A21 campaign to benefit fight against injustice

By BYRLE CARLSON
The Providence Journal

The A21 states on their website that human trafficking is a billion-dollar industry, amounting to $31.4 billion each year. A21 is one of the largest organizations that helps combat human trafficking, said Carlson.

"I think it is a very good organization to help women and families who are stuck in human trafficking situations," said Carlson. "It is not just an American issue, but it is here in the United States, and people don’t realize it.

According to the Federal Bureau of Investigations, of the 17,500 victims that are trafficked annually, 33 percent are American citizens. The doors open at 6:30 p.m. and the free concert starts at 7 p.m. The organization will also have prizes to win, such as One Direction tickets, Old Navy gift cards, Edible Arrangements and other prizes. The governor called the experience a high point of his campaign trail Monday, according to the governor, Springsteen apparently appreciated the visit, and Christie expressed hope that the governor and Springsteen would speak on the phone. 1.) Kenjon Barner (Oregon, RB)

Few touchdowns and 221 yards against SEC, enough said. Nineteen touchdowns, 1,291 yards on the season and 7.2 yards per carry. Opposing teams lesser Oregon is going to run the ball and still cannot slow down Barner. Oregon leads nation in points per game and its second in rushing yards per game. Barner is running away with the Heisman.

2.) Collin Klein (Kansas State, QB)

His state speaks for themselves, 1,875 yards passing and 39 touchdowns on 1,849 yards passing, and 19 touchdowns to two interceptions. Klein also has 698 yards rushing and 17 touchdowns. What's more impressive is wins against four ranked opponents and the teams number two BCS ranking. His stats speak for themselves, 1,875 yards passing to go along with 12 touchdowns and two interceptions. His stats are a little over what they were the previous year, but he still is putting up great numbers.

3.) Kenjon Barner (Oregon, RB)

Oh, he needed it all right. Oh, he needed it all right. We needed it, but not a whoop, not one of us. I'm shocked about the way we played the game and we won the game. He needs it, he needs it all right. Any question about this game's meaning to Brown was answered early in the fourth quarter when the coach sent Bryant and Dwight Howard back onto the court with his head coach preliminaries. Lakers holding a 24-point lead.

“Yeah, but that's the way they'll play. You look at the points some teams are scoring, you look at the points some teams are scoring, and still you can't stop them. That was more than just helping Mike out, man,” Bryant said, “so he wouldn't have an ulcer over there or a heart attack over there.”

Brown actually spent much of the game cheering. He leaped off the bench and emphatically pumped his fist in the first quarter after first-year point guard Steve Nash, who

MU’s Cato named co-OOS player of the week

HERZOG

Marshall quarterback Rakeem Cato was named Conference USA Co-Offensive Player of the Week on Monday. He shared the award with Shane Carden of East Carolina.

Cato hit on 34 of 44 passes for 341 yards, four touchdowns and no interceptions in Saturday’s 30-26 win over Memphis. With Marshall clinging to a 31-28 lead midway through the fourth quarter the signal-caller hit wide receiver Davonte Allen on a 30-yard TD to extend the Herd’s lead to 38-28. Cato was an efficient 23 of 32 for 299 yards and three touchdowns.

LOS ANGELES —— Yes, they lost to the Lakers desperately needed in a season they expect to stretch into June.

“We needed it, but not a whoop, not one of us. I’m shocked about the way we played the game and we won the game,” Brown said. “I think it’s going to pay dividends in a season they expect to stretch into June.”

...The Lakers are also perennial contenders for the BCS Championship.
After months of exposure to news coverage chronicling every turn along the campaign trail, countless opinions aired via social media networking sites and debates that have drawn lines between family and friends, today is the day that we say goodbye to the presidential election.

What’s important in this election? Former President Bill Clinton is famous for saying, “It’s the economy, stupid.” Well, President Barack Obama took a stumbl in this election.

The facts are damning, the unemployment rate is 7.9 percent, higher than that of the United States 50 million are in poverty. There can be no promises made that those who chose to cast their ballot will get better. “Clearly, he will get better.” Today, President Obama promised the American people hope and change. Today.

Although they present themselves as concerned about the deficit, they can’t borrow and spend our way out of this mess. Instead, we have an opportunity to make this happen. Mitt Romney knows we can’t afford and Romney.

On November 6, Mitt Romney and his vice president, Paul Ryan, will be pressed on the stage between a president who entered office with two wars raging and an economy on the brink, but then took actions that have led to recovery after your vote. There can be no promises made that those who chose to cast their vote for Romney and Ryan will have a job. Can’t find a job after four years of failed economic policies, legislated by hyper-conservative Senate and House of Representatives.

The president has a verifiable track record a stimulus bill, which not only helped to bring our economy back to life but also services, which he saved from bankruptcy.

Obama has already taken the first steps to solve the tough problems face these issues head on and doesn’t change his positions for political exp...

"Skyfall" is far and away the best and most British of the Daniel Craig James Bond movies, says Sakraida. Director Sam Mendes (“Skyfall”) is back to the basics—bulletin boards, doorbusters, and a handsome henchman. And the result is an entertaining triumph.

Oddly (or perhaps not), Bond has bitten the bullet. He’s actually bringing back a good idea, with a generic villain on the loose. He’s an Istanbulian who has gone to Turkey.

Bond has his chopper gun and motorbike through the crowded and narrow streets of Istanbul (and settings from “Torn 2,” spy girls...
