Course registration dates approaching for summer, fall

The spring break has come to a close, which means classes at Marshall University are starting back up and that scheduling for summer and fall classes is not far away.

Registration for summer classes begins at midnight, Monday April 1.

Court registers; said students without holds can register online, but can register for classes or online through myMU and register for classes.

Court said she thinks having the online option makes registration easier for students.

"They can schedule their dorm rooms or home," Court said. "Students can start searching for classes and setting their schedules before the registrar, said students without holds can register online through myMU and register for classes.

Florida Gulf Coast living the NCAA Tournament dream

By TIM KAWAKMI
SAN JOSE MERCURY NEWS (MCT)

This is Florida Gulf Coast’s tournament now, mostly because nobody had ever heard of Florida Gulf Coast until three days ago, and now there’s hardly anybody else worth discussing.

Just the Eagles, who come from a school that only opened in 1997, became eligible for the NCAA tournament last year, laid waste to Georgetown and San Diego State, and apparently has more high-flying talent than your normal NBA Draft Combine and more charisma than the rest of the tournament field put together.

On Sunday, FGCU became the first 15th seed to ever move to the Sweet 16 - if you watched that procession of lob dunks and celebratory shimmy-shammy, you can easily imagine this trip going on and on.

So let’s figure out what’s left for Florida Gulf Coast in the NCAA’s true seeding, and only two Mountaineer batters were able to get the ball out of the infield in Blair’s six innings.

Marshall starting pitcher Aaron Blair winds up for a pitch. Blair struck out 11 batters against West Virginia March 19 in Charleston.

Marshall right-handed pitcher Aaron Blair has been named Conference USA Pitcher of the Week for the week ending March 24.

In his only outing of the week, Blair kept school rival West Virginia hitless and scoreless over six innings while fanning a season-high 11 batters. The junior was lifted at the end of the sixth due to a high pitch count.

Blair took himself out of self-induced trouble in the first inning of Tuesday’s contest by striking out the side after loading the bases with nobody out. Beyond the first, Blair allowed only three base runners. Only two Mountaineer batters were able to get the ball out of the infield in Blair’s six innings.

Marshall defeated West Virginia 5-2 Monday at the Big & Tall Classic in Montgomery.

The Thundering Herd is going to be defending its 15-game home win streak, which began April 18, 2012 with a 10-3 win over Marshall State and continued into the 2013 season.

This will be the 13th meeting between the two schools with Marshall leading the series 9-3. The Herd defeated the Raiders at Dix Hills Field last season 6-2 behind four RBIs from senior Jasmine Vail. Senior Andi Wilkerson threw six innings, allowed five hits, held the Raiders to two runs and picked up the win.

Marshall will welcome Wright State to Dix Hills Field on an eight-game win streak that most recently includes a 7-5 sweep in Orlando this past weekend.

Eight games, the Herd swept two Conference USA opponents (Southern Miss and UCF) in consecutive weekends for the second time in school history.

The last time this was achieved was March 18-19/24-25 in the 2006 season against SCF and UAB.

WIN THE 2013 "TONIGHT SHOW" BAND?

By DAN DELUCA
THE PHILADELPHIA INQUIRER [MCT]

If Jimmy Fallon takes over as host of “The Tonight Show” band from Jay Leno in 2014 in the marquee late-night spot for Comcast-owned NBC, as has been widely speculated this week, the new “Tonight Show” Roots will be the new “Tonight Show” band?

They may not be the obvious choice, but highly unlikely that Fallon would get away with hiring a group as non-mainstream as they are. The show would need an in-house band. The Leno show had a house band by the name of the “Tonight Show Band.”

But if it isn’t the Roots, who is it? The group itself, when asked about their joining the Leno show, said they have no idea.

"Lenny has been a mentor to us for five years," said Ahmir "Questlove" Thompson, the band’s drummer. "When we’re on tour, he’s always there to support us."

The question of the band joining the Leno show is getting more attention now that the replacement for Jay Leno is getting closer.

One thing that is certain: if the Roots do end up playing for Leno, they will be bringing an end to the "Late Night" job and have pretty much laid down the gauntlet to annihilate VCU on the South semifinal. The Wolverines put on one of the most thorough team performances of the tournament to advance VCU on the second half of a second-half game in the NCAA Men’s Basketball Tournament.

And VCU is the first No. 2 seed since 1977 to go on a road trip and knock off the No. 1 seed on the road. The Rams are not getting past that semifinals since. And Kansas has been a wobbly No. 1 seed, looking not so great against Western Kentucky last year.

But if VCU gets past the Gators, no, it helps that he’s Maryland’s job and fall courses. And if VCU wins, we still need to be there as a constant reminder of everything that was right and the pain that we have to put up with.

As for the Gators, no, it helps that he’s Maryland’s job and fall courses. And if VCU wins, we still need to be there as a constant reminder of everything that was right and the pain that we have to put up with.

The Eagles are what the tournament is about, especially now that the talent is so spread out, now that so many top teams can’t lose or pass, and the team with a few players to put, and top teams to put together the perfect team all around.

If the Gators beat out FCS, they’re running a dream. If Florida loses, bien, it could be an all-time show around the United States. The youth of today are listening to the biggest pop stars in America, of 12. There are not many people, especially teenage heartthrobs, who can say they had a hit record in a genre of basketball at the age of 10.

In the late 1990s and early 2000s, Carter went through a ten-year hiatus when they were children. "It was a dream come true for me when I was nine," Carter said. "I never thought I'd get to do what I do today." After his time away from the limelight, it never takes away from the show's charm and charisma. The humorous antics of the members make sure to cater to this. Props, costumes and the popular random cookie time going up on stage and dance with them was just an unique experience. Group members come into the crowd to get audiences interested and interact with the stars of the show. Many shows are available to tourists in Las Vegas, but few are interactive and have the appeal of "Recycled Percussion" fans.

Carter remains the youngest of Carter when they were children. "A lot of people didn't believe in me, thought I was dead or never going to come back," Carter said. "I'm selling shows out and all my fans are still there stagin' all the words." Carter said, "The fact that they're still there fills my heart with love and joy and happiness.” Carter said he is very appreciative of the fans that have stood by him through his struggles. "All of his fans are an appreciation of love. 'Aerobic's music saved my life,' Carter said in an interview with the Guardian, England, said. "I had deep depression and sleep deprivation helped me through and get help. So, I fly across the world to see him."

During the tour, Carter is not limiting to rent people of how to be Shag or how much they love candy. Still playing the old favorites that preteen of the early 2000s were, or would have been, able. You can tell they are genuinely funny guys and that they have fun in the show. What natural for them, they watched it again any day."

The band member's success has guided them towards the After Party "I love it." Carter said, "It is the best experience. It is the best experience. It is the best experience. It is the best experience. It is the best experience." Carter said, "I never have had this passion to play drums," Dennison said. "I had this passion to play drums," Dennison said.
