wetzel, Fremont, Ohio, freshman, who sustained a broken wrist and Reginald Oliver, Tuscaloosa, Alabama with knee and ankle injuries.

Freshmen football coach Gail Parker, said even though John Johnstonbaugh suffered a foot laceration recently he may still be able to play but will not be up to par.

Kentucky has won its last game, nipping the University of Tennessee frosh, 19-14, in a Southeastern Conference contest. MU freshman coach Gail Parker was impressed with Kentucky's showing against Tennessee and is expecting a tough game, especially from the Wildkittens quarterback and a strong running back.

4 intramural teams undefeated

Four teams have engineered 15 victories between them to remain undefeated after two weeks of intramural activities.

As of Wednesday, Champs and TKE #1 were tied for the Western division lead with 4-0 records. In yesterday's western action, TKE #1 romped to a 26-0 win over Alpha Sigma Phi #1 and Champs shut out Cloud Nine 19-0. In that game Jeff

Roberts, Parkersburg sophomore, accounted for all but one point of the score as he threw for two touchdowns and ran for a third. The first score came with a bit of razzle-dazzle when Dave Quisenberry, Hinton senior, lateraled the ball to Gary Stewart, Parkersburg sophomore, for the TD. Other games in the division saw South Hall #1 down SAE #2 19-6 and Pike #1 win by forfeit over Mother Truckers #2 to give them second place with a 3-0 record. Mother Truckers #2 are no longer a member of the Western division leaving only eight teams in contention for the division title.

In the Central division only one game was played as B.U.S. defeated KA #1 6-0 to knock them from the ranks of the undefeated. In the Eastern division only one game was played as SAE #1 blanked KA #2 19-0 to hike their record to 4-0 and to lead the division. In that contest Dan Rule, Huntington junior, threw scoring passes to Jack Clark, Weirton senior and Tom Clark, Weirton junior. Chuck Chaney, Huntington junior, ran back a punt return 85 yards to highlight the scoring.

In today's action, only two games are scheduled. Crusaders meet KA #1 at Gullickson Hall field and Pike #2 meet B.U.S. at the intramural field. Both games are to be played at 5:30 p.m.

Bobcat star is MU coach

Joe Carbone, 22, of Elkland, Pa., newly-appointed physical education graduate assistant, also serves as MU assistant baseball coach.

Carbone attended Ohio University where he played three years of varsity baseball. Last year as a senior, Carbone was captain of the OU baseball squad.

OU's Bobcats, with Carbone hitting .331 at second base, finished the 1969 season with an impressive 38-5 won-lost record. Ohio then went to the college world series, where the team upset number-one ranked Southern California before losing in the semi-finals. Southern California won the championship.

Carbone said he came to Marshall for his graduate work because there is a regular assistant baseball coach employed by OU. He also said Ohio has cut its budget this year and his chances to be an OU graduate assistant were slim.

Commenting on MU's baseball potential, Carbone said Marshall can be as good as any team OU played in last year's regular season.

Carbone described Baseball Coach Jack Cook as an open minded coach, who is great at working with his players.

"I've played for a lot of coaches, but Coach Cook has the finest rapport with his players of any coaches I have ever been associated with."

State black organization proposed

A statewide organization for black college students was proposed Tuesday night at a BUS meeting by a counselor for the Board of Regents.

Board names new director

Dr. Russell P. Hall was appointed as director of Marshall's Student Health Services, Tuesday, by the West Virginia Board of Regents.

Dr. Hall has been with the University of Oklahoma health services for the past year and had a private practice in the Chicago area before entering the field of student health.

He received his Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Louisville and did graduate work at Roosevelt University, Loyola University and Northwestern University. He received a Bachelor of Science degree in Medicine and Doctor of Medicine at the University of Illinois College of Medicine.

He has served as a Chief Resident, Chairman of the Department of General Practice and been a member of the Executive Committee of a hospital in Illinois. The past five years he has devoted his practice to Internal Medicine, Diagnosis, and Counseling.

He entered the student health practice "because I preferred to work with young people. The rapport which I have established with them has been most gratifying, and my experience in clinical medicine and private practice has proved to be beneficial."

Dr. Hall will be arriving on campus this week and will

Oscar Patrick, a graduate of West Virginia University, said the organization could be patterned after BUS and the Black Unity Organization probably begin his work Monday, according to Dr. Constantine W. Curris, director of student personnel programs.

Dr. Hall's appointment brings the staff at the health service to one full time and one part-time physicians, two full time nurses, one assistant to the doctor and a secretary.

Dr. Hall is 48, married and has three daughters, one in graduate school, one in undergraduate studies, and the other a sophomore in high school. He and his wife will be staying in Twin Towers temporarily.

(BUO) of West Virginia University.

The first state convention will be held in February at Morgantown and several representatives will be sent from each state college, according to Patrick. At the convention one school will be selected to publish the statewide newsletter.

Patrick said that the purpose of the group would be to provide support to the separate college chapters and to "offer help to high school students in the state, help to people in the communities, and most of all to help the black students in the colleges."

Black students were encouraged by Kenneth Blue, counselor of the Counseling and Testing Center, to attend a meeting conducted by Dr. Robert Mason of WVU concerning WVU's graduate rehabilitation program. The meeting will be next Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Smith Hall Room 154. The program offers free tuition and stipend living allowances.

It was also decided that the after-party for Homecoming would be open only to Marshall students, their guests, and alumni. Tickets must be bought at the Student Relations center by Wednesday (except alumni tickets). Students must show their identification cards and sign for their guests. Prices for tickets are $1.50 single and $2.50 couple. Townspeople and alumni are also being asked for donations.

Black women were reminded by the Miss BUS committee that the filing deadline for Miss BUS is Friday. Rules for the contest are: Only Marshall students are eligible; women are responsible for the purchase of all clothing worn in the contest; contestants must not be running for any other title at the time; points will be given on talent, personality, and general appearance; and only seniors are eligible for Miss BUS (contestants from the other classes will be picked for attendants).

UNITED FUND DRIVE

The United Fund Drive will be held on campus this Thursday and Friday, and for the first time the event will be coordinated by Student Government.

Jocelynne McCall, Glen Ellyn, Ill., senior and Student Government Affairs Commissioner, will act as coordinator of the drive.

Novice debaters

Morehead bound

Novice debate teams will enter their first tournament Friday and Saturday at Morehead State University, Morehead, Ky., according to Jacqueline White, instructor of speech and assistant debate coach.

The first and second novice teams will participate in the four-round tournament concerning the National Intercollegiate Debate Topic: "Resolved: That the Federal Government adopt a program of compulsory wage and price controls."

The first debate team consists of Charlene Miller and Paul Dick, Huntington freshmen, arguing for the affirmative side of the topic, and Mary Stout, Marietta freshman, and Bruce Tucker, South Point freshman, debating the negative view.

Members of the second team are Jessie Cook, Huntington freshman, and Joseph Bundy, Bluefield freshman, on the affirmative side, and William Beverlin, Salem freshman, and Steven Fleming, South Charleston freshman, on the negative.

Marshall's participants on the National Discussion Question have not been named.

FOOD COMMITTEE

Two representatives from each dormitory will be selected to serve on a food committee to meet with cafeteria management to discuss student complaints and suggestions for improved food services, according to Warren S. Myers, director of housing.
