PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

More Observations on the Organization
by Alice Brown

While I had expected to relinquish this space to John Stephenson's response to my comments in the last Appalink, the most recent meeting of the Steering Committee presented a possibility which I need to direct to your attention. I will, therefore, use this space to encourage you to read this issue carefully.

First, John's comments are included below. Please give them your full consideration and hope--with me--that he is right about the strength of Berea's commitment to its and our heritage.

Second, please review inside this Appalink the proposals submitted by West Virginia University and Appalachian State University in response to the call by the officers and Steering Committee for offers to provide fiscal oversight and administrative stability to the ASA. My vote as president counts for little. The real voice in this matter belongs to all of you--especially those of you who have supported the ACA with your time and expertise for many years, those of you who have a personal as well as a professional commitment to the Association. Please read the proposals from West Virginia and Appalachian State carefully and come to the March meeting prepared to consider this matter.

Between now and then, if you have an alternate proposal to submit for consideration at the March meeting, please send it to me no later than February 15.

Happy New Year to all. May this year be a productive and happy one for both us and the Appalachian Studies Association. I'll look forward to our gathering at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and University in March.

LETTER TO ASA FROM BEREA PRESIDENT JOHN STEPHENSON

Several people have called my attention to Alice Brown's editorial comment in the most recent issue of Appalink [Fall 1993] in which she wonders in print whether Berea College will retain its commitment to Appalachia after Loyal Jones, John Stephenson, and Dick Drake are gone.

Let me be reassuring about this. First, we're not gone! Dick still has an office on campus, Loyal still helps with various Berea programs and will retain an affiliation with the College, and John Stephenson is still alive and intends to live in Berea indefinitely.

Second, two or three individuals do not a commitment make. Berea will continue to offer its wide variety of programs and resources devoted to the region: the Weatherford-Hammond Collection, the Appalachian Center, the summer Appalachian Seminars, the Traditional Music Festival, the Appalachian Humor Festival, Students for Appalachia, the New Opportunity School, the Brushy Fork Institute, the Appalachian Fund, and many others, not the least of which is the continued offering of a high-quality baccalaureate program for the people of the region at no tuition cost (it remains College policy that at least 80% of our students must come from Appalachia).

Third, we're very happy to inform readers of Appalink that Helen Lewis is now on board in Berea as Director of the Appalachian Center.

Alice asks, "on whom can we depend" if not Berea? I don't think we should depend on any one person or institution to carry the load of offering quality higher education, Appalachian studies, outreach, development, community organizing, or whatever. But you certainly can depend on Berea, among others.

Appalachia has been on our agenda for well over one hundred years. It won't slide off our plate anytime soon.
PROPOSAL referred to in Alice Brown’s PRESIDENT’S MESSAGE:
SUBMITTED BY WEST VIRGINIA UNIVERSITY REGIONAL RESEARCH INSTITUTE
Draft Prepared by Ronald L. Lewis
for the APPALACHIAN STUDIES ASSOCIATION

The Regional Research Institute at West Virginia University agrees to serve as the headquarters for the Appalachian Studies Association and provide headquarters, conference, and journal services along the general lines indicated below. This proposal is predicated on the 1993-94 budget as a minimum level of support (see spreadsheet below).

HEADQUARTERS:

The Regional Research Institute will become the institutional administrative headquarters for the ASA and provide the following services:

* Maintain the ASA mailing list
* Printing and mailing of newsletter, call for papers, preliminary conference program, and conference program
* Banking through the WVU Research Corp., and auditing of books

CONFERENCE:

The ASA or host institution will assume on-site responsibility for services at the annual conference.

* ASA or host institutions assume responsibility for on-site personnel, tickets, registration, etc.
* ASA and host institutions take responsibility for conference organization, operation, and preparation of information related to the conference. The ASA/RRI office will design, print, and mail the call, preliminary schedule, and conference schedule, as well as handle preregistration.
The Regional Research Institute will assume responsibility for the Association's journal following these general guidelines:

- RRI will provide copies to members of the ASA based on the budget projected for the journal in 1993-94 ($3900), which includes printing, copyediting, layout, proofing, and miscellaneous related costs.
- The 1993 issue was distributed to 332 people at a cost to the Association of $11.75 per person ($3900 divided by 332). Library subscriptions appear to be negligible. The editor and the RRI will undertake to increase the subscription base especially among libraries which might create the funds to produce two or three issues per year without increasing the cost to members.
- ASA will distribute the journal to those who attend the conference for this price, but RRI will also develop a subscriber list. The money raised from subscriptions will be used to expand the number of issues to at least two (2) per year, perhaps three (3) in the future. Monies raised from subscriptions will be reinvested in the journal.
- Ron Lewis will serve as editor and appoint a revolving editorial board to evaluate manuscripts submitted for publication. The ASA Board will appoint a journal advisory committee.
- Journal editor and editorial board will need independence in the operation of the journal.
- Journal will become The Journal of Appalachian Studies, and the cover will carry the notice that the journal is published by RRI for the ASA.
- Journal will be opened for submission of articles but will continue to use conference papers as a base for selecting articles.
- Journal will be multi-disciplinary in its selection of articles, board of editors, and general publishing orientation. It will attempt to provide a disciplinary balance in its selections over the long term.
- RRI supplies office support for the journal, and an experienced graduate editorial assistant. Graduate student volunteers and an editing intern will be utilized when available.

NEW BOOKS IN
APPALACHIAN STUDIES

Modernizing the Mountaineer
PEOPLE, POWER, AND PLANNING IN APPALACHIA
REVISED EDITION
David E. Whisnant
Now available with a substantial new introduction, this classic study is a passionate and provocative critique of the enterprises and organizations that have sought to develop Appalachia from the close of the nineteenth century through the early 1970s. "Required reading . . . Whisnant's use of the politics of culture as an interpretive tool is brilliant."—H. Tyler Blethen, Western Carolina University

PROPOSED POLICIES AND PROCEDURES
ASA Journal

Selection of Papers
Each year the Journal of the Appalachian Studies Association will be edited by the program chair of that year's conference. Papers will be selected from those presented at that year's Appalachian Studies Conference. The editor and managing editor will select a final deadline date for papers to be submitted. Papers not conforming to the standards set in the style sheet (including length, citation format, or other requirements) may be rejected at the discretion of the editor.

The Journal will be refereed in 1994 and thereafter. The process will be as follows:

The editor will review all papers and reject all those which she/he regards as clearly inappropriate or inadequate. Letters (and manuscripts and diskettes if accompanied by a self-addressed-stamped envelope) should be sent to authors of those papers which are not selected for further review immediately upon determination that they will not be used.

The editor will select reviewers from the program committee and others in the Appalachian Studies community.

The editor will send each paper to at least two reviewers, removing the author's name from the papers to allow for a blind reading. The editor will try to ensure that no reader (besides her/himself) will read more than 10 papers and that no two reviewers will read the same papers as each other. The editor will review all papers and will thus be the third reviewer.

Reviewers will provide editor with a list of paper titles reviewed and a recommendation to publish or not to publish each title. In addition the reviewers should rank the papers which they recommend for publication. Brief comments should be included regarding research methodology, documentation, analysis, style, and suggestions for changes.

The editor will compile all rankings and comments by reviewers and select no more than 15 for publication. Final decision on whether or not to include a paper rests with the editor. Review of work and selection should be completed if at all possible by June 1.

The editor will notify all authors as soon as selection has been made (and return articles and diskettes to those whose papers are not to be used if they are accompanied by a SASE).

Any papers that are selected but that require substantive changes (cutting, rewriting, reorganizing) will be returned by the editor to the author with detailed instructions with a deadline for completion of changes. If changes are not completed on time or satisfactorily, the editor may reject the paper.

Complimentary Copies
Contributors will receive their copies as part of the registration at the ASA Conference. If a contributor does not attend the conference, the managing editor will mail a copy after the conference.

Complimentary copies of the Journal will be distributed to: (1) Contributors - in case of multiple authors of a single piece, each author will receive a copy of the Journal; (2) Editor (Program chair), managing editor, copy editor, designer; (3) Archives of Appalachia, ETSU, and Archives at Berea College; (4) MLA, ERIC/CRESS and any other service that may want to index the Journal; (5) Library of Congress (2 copies) (for copyright); (6) Reviewers, upon request (at the discretion of the managing editor); and (7) five copies to the Center for Appalachian Studies and Services for distribution to funding agencies, university president and other bigwigs.

Sales
The Center for Appalachian Studies and Services and The Appalachian Consortium will sell and distribute the Journal at the following rates: $8.00 for single issues; $2.00 for handling (each order), and $1.00 shipping (each Journal). For three or more issues, there is a 20% discount (making each Journal $6.40).

The Center and the Consortium will be responsible for collecting and paying state sales taxes.

Subscriptions should be addressed to the Center and cost $11.00 per year for one issue ($8.00 for the Journal and $3.00 for shipping and handling).

Once a year, at the first steering committee meeting after the Conference, the Center and the Consortium will present a sales report to the Committee showing current inventory, sales for the previous year, and income for the ASA and for the Center or Consortium.

The Center or Consortium will receive 30% of full-price sales and 20% of discounted sales. The ASA will receive 70% of full-price sales and 30% of discounted sales.
Bookstores or other retailers that want to sell the Journal will receive the same discounting. Journals will be provided on consignment, provided retailer gives a resale number and written promise to return unsold copies.

Copyright

Managing editor will be responsible for applying for copyright to Library of Congress.

Copyright will be made in the name of the ASA. The managing editor may grant permission to reprint, requesting a fee when it is appropriate to do so (for instance, when an essay is to be included in a textbook).

Printing

The managing editor will obtain at least three quotes from printers for printing of the Journal. Because of its commitment to the advancement of the Appalachian region, all printing business must be located within the Appalachian region.

PREVIEW OF THE 1994 ASA CONFERENCE:
March 11-13, 1994 Virginia Tech, Blacksburg, Virginia

NEWS FROM ELIZABETH FINE, PROGRAM CHAIR

This year’s program will have 40 sessions, most with three or four presenters. The plenary program, “Making Ourselves Heard: A Roundtable Discussion on How Appalachians Can Speak With a More United Voice” (Saturday morning, from 8:30-10 a.m.) will include Jim Branson, Steve Fisher, Sue Ella Kobak, Gurney Norman, and Jean Speer and others.

An extended session on the controversial Pulitzer-Prize winning play The Kentucky Cycle is scheduled for 3:00-5:00 p.m. Friday. Friday’s reception, in the Armory Art Gallery, will celebrate the opening of “Chilhowie Vessels: The Ceramics of Georgia Blizzard.”

Archie Green will be this year’s keynote speaker, with an important business meeting (to discuss/vote on the proposals--included in this issue of Appalink) scheduled for the Saturday luncheon. Saturday night’s entertainment is a square dance, with music by the Bowshakers and clogging by the Blacksburg Hoorah Cloggers.

Attention Steering Committee Members:
We need to meet at VPI on Friday, March 11, 12:00-3:00 p.m.

The Appalachian Center of Berea College is planning and coordinating a Symposium on Sustainable Development to be held at Berea College on April 12-13, 1994. Cooperating in this will be other Berea departments such as Agriculture, Economics, Brushy Fork Institute, New Opportunity School for Women and Students for Appalachia. Other groups are also working with us in the planning and development of the symposium: MACED, Local Governance Project and Community Farm Alliance.

David B. Brooks, Director, Environmental Policy Program, Environment and Natural Resources Division, International Development Research Centre, Ottawa, Canada will be the keynote speaker to help us define and understand the implications of the concept Sustainable Development.

We hope to involve classes, community groups, and policy makers in dialogue about how to plan a sustainable future for rural communities.

For more information, contact Helen Lewis, Director, Appalachian Center, Berea College, Berea, KY 40404. 606-986-9341.

Berea College Appalachian Center will hold its 21st annual summer course in Appalachian Studies, June 13 - July 1, 1994. The course, Appalachian History and Literature, will be taught by Wilma Dykeman and Ron Eller, outstanding writers and teachers of the region. Additional lectures will be presented by Loyal Jones, George Ella Lyon, Jim Wayne Miller, Gurney Norman, Alan DeYoung and Helen Lewis. Three hours of graduate or undergraduate credit will be available through the University of Kentucky. Partial scholarships are available to educators, making the cost only $375 including tuition, room and board. Full cost is $550. A $25 application fee is required. For more information contact the Appalachian Center, Box 2336, Berea College, Berea, KY 40404.

Do you teach an Appalachian Studies course in the humanities or sciences? Helen Lewis, Director, Appalachian Center at Berea College would like to hear from you. * Submit no more than three poems of 32 lines or less each or one short story of no more than 3000 words.
* Work must be original and may not have been previously published or have won a prize previously.
* Any style, form, or subject is permitted, but all entries must pertain to Appalachia in some way.
* All manuscripts should be typed and double spaced. Good quality dot matrix print is acceptable.
* For each poem or story, include a separate cover page with name, address, phone number, title of the piece, and a few lines about the author (to use for a contributor's note if the piece is selected). The first page of each entry should also include the title, but the writer's name should not appear on the entry itself.
* The entrance fee is a one-year membership in the Center for Appalachian Studies and Services ($10), which includes three issues of Now and Then. Those who already have a membership paid through December 1994 need no further entry fee (though if one is included, membership will be extended for an additional year).
* Entries must be postmarked by March 1, 1994. Please note if Center membership has been paid previously. Manuscripts will not be returned.
* The competition will be judged by the editors of Now and Then and by independent finals judges, noted Appalachian writers whose identity will be announced when the awards are made.
* Center for Appalachian Studies and Services staff are not eligible to enter this contest.
* Winning entries and honorable mentions will be published in the summer 1994 issue of Now and Then (as space allows).

Appalachian Studies Award: The University Press of Kentucky announces the reinstatement of its Appalachian Studies Award, a $1,000 prize for the best book-length manuscript about the Appalachian region. The study may deal with any aspect of Appalachia, and writers in a range of fields—literature, the arts, folklore, anthropology, history, political science, economics, sociology, geography—are invited to enter the competition. The prize-winning manuscript will be published by the University Press of Kentucky.

The deadline for submissions for this year's award is October 15, 1994. To be eligible, manuscripts cannot be under review with another publisher or awards committee while being considered for this competition, nor can significant portions have been published previously. Manuscripts should be about 100,000 words in length, though longer or shorter studies will be considered. Works of fiction, poetry, and drama are not eligible, and dissertations should be revised before submission.
