MU School of Pharmacy receives donation

By TAYLOR STUCK
The Parthenon

International agents from around the globe gathered Monday at Foundation Hall to begin the second familiarizing tour of campus.

The tour was organized by INTO Universal Partnerships, an organization partnered with the university to bring more international students to campus.

Marshall University President Stephen J. Kopp began the event by welcoming the 30 agents to the community.

"You’ll find each at Marshall University that this isn’t just a community of scholars, but also a community of people who care about people," Kopp said. INTO Universal Partnerships’ Steve Walters told the housing community in Marshall University that the day is a place where people help each other.

"It’s that kind of town," Walters said.

Charlie Pasquet, graduate assistant with the Center for International Programs, finished the tour by talking about her experience at Marshall as an international student from France.

"The reason I fell in love with Marshall University is because it is a safe, comfortable and convenient place," Pasquet said. "There is an awesome international and local community. It’s the perfect place to study for international students, and this is a place that changed my life."

Janine Bourns, INTO regional director for Africa, said student experience is an important part of what she is looking to find out about Marshall.

"We want to see how the students are treated," Bourns said. "I’d think it’s a perfect place for Fairness West Virginia to have as what we have to take back to our students."

---

MU School of Pharmacy receives donation

By ARLEY HEROLD
The Parthenon

Fairness West Virginia started its campaign for fair treatment of the lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender community in the Memorial Student Center Monday.

Fairness West Virginia’s mission is to ensure LGBT people can be open, honest and safe at home, work and in their community.

Fairness West Virginia is a statewide civil rights advocacy organization devoted to the fair and equal treatment of LGBT people.

Andrew Shaugnessy, Fairness West Virginia director of organizing community outreach, said the organization chose Huntington as one of its campaign destinations for its population size.

"We want to advocate for fairness among all West Virginians, regardless of their sexual orientation," Shaugnessy said.

Fairness West Virginia started their campaign because of outreach and support it received from citizens in West Virginia.

"What we want to do is get out and speak up for all West Virginians, regardless of their sexual orientation," Shaugnessy said. "In this country, we have the right to live our lives how we please."

"It’s that kind of town," Walters said.

Charlie Pasquet, graduate assistant with the Center for International Programs, finished the tour by talking about her experience at Marshall as an international student from France.

"The reason I fell in love with Marshall University is because it is a safe, comfortable and convenient place," Pasquet said. "There is an awesome international and local community. It’s the perfect place to study for international students, and this is a place that changed my life."

Janine Bourns, INTO regional director for Africa, said student experience is an important part of what she is looking to find out about Marshall.

"We want to see how the students are treated," Bourns said. "I’d think it’s a perfect place for Fairness West Virginia to have as what we have to take back to our students."

---

MU School of Pharmacy receives donation

By SHAKEE BIAS
The Parthenon

The Marshall University School of Pharmacy was gifted equipment from Cabell Huntington Hospital.

Dr. Robert Stanton, assistant dean in the College of Pharmacy and Pharmaceutical Sciences, said Cabell Huntington Hospital had been a great partner with Marshall and will be there to continue.

"I think the decision that Cabell Huntington Hos- pital made to donate to us will allow our students to sim- ulate real world work environments and help our students learn a lot better," Stanton said. "Our students will become better prepared pharmacists in IV prop with these flow hoods."

Kibler, pharmacist for Cabell Huntington Hospital, said to witness students to sim- ulate real world work environments and help our students learn a lot better was "a lot of fun."

"I think the decision that Cabell Huntington Hos- pital made to donate to us will allow our students to sim- ulate real world work environments and help our students learn a lot better," Stanton said. "Our students will become better prepared pharmacists in IV prop with these flow hoods."

Kibler, pharmacist for Cabell Huntington Hospital, said to witness students to sim- ulate real world work environments and help our students learn a lot better was "a lot of fun."
than 20 hours of television a week.

Recent research by scientists at the University of California, San Francisco, has linked moderate to vigorous exercise, as compared with less than one hour of exercise, to a 33% reduction in the risk of developing type 2 diabetes, according to the study authors.

The study, published in the Journal of the American College of Sports Medicine, found that men who engaged in moderate to vigorous exercise over 15 or more hours a week were 71% less likely to develop type 2 diabetes than men who exercised less than five hours a week.

One explanation for these findings is that people who engage in regular exercise have a lower glycemic response to a meal, compared to those who do not exercise regularly. This may help to prevent the body from over-producing insulin, which can lead to type 2 diabetes.

The results of this study add to the growing body of evidence that regular exercise is beneficial for preventing chronic diseases, including diabetes.

References:

---

By HOWARD HINTZ
SAN JOSE MARINER NEWS (MCT)

---

California’s medical pot wars spark up again

By KATHLEEN MENNEN
TERLUNE WASHINGTON BUREAU (MCT)

---

Sperm count low among couch potatoes, study finds

By MONTE MORIN
LOS ANGELES TIMES (TNS)

---

Why are people who exercise less likely to develop type 2 diabetes, compared to those who engage in regular exercise? How does regular exercise help to prevent the body from over-producing insulin?
Investigation uncovers possible fixing of soccer games worldwide

BY KEVIN BAXTER

Los Angeles Times (BET)

Soccer is the world's most popular sport. And now, in the wake of an 18-month investigation, it appears it's the world's most corrupt sport as well.

Europe, the European Union's joint prosecutor, arrested 14 soccer players and officials in the largest international raid in history, and it served as one of the centerpieces of the European probe, which looked at scores of at least 15 countries were involved in fixing games to Europe alone during to 2005. The European Union's investigation was at the center of the European probe, which looked at scores of at least 15 countries were involved in fixing games to Europe alone during to 2005. The European Union's investigation was at the center of the European probe, which looked at scores of at least 15 countries were involved in fixing games to Europe alone during to 2005.

No, it’s not that soccer is corrupt. But it is that the game is so popular and lucrative that it has attracted the attention of criminal organizations around the world.

So what does this mean for soccer fans? It means that those who love the game must be prepared to see their любимые teams lose or win games they otherwise thought they were going to win or lose. It also means that those who bet on soccer games must be prepared to lose money, as the odds are stacked against them.

And it means that those who want to see soccer remain a clean, sport that is enjoyed by fans around the world must support the efforts of those who are trying to clean up the sport.

The future of soccer may never be the same. But it is a future that is worth fighting for.
Therefore, this opinion column the requirement to 2.75, not 3.0. olution was amended, changing the minutes for the meeting in the author did not reference when formulating this column, Senate from 2.5 to 3.0. However, mulative grade point average of 2012 which raised the cu Requirement Amendment
Student Senate passed a reso case in the article.
left out or misinterpreted, there successful operation of the ative body, language is vital in importance of reading through ents in our efforts to best serve transparency to our constitu as a Student Senate in reference to the practices represent entire student body”
the student body.
look forward to continuing to operate in the best interests of operate in the best interests of the tire Student Senate is honored regard to the labeling of an entire sex as degrading that viewing them as the op feminist movement’s great Feminism needs men
Column
A photo of President Barack Obama firing a gun at a gun range in Camp David has the NSA and a roman critic up in arms. This comes a couple days be fore the president will speak to lawmakers in Minneapolis about gun laws and regulations in the Midwest, which he did Monday.
has been argued that the White House released the photo of the president discharging the gun to ease some anxiety regarding the Second Amendment. Obama’s intentions regarding gun laws and stricter gun regulations have been scrutinized and many false ac uations have been made by individuals seeking to deflect Obama’s presidential role.
Andrew Ackerman, a NRA spokesman, said one picture of the president shooting a gun was incomprehensible.
Let’s clear things up.
Obama does not intend to take away our guns. He wants to start with military-style assault weapons, which could lead to a war.
Obama might remember the ass ault weapons ban Clinton signed into law. That law remained in place for eight years — Obama wants to bring this back.
In addition, he wants to eliminate the loopholes in any background checks. It could cause a war, so get those background checks.
Obama also wants a system in place where the names of the offenders are placed into a national-wide database. This would pro cause every person to carry weapons in the mentally Truth is, 30,000 people are killed each year as a result of gun violence.
Yes, it is a constitutional right to bear arms but it’s the U.S. government’s responsibility to ensure our citizens are safe and are entitled to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.
Interpret the Constitution
as you will, but banning mil itary-style assault weapons and high-capacity gun maga neses does not constitute all guns.
Additionally, I doubt the back to the point, the photo of Obama shooting a gun is a misrepresentation of each spur of what went out of propor tion.
Researchers are heading into the kinks Creek area of Leavenworth, Washington, to catch a remote camera, in hopes of attracting a wolverine. The photo help document the wolverine populations receding from the Cascade Mountains.

Web Buzz: The world’s your home with Couchsurfing

By JEN LED LOS ANGELES TIMES (MCT)

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 5, 2013

Couchsurfing, the website that helps travelers stay or to broaden your circle of travel enthusiasm?

What it does: This app connected hosts with guests in meet-ups, conversation and more.

Con: Guest: I always thought staying on someone’s couch is not for broke backpackers. Not

Your Commons

From Page 1

Barbara was honored 23 conferences at the city of on the way along a trail tobacco. In fact, about 20 hours, 5 feet above the ground and reached overhead to pick some raw rib meat.

What’s hot: I always thought of being a win-win device was a win-win for mobile devices were a win-win

What’s not: My experience in the U.S., Britain and Can-

Available for: iPhone, iPod

 drugs

Contradicted

From Page 2

After Hood developed the auded, a chargeable lithium-ion battery.

Those two things, you see they

Obama honors scientists, researchers at White House

By ARLENE KESTER/SCIENCE

Among the honorees:

Barbara was shot on sight, trapped in a year and one of the few

With similar interests. It doesn’t could log in with Facebook, but

When I set up my Couchsurfing

Intelligence, she said to laughter from the honor

guests in the East Room,

White House researchers at White House

guests in the East Room,

He has been vetted. This really

While I tested it

I could log in with Facebook,

but I still think it’s going to be an uphill to list would be at least a year

He hopes the tasty new bait

Once shot on sight, trapped

Wolverines rebound

Wolverine's return to

They are the superheroes of Researchers are heading into the Couchsurfing, the website that

What’s not: My experience

What’s not: My experience

What’s not: My experience
Formal Recruitment party

6. Leprachaun: Back 2 tha Hood
7. Spiderman 3
8. The Final Sacrifice
9. The Room
5. Snakes on a Plane
10. The Human Centipede

---

FEBRUARY

Sorority Recruitment Calendar of Events

5.
Hot Chocolate Social Memorial Student Center Don Morris Room
7 p.m.-9:15 p.m.

11.
Formal Recruitment party
Alpha Chi Omega Suite
9:15 p.m.-10:15 p.m.

12.
Formal Recruitment party
Sigma Sigma Sigma house
9:15 p.m.-10:15 p.m.

13.
Formal Recruitment party
Delta Zeta house
9:15 p.m.-10:15 p.m.

15.
Formal Recruitment party
Alpha Xi house
9:15 p.m.-10:15 p.m.

17.
BID DAY

---

Facebook stirs envy, misery in some users

By WALTER PACKO
ORTON SHINNE (AC)

Facebook posts of your exotic vacations and popular status updates could be stressing out some of your friends, making them envious and aware of your exciting life, a new German study shows.

The joint study conducted by researchers at Berlin’s Humboldt University and Darmstadt’s Technological University asked German Facebook users how often they feel one-third reported being envious of their friends’ posts about their travels. This is a result of numerous vacation photos posted on Facebook, which are particularly popular among German users,” said Dr. Thomas Widjaja of Darmstadt.

But the same can be said of any prolific user of the world’s largest social network.

---

You Tube may test pay channels this year

By BRANDON BAGLEY
SAN JOSE MERCURY NEWS (MCT)

From the time its first video was uploaded in 2005, YouTube has been known as the place where people can watch an endless stream of weird, funny, interesting, breathtaking videos. Taking or sometimes even mundane video clips - all for free. But over the last year, the Google-owned property has been gradually moving to emphasize higher quality content, formal “channels” and increasingly sophisticated advertising.

Now comes a report in Advertising Age that YouTube is preparing to launch its first-ever paid subscriptions for a limited number of individual channels, perhaps in the next six months.

The report, which cites unnamed “people familiar with the plans,” says YouTube has invited some video producers to submit plans for creating channels that users would pay to watch. The report says the program would be an experiment to see how viewers respond. And according to Ad Age, YouTube is also considering charging for access to certain content libraries and live events.

YouTube chief Saler Khan has previously said: “We have long maintained that different content requires different types of payment models.” The statement said, “The important thing is that, regardless of the model, our creators succeed on the platform. There are a lot of our content creators that they think they would benefit from subscriptions, so we’re looking at that.”

---

Recruitment tables will be set up every day this week at the Memorial Student Center

---

Send a message to your loved ones for Valentine's Day. The Parthenon will publish the best of our Valentine’s edition on Feb. 14! Send submissions to parthenon@marshall.edu. Deadline is Feb. 13.