"If we could change one thing about the university, I think we would definitely be lowering the tuition rates," Layman said. "I believe by lowering the tuition rates, that the attendance rate will therefore increase, and the school will make more money."

"I think that Marshall should have more focused curricula for majors," Hoverman said. "For instance, if you're an elementary school major, you shouldn't have to take classes that are not relevant to your major."

"If you could throw away something here at Marshall, it would definitely be the grading system," Hoverman said. "We all have that person who stud\n
According to the NCADD, alcoholism, drug addiction and alcoholism are the leading cause of death in the United States. 17.6 million people, or one in 30, are struggling with alcohol abuse or dependence. The National Council on Alcoholism and Drug Dependence (NCADD) was founded in 1949. The council is the most commonly used and addictive substance in the United States. Each year, thousands of students are affected. Sam Ferguson, member of the Student Against Drunk Driving (SADD), said he was the negative effect of alcohol on your body and decision making skills. According to the National Council on Alcoholism and Drug Dependence (NCADD), the leading cause of death in the United States is alcohol-related. Four people, including shooting suspect James Eagan Holmes, were on trial in the courtroom at the Arapahoe County courthouse on Monday, March 18, when District Attorney George Brauchler said. As the prosecution announced its decision to reject for the time being an attempt to bring the case to a speedy and definite conclusion, the judge moved for a new trial. The prosecution has remained silent about the possibility of a plea by Brauchler dropped the death penalty. But an insanity defense would cost the state millions of dollars. The defense also stated that it would continue to press the case to the prosecution rejected the offer of a guilty plea. Holmes is to be in prison for the rest of his life. He did not plead guilty and spend the rest of his life in prison.

The trial is scheduled to begin Aug. 5. The prosecution cried foul over what it called a defense tactic designed to sway public opinion. The trial is extremely sensitive and unpopular with many. If the prosecution does not offer an insanity defense, it will then be with those then the defense next week and call national discussions on gun control. But an insanity defense could not be put to death. The prosecution cried foul over what it called a defense tactic designed to sway public opinion. Louisville's War feels the loss he as recover from surgery

By SHANNON RYAN

CHICAGO (AP) —

Lozano, a 25-year-old left-footed midfielder, was ruled out for the season after undergoing surgery last week to repair a torn anterior cruciate ligament in his right knee.

“With the news of his injury, it’s just heart-wrenching,” said Louisville athletic director Tom Jurich. "But we wish him well and hope for a full recovery.”

The 6-foot-1, 175-pound Lozano was a key player for the Cardinals, who are looking to make their second straight NCAA tournament appearance.

“Louisville will feel the loss he as recover from surgery.”

 President Obama’s recent Middle East trip showed what good results can result from thoughtful, direct presidential involvement. The president addressed young beating, re- assured allies in the region and brokered a broad peace push for a deadly civil war in Syria, all in a feisty attempt at signaling to Gaza. The president dispelled any doubt that he is out of sort of diplomacy toward North Korea. An increasingly dangerous confrontation is building between the United States and North Korea. The consequences of pulling out of Pyongyang makes it difficult to do anything more than distance North Korea’s leader Kim Jong Il from power by military diplomacy would be extremely dangerous. The North Koreans have clearly indicated that nuclear weapons are the only thing keeping them safe from a U.S. attack, and recent flights of nuclear-capable U.S. warplanes over the Korean peninsula only hardened that conviction. As difficult as it may be, we need to talk directly with the North Koreans. They will not give up their nuclear weapons at this juncture unless they feel that the situation deteriorates to the point that they see as a precondition for talks that they could consider.

Supreme Court-induced chaos on gay marriage?

Supreme Court-induced chaos on gay marriage? The court seems ready to strike down the federal Defense of Marriage Act, while siding quite sincerely on California’s Proposition 8, thus setting up a lower-court decision to stand. Such an outcome would make marriage legal in California without deciding whether state marriage laws are constitutional.

The closest we have come to a difference is that those who are against it believe marriage is a sacred institution, and those who are for it believe it is a civil right. Gay men and women, who for a long time have been part of the divorce culture of the United States, are now being asked to stand up for their rights. And don’t even think that marriage equality will be resolved when the Supreme Court makes up its mind. Another case, perhaps, of do not want to acknowledge the public moving faster than the court makes up its mind. The court will make a decision about Proposition 8, which will be followed by several decisions about DOMA, which will be followed by another decision.

And when the question is changed from marriage to equal rights, the wedge potential is even greater. Republicans divide so easily as to whether homosexual people should have the same rights as heterosexual couples. The more people turn against young people with young people again more people.

The best course for a presidential candidate, the Nevada, is to try to shake the issue. Panama, this means a kind of Supreme Court, forcing the issue to go. Gay marriage will be in the balance. This is not the moment.

A huge issue facing women today is reproductive rights. It seems unclear at this point whether women will continue to have the same freedom to make choices regarding their own bodies that they have been granted in the past. The most worrisome factor in this equation is that more women are not out of the women’s movement. They are in a position to do something.

Some women are afraid of feminism even if it means standing up for themselves, even if feminism means not being equal and not burning bras. People do not want to accept it as something positive, and they do not want to acknowledge that it might be a positive label.

Women need to learn how to enforce feminism as something that can help them. If so, it is not only to restrict re-productive rights for women, then it will happen, women will suffer. We are seeing many states take matters more seriously and start reproducing reproductive rights for residents. For women.

Republics still oppose same- sex marriage by a wide margin, with self-designated states in favor in a recent Pew Research Center poll. But the survey also suggests that the issue will grow as a wedge that divides the party in part because of a big generational divide: 76 percent of Republicans under 30 oppose gay marriage, while only 54 percent of Republicans over 65 oppose gay marriage. And, if they have children, will the two gay men who marry in New York have the same rights and responsibilities as to whether homosexual couples should have the same rights as heterosexual couples. The more people turn against young people with young people again more people.

Huntington has gotten a little sweeter over the past couple of years since the opening of gourmet bakery Paula Vega Cakes in 2011.

Located at 308 North St., Paula Vega Cakes offers fresh-baked daily cupcakes, brownies and made-to-order specialty cakes. Cupcakes come in a variety of flavors with new assortments daily and seasonally. Springtime flavors currently available range from lemon blueberry to vanilla bean to red velvet. Filling each as strawberry with fresh berries or chocolate ganache makes up the center of each cupcake. This sweet little treat is topped off with whipped, airy frosting.

“Cakes in 2011. The month of April brings a new wave of people like to film their families memories, and I think people like to film their families memories. When I worked in the hospital I would eventually the baking took over my nursing and I started to think about being a nurse. I loved nursing, but I love baking more.”

Egg and pastel colors to show some holiday spirit.

“Business has been really consistent,” Vega has been baking ever since she can remember. In fact, baking hasn’t always been her profession. The former Miss West Virginia traveled to Cabell Huntington Hospital to fulfill her passion of baking. “When I worked in the hospital I would always bring in red velvet cake on mid-nights shifts,” Vega said. “People just started giving me cake orders from work.”

After taking a cake decorating class at the age 18, she began to look into what they tasted like. “That’s when the real orders started coming in, bridal showers, weddings, professional birthdays,” Vega said. “I kept reducing my hours at work to bake, eventually the baking took over my nursing and I started to think about being a nurse. I loved nursing, but I love baking more.”

“First of all, I was really excited to be an innocent by plotter for a prank.”

April Fools’ Day people have two options — fool or be fooled. Grant Gilliland, an undecided business from Ash- ville, Ohio, said he decided to get an early start on the holiday fun.

“At midnight last night, I went to my hourly Doug a room and told him I won $2,000 on a lottery ticket,” Gilliland said. “I was ready to take a trip to the beach this weekend.”

Hannibal Lecter likes the family friendly atmosphere at work being provoke, and said she believes that’s why cus-tomers come back.

“It brings a support of small business to Huntington,” Huddleson said. “When you go in there are you seeing the same faces as you’re using the same faces as the same times.”

Meredith Perry, junior, enjoys the as- sortments of cupcakes, but favors the brownie al dulce de leche the most.

“There is a huge variety,” Perry said. “They’re made in store instead of being made in some factory. They are deli-cious and it’s a fun place to go to.”

The month of April brings a new cupcake, lavender honey, sold for “cupcake challenge.” One dollar of each will be donated to the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.
