VII. Report by Howard Aulick, Research

Dr. Howard Aulick presented an overview of Marshall’s research activity emphasizing its growth, growing pains, and goals. The growth was described as a four-fold increase in total annual revenue from grants and contracts from 1989 ($4 million) to 2004 (anticipated to exceed $40 million). He pointed out that over 450 faculty, staff and students are currently supported by research funding. The growing pains were considered (1) increasing demands for research administration – MURC has about half the staff recommended, (2) accelerating compliance requirements – especially in human research, (3) increasing non-federal match obligations of EPSCoR grants, and (4) increasing maintenance costs of a growing cadre of sophisticated research equipment. Dr. Aulick said the treatment must be increased research and associated commercialization revenues in order to invest in the greater supportive administrative and technical infrastructure.
