   In Dr. Kopp’s absence, Provost Dr. Sarah Denman stated that:

   - The start of the Strategic Planning process was Dr. Kopp’s request for SWOT (Strengths, Weaknesses, Opportunities, and Threats) analysis by university departments. The timeline for the process begins next week with goals of having a first draft prepared by the end of November; a second draft in December to include comments by community forums; and the final presentation to the Board of Governors and the West Virginia Legislature in January 2006. The process will include a variety of formats and opportunities for input by university personnel and the community.
   - Dr. Kopp has a vision for the strategic planning process, called “Aiming for Perfection,” which is to commit ourselves to becoming better. There are four aims of the vision, (1) to increase the human intellectual capacity and the resources of West Virginia and the region; (2) to expand service throughout the entire university and the communities we serve; (3) to advance inquiry, innovation, and creativity, and to promote the discovery of knowledge; and (4) to broaden the university’s role in economic development.
   - The President has requested a collection of environmental scans to look at the institutions internal processes to determine how our internal environment will look when visited by the Higher Learning Commission North Central visit in April 2006.
   - The President requested a consulting firm, Noel-Levitz, to prepare a gap analysis to review the current position of the institution as to where we are in our future goals in regards to enrollment, recruitment, and retention. Recommendations were made and are being implemented.
