Obama projected winner of 2012 Election

By BISHOP NASH

CHARLESTON — Earl Ray Tomblin will remain governor of West Virginia following his defeat of Republican challenger Bill Maloney in Tuesday’s election. The Democratic incumbent from Chapmanville, W.Va., celebrated his victory with supporters at the Charleston Town Center Marriott in downtown Charleston.

“After four campaigns in 18 months, I have the great honor and great fortune to have six more years to fight for you.”

Tomblin said.

Tomblin came into the governorship in 2009 as an interim replacement for Robert C. Byrd. Tomblin faced Maloney in a special 2011 gubernatorial election and has now defeated him twice since taking office.

“Tonight’s results are proof that West Virginians want to come together and those West Virginians he met along the way—women and men, young and old. This victory is not about me. It’s about you and the great things we can do in our state,” Tomblin said.

“The people of West Virginia have once again given me their faith and confidence,” Manchin said in a release. “I am thankful to the voters who elected me. It’s about you and the great things we can do in our state.”

Marshall University students gathered to view election results

The Department of Housing and Residence Life, the Department of Political Science and the Political Science Graduate Student Association had a results party where students from both political parties gathered to watch election results come in and discuss the results of the presidential election.

“The president has done a really good job,” Tabitha Greer said. “I am an English major, and I feel like he has done a lot better (if re-elected).”

Greer said she is an Obama supporter and she is hopeful he will be re-elected for another term. In addition to democracy, the room was also filled with republican students who had opposing views.

“Ask me this every day, what has Barack Obama actually done in his four years in office?” Christian Bruno, a sports broadcast major, said. “It’s been a disaster.”

Greer said she is an Obama supporter and is hopeful he will be re-elected for another term. In addition to democracy, the room was also filled with republican students who had opposing views.

“I can tell you how much your support means to me,” Tomblin said. “Business and labor north and south, men and women, young and old. This victory is not about me. It’s about you and the great things we can do in our state.”

Tomblin’s victory was not the only one in West Virginia Tuesday night. Sigma Tau Gamma collecting food for local food pantry

By JOSHDUB PRINCE

The chapter of Sigma Tau Gamma fraternity is collecting non-perishable food items for the Lavalette Food Pantry.

The city of Lavalette in Wayne County is located south of Huntington. The chapter will also be collecting hygiene products, such as shampoo, toothpaste and toothbrushes. Collection sites are placed in Carpey Hall, Harris Hall, Smith Annex and the Rec Center until Friday. More than 150 families attend the particular food pantry monthly for assistance with food and necessary hygiene products. Jacob Smith, Sigma Tau Gamma vice president, said this is the first year for the fraternity to commit to the drive.

The Lavalette Food Pantry is located at the Lavalette United Methodist Church. The Lavalette Methodist Church has a monthly food bank for area residents who need assistance. During the holidays there is an increase of families who need assistance, instead of serving 150 families they now serve 200-250.

The food bank will distribute food in tins starting on Dec. 14 to Nov. 30.

“We are always looking for opportunities to do something positive for others and have our same part out in a positive issue,” Smith said. “When I heard about this opportunity I shared it with others and decided to start forming it. I hope this will help other people and have great success.”

Huntington Museum of Art to celebrate 60 years

By SARAH SMITH

The Huntington Museum of Art will celebrate its 60th anniversary with the opening receptions for two new exhibitions on Nov. 16 from 5-7 p.m.

The two new shows are “Huntington Federal Savings Bank Presents Mr. Fitz Celebrating the 60th Anniversary of the Huntington Museum of Art” and “Curator’s Choice: Barrie Kaufman.”

HMWA’s 60th Anniversary Celebration will begin with opening remarks and a Gallery Walk with Kaufman before the opening of the exhibits. A reception with an anniversary cake will follow.

Jenine Culligan, senior curator at the Huntington Museum of Art, said Kaufman will talk about her exhibit, “Barrie Kaufman will be talking about her work in the gallery.” Kaufman “will bring insight to techniques she employs as well as her inspirations. Most of the exhibitions concentrate on recent work made in the last century.”

The Mr. Fitz exhibit features more than 625 works donated by the late Herbert Fitzpatrick. Fitzpatrick donated 50 acres as a site to build an art gallery to store his collection in 1947.

John Gillispie, public relations director for the Huntington Museum of Art, said the Mr. Fitz exhibit will feature British silver from the Georgio period, New Canaan props, fine European and American paintings, sculptures, drawings and prints, and Asian decorative arts. The exhibit will also include prints by Durer and Rembrandt, drawings by Manet and Picasso, paintings by Rousseau and Degas along with many others.

Gillispie said the public perception of the museum has changed over 60 years. It was originally perceived as an amusement facility.

The last 20 years I believe that has changed for the good,” Gillispie said. “We have seen educational programs that go out to schools or bring students into the museum. We offer classes for children and adults. We try to offer a balanced schedule of exhibits from traditional to cutting-edge contemporary. This is everyone’s collection to take advantage of. Beautiful, the exhibits, the classes, the plant conservatory, the hiking trails.

“Mr. Fitz was Herbert Fitzpatrick who made all this possible, devoting the land, his amazing collection and energizing others to help make the institution a reality. Very few possess the site of Huntington, much less having an art museum of this calibre. We really try hard to have something for everyone.”

The Center’s exhibit will be open from Nov. 10 through Feb. 3. The Mr. Fitz exhibit opened Oct. 20, will continue through Feb. 3 and then be on view again Feb. 23 through Oct. 20, 2013.

Admission to the 60th Anniversary Celebration is free.

It’s amazing how Americans are under this crazy impression we are somehow superior to Europe because they are a bunch of tree huggers, gay-loving socialized nations.

We lose here — so wanting to protect the environment, feeling people have the right to live the way they think is right and equally absurd and believing strong social programs should be the cornerstone of any country — that in this country, these issues are really a moral question. That's right, we are talking about the elimination of one of the most important principles under the law.

Tuesday. They are setting the example that no matter what your political or religious beliefs are — you shouldn’t allow them to illegiti- make a person less human.

Something the United States needs to get beyond — get left behind. It was once a time when we were on top of the world, and then it was time to return to the top of the world. But we have shown how just for use to have been. It is time we get be- hind marriage equality, renewable energy and true separation of church and state in the One Great United States of America. We cannot crumble into a divided rabble to be laughed at by the world as they continue to move on from the archaic, closed-minded thoughts of the past.

So which risk is greater: the risk of green-lighting delivery of limited numbers of antiaircraft weapons must be weighed against the near-cer- tainty that military will ultimately get these weapons and the war continues.

The National Weather Service said late Tuesday that the storm was moving farther offshore, lessening its impact. But "it will definitely be a heavy rain and gusty wind producer while churning up the air,"

Brick Township in New Jersey issued a mandatory evacuation, ordering residents along its waterfront to leave for higher ground. Other parts of the state also issued evacuation orders to seek shelter from the storm. As of about 30 percent of Brick Township is still without electricity from Sandy.

The Syrian Observatory for Human Rights, which counts only those killed by government casualties, found that for the months of September and October combined, government deaths outnumbered rebel deaths, by 2,277 to 1,605. Of rebel deaths, only a small percentage were former Syrian government-owned human rights group.

The Syrian Observatory for Human Rights' casualty report showed 1,541 deaths in the month of September slightly from September's 1,575. In Aleppo province, which includes the country's largest city, the refugee camp and shanty areas that surrounded it, 786 people died in Octo-

Another 722 deaths were reported in Idlib province, where rebels are attempting to create a larger no-go zone for government troops in the country's border with Turkey; in Hama province, there were 339.

Even as overall civilian deaths fell in October, the Syrian Observatory for Human Rights counted 777 women and children among the dead, nearly double the September total.

It is not that 40,000 children and fighters on both sides have disappeared from the scene since March 2011, when the conflict began.
